Two Daughters Christened Into Greek Church

Members of Greek families from Kingston on the east to Oshawa on the west including Peterborough and Toronto, were in attendance at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Sunday evening when the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Tsichlas and Mr. and Mrs. Tony Tsichlas were christened. Rev. Fr. Phillip Ramphos of Ottawa assisted by Nick Michelis, Greek student for the ministry.

There were more than 200 persons including special invited guests from the city and district to witness the interesting ceremony of entering the fold of the Orthodox Church. Following the ceremony a most delicious dinner was served, following which the guests offered congratulations to the parents, Mr. enjoyed a social hour in dancing to the favorite Greek songs and dances.

The ceremony of christening takes over an hour and is a most elaborate affair. The child is taken from the family of the godmother and godfather and they are not allowed to see the child again until the ceremony is completed. Then the child is delivered to the godfather of the celebrant of christening for her protection through life. The name of the child is unknown until the ceremony is almost completed and the name is given to the minister by the godfather at a certain time. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Tsichlas is named that of Mrs. and Mrs. Tony Tsichlas is Mary.

At the christening the child is immersed naked in a tub of water three times and then completely washed in olive oil. The baby is then dressed and again taken through a ritual to bless it. It is a most interesting and colorful ceremony and at the same time being deeply religious. The godfather for Julia Tsichlas was Angelo Tsichlas, and for Mary Tsichlas, John Zohn Parakizas.

Juvenile Reading Grisly Says D. MacKinnon

On Thursday evening the Y's Men's Club heard Don MacKinnon of the Hastings County Juvenile and Family Court, give a short account of his work as Probation Officer.

Mr. MacKinnon explained that one of his duties was dealing with cases of women whose husbands are failing to provide support.

Another duty is that of investigating cases of juveniles charged in court with criminal offences. Where circumstances warrant, Mr. MacKinnon's report may result in the suspension of sentence.

Children who refuse to attend school also may find themselves receiving Mr. MacKinnon's attention. Generally, he is able to persuade them to change their minds, but in difficult cases he has found that a fine levied on the parents is surprisingly effective.

Much of the speaker's address dealt with juvenile reading habits. Material obtained from some of the juveniles appearing before him was read out as an illustration.

Few of the club members realized how grisly the contents of comic books could be till they heard these extracts from books purchased in Belleville.

Considering the influence exerted by these tales of violence and depravity, Mr. MacKinnon urged parents to check their children's reading material.

The speaker was thanked by Bill Barnard and presented with an initialled key case on behalf of the club.

The club president, Willis Hutchinson, announced the appointment of a special investigating committee to look into the renovation of the YMCA bowling alley.

The YMCA father and son banquet being held April 29 was discussed and approximately 40 Y's Men will serve the meal.

Harold Robinson Heads Gideon Zone Nine

Gideons from Zone Nine—from Oshawa, Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay, Peterborough, and Belleville—will gather in Belleville for their annual zone rally on Saturday, when Harold Robinson, of Belleville, was re-elected zone leader for the third term.

The day was climaxed with a banquet in the evening when other Gideons, their wives and friends, gathered from as far west as Woodstock, Ontario.

Throughout the day delegates from camps in zone nine met at St. James' United Church, to review the progress of the past year. The report from each camp was most gratifying. While most of the hotels and motels, hospitals, prisons and schools have a copy of the complete Bible, there is a steady increase in the requirement of the New Testament in the Psalms and Proverbs that are presented to the pupils in the public schools as they enter grade five.

The Gideons are best known for their distribution of the Scriptures. Since 1908, when the first 24 copies of the Bible were placed in a small hotel in Montana, the international association has placed four million copies of the Holy Bible and over 23 million copies of the New Testament, most of these containing the Psalms and Book of Proverbs, at no cost.

"Canadian Gideons have always been alert for new avenues of service and the latest—the Scriptures in Braille for the Braille Classes inaugurated in February 3, of this year, when the Kingston Camp had the honor privilege of presenting one complete copy of the Bible in Braille to the residents of the Quinte-St. Lawrence Hall. It consisted of 20 volumes, having a total weight of 100 pounds.

A week later, the Gospel of St. John was presented to grade III at the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford—one copy for each of the 19 scholars."

Child Injured, Ran Into Fender Of Motor Car

Running into the left front fender of an auto as he left a Front street cafe with several other young boys, Delbert Ingram, 6 1-2 years old, of 370 Dundas East, was injured Saturday afternoon. The lad received a deep scalp wound requiring several stitches to close.

Thomas Smith, 78 Frank street, had stopped his car at the Capitol Theatre to allow passengers to alight, when as he started away the boys ran from the opposite side of the street. Three of the lads ran behind the Smylie car, but the Ingram boy ran into the left fender of the auto.

The lad was taken to hospital by Cpl. Reg. Mackie, head of the OPP who happened to be passing in a police cruiser.

Police Blotter

Two 15-year-old Scarboro youths, missing from their homes since April 20th, ended their travels in Belleville last night when they were unable to give a reasonable account of themselves to police officers.

The boys' parents were notified at Scarboro and police received instructions to hold the lads and they would be picked up and returned home.

GODIVA'S HUBBY JAILED

PISA, Italy (AP) — Varo Vannucci was sentenced Friday to nine months in jail for chasing his wife naked down the street. Vannucci said he peeked through the window and set out after Mrs. Vannucci in the arms of an 18-year-old boy. In a fit of temper he tore off her clothes, and chased her down the street. The parade caused a traffic jam, even though it was near midnight.

COMELY GENEVIEVE CAUDET is briefed by Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal on her mission of carrying civic greetings and tokens to the people of cities across Canada on the inaugural run of the Canadian National Railways Super Continental. They are shown above examining a replica of the city crest in maple sugar. Miss Caudet, a stenographer in the company's law department, has been selected by the railway as "Miss Super Continental" for the inaugural run of the new train.

Twins Born on Train Unveil New CNR 'Super Continental'

TORONTO — Canadian National Railways' new "Super Continental", which will reduce the schedule between Eastern Canada and Vancouver by more than twelve hours, was officially unveiled to the Canadian public here Saturday.

Mrs. Nathan Phillips of Toronto participating, the brief ceremony was held before a group of dignitaries which included civic and industrial leaders. Adeline and Filomena Rizzo, twin sisters who were born on a C.N.R. train twenty years ago, snipped the gold ribbon revealing a floral curtain to unveil the new train.

Miss Super Continental, who is Mary Dimmock, CNR secretary, was commissioned by Mayor Phillips to act as hostess of ceremony and token gifts to the mayors of Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Vancouver, to the superintendent of Jasper National Park, to the mayor of Kamloops and to the Indian chief of the Shuswap Indian Band.

"This is one of the most interesting things I've had to do since I've been in office," said Mayor Phillips as he presented the token to Miss Super Continental. In the letters of greeting which she will deliver, the Jasper park superintendent will cut over twelve hours off the running time between Toronto and Vancouver when provide speedier transportation between our respective cities. Because of the vastness of our great country, shortening of the time of travel is of material benefit and brings the various parts of the country into closer contact."

MEMORIAM DAY

Preceding the introduction of the Ricci girls, M. E. Doke, CNR passenger traffic manager, told the assembly that "this is a memorable day for the Canadian National Railways" and that we are delighted to have you here to share it with us. Today's new name — the Super-Continental — officially joins the railway family tree in Canada, a name that we hope will become familiar throughout the world as applied to every Canadian as well as visitors from across our southern border and other countries.

Embodied in every car on the train are the latest innovations small and large, that are designed to make train travel relaxed, luxurious and enjoyable. We feel that travellers aboard this train will truly be travel in style."

The Ricci girls were chosen to ride the inaugural train because of their unique association with C.N.R.'s transcontinental train service. They were born between Washago and Beaverton and their grandfather and aunt and their mother had boarded in Capreol. Mr. Ricci was a C.N.R. employee at Capreol and had decided that his wife should make their first trip from the comforts and facilities of a Toronto hospital. She didn't quite make it.

N. A. Walford, general manager of C.N.R.'s central region, said, in introducing Mayor Phillips, "not only is this a notable day in the history of Canada's railways, it is also an eventful day for the city of Toronto. This great metropolis, as the eastern terminus of the Super Continental, will now be a night and half day of one day closer to the Pacific Coast by rail and also many hours nearer in time to Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Jasper, the main centres on the route of the train."

In addition to the trans-continental service provided by the super continental, the C.N.R. will continue to operate the "Continental," thereby offering the travelling public two trains between Toronto and the west, living five hours apart.

Cambodia's Former Monarch Forms Own Political Party

By CORLEY SMITH

PHNOMPENH, Cambodia (Reuters)—Norodom Sihanouk, the former Cambodian monarch who recently abdicated in favor of his father, is launching his own political party to contest the elections in this Indochinese state next September.

Although his father, King Suramarit, still sits beneath the nine umbrellas of royalty in the goldroofed palace, Sihanouk—Prince Norodom still appears the leading figure in Cambodia's public affairs.

Palace sources say Norodom abdicated because he wanted to reform the Cambodian constitution, which he thought would put power in the hands of politicians he considered corrupt and dangerous. Advisers and foreign diplomats counselled him not to carry out the reforms before the elections lest he be accused of "playing" the polls.

Sihanouk has criticized all political parties to foreign diplomats he did not want to call his new organization a "party." It therefore has been called "the Popular Community," but it will fight the elections like any other political party.

The Popular Community has not officially announced its platform. Palace sources say the Popular Community will urge the people to stamp out corruption by sending petitions to the king denouncing civil servants who cheat them.

They say that Sihanouk has no intention of running for prime minister himself. He apparently will stay in the background as "grand councillor" of the Popular Community.

His aim appears constitutional reform. He considers the present constitution too idealistic and open to abuse. Nonetheless fears that if the simple Cambodian peasants vote directly for their members of parliament they will put power into the hands of men he distrusts.

He therefore proposes that village vote only for their headmen. The headmen would elect provincial assemblies and the provincial assemblies in turn would pick delegates for a national parliament in Phnompenh. By this means Norodom hopes abuses will be avoided.

The Popular Community also plans on changing the constitution to prevent candidates from standing for provincial seats until they first have lived three years in the province which they represent. This would exclude most Phnompenh politicians from power.

Diplomatic sources say Norodom also plans a system of referenda to avoid the actions of ministers chosen by parliament. The cover-ing legislation, the king would have power to accept or reject the ministers' decisions.

Most observers think the party could win easily, on the strength of Norodom's great popularity, gained by his resolute fight to win independence from France and his leadership of his army against the Communists.

Teen-Age Star Sets Sights On Olympics

By DON HOYT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Walter Peters, teen-age track star, has his sights on a spot in the Olympics he believes training can put within his reach.

The 18-year-old student, who has broad-jumped to within 11½ inches of the Commonwealth record of 24 feet, 8¼ inches, dreams of carrying Canada's colors in the 1956 or 1960 Olympics.

Peters and coaches who have worked with him agree he needs three ingredients to earn a crack at world track honors now coaching, competition, seasoning and style.

Robert A. Brodie, physical education director for local schools, says the high school athlete "has natural potential but is a bit erratic. He has to prove himself when the pressure is on."

Pressure proved too much for Peters at last summer's British Empire Games trials in Vancouver.

He flubbed a berth on Canada's BEG squad with a disappointing leap of 23 feet, 10¾ inches—only a short of the top Canadian jump.

"I had an off day and was out of condition," he says.

His Vancouver performance was a let-down for those who a few months earlier saw him broad jump 23 feet, 6½ inches—the top interscholastic mark in the country during 1954.

Art Pettle, a high school sports director here, says "if he can get back into that form he would be one of the best Olympic prospects in the Maritimes. He has lots of ability in his leg muscles."

Clarence (Bluff) Powers, has unshakeable confidence in the youth who opened his track career two years ago under Powers' tutelage. Five years, he says, is the time it's going to reach the top . . . the heart, the will and a wonderful pair of legs. All he needs now is to keep working."

Peters, who graduates in June, has received scholarship offers from two Maritime universities and one in the United States.

He hasn't decided which to accept and won't make the collegiate until he makes up his mind.

In one interscholastic track meet he gathered 25 of his team's 43 points. He has also played rugby, basketball and soccer and was elected president of the Saint John High School council.

Criminal Negligence Charge Laid Against Husband When Wife Killed in Car Accident

TRENTON (Special) — Mrs. Agnes McClintock, 75, of R.R. 4, Trenton, died Saturday night after she was thrown from a car driven by her husband, on Highway No. 2, four miles west of here. Her husband, James McClintock, 25, was charged with criminal negligence after questioning by the Brighton O.P.P. at the Trenton police office. He was taken to Cobourg jail and held in custody until released on $2,000 property bail Sunday. He is employed barrister Ronald M. Cass, of Belleville, to defend his case.

The McClintock's, married in a quiet ceremony January 15, were on their way home from a visit to Mr. McClintock's step-father's place at Spring Valley, one and one-half miles north of Brighton.

Apparently the car went out of control, struck a brace pole on the shoulder of the road and rolled over. It came to rest on all four wheels facing north at right angles to the highway. Pieces of glass from shattered windshield and windows littered a wide area on the highway. Body of the 1949 Studebaker coupe was dented and twisted.

VICTIM FELL OUT OF CAR

A resident living in a house opposite the point where the car hit the pole, said the woman, riding on the right hand side, fell out when the door on the door flew open. She died before a doctor arrived at the scene at 10.30 p.m. The accident happened at 9.00 p.m. Police covered the body with a heavy raincoat, while they waited for the undertaker to arrive.

Spectators who crowded around had to be moved by police, while an official photographer made flash pictures of the scene. Police kept traffic moving with few hold-ups despite the interest shown by curious travellers, who stopped and parked their cars along the main thoroughfare.

Mr. McClintock escaped without injury. He was driving his wife home to their eight-roomed brick home on 100 acres of rich farmland on the York Road (Highway No. 2), one-and-one-half miles west of Trenton.

SAID DOG DARTED OUT

Suddenly, according to his description of the accident a dog darted out from the side of the highway. "In swerving to avoid the dog," he said, "the car went on the shoulder, the back end of the car striking a brace post to hydro pole causing the car to swerve sideways and go into a spin."

Mrs. McClintock is survived by four children from her first marriage. Two sons, Everett Black, of Belleville, and William Black, of R.R. 4, Trenton, and two daughters, Elsie Black of Trenton, and Mrs. Mary Anderson of Detroit.

The funeral will be held from the Weaver Funeral Home Tuesday at 2.00 p.m.

Better Relations Aimed at By Mayor's Visit

MONTREAL (CP) — The cities of Shawinigan Falls, Que., and Hamilton, Ont., will officially become "twins" next weekend under sponsorship of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

George S. Mooney, executive director of the federation, in a statement Sunday said it is hoped more cities and towns will follow the example.

Town twinning aims at facilitating better relations and mutual understanding between French-Canadians and English-speaking Canadians.

Mayor Lloyd D. Jackson of Hamilton, members of the Hamilton board of control and city council and representative Hamilton citizens will pay their official "twinning" visit May 1 and 2 to the St. Maurice valley power city.

PROGRAM READY

They will be met on arrival at Shawinigan Falls by Mayor Gaston Hardy, and throughout the weekend the Hamilton delegation will participate in a program of entertainment and tours.

Mayor Leo Boivin of Granby, past president of the federation, will officially inaugurate the twin-twining scheme in Canada. Discussions now are under way with a view to an early twinning of Granby with Niagara Falls, Ont.

The town-twinning idea has caught on in Europe, particularly between French and English cities.

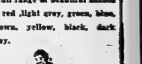
They were picked from 40 applicants. Dr. Paul Gilmore, Vancouver, will be the staff member accompanying the students.



Race to Replenish Food and Fuel Supplies of Isle

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The race to replenish food and fuel supplies on Bell island continued today with the icebreaker Sorel and the motor vessel Trepassy joining the whaler Fisback in an attempt to smash through a solid raft of ice to the island.

The 340-ton Fisback left here Sunday for Conception bay with much needed food supplies for the 12,000 inhabitants of the island, most of whom are employed by Wabana Ore Company, a Dominion Steel and Coal Corp., subsidiary. The island lies three miles off the mainland.

Bell island has been cut from supplies for several weeks and while a ferry was able to make the crossing three times last Sunday the narrow gap closed before supplies could be brought in.

The situation on the island is not considered critical however and no official plans, other than the Wabana whaler boat, are being made for relief. If necessary supplies could be flown in by helicopter but so far there has been no mention of this.

'Parent's Night' by Scouts, Cubs Thoroughly Enjoyed

The First Trenton Air Force Group of Cubs and Scouts was host in over three hundred parents and visitors last Friday night in the sports hall on South Station.

The evening, sponsored by the A/C/M Breadner Home and School Association, had as its aim, to show the parents, the games the boys learn and the training they get. Each Cub Pack and the Scout Group had a part to do.

The "Skyray Pack" produced the dance "Bagheera". From the backyard Kipling Jungle stories, Bagheera was the great python, who slithered through the great jungle swaying from side to side seeking its prey. In enacting this dance, the cubs, in a circle, crawling on hands and knees, and heads swinging to and fro in ever watchfulness closed in on their prey. The prey in this case was a paper bag which, when pounced on by the cubs produced a sucker for each member of the dance.

TRADING GAME

A training game by the "Meteor Pack" called the Flag Relay was next. Here the cubs had the three flags, one of Ireland, one of Scotland and one of England on stands. Their job was, to place smaller drawings at the right stand. Just to make them up a bit was another stand with a card marked "Sham". This represented any small drawing which had nothing to do with the other three cards. During the game they showed how the three crosses were put together to form the Union Jack.

A "Sense Training Game" by the "Canuck Pack", designed to develop powers of concentration, followed. In this game the cubs, in turns, and by turns, ran to one end of the course after whatever article the cubmaster stated, and quickly took it to the other end. Five articles were used for each line of cubs and they had to remember where each had been placed when their turn to get an article came.

BOOK BALANCING

A book balancing game by the Sabre Pack and Exercises and somersaulting by 5th Vampires followed. Then, a Mowat and Gon game, with the cubs emerging victorious over the ladies. The Scouts presented a "Day at Camp". They had their tent and campfire and had a shingoog around the campfire.

Wing Commander W. G. Dever addressed the gathering and presented Preliminary Training Course Diplomas to pack scouters who passed the course held on the RCAF Station last year.

Closing ceremonies were held and after singing "God Save the Queen", refreshments consisting of sandwiches and donuts with cakes for the boys and coffee for parents and visitors, were served.

Man and Woman Found Stabbed To Death in Home

IROQUOIS FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A man and woman were found stabbed to death here Sunday night. Police said it was a case of murder and suicide.

Dead are Nick Kowcunik, 33, of Iroquois Falls and Eva Slobodian, 38, formerly of Timmins. Police said the two had lived together about eight years.

The woman had multiple knife wounds in her head and apparently bled to death. Kowcunik's throat was cut and an 11-inch butcher knife was stuck in his chest. They had apparently been dead for several days.

Kowcunik was to have returned to work today at the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Company after a 10-day vacation. When he did not appear police made inquiries. They found the bodies on the kitchen floor of Kowcunik's home in this town 45 miles east of Timmins.

Four rows of peas: presence, promptness, participation, perseverance; three rows of squash (each a different variety) squash indifference, squash unfair criticism, squash gossip; five rows of lettuce, lettuce obey the rules, substitution and by-laws; lettuce be loyal to our organization—uphold its principles and objectives; lettuce be true to obligations, resolutions and policies; lettuce be faithful to duties, responsibilities; lettuce love one another; four rows of turnips, turnip for meeting; turnip with a smile; turnip with vim, vigor and vitality; turnip a determination to accomplish something worthwhile."

'Increase Our Faith', Topic At W.M.S. Meeting

The April meeting of Plainfield W.M.S. was held in the church with an attendance of 20 adults and four children. Meeting was opened with an Easter worship service, the theme being "Christ's Legacy of Peace". Mrs. Will Sills was at the piano.

Mrs. Fred Hall led in this service, the members responding with the Scripture passages, after which the leader gave a comment on each. Appropriate hymns were sung and all read together the "Sign Posts" which direct Christians on the road to peace. The offering was received by Mrs. Clayton Hall and Mrs. Grant Kerr and was dedicated by Mrs. Harry Harrison. This amounted to $37.49. There was one new member.

Mrs. Hall introduced the speaker, Miss Connie Sills and mentioned that it was the first time a young girl had been a guest speaker at a WMS. meeting.

The theme of Miss Sills' address was "Increase Our Faith". She read some verses from the 14th chapter of Matthew and recalled the miracle of Christ's walking on the water to His disciples in a storm. Jesus is nearer to us when we are in trouble than we realize, and if we have faith, He will stretch out His hand to help us, just as He helped Peter when he began to sink, and asked to be saved."

The hearty vote of thanks was given to Miss Sills for this helpful and inspiring address.

Mrs. Blanche Emerson was group leader and had prepared a program as follows:—solos by Mrs. Jean Brennan, "One Day" and by Mrs. Will Sills "It's in My Heart". Both of which were very much appreciated. A reading "Lila's Easter" by Mrs. Clarence Marshall and "There is a Better Way" by Mrs. Emerson.

Refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed by all.

GUEST SPEAKER

The Very Rev. Dean Garvin introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. Cletus Fitzpatrick, who addressed the meeting on "Education Derived Through Parent-Teacher Associations".

In his remarks, the speaker pointed out that parent-teacher associations are not just for the children but for the parents as well. They are not a waste of time but part of education.

"All these meetings are for knowledge, as all knowledge is for the purpose of building us up to the point where we will know more about God.

"We must continue to learn and to share knowledge with our children. If we don't get anything out of those meetings our children will not get anything out of them, either.

Benefits to our eternal happiness depends upon how much we know, for that reason we must exercise our capacity for learning."

After the closing of the meeting a social hour followed during the serving of refreshments by the social committee.

"Want some help with your homework, Dad?"

If his Dad took him up on that offer, Ted would soon find himself floundering in a sea of facts about family income management, succession duties, taxes, wills, trusts, business insurance and other related subjects!

You see, Ted's father is a typical life underwriter — a man who has not only been trained for his job, but keeps up-to-date by constant study. For the uses of life insurance are more extensive today than they used to be. And the men who represent companies in this business now advise you with increased skill.

Doing this calls for more than study. It takes real understanding of people's needs. And since each family's needs are different, the company representative offers valuable guidance in making plans to fit these needs — individually.

All in all, the life insurance man you deal with today is a very good man to know. And his progress is another reflection of the many ways in which the life insurance business has developed with the times to meet your changing needs!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHEN YOU'VE MADE A DECISION, LET IT REST

All of us have to make important decisions in life. And it is not given to many of us to be perfectly certain, when we make a decision, that we have made the absolutely right one. We would have to be endowed with the powers of a prophet to feel assured that everything is coming out the way we want it to—and who among us has any such powers?

Things being as they are, then, once we have made our decision, carefully and wisely and taking into consideration every angle we can see, we should then neither keep looking back to go all over it again, nor live in apprehension lest things turn out wrong. We should go ahead knowing that we have done the best we could, believing that all will be well but at the same time being mature enough to be ready, if it proves otherwise, to accept that fact and not let it throw us too badly.

All this is what I would like to say to a young woman who writes that, because the young man she loves disappointed her once, she is afraid to really trust him again.

To boil down her long letter to its basic story, she tells me that some time ago, "a very wonderful fellow"—a serviceman whom she had been dating—was shipped overseas.

"Although we weren't going steady, we wrote every day," she says, "and we intended to go steady after he was out of service." Some six months later, however, the young man wrote the girl suggesting that they stop writing, and that she go out with other fellows, because he was not sure he loved her. He thought, in fact, that he might still be in love with an earlier girl friend.

"I was very hurt and for months I was really lost," the girl continues. "We still wrote to each other, but I made sure my letters had nothing in them but day-to-day news, and I wrote only when he wrote."

Well, when the chap came home on a leave just Christmas, they spent every evening together, and during the time they were with me told me he loved me and wanted me to wait for him, and I said I would."

And where's the problem about that? It's just this:

"I love him very much. There's no doubt in my mind about that. But every now and then a while I get the feeling that he might hurt me again. I don't know why I should feel this way. He was just perfect when he was home. Nothing was wrong, and I had absolutely no doubts when I was with him. But now that he's away again, I find myself wondering without any reason. He writes every day, calls whenever he can and is just wonderful, but I still find myself wondering if the same thing will happen again. He loves me once, more than I've ever been hurt in my life. But can I really be letting this make me doubt him?"

Of course she can be letting the memories of her past hurt throw a shadow over the present! It's only natural. But, as I tried to explain in the beginning, having once made her decision to pick up again with this young man where they left off, she should do her utmost not to think back doubtfully over the past. Presumably, she gave the past plenty of consideration when she was trying to make up her mind about the future. Now she should dismiss it. She should hope and trust and believe that the young man now knows what he wants and that they are headed for happiness. The chances are that this is true since, if he is a young man of thoughtfulness and intelligence at all, he would hardly have come back if he had not been sure of his feelings.

But if the unpredictable and unexpected should happen and he were to change his mind again, she should then try to accept the fact that he was not for her and that, if he actually is as unstable as he would then appear, she would be much better off without him as a husband.

Let her act her wondering and worrying aside, give the young man the benefit of every doubt and show him that she has confidence in him. The chances are he will live up to her confidence.

A Second-Miler

By Mary Moore

Marjie, the gal who always goes the second mile, is a mutual friend of Doreen G.'s and mine, and admired and loved by all.

When Marianne and Herbie and I were at their house for dinner last week, she told me of a Butterscotch Pie that they were enthusiastic about. She said before the filling went into the crust it looked like a hopeless watery mess—raisins sunk to the bottom and everything went altogether queer, but finished results were tops. I asked for the recipe naturally but in the excitement of looking at wedding pictures and watching the hockey game I forgot to get it from her.

Bright and early Saturday morning she phoned to say she was making two Butternilk Pies —one for her family and one for ours, and hoped we were going to be home for dinner. We were, four strong.

Now that is typical of Marjie. She not only discovers a recipe that is good column copy, but makes it and has it delivered right to your kitchen table by her busy doctor-husband Kay, accompanied by the recipe which is reproduced here in Marjie's own words.

BUTTERMILK PIE

One cup white sugar, 1 cup raisins, 1-3 teaspoon each salt, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 cup buttermilk. Bake between 2 crusts at 375 deg. Fahr. Takes about 1 hour. Cook until filling is set.

(Note from Marjie): "Don't think the order matters much but the above is as good as any. Have dumped it in any order, even putting the flour in last and it always comes out the same, as the raisins all playfully settle to the bottom of the bowl, when pouring it in the pie plate with the one crust in. I usually try to spread the raisins around a little, but think anyone would think to do that.

"I think I like the pie best when it has cooled a little but is still warm, or else warmed a little before serving. However, it may be served any which way. If I make two, one for the next day or for hungry people who are looking for snacks, I never bother to reheat, but it really is a little nicer warm."

Pete was home and my sisters came for dinner. With this pie I served a first-course fruit cup, roast leg of lamb, broccoli and diced turnip— accompanied by another of Marjie's gift specials, Tomato Butter.

You will see that I omitted potatoes and salad from this menu so we would have room to enjoy the Buttermilk Pie, which we did down to its last crumb.

I'll give you the Tomato Butter recipe next September when lemano time is at its height.

LETTER:

Today's Reader's Bonus Column was really a bonus to me, as it contained two recipes I've been very anxious to get—the Marshmallow and Cherry Dreams. The strawberries are a handy novelty, and I'm told you can make other fruits (i.e. bananas, oranges, etc.) simply by varying the color of the jelly powder. One gal I know even made yellow Easter eggs—cute too! I have been looking a long time for a cherry strip without an egg in it, and must try yours to see if this is what I'm looking for. I have been served simply scrumptious ones which seem to be sort of glazed on top, and clear in color, but mine always come out brown and crusty. I presume because of the aforementioned egg. What would happen if I left out the cocoanut? Guess I'll try it—please don't feel this required an answer. I thought Mrs. K. H. might be interested in the following.

UNBAKED COOKY

"SNOWBALLS"

1 cup peanut butter, 1 cup icing sugar, 1 tablespoon butter are mixed well. Add 1-2 cup chopped walnuts, 1 cup Rice Krispies. Make into small balls. Mix up thin icing, dip balls, and roll in cocoanut.—Marion S.

ANSWER:

Well hello again Marion. I was delighted with your thoughtful message. Do you think your Easter-egg-making friend would send us her method? Readers—could you help Marion with her Cherry Strips?

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHNAM

THE MAN, THE GIRL, AND THE MOVIE SEATS

Dear Mrs. Beechnam: My girl friend and I are having an argument as to whether she or I should go down the aisle first at the movies, to find seats; that is, when there is no usher. I think I should go first, and I don't like to have her barge down the aisle ahead of me, which she usually does.—Bob.

You're right . . . It is the man who should go first down the aisle when there are seats to be found. But, from what you say, I'm wondering if the reason your girl friend barges down the aisle ahead of you, "as she usually does," is that you don't immediately take command of the situation and take over your duty. Could this be, sir? However, you let me know if it's your duty (and privilege and responsibility) to go first to find seats, perhaps it will fortify your determination to "get along" immediately in order to find the best seats available.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

BACKBONE OF BEAUTY

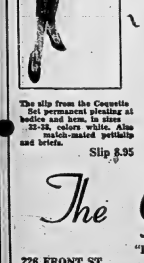
Perfection of the feminine silhouette begins with posture which is an outward symbol of personality. The woman who carries herself proudly and beautifully suggests courage, high spirits and efficiency. The slumping, dragging figure is expressive of defeat and a feeling of inferiority.

Regard yourself in a full length mirror if you fear that you don't look as young as you might. If your head, chest, hips and legs right down to your ankles are in perfect alignment, and if your weight falls on the balls of your feet and not on your heels, your posture is correct.

The pose of the spinal column determines body balance; it is the backbone of beauty and style as well. Keep it fully extended. Think of yourself as being tall—and you will be.

The weight of the torso is supported at the junction of the spinal column and the hip bones. If the body bends too far forward or backward, the centre of gravity is displaced. To avoid that keep your chest lifted; head balanced, shoulders in an easy pose. Rounded shoulders are a part of some general posture failing. The right stance may eventually correct them.

Any exercise that improves muscle tone, will be an aid to good posture. Sports are doubly effective because they not only tone up the body but, once the body is toned up, skill at such pastimes as tennis, golf or bowling is improved.



Arching the back is recommended for posture improvement. Lie on your back on the floor, arms at your sides. Lift the upper portion of your body by pressing your head down and slowly arching your back. Hold this position and lift arms over your head. Return to first position slowly and repeat. Do not overdo exercise more than six times at the beginning.

Dr. Boyce Speaks On 'India Women Of Today'

MARMORA — "Indian Women of Today" was the subject of a thought-provoking address given to the Marmora Chapter, I.O.D.E., and members of the sister chapters of Norwood and Stirling who accepted the invitation to be present at a banquet at the Royal Hotel, Marmora, on Tuesday evening to hear Dr. L. Winnifred Boyce of Toronto.

This distinguished lady, who was attired in native Indian costume, narrated first of all how she came to be born in Tokyo, Japan, of missionary parents, the late Rev. and Mrs. Cooper Robinson.

Through her marriage to George B. Boyce, who had a position in India, she not only became a resident of that country in 1914, but having been a graduate of Havergal Ladies' College and of the University of Toronto, with the degree of Ph.D., she taught in the Indore Christian College in India, and was its principal in 1952-53.

Though mother of six children she found time to write and publish four books on "Family Life". Returning to Canada last year, she has since been on several speaking tours taking her across the Dominion.

INDIA'S RAPID ADVANCE

Contrasting the India of today with the country as she first knew it, she remarked that its advance has been as rapid as that of Canada within the past half century. Certain professions previously not entered by women through the prevailing caste system, are now being filled by those, who through Christian influence have broken their caste.

The nursing profession is an outstanding example of this awakening among the womanhood of India.

The perseverance of the untouchables to acquire an educational status in common with the higher castes was amazing in the fortitude it exemplified.

Dr. Boyce emphasized the urgent need of good literature in the English language. As an excerpt from her elucidating address was that native respect for law and order was of the highest pattern and soon arrested the attention of those visiting the country from other parts of the world.

A further excerpt was this: "Senior women of India today demonstrate they are experts at household management. Sometimes a woman of that country has the domestic supervision of as many as 80, comprising her household.

Dr. Boyce was introduced by Mrs. A. F. Fraser and thanked by Mrs. J. M. Brownlie, whose guest she was at the rectory overnight.

There was a short business session over which the regent, Mrs. J. R. Allchison presided.

May 12th was set as the date for the annual Empire Day tea. A basket of groceries will be drawn for at that function.

Garden Notes

Annuals to Plant Early

By FLORA M. SAVELLE

For those gardeners who like to get an early start let me suggest a few annuals that will not mind a few weeks of cool weather, and even an occasional light frost will not faze them. There are several flowers that should be sown now if you are to have all the beauty they are capable of producing.

When shopping for these hardy annuals plan for color balance and a range of heights which will give the best effect in a bed or border. One hardy annual and a good companion for it is Calendula, also called pot marigold, and Scotch marigold. It grows to a height of 18-24 inches. Plant seeds one foot apart. Colors are orange and yellow. Seeds will germinate in ten days or less and the plant blooms until frost. Pick faded blooms to insure a steady supply.

For a good background plant centaurea (blue boy), bachelor's button or cornflower. Plant either orange or yellow calendula for a middle ground and an alyssum carpet of snow for edging.

For another handsome combination you might like to try sensation white cosmos for background, orange King calendula and ageratum dwarf blue bedder. You will have to plant the ageratum indoors or in cold frame or buy and set the plants out later when danger of frost is past.

GROWING CORNFLOWERS

Centures, or cornflower, is a dwarf type one foot tall. The tall type measures 18 to 30 inches. Plant tall varieties one foot apart. The colors are blue, pink, red, maroon and white. It will bloom in six weeks from seed. Cornflowers often seed themselves and hardy plants will bloom vigorously for two months. If you wish a longer range of bloom plant at three week intervals.

Combine with Eschscholzia (California poppy) or pink and white Shirley poppies. Mix pink and blue centures for background and plant pink, lavender and white asters and purple royal carpet alyssum for edging. Blue boy centures for background, white petunias for middle ground and dwarf phlox Isabellina (a soft chamois shade) as an edging plant make an attractive combination.

Cleome, also known as spider plant, is another hardy annual. They come in three colors, pink, yellow and white. The Pink Queen is by far the handsomest of the trio. It will grow to a height of three or four feet after a germination time of 10 days. It will bloom to frost.

It is quite handsome when used in front of a hedge, or in the foreground of shrubbery. It is good as a background plant in beds and goes well with mixed asters. Use white alyssum or blue lobelia for edging. Another combination would be with mixed larkspur and white and purple alyssum edge, or mixed snapdragons and midget yellow marigold edge.

Cosmos, the new sensation types, are larger and much earlier than the older types. The colors run from white through pink, rose and deepest crimson. Then there are the yellow and orange varieties which are quite different in form and are quicker to bloom. Good combinations are: mixed sensation cosmos for background, ageratum blue bedder middle ground, and white alyssum for edging; or background of orange daisy, middle ground of celosia flame of fire and edging of dwarf petunia cream delight.

Cynoglossum (Chinese forget-me-not) is a biennial grown as a hardy annual. It has white, pink and blue flowers. The blue is one of the best blues for a combination bed.

Dianthus, the Irish called them pinks because of the fringed petals, are quite varied with combinations of pink, crimson and white and are excellent for cutting. This is the annual form of the carnation family, but the annuals have every little scent. For the lovely combination plant heavenly blue morning glories and use dianthus for the middle ground and an edge of white alyssum. Plant a border next to a walk and edge with Cambridge blue lobelia. Use a background of sensation mixed cosmos, dianthus for the middle ground, and dwarf blue ageratum for the edging.

Larkspur prospers on fall planting and does not take kindly to transplanting. But it will do very well if planted early in the spring in rather poor soil. It will seldom germinate in warm weather.

A good trick is to sprinkle the seed on a damp piece of cotton or blotting paper and place on ice or in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator for a week. This cold shock seems to require them to burst their hard seed casings.

They will grow three to five feet tall and have a lovely color range from white through pink and blue to deep purple. Good combinations are: larkspur in light and dark blue and white as background orange calendula as middle ground and white and purple alyssum edging.

Phlox Drummondi is a native of Texas but has been popular in Europe for over 300 years. The dwarf varieties are six inches tall; the tall varieties 15 inches tall. The dwarf tyres look well longer than the tall type. The colors are white, yellow, chamois, red, rose, salmon and purple. Germination time is eight to 17 days. It blooms from seed in two months and will bloom until frost if given a little fertilizer and some moisture.

TORONTO (CP)—Despite competition from television and other media, Canadian newspaper circulation set a record in 1954.

This was announced Friday at the 36th annual meeting of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association. Combined circulation of Canadian dailies last Dec. 31 totalled 3,786,606, four per cent higher than the 3,631,809 at the end of the previous year.

Officials also said the dollar volume of national advertising in daily newspapers set a record last year.

The meeting chose as president Emile Castonguay, general manager of L'Action Catholique of Quebec City. He succeeds John E. Mott, publisher of the Kitchener-Waterloo Record, who continues as a director.

Scanty Summer Attire Improper Says Colonel

FRANKFURT (Reuters) — The United States Army's local commander, who last year nearly started a revolution among G. I. wives and daughters here by condemning their scanty summer attire as "improper," has struck his back way out again.

Col. John H. Dilley issued an order Friday similar to the one which almost got him skinned alive by angry females a year ago.

His new degree, published in the daily army bulletin, again bans women-folk from appearing in public in sporting backless dresses, strapless, low-cut creations "except in clubs at appropriate social functions," bare - midriff outfits, and shorts.

Dilley also forbids—as he did last summer—"mature women" to wear wear blue jeans. Hair curlers are out, too, "unless neatly covered by a suitable scarf or headgear." The colonel warns that any service wives or daughters who fail to comply with his fashion regulations will be refused admission to American stores, post exchanges, clubs and other buildings.

Most people would pray more if they felt they knew how, — and know if prayer does really be effective. Many today feel that their own lives, and the world at large, sorely need help that human effort has not brought.

They see that somehow the answer to life's perplexing problems must be sought where power and intelligence have their limitless, beneficent source — the realm of God.

Today a remarkable book, the Christian Science textbook

SCIENCE and HEALTH
WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES
by Mary Baker Eddy

is reverently revealing a wholly new understanding of prayer, and meeting humanity's need.

Justice Finds Attempt Made To Short-Circuit Proceedings

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice J. L. McLellan of the Ontario Supreme Court has found that an attempt was made to "short-circuit" Ontario labor relations proceedings through the picketing of three construction projects in the Welland-Niagara Falls area during January, 1954.

The reasons for his findings in an action brought by Smith Brothers Construction Co., Ltd., against Sherman W. Jones, Ben Chartrand, Walter Crosbie and Frank Edward Rowan were made public during the weekend.

In his judgment last month, Mr. Justice McLennan awarded the company $310 damages against Chartrand and Jones and issued a permanent injunction restraining them from picketing any of the company's premises or projects. He dismissed the action against Crosbie and Rowan.

The four defendants were members of the executive committee of Local 713 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (AFL-TLC).

Some of the employees of the construction company were members of the union but the local had no contract with the firm. On one or two occasions there was discussion between Jones and Chartrand and a company representative over the company not paying the recognized union rate.

"Arrangements were made by Chartrand and Jones to obtain the services of some unemployed men to walk up and down before the construction work at the Bank of Montreal building in Niagara Falls, the crippled children's camp in Windfield township and the post office at Ridgeway, carrying signs 'Smith Bros. Unfair to Union Labor,'" Mr. Justice McLennan said.

Evidence was that some of the employees of the company refused to cross what they regarded as a picket line. The men employed by sub-contractors also would not cross the line.

The company obtained a court declaration that the union had called an illegal strike and the firm was granted an injunction which led to the withdrawal of the pickets and the resumption of work.

"There was a perfectly lawful way open to the union of which the defendants were members and officers to obtain a collective bargaining agreement with the plaintiff company under the provisions of the Labor Relations Act," said Mr. Justice McLennan.

"They endeavored to short-circuit that machinery. . . ."

Violent, Bloody Era in Modern History Ended When Duce Died

By STAN SWINTON

ROME (AP)—"Are you glad we are to die together?" asked the pretty young woman with the sky-blue shawl.

The bald man was too frightened to answer.

It was 4:30 p. m. April 28, 1945, by the low wall encircling the wide lawn of Villa Belmonte, in the north Italian lake area of Mezegra.

Suddenly a machine-gun snarled, punctuated by measured, carefully-aimed revolver shots. The bald man fell first. The woman swayed, then sprawled at her lover's feet.

Benito Mussolini was dead. With him passed an era in modern history as violent and bloody as his own 23 years in which Italian fascism was a world force, once as feared as Soviet communism is today.

IN FINAL COLLAPSE

Next day the bodies of Mussolini and his mistress, Clara Petacci, were strung by their heels before a vast, unbelieving Milan crowd of which I was a part.

The Italian front had just collapsed under the final Allied offensive. Partisan roadblocks were everywhere. The times had come to flee. Mussolini made a half-hearted effort to disguise himself, putting on a grey-green German army greatcoat with turned-up collar, donning a German helmet and wearing dark glasses. A submachine-gun was cradled in his arms.

DID NOT FIGHT

He climbed into the front of a German army truck, Near Dongo the German driver slammed to a halt. Ahead lay a roadblock. Partisans sprang out, surrounding the truck.

They pulled off Mussolini's helmet and glasses.

It was 3 p. m., April 2. Mussolini still held a Tommy-gun. Escape was impossible.

Mussolini turned pale. Then he began to tremble. Meekly he clambered from the truck and handed over his gun.

Alternately he was talkative and moodily silent. He railed against Germany, saying "Hitler betrayed me" and insisting Italy was forced into war.

He was held captive. That night a partisan led a woman to him. She was dark-haired and vivacious, with a small, well-shaped body. She was in her 'teens when Mussolini first saw her at a beach and made her his mistress. This night she wore a grey suit with a lace-trimmed white blouse, blue shoes and a sky-blue shawl.

Mussolini held out his hand to her and asked: "You, too?"

"I prefer it so," Clara Petacci replied. They spent their last night together in a farmhouse, two partisans on guard.

Word came from Milan partisan headquarters. Mussolini must die for "crimes against the Italian people." A car took him and the girl to Villa Belmonte and death. Later their executioners dumped 15 other bodies in the back of a truck, tossed those of Mussolini and Miss Petacci atop the heap, and made for Milan.

At almost the moment Mussolini died, Allied tanks captured Como, a few miles away. I was with them.

SCENE UNFORGETTABLE

At dawn, with another correspondent, I set out by jeep for Milan. We drove unchallenged to the fringe of a vast crowd in Piazza Loretto.

Ahead lay a fantastic and grisly scene. Strung head down by their heels, like slaughtered cattle, were seven corpses, their ankles wired to the steel framework of an unfinished gas station.

Mussolini hung in the centre. Miss Petacci was beside him. Her skirt had slipped down over her chest, but in a gesture surprising against such a background, someone tied the skirt in her legs with a piece of twine.

Sprawled on the cement courtyard were 11 more riddled bodies, including Achille Starace, former Fascist party secretary, just executed.

Behind us was the vast, silent crowd, not less than 200,000. There was no sound. Later the mood changed and Mussolini's body was beaten mercilessly.

FISH GETS EYEN

TOKYO (Reuters) — Fusataro Goto, 47, was killed by a 30-pound fish—after he had landed the fish in his boat. Goto was found dead in his boat, a large lump on his forehead. Beside him lay the fish with a six-foot harpoon in its side. Police decided the fish, while thrashing about in the boat, hit Goto with the harpoon.

GUEST SPEAKER

Miss Ann Jordan, of Toronto, was the guest speaker, and gave an inspiring talk of "Caravaning," and also led in a lively sing-song.

Refreshments were served and all enjoyed a social half hour.

U.S. Senate Committee Plans Study of War on Sea Lamprey

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—A Senate committee will take a look this week at plans by Canada and the United States to wage joint war on the sea lamprey, fish-killing parasite which is wrecking the commercial and sports fisheries of the Great Lakes.

A foreign relations sub-committee will hold public meetings Thursday and Friday on a 10-year Canada-U. S. fisheries treaty which includes the campaign against the lamprey as one of its main provisions. Signed by the two governments last fall, the treaty must be ratified by Congress and the Canadian Parliament before it becomes law.

The treaty has two main provisions. One is the joint effort to eradicate the lamprey, which is costing the two countries more than $5,000,000 a year through the loss of valuable lake trout alone. The other is a provision for co-ordination of fisheries research facilities being conducted on both sides of the border. A joint commission to administer both phases of the program would be set up in the Great Lakes region.

While the state conservation departments of the eight Great Lakes states favor the treaty, some dissension has been voiced by others whose northern boundary sweeps along the southern shore of Lake Erie. Shortly after the treaty was signed, Representative David Baumhart (Rep., Ohio) said the fishermen of his district opposed it because they feared it would "mean an additional wedge in the door to injure the American fishing industry."

"They are afraid Canadian participation would mean a cutting prices of fish," he said.

The treaty, however, specifically says the joint commission to be set up would have no power to regulate fishing operations.

Long domiciled in Lake Ontario, the lamprey was able to move into the upper lakes in 1921 of the Welland canal, which permitted it to bypass the natural barrier of Niagara falls. First observed in Lake Huron in the 1930s, it has destroyed the trout fisheries in lakes Huron and Michigan and now is increasing in great numbers in Lake Superior.

The Canadian government and the province of Ontario already are spending thousands of dollars to control the pest.

Electric weirs and dams are the main weapons in the fight. These are thrown across spawning streams to prevent the lampreys from swimming upstream to reproduce. To be effective, this control must be applied to all potential spawning streams on both the Canadian and American sides of the lakes. The treaty would provide for this sort of joint operation.

E Equals M Times C Squared Equation Evolved by Einstein Gave World the Atomic Bomb

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—You may know that Prof. Albert Einstein, who died last week, was indirectly the "father" of the atomic bomb. But you may not know that to a certain degree you have him to thank for your radio and TV sets, the talking movies at your neighborhood theatre, a long distance telephone call to your Aunt Martha, and certain other applications of electronics.

When a race horse drives across the finish line, Dr. Einstein is there in spirit, thanks to the "photo-electric eye" that records a close finish.

DISCOVERED LAW

When a modern office building opens for you, or is closed, though pulled by an unseen hand—but actually activated by an "electric eye"—your spared effort is indirectly due to Einstein.

The great scientist didn't invent TV, the "electric eye," or any of these devices—but it was Einstein who discovered a scientific law which facilitated their development or expanded their use.

The law is known as the "photo-electric law" which, to put it very simply, explains the antics of electrons that are released when various kinds of light strike a metal plate.

Before Einstein came up with his law, scientists had long been puzzled by this effect. They knew that when lights of varying colors struck a metal plate, electrons—tiny electric bullets—were released from the plate, but at different velocities, depending upon the color of light employed.

DIFFERENT WALLOPS

They found, too, that changing the intensities of the lights didn't make any difference: it was the color or wavelength of the light that caused the different electronic effects.

Einstein eventually found this explanation, which he proved mathematically:

Light, at least in some of its manifestations, is made up of specific particles of energy which he named "photons." He further held that some photons pack more energy than others. And that is why, he said, lights of varying color exert different wallops when they strike a metal plate.

His work not only laid the groundwork for the eventual development of certain electronic devices, but it promoted better understanding of the science of spectroscopy—the study of materials on the basis of light they emit when subjected to heat.

HISTORIC EQUATION

But, while applications of the photoelectric law affect most modern families, Einstein probably will be best remembered by present and future generations as the man who developed the historic equation, "E equals M times C squared."

That equation is the keystone of the atomic bomb, the hydrogen bomb, and, in fact, anything related to nuclear energy.

In the equation, "E" stands for energy; "M" stands for mass; and "C squared" stands for the velocity of light (186,284 miles a second) multiplied by itself.

Einstein came up with this equation in 1905—40 years before the first atomic bomb was tested on a New Mexico desert, and many years even before the discovery that uranium was fissionable. But it laid the whole basis for modern atomic concepts and paved the way for the development of the A-bomb.

A-Bomb to Be Hurled at Simulated City in Nevada Tuesday May Point Way to Survival for Thousands of Canadians

By W. J. METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (CP) — The terrible power of a nuclear weapon will be hurled at a simulated city here Tuesday in a test that may point the way to survival of thousands of Canadians.

That is the opinion of top officials of Canada's civil defence organization, here as official observers of the open shot test which will also mark the first time Canadian servicemen have been subjected to an atomic explosion.

Six top civil defence chiefs, including Maj.-Gen. F. Worthington of Ottawa visited the test site Sunday and again today to inspect the vast array of civilian and industrial targets assembled on the Nevada desert to see how well they can withstand the effects of detonation expected to be equivalent to explosion of 40,000 tons of TNT.

While they inspected the site, the tri-member tri-service radiation detection team from Kingston, Ont., was monitoring the radiation contaminated area east of the 500-foot tower from which the atomic weapon will be triggered.

FRONT ROW SEATS

Tuesday, 56 of the Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen will crouch in six-foot deep slit trenches only 3,500 yards away from the centre of the awesome blast.

The importance of the tests to Canada was pointed up by the officials inspecting the site.

Besides Gen. Worthington, federal civil defence co-ordinator, the inspection team was made up of Dr. French G. Robertson, parliamentary assistant to Health Minister Paul Martin, whose department is responsible for civil defence; Maj.-Gen. George Hatton, deputy federal civil defence co-ordinator; Maj.-Gen. Howard Penhall, commandant of the federal civil defence college, Arnprior; Dr. Kenneth Chauen, head of the civil defence health service; and Dr. Byrne Curry, head of civil defence welfare services. All are from Ottawa.

Aside from the scientific and military studies which are a part of all atomic test shots here, Tuesday's test is designed primarily to find the answers to a number of pressing civil defence questions.

More than $1,000,000 worth of equipment, much supplied free of charge by industry, will be subjected to the terrible blast and radiation effects.

ANSWERS EXPECTED

Gen. Worthington and his party spent hours Sunday studying details of construction of civilian shelters, houses, power and gas lines and other installations set at distances varying from 4,700 feet to 15,000 feet from the blast centre.

"This test will provide the answers to many questions we must know," said Worthington as he made thorough examination of a one-storey frame house and a similar structure of precast concrete slabs—both of types occupied by Canadians from Halifax to Victoria.

Also undergoing the nuclear fury will be civil defence equipment like fire engines, communication sets and vehicles. One section is devoted to study of the effect of the explosion on trailer homes to see if they may still be used as emergency accommodation in event of atomic attack.

Monday the tri-service team, which will occupy the second closest manned trenches during the blast, carried out an intensive three-day monitoring exercise over areas contaminated in previous tests.

The 56 who will man forward trenches grinned happily at getting "a break." Those selected to stay with decontamination equipment some five miles from the zero point consoled themselves with the thought they will probably get a better view of the spectacular explosion.

Those in the forward trenches, including Lt.-Col. R. A. Klaehn of Ottawa, officer commanding the team, will have to crouch head down in trenches for several seconds after the blast.

ESCAPE ROADS PLANNED

The federal government is drafting final plans designed to give financial assistance to Canadian cities wishing to improve and expand highway escape routes for evacuation in case of atomic war fare.

It was learned here today that the government is planning to appoint a technical committee that would inspect proposed civil defence escape routes proposed by cities. The committee would recommend for or against federal assistance on the basis of need for such escape routes and their suitability for evacuation purposes.

The committee, which would work in close conjunction with the department of public works and civil defence authorities, is expected to be selected within a matter of weeks.

Committee members are expected to be ready to begin inspection trips throughout Canada in less than six months.

According to information learned here, the committee would be given an intensive civil defence course immediately following their appointment, then visit a number of American centres to study escape route planning underway in the United States.

Anything Could Happen, And It Did, In Major Leagues' Wacky Week-End

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

ONE UP — ONE TO GO!

Thanks mainly to the goal-sniping wizardry of Gerry Geyer, and the all-round performance of the rest of the squad, the Point Anne intermediate "C" hockey club hung a decisive 10-5 defeat on the Electric Hurricanes in the first game of their best-of-three championship series in Marmora Saturday night.

Asked what the correct name of his club was, an Electric player bristled when the name "Wallaceburg" was mentioned. "We are a small community of our own, and have nothing to do with Wallaceburg. Although it is the nearest town," he said. "You call us the 'Electric Hurricanes.' That's the proper name."

To get back to the game. Well over 600 fans saw the teams battle to a 3-3 tie in the first heat. The Ox Pulsboro scored three as against one in the second and took over completely in the third. However, the Hurricanes are a big, hard-hitting team and may prove tough nuts to crack when the teams meet in Wallaceburg Friday night in the second clash. The third game, if necessary, will be played in Wallaceburg on Saturday night.

Gerry Geyer's potent shillelagh accounted for all three Point Anne goals in the second heat, and one in another. In addition he was credited with assists on four other goals. "Tommy Williams and Billy Strahan also grabbed some of the scoring spotlight with Timmy getting two and two assists and Billy a pair of tallies. Johnny and Peter Green each got singles.

THIS "DEEDY DUP"

If you are a Dodger fan, you got a double dose of entertainment from that Saturday Brooks-Giants game. If your loyalty adheres to the guys from Coogan's Bluff across the river, then you received some consolation from the verbal sallies of one Dizzy Dean, "master of syntax," at the telecast microphone.

"Ole Diz" was never better than in his Saturday performance. His name up with a lot of old expressions and some rib-cracking new ones. Paul's brother knows a lot of baddo baseball, too, for his pitching predictions were, at times, bordering on the uncanny.

The one that rocked up out of our fireside television and was true, when the "game" had the bases loaded and two out. Diz exclaimed: "Sampson hapshit heah. Just stay glued where you at."

Another rib-tickler came when Diz tried to recall some batting records of one of the players. "I cain't remember much about his batting, he said, "but this guy has brung home fourteen homers." By "stats" he meant "statistics."

Describing that third-base clash between Robinson and Dark, "Diz" said, "so how he stood into the base, knockin' Robinson often balance."

"Now there's a hostile behind the plate," "Diz" crooked. "Wheddya mean their hillbs' about. Probably where they're gonna eat—and what they wanna eat tonight. I've heard 'em do it."

"They's a long fly to centre. Jest watch this guy Willie Mays ketch it. There, he's got it, right in the basket," went on "Diz."

SOFTBALL

Belleville District Softball League confabs tonight at eight at the West Moira Fire Hall. This is an important meeting, says President Cy Hamlin, and a full turnout is requested. Should get all the wrinkles ironed out before the season starts. It pays, since a full pre-season understanding and finalizing of major points eliminates sometimes silly schedule bickering.

Marlboros Defeat Regina Pats 5-2 To Deadlock Memorial Cup Series

REGINA (CP) — Toronto Marlboros returned to what coach Turk Broda said was close to their regular form Saturday night to defeat Regina Pats 5-2 and deadlock the best-of-seven Memorial Cup series at one game each.

The third game is tonight.

Marlboros defeated 3-1 in the series opener Thursday, smashed through the Regina defence, kept the puck deep in Regina territory for most of the night and fired 31 shots at Regina goalkeeper Joe Selinger. Johnny Allaire of Marlboros has died only 19.

Four Toronto goals were scored when Regina was short-handed through penalties, a factor coach Murray Armstrong blamed for the Regina defeat. But Pats just could not dent the Toronto defence.

SHORT TWO MEN

For nearly two minutes in the first period Marlboros were short two men and failed to make a shot on goal. Armstrong said Pats would never advance so far out of their league if they had played similar hockey in the regular season.

Mike Nykoluk scored twice for Toronto, Bob Pulford, Glen Cressman and Gerry Barnes netting singles. Danny Wong and Elmer Schwartz counted for Regina.

Nykoluk scored his first goal in the second period after Armstrong's three-man combination made it 2-0 for Toronto, when Gary Collins took a short pass from Nykoluk and relayed to Cressman in the clear.

Pats hit the scoreboard with their first direct shot at Albani at 10:23 of the second period. Harvey Flaman broke from his own zone, took the lone Toronto defenceman out of play before he passed to Wong.

Nykoluk scored his second goal in the third period on a solo rush. Schwartz counted after taking a flip pass from Bill Kurtz behind the Toronto defence to make it 4-2. Pats were moving the puck down the ice in a rally when Jones scored.

Armstrong said he would shoot the works for tonight's game, using three new players but would not say who would be benched.

Rookie Almost Equals Record

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rookie Harry Malmberg, playing his first full game at second base for Detroit Tigers Sunday, came within two of the modern major league record for most putouts by a second baseman. Malmberg, purchased by the Tigers from Cleveland earlier in the month, had nine put outs in Detroit's 6-4 victory over the Indians.

The modern record is 11, held by three players. The last second baseman to accomplish the feat was Roy Hughes of Cleveland in 1937.

Chisox Score Record 29 Runs, Pittsburgh Records First Win; Giants, 'Bums' in Tug-of-War

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

How high is up? How low is down ? Ask the Chicago White Sox. Manager Marty Marion's hearty crew zoomed into the thin air of major league baseball by bombing Kansas City, 29-6, tying a modern record.

Then they turned around Sunday to absorb a 5-0 shutout from the same Kansas City A's, with Alex Kellner applying the whitewash for the Athletics.

Pittsburgh finally won its first game, at Philadelphia, 6-1, after losing eight in a row. One more drubbing would have tied the modern record for most defeats at the start of a season (set by Brooklyn at nine in 1918). The Sunday cure few toward the second game being suspended game with the Phillies leading 3-0 in the eighth.

The New York Giants scored six runs in the 10th inning but badly managed to win over as Brooklyn bounced back with five runs in an 11-10 thriller.

SIXTH STRAIGHT

Willard Nixon, the old Yankee Killer, beat the New York Yankees for the sixth straight time, allowing only two singles in a 1-0 Boston Red Sox victory.

Sad Sam Jones, always a scrapper, relieved starter Connie Ryan and, pitched a two-hitter against Cincinnati for a 3-1 victory, his second of the season. Chicago's A scheduled second game was rained out in the third inning.

Saul Rogovin, another scrappy pitcher who was shunted to the minors after being the mainstay for Baltimore to top Washington in the league's first three games 3-1. Washington took the second 3-2.

Rookie Frank Lary of Detroit found his first big league victims in the Cleveland Indians, who had 111 games last season. Lary allowed eight hits while the Tigers rang a first debut on Herb Score, the Indians' rookie hotshot, 6-4.

WENT THE ROUTE

Baltimore's Nixon only five singles. The husky lefthander became the first Kansas City pitcher to go the route this season in a game watched by 19,446 A's fans.

Minus their second successive shutout was a real classy job at Yankee Stadium, where singles by Bill Skowron and Eddie Lopat were the only New York hits in a game delayed one hour and 15 minutes by rain. Lopat lost out in the ninth when Faye Throneberry singled, took second on an infield out and scored when Norm Zauchin's single dropped in front of Hank Bauer.

Hoot Evers' pinch double set up the winning run for Baltimore in the first game against Washington. He moved to third on an error by Bob Kline and scored on an infield out. Few of the 22,896 fans were around to see Washington fish Ray Moore and Don Johnson for 12 hits to give Johnny Schmitz the nod in the winning role.

Ray Boone drove in the first four Detroit runs with a homer and single against his old Cleveland mates to ease Lary's path. After giving a homer to Larry Doby in the first inning, Lary was in trouble only in the sixth when three hits gave the Tribe two runs.

A CLOSE ONE

The Giants and Dodgers staged another massive tug-of-war at Ebbets Field before the Brooks finally lost their second game in 13 starts. Despite two homers by Willie Mays, his first of the season, Brooklyn took a 5-3 lead into the ninth, when Al Dark's two-run homer tied the score.

Ray Katt's first hit of the year, a three-run homer, started the Giants to their six-run spurt in the 10th, only to have Brooklyn hammer back with five. At the end the Dodgers had men on first and second when Ruben Gomez, the seventh New York pitcher, finally got 23 men into action.

Hot Welcome For Major Ball In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The cold statistics showed today that major league baseball is getting a red hot welcome in Kansas City.

Home attendance for seven days for Kansas City's American League entry was brought to 156,997—an average of 22,428—by the 19,446 cash customers that turned out in chilly, windy weather to see the Athletics beat the Chicago White Sox 5-0 Sunday.

That's more than half the 304,898 total drawn by the same Athletics in 72 games at Philadelphia all last season. Chances are excellent that Kansas City will beat the Philadelphia season figure by the time the Athletics complete their year-out home stand May 4.

All reserved seats have been sold for the first game against New York Yankees Thursday and the A's are offering a capacity crowd of more than 32,000 also is expected for the second Yank game.

The fact manager Lou Boudreau's A's have lost 7 of their first 10 games has failed to dampen the enthusiasm of fans. The A's came home from their first road trip smarting under a 16-0 loss to Detroit April 17. Next night they drew 31,383 with Cleveland.

Sundridge Edges Walkerton 3-2

SUNDRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Sundridge Beavers edged Walkerton Capitals 3-2 Saturday night in a hectic all-Ontario intermediate B final game here.

Some 1,700 fans were on hand. Sundridge's population is 847.

The win tied the best-of-seven series at three games apiece with the seventh game scheduled tonight in Walkerton.

Harold Hill, Joe Quinlan and Keith Mortimer played the scoring for the Beavers and Willard Haas and Keith Ringham were Walkerton marksmen.

Cataracts, Flyers Split Finals Opening Games

MONTREAL (CP) — Edmonton Flyers and Shawinigan Falls Cataracts gave notice during the weekend that whichever team takes home the Edinburgh Trophy will have to earn it.

The Flyers won the opening game of the best-of-nine series against the Quebec Hockey League title-holders 4-3 after 39 minutes of overtime in Shawinigan Falls Saturday. The Cataracts bounced back Sunday in Montreal to defeat the Flyers 6-2 in a game punctuated by a brawl involving nearly every player on the two teams.

Bronco Horvath, Edmonton's starry centre, potted a goal after 39 minutes and 6 seconds of play Saturday to climax the Flyers' comeback drive.

GOAL LEAD

Shawinigan coasted into the third period with a 3-1 lead after Eddie Litzenberger and Willie Marshall scored in th eopening stanza and Roger Leger and Edmonton's Hugh Coflin traded second-period tallies.

Johnny Bucyk of Edmonton made it 3-2 early and teammate Larry Zeidel is the opening period.

A five-goal outburst in the second period gave the Cataracts a big cushion as they downed the Western Hockey League champions 6-2 Sunday.

Woodstock Nips Woodbridge 7-6; Take 3-2 Edge

WOODBRIDGE (CP) — Woodstock Warriors defeated Woodbridge Dodgers 7-6 Saturday night, amid fights between players and spectators to take a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior B final. One game is tied. The seventh game will be played at Woodstock Tuesday.

Two outbreaks between Woodstock fans and Dodger defender Dixie Rhodes marred the second period. The fans started a verbal barrage against Rhodes after he netted a goal. Ted McDonnell. The puck appeared to trickle between Rhodes' leg and the goal.

While waiting for play to resume, Rhodes teased off his gloves and attempted to clamber over the boards and strike the booters. It started a general scuffle between Woodbridge players and the fans.

After a 20-minute delay, referees Pearcy. Allen and Gord Fevreau restored order. Another fight broke out in the interval when Rhodes shot the puck among the fans. Sticks were broken as two Woodbridge players swung at spectators.

Rhodes was given a 10-minute misconduct along with Don Carter, who had left the penalty box to take part in the action. Several spectators were slightly cut during the fracas and three were ejected. Carl Hait and Ernie Blair each scored twice for Woodstock. Jim Erines, Matt Ratelle and McDonnell scored the singles. Harvey Wallace and Bob Cherry each counted twice for Dodgers. Chuck Stuart and Doug Falby added the others.

Pt. Anne Takes Game Lead In Championship Series; Trims Electrics 10-5

Gerry Goyer's Four Markers Feature Important Victory; Second Game Wallaceburg, Fri.

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Point Anne Canestmen advanced to within one game of the O.H.A. Intermediate "C" Provincial championship on Saturday night when they trounced the Electric Hurricanes 10-5 before 650 spectators at Marmora in the first game of their best-of-three Trillar series. The second fixture will be played in Wallaceburg next Friday night and if a third is necessary, it will take place there on Saturday.

Gerry Goyer, starry left-winger of the Cementmen, put on a terrific scoring display to shoulder the Electrics, flashing the red light four times while drawing assists on another quartet. He notched his initial goal in the first period, that saw the big visiting squad hold the locals to a 2-2 tie, and exploded for the other three in the earlier session of the hockey club a 5-3 margin. from then on they were never threatened.

Goyer's linemates, playing coach Tim Williams and Leo Goyer, also contributed heavily to the victory scoring punch. Williams scoring two goals and setting up two more while Leo assisted on four. Billy Strahan netted twice with singletons going to defence partners, John and Pete Goyer. Tom Bishop was top point man for the losers, getting a goal and assist while H. Hyrized, Tom McGee, H. McNally and John Duchene completed the scoring.

The game was rough with the Pointers handing out plenty of body-checks on the ice and no surface but referees Payne and Vilneuil slammed many penalties, Electric earning the odd one. Each team tallied twice with the opposition a man short.

AHEAD TWICE

The Hurricanes were ahead twice in the first period, Bishop beating Tom Poole with a right foot backhand drive at 3.52 to open the scoring. They held the lead until 8.15 when Williams scampered from the Goyers before tossing in along to knot the score. McGee missed two great scoring chances, being outgeneered by Bates on one occasion and before H. Hyrstead batted home a loose puck at 16.33 to make it 3-1. Gerry Goyer got that one back in the closing play with Bobby Hunter and Williams in the dying minutes of the period, slapping the disc to the corner.

McGee continued to open up great scoring chances with his speed as he raced in twice more in the second period opened but failed both times. . He finally dented the twice at 7.07, banging

A slashing penalty to Lennon paved the way for two goals by Gerry Goyer at 8.46, coming 32 second apart. Jud Semark fired a blast from the blueline to start the first one, Goyer tipping in the rebound and the tie-breaker coming on a power play with the short backhand doing the damage. The Cementmen netted another at 14.00 but it was called back when the official claimed it was kicked in. Goyer made up for this with a short, snap shot at 15.30 to end the scoring for the period and open up the 5-3 lead.

Strahan went off for high sticking early in the third and McNally took advantage by sinking a drive from the blueline but Armstrong was also assists to the Goyer boys at 4.41.

Bates, playing fine goal for the winners, did the splits to kick out a labelled drive near the ten minute mark but Duchene picked up the rebound to flick it over the prone goalie for a 7-5 score. John Lennon added another for Point Anne, slashing home a rebound at 13.35 but he hooked up with brother Pete and Gerry Goyer for the prettiest play of the game at 17.27. Goyer started the play in his own end with the defence pair catching Electric off guard and racing up, Pete to John and back to Pete at the goalmouth, the latter making no mistake. Joe Scott and Billy Strahan completed the scoring with only seconds left, Strahan pulling the-trigger. The teams:

Sam Snead's Golf School

SWING FUNDAMENTALS

The Teaching Committee of the Professional Golfers' Association of America has just come out with what it defines as the five basic fundamentals of a good swing. They are: (1) The Address; (2) The Waggle; (3) One-piece, left-side swing; (4) Delayed wrist action and (5) The Pivot.

I helped them make the movie which will dramatize these principles of golfing public. (You probably will see this on TV or elsewhere soon). So this week I thought I would discuss these fundamentals one-by-one, just as they are presented by the PGA Teaching Committee.

As the film points out, when you look at golf objectively, the purpose is very simple — it's to propel a ball at as high a rate of speed as possible in a given direction.

Here are the only two factors that can make the ball go where you want it to: (1) the path of the clubhead must be along the desired direction line; (2) the clubface itself must be exactly square to this intended line at impact.

The entire theory of the golf swing, then, is to deliver the clubhead to the ball in a squared position, along the intended line of flight at as high a rate of speed as possible.

Havana Cubans Riding High In International

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Havana Cubans were looking like the International League version of the Brooklyn Dodgers today, with a gutsy pitching relief pitching by Raul Sanchez and Julio Moreno. Sanchez permitted but two hits in 4 1-3 innings after rescuing Emilio Cueche in the opener, while Moreno came on in the second of the nightcap, replacing Comrade Marrer with the bases loaded. He put out the fire and held the lead the rest of the way.

BAILED HIM OUT

In the opener, the Cubans scored three runs in the first and one each in the second and third, but Cueche, who had trouble with the slippery baseball in the early innings, gave up four runs in the fifth before Sanchez bailed him out.

In other action, Columbus and Havana split a twin bill, after taking the opener 7-4 and Leafs the nightcap 4-3. Rochester licked Havana 7-3 (the second game was called because of rain), and Richmond swept a pair from Buffalo, game halted after six innings by rain.

Columbus had to come from behind a 4-1 deficit to win the opener with Lou Limmer and Bill Verdi helping the cause with homers. In the second game, Toronto's Connie Johnson had an easy time and was tapped for three runs in the final inning when he was out of danger.

Richmond won its game with Buffalo, which has yet to get in the victory column after six bouts, on an unearned run in the sixth inning.

Dutchies Effort Best in Seven Says Coach

KITCHENER (CP)—"Our club was definitely up for tonight," coach Bob Bauer said Saturday night after Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen defeated Fort William Beavers 6-2 in the third game of their Allan Cup finals.

The win, which gave the Dutchmen a 3-1 edge in the best-of-seven series, was "the best effort our club has made in the last seven or eight games," Bauer said in the dressing room. "I thought we were beginning to come towards the end of the second game, but tonight it was just going in for us."

Playing coach Bob Draisaitis of the Beavers, promised that his club would be back for contention after Tuesday night's fourth game.

"I guess we were the second best club tonight," he said. "We just didn't have it, but we'll be back."

Dutchmen Whip Beavers 6-2 In 3rd Game Allan Cup Series

KITCHENER (CP)—Fort William Beavers haven't lost two straight hockey games all season. So, they can hardly be blamed if they appear optimistic about tonight's fourth Allan Cup playoff engagement with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Beavers dropped a 6-2 decision to Dutchmen in the third game of the best-of-seven final series Saturday night. It gave Dutchmen a 2-1 lead in the series and even they agreed that Beavers weren't up to scratch.

"I will be different tomorrow night," predicted Fort William playing-coach Bob Draisaville. At the same time he reminded everybody that Beavers went through the regular schedule and playoffs leading to the set against Dutchmen without dropping two games in a row.

However, if the western Canada champions expect to take the title they must find a way of stopping the powerful line of centre Jack Hamilton, left-winger Jim Logan and rightwinger Jack McKenzie. This line scored four goals and accounted for 50% of Dutchmen's points Saturday.

The two Kitchener goals went to defenceman Bud Kempt and right-winger George Scholes. Leftwinger Johnny Irving and his brother, Aleg, scored for Fort William.

A capacity crowd of 7,344, so warm in the summer-like temperatures that fans were in shirtsleeves sat in as the teams battled to a scoreless first period. The Dutchmen broke out with four goals in the second session.

Johnny Irvin sent Beavers into a 1-0 lead when he beat Dutchmen goaltender Keith Woodall at the 1:55 second mark of the second period but it didn't stand up long. McKenzie tied at 1-1 at 6:13 and Dutchmen went wild after that. It was 4-1 at the end of the second and Dutchmen outscored Beavers 2-1 in the third period.

McKenzie's first goal was scored on a long, high shot that caught the corner of the net. Goaltender Paul Morin didn't see the drive. Kempt, made it 3-1 at 9:32 when Morin fanned on a long shot. Dutchmen took a 5-1 lead on McKenzie's second goal at 13:03 and Scholes increased the count to 6-1 at 17:35.

Logan and McKenzie tallied in the third period before Alex picked up a goal for Beavers.

Only four minor penalties were called by referee Ike Morrison and Chick Little. Each team had two.

Beavers missed several good scoring chances in the first period. They outshot Dutchmen 14-8 and only fine work by Woodall stopped them from scoring. Morin, too, was sensational at times. He stopped 42 Dutchmen shots, against Woodall's total of 33.

Beavers' Bid For Home Games Is Rejected

KEMPTVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Fort William's bid to have some of the remaining Allan Cup senior hockey final games played at the Lakehead has been rejected.

W. B. George, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Sunday that the entire series between Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Fort William Beavers for the Canadian senior hockey championship will be played at Waterloo.

He said in a statement that this is in keeping with a CAHA regulation that the locale for the senior and junior championships should alternate, with the club finishing last in eastern Canada and the Memorial Cup final in the West for one year, and alternatively the next.

Kitchener now leads the best-of-seven finals two games to one.

Will Return Trophy Won By Peewees

GODERICH (CP)—Mayor H. M. Gladman of Newmarket says a trophy won by the Newmarket team at a recent peewee tournament herewith be returned to the tournament executive.

In a telegram to Guy Emerson, secretary of Young Canada Week, Mayor Gladman said investigation showed players on the Newmarket team were over the age limit.

At a parents' meeting in Aurora last Thursday it was charged three players above the age limit played in the Goderich tournament. Reports were circulating here that Newmarket featured in a weekend trip.

"We are waiting for Goderich action on this," Christie added. "It was their tournament but by this same token, under Canadian Amateur Hockey Association regulations, all minor hockey activity in the province come under our jurisdiction."

Buy and Sell Soccer Players; Face Charges

VIENNA (Reuters) — Seventeen persons have gone on trial on Communist Czechoslovakia for buying and selling soccer players, says the Slovak daily Smer Pravde.

When Czechoslovakia became Communist in 1948, the government banned as a "capitalist practice" the transfer of players from one soccer club to another at high fees.

The accused are charged with having established a "secret" fund and having conducted "shady deals up" players. Fat sums went to bribe players in opposing teams, the newspaper charges.

Nortowns Take Two from Pegs

TORONTO (CP) — All season Winnipeg Lightf Infantry Oak Leafs, western junior basketball champions, lost only one game. In one week-end here they lost two straight.

The Toronto Nortowns took a step toward bucking the Canadian title when they defeated Winnipeg 75-68 Saturday and followed with a 75-61 victory Sunday.

Nortowns wrapped up Sunday's game early in the second half when they exploded for 15 consecutive points to break a 37-34 deficit. Toronto trailed 35-33 at the half.

In the second half Oak Leafs couldn't keep the ball under control and a tight Toronto defence gave Nortowns the game.

Doug Gaisky was high man for Toronto Sunday with 20 points. Bill Karpinsky scored 19 and Izzy Maudel 15.

Nashua, Sun Tan Top Favorites Kentucky Derby

NEW YORK (AP)—It appeared today as if the East's consolation to the Kentucky Derby will be slim but potent—a three-horse contingent headed by the Belair Stud's mighty Nashua.

The returns were all in Saturday night from Jamaica, where Nashua defeated Summer Tan in a grade A thriller, and from Maryland, where Saratoga easily copped the Chesapeake Stakes. No other colt showed enough to warrant the trip to Louisville where the Derby classic will have its 81st running May 7.

Nashua, the future book Derby favorite for weeks, turned in another tenacious, bulldog performance to catch the front-running Summer Tan in the $111,700 Wood Memorial at Jamaica. The Calhoun future book kept him at 8-5 with Summer Tan at 3-1.

WILL BE FAVORED

This was one of the finest horse races handled and it assured that Nashua will be the favorite of the Derby field. Summer Tan, who wasn't disgraced a bit in the Wood, probably will rate second choice of the usual Derby crowd of some 100,000. Mrs. John W. Galbreath's speedy colt set the pace for the mile and one-eighth Wood Memorial, only to have Nashua rush past for the finish down the stretch and snatch a neck victory in a heart-throbbing finish.

At Laurel Park, meanwhile, Mrs. Marion Dupont Scott's Saratoga trimmed 10 other three-year-olds in the Chesapeake Stakes. Saratoga is the product of Virginia 'n' Yankee Frank Bonsal clients to send him to Louisville to meet Nashua and the others in the Derby.

Italian Veteran of 100 Movies Back in Hollywood to Work

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Eduardo Ciannelli, veteran of 100 movies, had a simple solution when movie work became scarce for actors. He returned to his native Italy.

The actor is back in Hollywood after a three-year absence. He explained why he went away:

"There is more film activity in Italy than in Hollywood. Why stay here waiting for jobs you can be working all the time over there?"

That may come as a blow to Hollywood's pride, but it's true. Movie production is limping along there. The two largest studios, MGM and 20th Century-Fox, used to have eight or nine pictures going in the lush days. Last week they had one apiece.

Meanwhile Hollywood on the Tiber has been booming. Ciannelli was a natural to cash in on the boom. Well-built at six feet, he speaks English and Italian equally well. Fluently, too.

"Once I was doing a picture over there in three versions," he recalled, shaking his head. "I did the scenes three times—in French, English and Italian." Such a talent is valuable in the multi-language films in which Italy specializes.

Katherine Cornell Has Never Played Role for Movies, TV

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Katherine Cornell is the "theatre's rarest star—she has never played a role for the movies or television. And that is (all right with her.

That may come as a shock to Hollywood's pride, but it's true. Movie production is limping along there. The two largest studios, MGM and 20th Century-Fox, used to have eight or nine pictures going in the lush days. Last week they had one apiece.

Meanwhile Hollywood on the Tiber has been booming. Ciannelli was a natural to cash in on the boom. Well-built at six feet, he speaks English and Italian equally well. Fluently, too.

"Once I was doing a picture over there in three versions," he recalled, shaking his head. "I did the scenes three times—in French, English and Italian." Such a talent is valuable in the multi-language films in which Italy specializes.

"Neither the need nor the crusade has ended for me," says Katherine, warning off rumors that she is planning retirement.

"Each generation is asked for one certain thing, and you must keep plowing at it," she says.

Television?

"I never have felt that I've met the right thing. If I met something suited to my ability, age and looks, I'd be a fool not to take it."

NOW IN MID-SIE

Miss Cornell faces frankly the facts of mid-30, of having been a star for 35 years and being on the eve of her 25th anniversary as a producer-manager of shows in partnership with husband Guthrie McClintic.

She talks serenely of those years and of that "greatest?" episode of her career when she played her "Barretts of Wimpole Street" to soldier audiences during the Second World War.

She currently is winding up an engagement in the Christopher Fry drama as "The Lady Is Light Enough." She played the Fry role on an 11-city tour before New York. Audience response on the road was spectacular, she reports, but a combination of a postponed opening and dull critical notices in New York resulted in disappointment.

"This is not the moment in theatre for any particular type of play," she says, "but the world does need an awful lot of the things Fry says.

"It probably sounds awful, but spiritual revival is needed, and we need to hear of faith and hope and all those things, and the triumph of human spirit.

"If that's being sappy, I don't mind being sappy."

AT THE CAPITOL — Richard Conte leaves a crime syndicate in Allied Artists' "The Big Combo," with Cornel Wilde, Jean Wallace and Brian Donlevy, at the Capitol Theatre for seven program. Bill Elliott stars in "Blowing Wild," a modern as a chief detective in "Dial Red O".

AT THE CAPITOL — Cornel Wilde, as "Big Combo" co-star with Richard Conte, Jean Wallace and Brian Donlevy in Allied Artists' "The Big Combo," now at the Capitol Theatre for its four Belleville showings. On same program Bill Elliott stars in "Blowing Wild," a modern as a chief detective in "Dial Red O".

The reported bidding was like this:

South	North
2 Hearts	2 Spades
3 Spades	Pass

West simply cashed both aces and killed the contract before declarer could catch his breath. The letter states that the players are still feuding over the spot to place the blame.

North stands on a potent record. He points to a prominent book that advocates such a response. South debates this by quoting me as saying the north reply was a guarantee of at least one sure trick.

The claim of each player is correct. In my system any positive response (immediate reply of anything but two no-trump) shows a sure trick. Some others do it with a couple of kings or better.

None of us, however, go to a slam without ace-showing in some form. Except where the opener has enough controls in his own hand. Thus, common practice does not approve the south jump to slam.

So, what about the first response by north? Regardless of who says what, is it wise to encourage slam with some high cards that are not necessarily quick trick takers?

Slam depends on immediate controls. Too many games are lost by reaching for slam that is not sufficiently controlled. Most of this danger fades when responder definitely promises help of a sure trick.

Could be that some experts court more danger than I do. Could be that you agree with them. Pass the ammunition.

Deputy District Gov. Pays Official Visit

Deputy District governor, Whibley L. Martin, paid his official visit to his home club, Bancroft Lions, at their Monday night meeting held at Hotel Bancroft.

Welcomed by Cecil Wiggins, the D.D.G., after giving the club a summary of his work during his year of office, said that he was often asked why he took on the added responsibility of the job when his business kept him busy enough.

His reply to that question was, that he regarded doing those things he liked as a pleasure and a relaxation and not as an effort. MOST SUCCESSFUL CLUBS

Lion Whitney, who is standing for election as district governor at next month's convention in Quebec City, told his listeners he found that the most successful clubs were those with the liveliest meetings, those with plenty of music and singing. He advised that the business session in most meetings be kept short and that careful attention be paid to the casual visitor. Thanked by Mike Burns, the speaker was presented with a twin floor lamp by Art Hewitt.

After some discussion on the difficulty of obtaining suitable boats and attractions it was decided that the annual regatta be dropped this year. The Baptists Lake regatta has been one of the club's major projects for the past six years.

A white elephant sale which has proved successful in the past is to be held again shortly.

NOMINATION COMMITTEE

A nomination committee under the chairmanship of Cecil Wiggins, will present a slate of proposed new officers at the May meeting.

Six members, Roy Barton, Ray Tompkins, Clarence Marston, John Hawkins, Jim Brown, Jack Follis and Rev. Owen E. Johnson will be attending the district convention in Quebec.

An Easter Seals total to date of $450 was announced by committee chairman John Hawkins.

In a short induction ceremony S. Rowsell, T. Adams, G. Gordon and H. Lehigh were installed as members of the club.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, MAY 3, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — With painstaking attention you can make good on big ideas, well-formulated plans. Press advantages smartly but not too frequently. Heart affairs favored.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — You may have to ferret out the obscurely hidden benefits if you really expect to achieve on this somewhat mixed day. Don't let it be said that you didn't look sharply enough, or gave up too soon.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Okay for those who are unabashed by obstacles, who have the courage of honest convictions. Don't delay starting or procrastinate along the way. Move with confidence; good chances increase.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Critical situations can be bettered by not allowing yourself to become depressed or loitering on the job. Keep stocking your defendable storehouse; be ready to help and you'll be helped in return.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — You may have to seek counsel today. Often there is wisdom in numbers. Your aspects warn against tendencies toward arrogance, domineering, deviating from well-tested procedures in favor of the untried or risky.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — You may have to weather some strain, irritability. Avoid those who impede your progress. You are strong on will power naturally, but pace your course carefully.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — It is sometimes a mistake to make changes unless absolutely necessary. Look ahead; be prepared. Carry a surplus of good will and you will want for little.

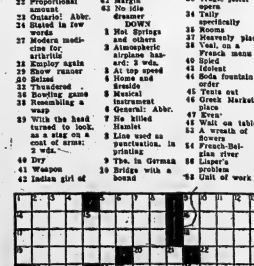
October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — The aspects of most persons are somewhat restrictive today. Not yours. Handle all tasks in Scorpio's competent manner and head straight for your goals.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — The planetary aspects offer little help today. Be on guard with personal property, money. Consider your family, loved ones.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — So-so indications. Better for such periods for relaxing, slackening pace.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Some obstacles, problems ahead. Fortify yourself with prayer. Nothing risked, nothing gained.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — A successful, uninteresting day, perhaps, but good for you who do not lack ambition or pride in achieving at least a little each day. Try, try again. Now is the time.



YOU BORN TODAY have a strong personality and a wide variety of talents. You may lean toward writing, travel, invention; are less restless than many versatile folks, yet can waste valuable time with time-wasting people and inconsequentialities. Your faults are not many, but unchecked, they could thwart high ambition. Be patient, persevering. Curb temper. Work with new, improved materials, methods. Remember, we either advance or retreat, never stand still. Be careful in companionships. Birthdate of: Niccolo Machiavelli, Ital. statesman, writer.

Large Gathering of Deer In N. B. Not Duplicated This Year

ST. GEORGE, N.B. (CP) — A phenomenal gathering of deer last spring in the marshy regions of the area of Charlotte county in southern New Brunswick was not duplicated this year.

They did emerge from the woods, to graze on blueberry barrens, but in smaller numbers and scattered over a larger area. One game official estimated the total at no more than 300 in comparison with 600 a year ago.

The congregation of "white-tails" in March, 1954, was the largest ever seen in New Brunswick and possibly anywhere. Most were within a two-mile radius. One group of 45 huddled in a half-acre space. All the deer, bucks and yearlings appeared fat and in good condition.

They gradually dispersed, breaking up into smaller and smaller groups when the weather became warmer and returning to their woodland haunts as snow melted.

Deer spend the winter in "yards" trampled in forest snow. From 10 to 25 in each yard live on cedar browse and similar fodder, often in swamps and at the edge of lakes. When spring comes the animals emerge to open plains for food. Large areas of blueberry scrub land in Charlotte county are a prime attraction.

Last spring, as this year, the berries were bare while snow remained deep in the woods. Game warden Harold Gillespie of Pennfield Ridge suggested these possible reasons for a smaller crop of blueberry berries this spring.

First, the snow had no crust, permitting more freedom of movement for feeding in the woods. Secondly, shooting on the Camp Utopia ranges (there was none last spring) would discourage foraging in that area.

Mr. Gillespie described the pest when as normal for Charlotte county where snow usually remains in the woods until late March. Northern New Brunswick had much heavier snowfalls, some in late March, confining deer to their yards for a longer period than in southern counties.

Start Toward Drugs to Protect From Fallout or Radioactivity

Science's initial "the most widespread effect of our hideous progress" would be radiation, or fall-out. Under certain conditions this might kill or cause mutations by the explosion itself. The hydrogen bomb has now made it clear that research has found hope that these millions might not need to die.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Scientists have made an encouraging start toward drugs to protect you from H-bomb fallout or radioactivity.

Several chemicals work effectively to shield mice and guinea pigs from exposure. None is practical yet for humans. But they mark a beginning, and more research is on the way.

What concerns many scientists is that untempered fear and ignorance about radioactivity could panic people, causing unnecessary casualties if war came.

KNOWLEDGE A FACTOR

A main defence is factual knowledge about radioactivity—knowing what it is, and what it can do.

Another defence would be drugs to prevent radiation sickness, or neutralize or overcome its effects. Some scientists think there is a chance of such drugs.

Give mice a shot of cysteine before exposure to killing doses of x-rays, and they survive, scientists find.

CHEAP, BUT IMPRACTICAL

X-rays are a main hazard in exploding nuclear bombs—if you are near the explosion—or in the fall-out of radioactive dust from such a bomb.

Cysteine is an inexpensive chemical, one of the amino acids or components of proteins such as meat or milk. But it isn't practical for humans. The mice must be given almost poisonous amounts of cysteine. They have to have it before exposure to the x-rays, and the protection lasts only an hour. Humans would have to receive it continually, or take a dose for an all-out raid alert while ingram turn out to be a false alarm.

Alcohol gives some protection, but don't excuse your cocktails as radiation medicine.

At the U. S. Air Force Radiation Laboratory at the University of Chicago, John Storer and Julius M. Cook found that another chemical, pepp, protects mice from lethal doses of x-rays as well or better than cysteine. Pepp also has to be given beforehand. The pepp, a nickname for pseudohexopterbine, also is not a practical preventive for humans, as yet anyway.

None of these protective drugs has been tried on men to make sure they are exposed to the x-rays.

CLUE IN BONE MARROW

But Dr. Leon Jacobson of the University of Chicago and associates have a clue to curing radiation sickness after exposure.

The clue is in extracts of spleen or bone marrow. These appear to save a high percentage of mice exposed to what would be fatal doses of x-rays.

They work even if given four to five days after exposure. They halt the progress of the disease, prevent many of the effects of radiation sickness.

They apparently work by restoring the damaged blood-forming system. Living cells in the spleen or bone marrow extracts are the key. These cells apparently are making some "X" substance which revitalizes the damaged marrow or other organs, Dr. Jacobson says.

Dr. Jacobson now fixes the tantalizingly difficult task of learning what the "X" stuff is, and whether it can be obtained in practical quantities from animals as a drug for radiation sickness.

Walter Allward, Designer of Vimy Memorial, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Seymour Allward, who designed Canada's national war memorial on Vimy Ridge, telling 14 years as create what has been called the noblest memorial in the world, died here Sunday, at 78.

The great bronze memorial, with its massive pylons and the figure of a woman brooding over her two dying sons, was dedicated in 1936 by King Edward VIII at a ceremony attended by 6,000 Canadian veterans.

It dominates the topmost rise of the ridge that was the scene of the Canadian Corps' great victory in 1917 and honors the 60,000 Canadians cut down by the First World War's sickle of death.

With the unveiling, international fame came to Mr. Allward and at his death at 78 was described as Canada's most distinguished sculptor.

A dream was Mr. Allward's inspiration for the Vimy memorial, a dream in which the dead rose in masses and entered the fight to win the living.

"So vivid was this impression that when I awoke it lasted with me for months," he recalled. "So I have tried to show in this monument to Canada's fallen what we owed them and will forever owe them."

The sculptor made 120 sketches before submitting the design which won him the commission from the federal government.

He left in June, 1922, and turned Europe for more than a year seeking the kind of stone he wanted. He found it in the quarries of the Emperor Diocletian in the ancient Roman province of Dalmatia.

His words during the building were recalled when the Germans overran France in France in 1940.

"We carved the figures of stone instead of casting them in bronze," he said. "Bronze figures might be melted down for munitions if war came again."

At the start Mr. Allward expected the job to take five years. It took 14.

Mr. Allward was born in Toronto in 1876, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Allward, both of St. John's, Nfld. He began work at 14 to start work as a carpenter with his father.

He became apprenticed to a firm of architects, but instead of sticking to blueprints, he copied drawings of Michelangelo and of Greek sculpture. He often returned to the office at night to work on the world's great sculptors.

Toronto commissioned him in charge of erecting a monument to the men who fought in the North West Rebellion of 1885 and created a park when the main structure was completed. It invited Mr. Allward to design a symbolic figure of peace to crown the memorial.

In 1903 he was commissioned to make a statue of the Regina editor, Nicholas Flood Davin. Bronze figure of Sir Oliver Mowat, many times premier of Ontario, followed.

Soon afterwards, he went abroad to study, returning from London and Paris, his improved technique was apparent in his first important work—the towering South African monument on Toronto's University Avenue.

In 1936 Mr. Allward married Margaret Rooney, Toronto, who predeceased him. He leaves one son, Hugh L. Allward, a Toronto architect.

GOVERNMENT

Mr. Oliver, forecasting a June vote and calling for all-out efforts to win the next provincial general election, said the party is not content to be the official opposition.

Three federal cabinet ministers, External Affairs Minister Pearson, Health Minister Martin and Finance Minister Harris, took part in the rally.

Mr. Pearson said Canadians must work toward international peace as a sturdy, independent and self-reliant people, but must walk in step with friendly nations. He said although international affairs "are not easy now" nor likely to be in the near future, there was no reason for despair.

Mr. Martin said good government consists of good relations between senior governments, federal and provincial. It had been possible under the present Liberal leadership to maintain a more satisfactory measure of relations than had been possible for some time.

Mr. Harris suggested the standing of the provincial Liberal party was at a low ebb three years ago, but it is now on the march forward due mainly to the efforts of Mr. Oliver.

Albert Wren, Liberal-Labor member for Kenora in the legislature, said Ontario Hydro had absorbed federal increases in subsidies to pulp mines by raising rates on the mines.

He said an increase in the fee for registering mining claims was a part of provincial government policy of adding to burdens of the little fellow.

The association re-elected Wilfred P. Gregory of Stratford as president.

ALI OF PAKISTAN

The resolutions drawn up at the parley covered a wide field, ranging from demands for a ban on manufacture and testing of nuclear weapons to cultural co-operation among Asian and African peoples.

The final conference communique outlined these principal stands, in addition to that on colonialism, adopted during the meeting:

1. Universal membership in the United Nations to promote world peace—an oblique reference to Red China's demands for a seat in the world organization.

2. Economic co-operation among the Asian-African nations "on the basis of mutual interest and respect for national sovereignty."

3. Cultural understanding among nations through co-operation.

4. Full support for the principle of self-determination "of peoples and nations as set forth in the Charter of the United Nations." The conference agreed on a seven-point blueprint for coexistence, including opposition to collective pacts designed "to serve particular interests of any big powers."

5. Support for the "courageous stand taken by the victims" of racial prejudice, especially by the peoples of African, Indian and Pakistani origin in South Africa.

6. Support for the rights of the North Africans to self-determination, a reference to the nationalist demands in French territories there.

7. Support for the "rights of the Arab people of Palestine" and a call for a peaceful settlement there.

The delegates agreed to leave the decision whether to hold another conference next year to the five sponsoring countries, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Burma and Indonesia.

Bodies Found

RCMP termed the deaths murder and suicide.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—New Orleans Sunday dedicated a massive bronze monument to Jean Baptiste Le Moyne, Sieur de Bienville, the Canadian soldier of fortune who founded and laid out this city 226 years ago. Dignitaries from Canada, France and Louisiana saw the unveiling of the 35-foot high monument.

TYPHOON REPORTED

MANILA (AP)—A typhoon with winds up to 115 miles an hour churned slowly toward the northern Ryukyu islands between Okinawa and Formosa today. The Manila weather bureau said the typhoon this afternoon was about 500 miles southeast of the big United States military base at Okinawa, moving northwest on a 300-mile front at about 10 miles an hour.

ST. LAURENT OFFERS TO ASSIST JOBLESS

TOWNSEND BESIEGED BY YOUNG FANS

Group Captain Peter Townsend, the British air attache in Brussels and rumored future husband of Princess Margaret, was mobbed by overenough hunters after riding Le Baudrier at Tremblay, Paris, France. In the gentleman-riders' race he got away to a very bad start when he began able to make it up in the finishing stages. Nevertheless, after the race he was literally besieged by young fans, who were finally held at bay by the police. (Central Press Canadian).

Sir Lyman died in hospital where he was confined for the past couple of months.

Described as one of the great North American jurists, he was chief justice for 11 years until his retirement in 1944 after the government twice extended his term beyond the normal retirement age of 75.

In all, Sir Lyman Poore Duff was on the Supreme Court for 38 years. He was once nominated for a cabinet post by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and during the First World War came close to becoming prime minister.

Although a Liberal, it was Conservative leader Sir Robert Borden who proposed Sir Lyman head the Union government in 1917 when the Liberals opposed Sir Robert taking the leadership. But Sir Robert won control before a formal offer was made to Sir Lyman.

A former British lord high chancellor once said Sir Lyman's only legal equals in North America were Mr. Justice Brandeis and Mr. Justice Holmes of the United States Supreme Court.

Sir Lyman frequently acted as administrator of Canada in the absence of governors-general and twice opened sessions of parliament, in 1931 and 1946. The 1931 session marked the first time Parliament had been opened by a Canadian.

He headed a number of important royal commissions, including the Duff commission on transportation in 1932 which studied Canada's transportation systems and recommended a large number of reforms. One of his last major tasks was to head the inquiry into the Canadian expedition to Hong Kong where many Canadian troops perished when Japan seized the British colony in December, 1941.

Sir Lyman was an authority on common, civil and criminal law and particularly constitutional law as it dealt with the rights of the federal and provincial governments.

Early in his career, in 1919, he was appointed to the Imperial Privy Council in recognition of merit achieved by only a handful of Canadians. Sir Lyman gave active and distinguished service to the judicial committee of the council for many years and on several times was entrusted with the handling down of major judgments of the highest legal body in the British Commonwealth.

He was a prodigious reader of political science, classical literature, social science and higher mathematics. He was reputed to be one of the few men in the world who understood Einstein's theory of relativity.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synoptic: Skies will clear slowly tonight in southern Ontario and the occasional very light rain still occurring this morning should move out of the province this afternoon. Wednesday is expected to be sunny and a little warmer. In northern Ontario sunny, mild weather today will give way to cloud and some rain tonight and Wednesday as an area of low pressure moves in the Pacific approaches Lake Superior.

Daylight Time Makes Bishop Late for Mass

BRANTFORD (CP) — The bishop was late for church Sunday.

Most Rev. Isidore Borecky of Toronto, bishop of the Ukrainian Roman Catholic Church, was to come to Brantford to officiate at high mass in the Ukrainian church of St. John the Baptist.

But by 10 a.m. the time scheduled for the mass, Bishop Borecky had not arrived.

Forty-five minutes later he walked in and promptly remembered he forgot to set his watch an hour ahead to allow for the change to daylight time.

Shots Are Fired At Policeman Who Broke Drug Ring

VANCOUVER (CP) — A rookie policeman who toppled a ring-pin in the narcotics racket with his one-man investigation was fired on from ambush Monday night in an apparent underworld bid for revenge.

Two shots were fired in rapid succession at Joe Haywood but both missed the 27-year-old constable. He was patrolling his beat on suburban West Broadway and at the gunfire came from a vacant lot behind a store where he arrived to pick up an order of special arrows.

The search started when a man out for a walk in the east-end Don Mills area found a man carrying a crossbow, with a small girl. He told police the man rushed off as soon as he was spotted. The girl was hysterical but unharmed, police said.

Noble Prize-Winner Says Thousand H-Bombs Would Damage Posterity

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Nobel prize-winning geneticist, Prof. H. J. Muller, estimates that 1,000 hydrogen bombs set loose would "significantly damage" future generations of the world's population.

The Indiana University scientist declined to say flatly that such a load would result from harmful radiation-produced mutations — sudden variations in hereditary traits — but said in an interview that it "would not mean the extinction of the race."

He made the comments when questioned in connection with statements made Monday night to the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences.

Muller declared in his speech that radiation from H-tests has already held could cause "tens of thousands" of harmful mutations in the next generation of Americans.

HOUSE CONSIDERS NATIONAL PARKS LAWS, PENSIONS

Regulations Called Medieval by Member

OTTAWA (CP)—Allegedly medieval regulations in Canada's national parks and pensions for commons-law wives of regular army officers have received Commons attention.

The two topics, with others just as varied, were involved in a miscellany of government legislation before the house.

Social Credit member C. E. Johnston, whose Alberta constituency of Bow River includes Banff National Park, said federal regulations governing parks residents sounds like "something out of the medieval ages."

He said parks police, if they suspect a person of having an illegal type of fish hook, can break into houses to search without warrant. Non-possession of a $3 licence for a cat could result in a fine of up to $200 or six months in jail.

TOO' SOFT?

Mr. Johnston raised his protests in opposing a bill to extend provisions of Alberta's health plan to residents of national parks in the province. He objected to having the parks superintendent collect health plan payments and said the preregulations under which the superintendent operates are too severe.

The bill was passed after Resources Minister Lesage said he understood parks residents are agreed on a poll tax, collected by the superintendent, to pay for the health plan protection. He indicated, however, the method of collection has yet to be definitely decided.

Crossbow-Armed Man Held On Assault Charge

TORONTO (CP)—Suburban East York police Monday night charged Lawrence Russ, 19-year-old laborer, with indecent assault following the discovery of the man with a crossbow.

Officers who arrested Russ said they found a woman and a man carrying a crossbow strung with nylon, a mass-produced modern version of the medieval weapon.

Police said they arrested Russ after a hardware store where he arrived to pick up an order of special arrows.

Bath, Basement Seen Important Safeguards Against Radiation

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (CP)—Take a good bath and head for the basement in event of atomic attack—that was the advice given here today by radiation specialists of Canada's armed services.

"Complete evacuation of the entire area contaminated by radiation from nuclear fallout is the best answer to the problem," said Wing Cmdr. A. L. Bocking of Ottawa. As head of the RCAF's rapidly expanding ground defence organization he is the man most responsible for dealing with the problem of nuclear radiation in the air force.

"But should Canadians find themselves in a heavily contaminated area they can increase their chances of survival more than one hundredfold by taking a bath and seeking shelter in the basement."

His advice was echoed by Lieut.-Cmdr. John Keeling of Ottawa, who holds a similar position in the Royal Canadian Navy, and Maj. R. E. MacDonald of Sydney Mines, N.S., head of the Canadian army's radiation detection unit based at Kingston.

The same advice was given by all ranks of Canada's tri-service radiation detection team which has been stationed at Camp Desert Rock, some 80 miles north of the gambling resort in the Nevada desert, preparing to participate in the coming United States atomic test shot. They will be the first Canadians ever to be present at such test. The open-shot test, originally scheduled for dawn today, was postponed Monday for at least 24 hours because of bad weather.

Gale-force winds which forced postponement of today's test blew down one tent occupied by the Canadians at Desert Rock overnight and threatened to topple several others.

Officers and men of the Canadian tri-service team turned out repeatedly during the night to secure the threatened tents.

Lt.-Col. R. G. Kleinau of Ottawa, officer commanding the Canadians, said no exercise was scheduled for today but practice exercises would be held Wednesday in the event of further postponement.

Cpls. D. W. Newbury of Regina and Vic Sandwell, Crystal Beach, Ont., said a shower would be more effective than a straight bath to get rid of radioactive dust. Both are members of the Kingston radiation unit.

"Remember to scrub the hair thoroughly," chimed in navy Petty Officer Rupert P. Currie of Halifax and Lee Stewart of Sewell, N.H.

Meanwhile, "Survival City," model community in the desert for a 24-hour reprieve, from destruction, is still ready and waiting for the big explosion.

While sand swept today around the huge tents, "Survival City" and "Doomsday Drive," veteran test officials scanned their weather charts for signs of a break in the gale. Further postponements would be necessary if they were not over-optimistic, however.

Monday's postponement was the first time a test has been delayed by foot tower shot has had to be delayed under the cautious policy of the AEC.

Much Quietly Accomplished In Economic Field at Bandung

BANDUNG, Indonesia (AP)— While their delegates fought with acrobatics, delegates concerned with economic problems quietly accomplished much of the work for which the Asian-African conference was intended.

As one delegate said, none of the 29 countries at the April-to-Bandung meeting could afford to build a battleship or even a destroyer, but Indonesia, particularly—do not like to admit it.

The U.S. aid was expected to be a contentious talking point for Red China, but it was not even made an issue during the meeting—and nobody said anything about the aid the Soviet Union sends to Red China either.

Against this controversial issue, the economic committee speedily:

(1) Agreed to exchange technical assistance, where one conference country could help another; (2) Recommended establishment of a special United Nations fund for economic development; (3) Recommended the need to "stabilize commodity trade"; (4) Recommended stabilizing international prices; (5) Decided that small countries should form groups of their own raw materials; (6) Suggested that shipping lines review their freight rates more often and adopt a more "reasonable attitude"; (7) Suggested establishment of an international atomic energy agency to help "promote the use of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes;" (8) Suggested the establishment of liaison officers "for the exchange of information and ideas on matters of mutual interest;" and (9) Recommended furthering their mutual economic interests without forming a regional bloc.

Does Not Know If Emilie Dionne Was Neglected

NEW YORK (CP) — Red Book magazine today quotes Oliva Dionne as saying "I have no way of knowing whether or not Emilie was neglected," at the convent in St. Agathe, Que., where she died last August.

"By the time I was notified she was dead. There was nothing anyone could have done for her then. I didn't even try to find out the details. What's the use?"

The article reports that the father of the quintuplets, telling the story to Sherry and Ivan, says she suffered three successive epileptic seizures in the convent and that she refused breakfast and remained in bed. Shortly after that a nun found dead, smothered in her pillow during another seizure.

Emilie had her first seizure before her 11th birthday and illness was diagnosed at the time by Dr. J. E. I. Royal of North Bay, the article says. But the Dionnes were no reason to make the news public. The article reviews later treatments and the girl is reported to have suffered as many as 20 seizures a day, none in public.

Russia Agrees To Talks About Austria, Japan

MOSCOW (CP) — Russia today agreed to a Big Four ambassadors' meeting in Vienna to settle final details of an Austrian treaty, and announced that she has agreed to open negotiations with Japan in London. June 1 on a peace treaty.

The moves, announced at a Kremlin press conference, followed by only a day another Russian decision to withdraw troops of the 1952 Soviet-friendship treaty with Finland.

The Vienna ambassadors' meeting will be to prepare the way for a conference of the Big Four foreign ministers in Vienna to conclude a treaty with Austria.

The three Western powers occupying Austria—the United States, Britain and France, suggested an ambassadors' meeting for May 2 when they met with Russia in Japan's London June 1 on a peace treaty.

GEORGE FAVORS TALKS WITH CHOU WITHOUT CHIANG

Foreign Committee's Head Urges Parley

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Walter George (Dem. Ga.) says the absence of Nationalist China from the conference table should not prevent United States peace talks with Red China.

George, who heads the Senate foreign relations committee, thus went a step further than the state department has been willing to go in renewing his proposal for a conference to seek a way to ease tensions in the Formosa area.

Secretary of State Dulles said almost certain questioning on the peace talk matter at his press conference today.

The department's official position thus far has been that American representatives would not be willing to talk with Red China's Premier Chou En-lai unless Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government participated.

In a new development, the U.S. was understood today to have decided against any direct talks with Red China unless the Chinese Communists come through with more conciliatory gestures than they have made so far.

George, a chief Democratic spokesman on foreign policy, said he is far from alone concerned. He would be willing to waive the Nationalist representation condition at least in exploratory discussions. At Taipei, Nationalist spokesmen have said they would not talk with the Reds.

Informants of both parties could be reserved at any conference "but could be arranged," George said.

"Only through a conference can we arrive at a solution, and I think one should be held."

Mayor Whitton Blackens Eye Of Park's Head

OTTAWA (CP) — Mayor Charlotte Whitton Saturday blacked the eye of Eddie Prid, Progressive Conservative of Landsdowne Park.

Miss Whitton said she didn't mean it.

She gestured in disgust to indicate the parcel had disappeared.

Somehow, the mayor's fist came in contact with Prid's eye. The result was a shiner.

Frost Suggests Provinces Join Ottawa in Health Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario proposed today that the provinces work with the federal government toward launching a national health insurance plan.

He urged also that the whole question of Canada's unemployed and assistance for them be considered open for discussion at the current federal - provincial conference of premiers.

As first provincial leader to speak following Prime Minister St. Laurent's opening address, he outlined a six-point program for conference discussion and investigation, including:

1. An intense study of all aspects including costs of a health insurance plan to develop a scheme "within the financial capacities of the various levels of government to pay for it." Mr. Frost had in mind a plan in which the person insured also would contribute to premiums.

PERMANENT COMMITTEE

2. A wide-open discussion on unemployment insurance, with those who cannot be employed, assistance for able-bodied jobless on works projects by various governments, including housing, to stimulate employment.

3. The setting up of a permanent federal-provincial fact-finding technical and advisory committee. It would pool economic ideas and facts and cover the entire country on such vital subjects as employment, capital investment programs and the gross national product.

4. Revision of federal health grants to provide for more flexible and allow provinces to make fuller use of them.

5. Stronger support of farm products marketing boards by clarifying provincial authority in this field under the Canadian constitution.

6. Study of federal - provincial fiscal arrangements. Mr. Frost said Ontario sought a wait-and-see attitude on the federal-provincial tax rental agreements. The five - year pacts expire on March, 1957. Mr. Frost said Ontario will study all alternatives to decide later the best course open to the provinces.

RAF Plane Stolen by Ground Crewman Crashes in French Town Killing Four

VALENCIENNES, France (CP) — An RAF Auster plane, stolen from its base in England Monday night by a 20-year-old ground crew man with only civilian flying experience, killed four persons when it crashed into a house in the nearby mining village of Vieq early today, and left two other persons very badly injured.

Mme. Henriette Gillerand, 55, and her daughter, Mme. Simonne Vickers-Armitrong Varisty plowed into the roof of her stone cottage and caught fire. Two neighboring houses were set alight, and in one, two children, Vladimir Mirzynski, 10; and his nine-year-old sister Stephanie, were burned to death. Their grandfather, J. Moudjack-Mardi, died later in hospital.

First reports from the crash scene said rescuers found no trace of the pilot, presumed to be the dian-born LAC Manik (Nick) Agarwal, of Saskatchewan, he took the 20-seat Varsity navigation trainer from the Thorney Island RAF station and flew it to France after having been pursued over several hours by another Varsity.

According to fellow ground crewmen, Agarwal had been ordered to refuel the plane for an all-night run. Then Agarwal, who suffered from weak eyes and wore thick glasses, climbed aboard, got into the pilot's seat, started up the two 1,950-horsepower engines and taxied out on to the runway.

He took off, narrowly missing a control tower and a line of trees. The players thought the plane was going to crash because it was climbing as it climbed.

Five minutes after the station officers, Fit. Lt. Johnny Miller, was up in another Varsity after Agarwal. He radioed the fugitive to land, but got no response.

Soon the two planes were circling London, sometimes as low a 20 feet, Britain's radar detected them, and fighter-interceptor aircraft were tracked them.

Council Votes to Offer For Sale Veterans' Houses in Two Areas

Belleville city council will make application to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to offer veterans' housing in the Bayview and Churchill Heights districts for sale and for an increase in payments in lieu of taxation.

The increased payments in lieu of taxes would mean an increase in rental charges of $3 in the veterans' houses amounting to not more than $3.50 per month.

Council took the above action at the regular meeting of council Monday evening following the report of a special committee appointed to investigate the matter of increased rentals and the sale of veterans' homes. A large delegation of veterans was present at the council chambers to present their case and to hear the discussion.

The matter first came to council last February 19th when Mayor C. Bath introduced a resolution that application be made to have the houses offered for sale and for increased payments in lieu of taxes. The matter was deferred with a committee of Aldermen Hyde as chairman, Ald. Graham, Ald. Forrester and Ald. Grandame appointed to meet with a committee of veterans to investigate the proposal.

Alderman Hyde reported that his committee had met with the veterans' committee of Ald. Diplock, Ald. Culloden and E. Ford with E. T. Connell of the Belleville office of Central Mortgage and Housing; Arthur Cole, representing a group of veterans favorable to the Mayor's recommendations; Clerk-Comptroller H. D. Bateman present at the meeting; Ald. Keeping absent on account of illness.

INFORMATION NOT RECEIVED

All aspects of the matter had been thoroughly discussed by both from the city's and the veterans' point of view but no unanimous decision had been reached. A further meeting was to be held when information sought by the veterans' from Frank Ford, M.P., was forthcoming, but this information had not yet been received.

The committee recommended that the two recommendations tabled by Mayor Bath in February should be favorably voted on by council in what the majority of the committee was in the best interests of the greatest number of city taxpayers.

Ald. Hyde noted the committee recommendation had been favored by himself and Ald. Graham and Forrester. Ald. Grandame had been opposed.

Les. Digby, as spokesman for the veterans asserted that the existing agreement between Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation should remain in effect so as to guard the interests of tenants in the low income bracket.

He admitted under the present agreement there was some subsidization of veterans' housing but declared this was "small return for these boys who gave the best years of their lives."

None of the veterans would be able to pay increased rentals, but a survey had shown that most of the tenants in the veterans' area were in the low income bracket," he said.

SPEAKER LEVELS CHARGE

He was also critical of the man-

per in which the meeting with the special committee of council had been conducted, stating that veterans' representatives had been surprised to find a fourth member of council present. He charged that the veterans "had been given the run-around."

Alderman Grandame noted that he had been opposed to the proposed new agreement because it called for all tenants to go on full taxes when 50 per cent of them were sold. This would create a hardship on tenants who did not wish to buy their own homes," he said.

"When houses went on full taxes it would take a rental of at least $57 per month to take care of the taxes," he said. He asked that council defer voting on the matter until a definite price had been set for the houses by Central Mortgage.

Considerable discussion was heard on the matter and finally the recommendations were approved. Ald. Safe noted the houses had been built in 1947 or 1948 and payment in lieu of taxes had been set on that basis. Taxes were low in the area when built and was only right that all should bear their fair share of taxation.

"The increase in rental asked was less than the regular taxpayers would be paying and tenants would still be getting preferential treatment," he said.

Ald. Hyde noted veterans not in the rental housing area and asked why such houses should be treated more leniently than another. He noted that in asking that the houses be sold at their increased payments in lieu of taxes the mayor had taken a bold step on behalf of the taxpayers.

NO THOUGHT OF DISCRIMINATION

Alderman Clarke noted over 100 veterans had purchased city lots following the war and had built homes which they were paying full taxes.

Mayor Bath assured there had been no thought of discrimination when he introduced his recommendations regarding sale of the houses and they had not been made merely to secure additional taxation.

He said that many veterans wanted the opportunity of buying their own homes and said that veterans would not be put out of their homes if they did not want to purchase.

Alderman Forrester declared Central Mortgage should set a price on the houses before council took action and the same attitude was taken by Alderman Hyde.

Speaking on behalf of the recommendations, Ald. Forrester noted there would be no pressure brought to bear to have veterans buy their homes. They would be asked only for a nominal increase in rental.

Alderman Hyde noted Central Mortgage would not name a price until the city had signed the new agreement. He could not see any veteran boosting for that but the city should subsidize them. "Of a number of veterans contacted only one had seriously objected to the proposal of increased rentals," he said.

NO PRICE SET CLAIM

Alderman McCabe wanted the matter made clear that no price was set by Ald. Hyde of making the request for political reasons. "I am not backed by that," he returned Ald. McCabe. "I am making the request only because a price has not been set for the houses."

Council lined up 9-5 favoring the two recommendations, asking for the houses to be sold and for increased payments in lieu of taxation. Favoring the recommendations were Ald. Clarke, David, Forrester, Graham, Hyde, Keegan, Safe, Smith and Mayor Bath. Opposing were: Ald. Grandame, Humphreys, McCabe, Moxam and Tice.

Motion to Discharge Engineer Lost by 13-1 Vote in Council

A recommendation from mayor John Bath calling for the resignation of City Engineer Frank Mott, who, he said, had failed in his duty to the city, was turned down by city council Monday evening.

At the same time council voted to hire a commissioner of works for the city with applications for the position to be called by the city comptroller.

The mayor's recommendation was tabled as an amendment to public works committee motion calling for the hiring of a city engineer and was opposed on a solid line of aldermen, who said they would have no part in the discharge of a city official after more than 30 years' service to the corporation.

Alderman Hyde said he would never consider the discharge of Mott a fair deal. He said he had felt the city would be much better off with a younger and better educated engineer, who could assume full charge of the works department.

Alderman Safe, as chairman of the committee, said he had asked for some time the city engineering department had not been functioning through capable staff.

He assured, that the recommendation to hire a city engineer did not in any way reflect upon that Mr. Mott was to be replaced. He said Mr. Mott was worth his salary from the standpoint of an engineer and for his experience with the city. At the same time the city needed an experienced, capable engineer.

MAYOR VOICES OBJECTION

Mayor Bath voiced the objection that a commissioner of works would be an office man, which, he said, was not required.

Referring to what he termed Mr. Mott's failure in his duty to the city Engineer Mott, Mayor Bath said, "Mr. Mott has failed in his duty to the city, was turned over to city council Monday evening.

At the same time council voted to hire a commissioner of works for the city with applications for the position to be called by the city comptroller.

MAYOR VOICES OBJECTION

Mayor Bath voiced the objection that a commissioner of works would be an office man, which, he said, was not required.

"Then why didn't the committee look into the qualifications?" asked Ald. Humphreys.

He will admit that the recommendation may have been poorly worded, that it might have indicated the engineer was to be discharged, but such was not the intention," explained Ald. Safe.

The recommendation calling for the resignation of City Engineer Mott was supported only by Mayor Bath, with all aldermen opposing.

Rotarians Asked To Supply Helpers For X-ray Survey

Belleville Rotary yesterday heard an appeal for volunteer helpers for the mass X-ray survey to be undertaken in Hastings County soon by the Ontario Tuberculosis Association.

Making the appeal was Harold Carruthers who told the club that tuberculosis can be stamped out completely by finding and treating anyone with the disease.

Furthermore "a sick person with TB was a less civilized is spreading the disease," he warned.

Keeping the disease on the run involves a program that he explained: (1) to find the disease; (2) treat the patient; (3) restore him to usefulness; (4) prevent spreading of the germ and (5) help keep the family together.

He concluded by stressing the necessity for volunteer workers.

During the meeting the club's evening radio talent auction was discussed in detail.

Northland Conditions Excellent For Opening of Trout Season

The curtain rises on the Great Trout Fishing Drama on Saturday morning, April 30.

The stage is all set, and crowds of actors are ready to take their cues.

The production is the best in years, and with the weather man in the season opening it should be the best season opening in over a decade.

"Conditions in the northland and other haunts of the elusive trout are excellent," said Ken Sheppard, Fish and Wildlife Inspector of the Lands and Forests Department with headquarters in Belleville.

"The lakes are clear of ice and there is not too much water in evidence. If there is no rain between now and opening day the trout season should go down as one of the best in many years. Personally I have never been better set-up," Mr. Sheppard said.

Mr. Sheppard predicted a record invasion of the trout haunts in this district. His office, he said, has been flooded with enquiries by fishermen who plan to be the most promising opening in years is opening up, he thinks, a number of troop-seekers will establish a record.

A survey of northern resorts, which cater to the needs of the spring trout fishermen revealed that they will be operating to capacity, Mr. Sheppard said. "It looks like a bad time for the fish," he said, "but a good one for fishermen."

So it appears the success or failure of the 1955 trout fishing season depends largely on the weather man and the Mr. Trout himself.

The speckles are as fickle as the traditional feminine flirt. They will flash in a fleeting tease at the flick of a floating lear — or they will tackle anything twice—their size—if they are in the mood.

So there you are — and tight lines.

Comptroller Asks Suspension Of Administrator of Welfare

A recommendation from city clerk-comptroller H. D. Bateman calling for the suspension of Welfare Administrator George A. Whitman on the grounds of his failure to comply with an order from the comptroller's office will be dealt with by a special committee of city council.

A disconnected communications system which has caused confusion between the comptroller's office and that of the welfare office was the basis for the request for Mr. Whitman's suspension.

In a report to council Mr. Bateman charged that his duties as comptroller required that he have supervision over all city offices and that when him in this matter an office communication system had been installed. The welfare officer had objected claiming he wanted no "eavesdropping" and that he was interviewing persons seeking welfare and recommended the wires of the communication system in his office.

Mr. Whitman had been directed to restore the connections and this he had refused to do.

In a memo to the comptroller, Mr. Whitman said he had been eight years as welfare officer and he demanded the rights of privacy. He said that in the memo that he would permit no equipment in his office that would infringe on that privacy.

Mr. Bateman told council that he felt there was a need for communications set to properly supervise the office. "He was required under by-law to give this supervision," he said.

BAD SYSTEM ANTIQUATED

Alderman Art Keegan referred to the communications system as "antique system" and questioned that such a system should be operated in the welfare office, the nature of which called for privacy.

Alderman D. Moxam said that Mr. Whitman had complained of lack of privacy. He suggested that the communications system at city hall was antiquated.

But Ald. R. Graham said the question was not one of whether the system was efficient, but rather it was one of whether council was going to back up the city comptroller in his recommendations and powers as comptroller.

"The comptroller gave an order to a city official and the city official disobeyed," he said.

"We have been heard about city manager form of government," he continued, "but if we fail to back up the comptroller we have no right to go on to city manager government. If we allow city officials to disobey we may as well dispense with the office of comptroller."

The alderman said he was not convinced that there should be privacy at the welfare office as the comptroller has a right to know the business of all offices.

Alderman Humphreys suggested that the inter-com system at city hall be brought up to date with "cut off" buttons, allowing inter-office communication at will but silencing the system at other times.

Alderman Safe suggested there was something more behind this than the mere severing of wires on a communications system. A mountain was being made from a mole hill and the whole thing was a big misunderstanding, he suggested.

COMMITTEE ASKED

A committee to investigate both sides of the matter was suggested by Alderman David, while Alderman Grandame agreed the comptroller should have authority but at the same time he did not think his office should be a "listening post."

As chairman of the welfare committee Alderman McCabe said she did not want to obstruct the comptroller in his duties but pointed out Mr. Whitman was a very valuable man. She too thought a meeting should be made from a mole hill.

Mr. Bateman said he was agreeable to a committee being formed providing Mr. Whitman obeyed the order to restore the office connection.

"I have been accused of envy, dropping the comptroller said. "No such thing goes on." He said he had ordered an order was being not obeyed.

Alderman Tice wrote out an amendment to the comptroller's recommendation, calling for a committee to be formed to investigate the matter. The amendment also directed that Mr. Whitman restore the severed connection.

Alderman McCabe read from the provincial regulations governing welfare officers noting that such officers could not be discharged without consent of the ministers.

She appealed to the city solicitor who said such an order could not be suspended without permission of the minister. "Such permission is unobtainable at this time," he said.

The amendment was carried by council. The committee named was Aldermen McCabe, Grandame and Tice.

A recommendation from Ald. Forrester calling for the purchase of the city hall communications system was referred to the property committee.

Thatcher Moved To Back Row

OTTAWA (CP)—The CCF group shuffled its forces Tuesday in a rearrangement Monday to fill a second-row gap caused by the resignation of Ross Thatcher to become an independent member.

That was the only visible change as the 37-year-old member for Moose Jaw-Lake Centre took his seat as an independent for the first time since his startling announcement Friday that he was leaving the CCF party because of unresolved policy differences.

Mr. Thatcher, who left the chamber immediately after his announcement Friday, entered the Commons Monday a few minutes after it was called to order. His entrance caused almost no stir as he took his new third-row seat in a corner behind three Quebec independent members on the opposition side.

A few minutes later Harold E. Winch (CCF — Vancouver East) went over and chatted with him for a short while.

Members Burn Midnight Oil To Complete Council Agenda

Belleville city council burned the midnight oil well past midnight Monday night despite a ruling by the chairman in charge that procedure rules permitting aldermen to speak only once on a particular matter would be adhered to.

Alderman William Argue, acting as chairman of the committee of the whole, declared that council was spending much unnecessary time in committee due to the tendency of councillors to "round for off".

He observed that for this meeting, council would operate strictly under the procedure by-law permitting aldermen to speak but once. But efforts to speed matters up had little effect as the crush of business kept aldermen hard at work until 20 minutes past midnight.

Tender of the H. J. McFarland construction company for the supply of crushed stone in sizes of 3-4 inch, 3-4 inch and two inch was accepted at $1.75 per ton, as was the Jack Both Ltd., tender for 3-4 inch stone chips at $1.40 per ton.

There was some discussion on the tenders before they were finally approved. Alderman Smith noted council had sent the tenders back to the works committee with direction to call new tenders for specified amounts of material. "It's the first I heard of it," replied Alderman Safe as works chairman. "The committee approved of the recommendation for the obvious reason that they were voting for the lowest price.

ADMITS TENDER SPLIT

He admitted the tenders were being split as council was trying to buy at the cheapest price. He pointed out that the contractor tendering did not have to accept the contract.

On a recorded vote council voted 8-6 favoring the McFarland tender for three grades of crushed rock. Approving were Aldermen Forrester, Graham, Grandame, Hyde, Keegan, Moxam, Safe and Tice. Opposing were Aldermen Clarke, David, Humphreys, McCabe, Smith and Both.

On the recommendation for acceptance of the Jack Both Ltd. tender for supply of stone chips, Alderman Graham and Alderman Clarke, Forrester, Graham, Grandame, Humphreys, Hyde, Keegan, Moxam, Safe and Tice, with Aldermen David, McCabe, Smith and Mayor Both opposing.

Council recommended an amount of $800 be paid to Frank Foran in settlement of his claim for additional payment for levelling of the city industrial area property.

The work had been done under contract with Mr. Foran disputing the figures of the public works department engineers —as to the amount of material moved.

Alderman Wm. Argue as former chairman of the industrial committee under direction of which the work had been done, told council it was possible that the levels had been taken to the disadvantage of Mr. Huson and it was recommended that the additional payment be made. He noted the additional amount was only about 20 per cent of the extra payment claimed. "This was agreed to by Mr. Huson," he said.

PAYMENT APPROVED

The payment was approved almost unanimously by council with only Ald. Hyde opposing.

Council also approved the payment of a sum of $3,000 to the Moira Conservation Authority. This was a bill for past dues, it was noted.

Alderman Safe questioned the amount and also the benefits the city was receiving from the Authority. He was told by Ald. Smith the assessment was on the basis of population of the various participating municipalities, while Mayor Both noted the city could stand to benefit much from the Authority which planned as its control dam north of College St. to eliminate spring floods.

The city electric light staff was to vote on a by-law which would reduce the number of council members from the present 14 to eight with aldermen to be elected for a two-year term and the mayor for one or two years. The covering recommendation called for the necessary by-law to be drawn for presentation to the electors at the next election.

Mayor J. Both introduced the matter some weeks ago but it was deferred for further consideration after two amendments were tabled, one calling for aldermen and mayor to be elected for one-year terms and the other calling for the retiring council to be combined with council manager form of government.

Again last night there was considerable discussion with both amendments being defeated. The mayor's recommendation calling for the election of eight aldermen by a reduced council was wanted, was carried on the following vote: Alderman Clarke, David, Grandame, Humphreys, Hyde, McCabe, Safe and the mayor.

APPROVE MOTION ON GAS

Opposing were Aldermen Forrester, Graham, Keegan, Moxam, Smith and Tice.

Council also approved of a recommendation from Ald. Tice to enter into an agreement with Lakeland Natural Gas for the distribution of gas in the city, said agreement to be satisfactory to the city.

This matter again saw considerable discussion with Ald. Hyde noting if he understood rightly, was carried he would immediately introduce a motion for agreements to be entered into with two competing firms. Inter-County and Merchant-Ajax. The motions were subsequently introduced and were voted down by council.

Some opposition manifested the urgency of any agreements being entered into by the city but Mayor Both noted it would be advantageous for the location of industry if the city could say, "It did not matter which company brought gas as long as it was available." Ald. Keegan said the matter was urged noting the distributing company would have to construct an emergency plant for the supply of gas in the city.

The motion to give Lakeland Gas an agreement passed by a substantial majority with only Aldermen David, Forrester and Hyde opposing. Mayor Both and Ald. Hyde favored the motion to give the two firms similar consideration.

Authorization was given for the formation of a special committee to continue the work of negotiating Victoria Park. Alderman Keegan was named council representative on the committee which is authorized to spend up to $3,500. The city solicitor will be representatives from the Parks Board, the cricket club and the harbor commission.

Under inquiries, Ald. Argue asked regarding the financial status of the Belleville Memorial Arena Commission and whether or not the city was to receive back the $8,000 loaned during the winter for operation of the hockey club.

Alderman Tice said the money would be paid back to the city out of arena profits over the next three or four years, while Ald. Smith said a full report on the hockey club would be presented at the next meeting of council.

Alderman Graham asked that of Ald. Argue's had been asked earlier in the meeting by George DeVoyst, who declared that the taxpayers had not elected council to operate a hockey team. Mr. DeVoyst also suggested that re-

FROST SPEAKS

He said a number of other topics would be discussed such as improving welfare services, including old age pensions; the growing shortage of water in Ontario, particularly in the southwest; and concern over pollution of lakes and rivers.

The huge works that provinces and municipalities were undertaking was an indication of what they could do "providing the burdens placed upon them are not so great as to throw them back into the chaos of the 1930s."

"One of our tasks at this conference will be to adjust loads so that we can deal with our jobs effectively," Mr. Frost said.

MAKES NO PROPOSALS

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Duplessis outlined no proposals today for the federal-provincial conference but said Quebec's field of responsible government remains unchanged.

In an off-the-cuff address following presentation of the Ontario Bill by Premier Frost, Mr. Duplessis said Quebec's proposals would be outlined before the conference when it meets in commission sessions.

Atomic Attack Will Come Early If War Breaks

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian as well as American targets likely would be attacked with nuclear weapons in the first few hours of a war, Defence Minister Claxton told Parliament today.

He told the federal - provincial conference:

"If a major war commences, we cannot but expect at its very beginning—that is, in the first few hours—heavy attacks on North America with large nuclear weapons.

"These attacks would likely take place on Canadian targets as well as on those in the United States.

"The potential damage to Canadians and to the material fabric of our country, in such event, is so enormous that we must approach the whole problem of war and defence in the most deadly serious-ness."

MUST BE PREPARED

Mr. St. Laurent went farther than any Canadian official previously in warning of the dangers of air attack on Canada. Up to now officials have said the primary targets for Russian bombers would be the U. S., with Canadian targets ranking as secondary.

Mr. St. Laurent added:

"We must therefore keep really substantial reduction in defence expenditure during the next four or five years.

"I feel that I should be doing less than my duty if I did not stress to you the vast change that has taken place since our conference of 1950 in the gravity of the risk that threatens Canada should a major war break out.

"Our potential enemy has demonstrated that he is constructing the most powerful types of weapons and the means of delivering them overseas."

HIGH COST CONTINUES

"We in the west have not had confidence in the peaceful intentions of the Communists who now control the destinies of mankind and such enormous military strength.

"We still feel that only by taking adequate, ready and resilient can the Western alliance deter aggression in vital areas and remain safe."

SPURN CHEESE AND ICE CREAM

You do not believe it? Well, neither do we. That, though, is what statistics comparing the average consumption per person for Canada and the United States would suggest.

Canadians eat an average of 19.3 pounds of butter per person, while U.S. citizens eat only 9 pounds, a clear reflection of the hold which margarine has on the U. S. market.

Canadians drink an average of 405.2 pounds of fluid milk and cream a year, while U.S. residents consume only 352 pounds. In addition Canadians lead their U.S. cousins in the use of evaporated milk, 18.3 pounds to 14.6 pounds; dry whole milk, 2 pounds to .1 pounds; and dry skim milk, 4.7 pounds to 4.6 pounds. Only in the use of condensed milk do they fail behind, consuming .8 pounds, a pound less than the average U.S. resident.

When it comes to cheese, though, Canadians lag. They eat an average of only 6.3 pounds a year, compared to 7.7 pounds. Considering the fact that some of the world's best cheese is made in Canada, this figure suggests that Canadians could easily eat their cheese industry out of the doldrums if they would put their mouths to it.

Ice cream? Canadian consumption 15.4 pints per person; U.S. consumption 23.2 pints. So, kids, you eat 7.8 pints short. Now you know why some ice cream cones does that entitle you to this evening?

MINK IN THE BACKYARD

Mink is a word which summons the mind to one of two locations—to the glittering lights of Broadway or to the Canadian wilds.

Of course mink are to be found in other places — draped over the shoulders of wives of certain Toronto residents who bought new cars recently and received mink stoles as gifts, or scampering around the cages of some breeder on the back concessions.

Who, though, would have expected to find mink in the backyards of some 300 Britons?

Thanks to Lady Hough, according to Patricia Brent, as reported in "London Calling," overseas journal of the British Broadcasting Association.

Britain's mink-breeders, she says, are nearly all "poor-lish people with other jobs who keep their bright-eyed, ferrety creatures for a hobby." At first glance, though, it looks like a profitable hobby. One Devonshire man is reported to have grossed 8,000 pounds. Even with the British rate on income taxes, that is a mink-like salary. Expenses, however, are high. This breeder's wife has no mink coat. None of the breeders' wives have fur coats. "Can't afford to give them mink coats, and they won't have another fur; mink spoils them for that," explains the Devonshire breeder.

Canadian husbands who fear that the little woman may issue an ultimatum involving a new fur coat next winter have here a hint of a solution. Buy a couple of mink and summer them in the backyard. You will not make a fortune—but you might spoil your wife's taste for rabbit, even if it is called South Mongolian silver lynx.

SUCCESS STORY

From the Ontario Department of Health comes a news release telling how Anne Elizabeth Witaituk is on the road to making her dream come true.

Anne is an Eskimo girl, originally from Belcher Islands in Hudson Bay. Some years ago her mother contracted tuberculosis and went to Moose Factory for treatment. Anne accompanied her. Soon she was lending a hand with the wards. When another mother was sent to Hamilton sanitorium the superintendent of the Moose Factory hospital, Dr. B. McKone, told Anne about the nursing assistant course offered by the Ontario Department of Health. Anne went to Hamilton, worked in the "San," managed to acquire the necessary equivalent of Grade 8 education and enrolled in the nursing assistant course at the Hamilton General Hospital. Next she was accepted as a student nurse.

There is more to this than an individual success story. Anne, Eskimo girl, English and French, and not as her native language, Anne will be an invaluable addition to the staff of some hospital in the far north. If her example is followed by more girls in her race, the work of providing Canada's Eskimos with adequate health services will be made much simpler.

WHAT HE HAD IN MIND

And there was the young fellow who was shopping for a gift for his girl friend and having trouble.

"Perhaps you would like to see something in a bathing suit—a Bikini?" suggested the helpful clerk.

The young fellow brightened up.

"Just exactly what did you have in mind?," continued the clerk, sending a sale.

"My girl friend," replied the young fellow, blushing.

WHAT LIFE'S ABOUT

There are those in times of doubt
Who ask what this life's about?
Since we're born some day to die,
Can there be a reason why?
"Well," I answer, "it may be Life has need for you and me.

"There are places to be filled,
There's a better world to build,
There are meetings to attend,
There are needs to be relieved,
There is much that's fair to see
That without us wouldn't be.

"There are hospitals to care
For the suffering everywhere.
There are churches, there are schools,
There are summer swimming pools.
There are parks where children play
Some must work for day by day.

"There are struggles to be won,
There are duties to be done.
There are causes good to aid,
There are friendships to be made.
Much this world can't do without Seems to be what life's about."

Talking to Blind-Deaf

(Written by O. D. Gallagher, London Journalist, for the United Kingdom Information Office.)

Andrew R. Cooper, a restless man who defied blindness, was in St. Guy's Hospital, London. In the next ward was Wally Thomas, of Britain's Royal Air Force, who had lost both sight and hearing. He existed in a silent darkness. Doctors were hampered because they could not speak to him.

Regarding the impossible as a challenge, Cooper pushed to find means whereby anyone could communicate with Thomas, a baffling problem. Thomas had only the senses of touch, taste and smell. How to put brain with a message? Obviously through touch.

While in hospital Cooper designed a machine like a typewriter, but pressing a key marked "X" for instance, levers would force up a set of sharp rivets in the form of "X" in Braille. The whole alphabet was available in this way. The blind-deaf would read the message by keeping a finger on a small block of wood which the Braille formations rose.

That was five years ago. Cooper's machine is now in limited commercial production. It is called the "Arcaid"—Cooper's initials A. R. C. and the word "aid". It fits in a woman's handbag. A woman who could be deaf-blind, for instance, uses it for shopping. When she has coffee she talks in her normal voice to her friend the waitress who "talks" back by "typing" on the "Arcaid".

Telephones are even prints Braille messages on a spool of recording tape, somewhat ribbon, which means the blind can now send and receive private telephone messages. They have relied on normal written letters being transcribed into Braille by an expert.

There are no wires, batteries or clockwork. As a letter-key is depressed it forces smooth-rolling ball-bearings along metal of a keyboard and 5 than are killed by the seven most fatal disease in child life, including polio, put together. One last thought on paragraph five regarding the bore of the sentences. We get chlorine (a deadly poison) in drinking water to kill other bacteria destroying agents to keep it pure and fit for drinking and I am sure no one will want to say whether they want it or not. It is for the public's benefit and protection of all people who use the water, whether it be for drinking, washing or bathing wise. Incidentally, I haven't heard of anyone who has come up with allergies from drinking chlorinated water.

Now on to paragraph six. What the taxpayer thinks is up to the taxpayer. If he or she thinks they will get all the pros and cons regarding fluorine before they make up their minds, I do know that in any of the cities where it has been put in the water, fully authenticated reports have been given by the country's outstanding doctors, dentists and research scientists, and we have proof of these and results. I agree that no one wishes to throw money away or spend it foolishly, but what is guarding our children's dental health worth to you in money? I say so.

So, to the last remark of our friend "spittle to the taxpayer". Quote, "Give our children the right to choose". Unquote. I agree, but then he adds, quote, "without needlessly poisoning". Now, first, what does he figure the city fathers are going to add to the water supply? Cyanide? syrup? or "penicillin"? Then our friend goes on to mention one of the greatest mis-statements of all, and that is, quote, "give our children the right to fresh vegetables and dairy products, they say". I agree with that, I'll grant you, that is part of the basis for growing good teeth, but it certainly is a long way from a perfect diet from the standpoint of good teeth.

No need to brush the teeth, no need to see your dentist twice a year, because all the fresh fruits, vegetables and dairy products, which I agree are the basis of teeth you can crack walnuts with and never have a cavity.

I am sorry he has had to take so much of your valuable time but I just had to answer his letter. Incidentally, I am not ashamed to sign my name and address to this letter, as my friend who appears to wish to remain anonymous.

Jack Sproule,
10 Valley Park Crescent,
Belleville, Ontario.

P.S.—I think the cost of adding fluorine to the water supply is approximately "20c per person per year."

Letter to the Editor

Replies to Opponent Of Fluoridation

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

All people at some time or other read articles in newspapers which particularly raise their ire and they vow they will do something about it or else! Usually it's "or else," because we never seem to get around to doing much, are so consciously vow that we are going to do.

A letter to the editor in Saturday's "Intell" really got my dander up. Then I got some-one who signed himself "Interested."

The first two paragraphs of the letter are quite in order so we will start with the paragraph I've added above that before the council does anything regarding the addition of fluorine to our drinking water it should be fully investigated.

Now we go from the sublime to the ridiculous in paragraph four. Fluorine is not a drug. It is a chemical. Certainly no reputable doctor will give a child aspirin if it has no headache, or cough syrup if it has no cough. Apparently the author doesn't know the difference between preventive and curative medicine. Fluorine will not cure cavities in teeth but will strengthen the enamel, thus preventing them from starting. Parents today certainly should be glad diphtheria, typhoid, whooping cough, etc., to name a few diseases, have been by them inoculated before the disease even gets a chance to strike and thus the deadly toll is taken, then goes on to make a remark about clear water. I guess Belleville water, because it's anything but clear, would like a nice big marsh on a hot day. This is no fault of anyone, because you have to take the water as it comes and you can find it. It is pure and it is clear and that is as far as I go.

Now we go to paragraph five. Here we wander away from fluorine and get into penicillin. What is that to do with adding fluorine to the water supply? I'll never know, except that the writer thinks it a great many people have developed an allergy to penicillin. Naturally anything that is not used properly can be harmful, and I suppose that it could make you deathly sick, this writer knows that from personal experience.

Still in paragraph five the writer states penicillin should be sold on a prescription basis, to those who wish it. Fluorine is high-ly dangerous to have around a home in any quantity; an overdose of aspirin can be quite deadly as any other common poison. For the writer's information here is the fatal dose: There are more children who die by poisoning in Canada between the ages of 1 and 5 than are killed by the seven Paragraph six to paragraph six. What the taxpayer thinks is up to the taxpayer. If he or she thinks they will get all the pros and cons regarding fluorine before they make up their minds, I do know that in any of the cities where it has been put in the water supply and controlled it has been highly successful. It has protected scores of children's teeth, has saved many more thousands of dollars in dental bills and has been an all round success. It is highly recommended by the country's outstanding doctors, dentists and research scientists, we have proof of these and results. I agree that no one wishes to throw money away or spend it foolishly, but what is guarding our children's dental health worth to you in money? I say so.

So, to the last remark of our friend "spittle to the taxpayer". Quote, "Give our children the right to choose". Unquote. I agree, but then he adds, quote, "without needlessly poisoning". Now, first, what does he figure the city fathers are going to add to the water supply? Cyanide? syrup? or "penicillin"? THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Now that we are sitting out in our gardens once more and especially next Sunday, one another long friendly look at the stars as we recline at ease in the garden chair, it is a little creepy to think what deep shifting earth we are living on here while fate is justified.

We "swear by the stars up above." Constancy is like to the stars. The sun comes and goes, the moon wanes and waxes. But the stars, the stars are there in their proper constellations, wheeling slowly forever changeless. We look at the Great Bear, or Orion's mighty chase of the Pleiades and take comfort from the thought that the ancient Egyptians saw those same and that Plato gazed, three hundred years before Christ, at these sparkling jewels of eternity, seeing what we see.

But the joke is—maybe the stars aren't even there! The light we see from them left the stars thousands of light years distant from us. What we see is where the stars were when the light left them, long, long ago. Of one thing we may be sure. They certainly are not where they appear to be. That is where they used to be so long ago that it makes us boggle to try to think of it.

Not only were the stars somewhere else than where they appear to be. Maybe they are not there at all. Maybe some of them, maybe thousands of them, have died long years ago, or are blown up. Perhaps in another 5,000 years, our descendants, if any, will see the explosion that occurred ten thousand years ago. Maddening, isn't it, to think that left the star sixteen thousand years ago comes patiently through space, at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, to give us a sense of constancy and serenity, as we sit in our gardens, gazing at the everconstant pattern of the firmament.

Perhaps it is better to be a nihilist, sitting on his shanty steps and looking at the stars and not thinking about them at all: just looking. Or better, a little boy of six, who thinks the stars are holes in the floor of heaven, through which the glory of God sprinkles through.

Anything is better than knowing the stars are a mere illusion.

Prevention of Seasickness

You may not believe it, but it was printed to speak of—and ask for guidance for tomorrow?

Hippocrates observed about 400 B. C. that "sailing on the seas shows that motion disorders the body"—the first recorded description of sea-sickness.

If you have ever been seasick you may believe the legend that Cicero fleeing by sea from the decapitation decreed by Mark Anthony became so seasick that he went back and submitted to beheading rather than suffer further . . . I suppose you may as well make it a good one while you're at it. Now it will be obvious that I have never been seasick.

Verily, maybe it wasn't seasickness, but when you are quite finished describing your motion sickness, whether it is brought on by ship, plane, train, bus or automobile travel, just stand back and let me tell you about my vertigo.

Vertigo, according to the medical dictionary, is a sensation as if the external world were revolving around you.

One fine morning I got up, did my six rolls and half doz. movements of the Body Dynamics as usual and started to dress. Suddenly everything was revolving around me and I opened and closed my eyes, but found myself on the floor, all fours extended to prevent falling off the madly whirling world.

The only vertigo I had ever experienced lasted perhaps half a minute. Presently it was over. I resumed dressing, and I have experienced no disturbance since, although I have done some 25,000 forward rolls—somersaults, as I call them.

For years I have recommended the use of effervescent magnesium citrate solution (pleasant saline laxative) and small doses of atropine sulfate before sailing and in the first day or two of the voyage, as the best preventive against seasickness.

In the course of the last war two new anti-sickness remedy was introduced—dimenhydrinate tablets, 100 mg. It bears the trade mark Dramamine. It gets fairly good results in many cases, but had some unpleasant effects in others. It can be obtained only on prescription.

The latest and, I believe, the best seasickness preventive and relief, available without prescription in tablet or drink, is plane and ship jiljes around the world, is a combination of hyoscine hydrobromide and an antihistamine (prophenpyridamine), in such minute doses that no serious harm would be done even if the entire tube of little tablets were swallowed at one time. It is called "Vergon." To be sure, in mild seasickness there is little or no vertigo, but I gather that in many cases—anyway the name "Vertigo" is a record to remember when you're going on a trip.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MASKS

How very few of us live out our lives naturally and genuinely sincere, taking pride in our privilege to chart our own course, taking advantage of our priceless individual heritage.

I came across this statement by Anne Lindbergh in her recent book, "Gift from the Sea." She said: "The most unsatisfying thing in life, I have discovered, is being insincere. That is why so much of social life is exhausting; one is wearing a mask."

I recently read of a woman who was prominent in social affairs at Miami, Florida. She said that she was anxious to get home so that she could get some rest. Parties like that were tiring, but she went on more, were outstanding. There would be plenty of rest, invisible in the eye, at such parties!

Perhaps it is true that all of us wear a mask at times. We don't want people to guess what is behind it. There is often something else than insincerity behind that mask. It may hide a great deal of unhappiness or grief. But wearer and observer alike suffer hurt to anyone else.

I would only see behind many of these masks worn by our friends or by those in public life. I am sure we would be all kinder and tolerant, as well as understanding, for behind so many are patience, courage and forbearance.

We are most comfortable when we are without masks and play genuine. It's like putting all cards on the table as the saying goes. And inviting ourselves to be appraised for exactly what we are.

A minister wrote to Edwin Booth, the great actor, and asked if he could see him and discuss in his theater so that he could witness a play without the participators knowing anything about it. Booth replied that there was no such place in his theater that he couldn't see. God can see behind all masks, too!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IF USED IT WORKS

There is a story attributed to Mark Twain that a Boston acquaintance once told him that he planned to take a trip to the Holy Land. "I'm going to read the Sinai," he said. "I want to go up on that noble mountain where Moses received the Ten Commandments." And Mark Twain is reported to have answered, "Why take the long trip? Why not stay in Boston and keep the Ten Commandments?"

Religion is intended to be used. It is not to be put on the shelf, kept silent or a curio. Religion is heavenly food on which the soul subsists. There is a striking symbolism in the account of God's feeding of Israelites with manna from heaven. Every day this manna had to be collected. If the Israelites tried to hoard more than was used in the next day it grew rancid and spoiled. Every day's gathering had to be used on that day.

Most people are interested in religion. Others love the fellowship of the church. Still others find religion a comforting inside and beautiful liturgy. All these things are good—but insufficient. Religion is something to be used—not admired or exclaimed over or set up on a shelf. It is for living and for being used.

Here is a rugged character about true religious faith. It is practical. It cries out for men to take it and use it. And when they do, they find it works.

Five Teams Definite In Softball League

Five teams are definite entries in the Belleville and District softball league, it was disclosed by secretary-treasurer Ken Dunsbury at a meeting held in the West Moira Street fireball last evening.

At the previous meeting it was stated that all teams wishing to participate in the league must have paid at least $10.00 of the entry fee by April 13th with the remainder to be in the hands of the executive by May 1st. It was expected that seven teams would form the league at that time but failure of Trenton Town and the RCAF Flyers to abide by these rules cuts the number of teams to five. They are Belleville Orfuns, Belleville Bobcats, Frankford Merchants, Point Anne and Madoc. The other clubs will receive one more opportunity, by telephone, today. Their entry fees must be mailed immediately or it will be understood they are not interested.

Vice - president Joe Agnew acted as chairman in the absence of president Cy. Hazzard last night and, along with Dunsbury, made it clear to the twenty present that the executive would stand for no nonsense from anyone of the teams or they would be ejected, regardless of their importance. It was stated that the executive would operate the league, not one or more of the clubs.

Most of the groundwork was laid after a two hour session, but the one big problem still remains. At present, the Orfuns are the only "A" team in the league and the O.A.S.A. rules clarify that there must be at least two clubs of that classification from a city the size of Belleville before an "AA" team can enter the playdowns. This means that one more "A" team must enter the league before Bob Temple's Bobcats can enter O.A.S.A. play. They went to the finals in the Intermediate "AA" division last year. If Trenton should enter the league, with their population over 15,000, they would be forced to go "A" and that would clear up the situation. Point Anne is also contemplating an "A" team but it will not be known definitely until later in the week. The Canada Cement organization may play "C" ball but if this is the case they will not be allowed to use Belleville players. Madoc are in the "C" division with Frankford "B".

Several changes were made in the local schedule.

It was recorded in the minutes that all trophies for presentation by the league will be available to all teams and players. Because of the fact that only Belleville teams were eligible last year, a Madoc player was deprived of the batting championship in the "AA" section.

Another important rule stated that when a game is rained with the two teams involved shall agree on a future date and notify the executive within 24 hours. The league must approve of this date.

Among other business it was agreed that the league will open during the week of May 15th; all league games will be over by August 31st, including postponed games; all home games of the Bobcats and Orfuns will be played at the C.N.R.A.A. Field.

Garry Alexander was reappointed as league statistician while Lloyd "Red" Doran and Ken Dunsbury will draw up the schedule, probably next week.

British Cabinet Discusses Chou's Formosa Offer

LONDON (Reuters) — The cabinet today discussed Communist China's offer to negotiate with the United States on the Formosa problem.

It agreed with Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan's viewpoint that the offer merited a "significant" step which might break mentally of deadlock.

Macmillan was given full cabinet authority to use British diplomatic channels to explore the offer when Premier Chou En-lai, announced last Saturday at the Asian-African conference in Bandung, Indonesia.

WILL AID JOBLESS

"We would hope," he said, "that the provincial and federal governments can agree upon a workable system for handing assistance to both unemployable and employable persons in need of help, which will do away in future with the need for such a distinction."

Dealing generally with the fiscal agreements with nine provinces that expire March 31, 1957, Mr. St. Laurent said the conference will have to make its plans "in the knowledge that we cannot foresee any really substantial reduction in defence expenditure during the next five years."

While he did not outlined the agreements were the final answer to Canada's fiscal problems, they were the best that could be worked out in the past, though perhaps something better could be attained this time.

"It may be possible to work out a formula more flexible than the present one in covering the varied circumstances of different provinces but of which the over-all result would be fair and would accomplish our main purposes.

NO INCREASE

"We do not consider any general increase in the scale of payments under our agreements as justified, because our present plan provides for automatic increases based on population and production and on prices too (since the value of production is taken into account).

"We recognize, however, that the present distribution of the total among provinces has been based in some measure upon events and conditions that are receding into history. Some improvement may be possible by redistribution based on current conditions.

"We should be prepared to consider any logical formula for this purpose that may be made to suggest, subject to there being no substantial increase in the total for all provinces and subject to there being no permanent and unalterable change."

While stating his government wants the over-all scale kept at the present level, Mr. St. Laurent evidently was taking cognizance of provincial protests when that should be a shifting of the levels as among provinces to give the so-called "have not" areas a larger proportion of the general taxation.

DEFENCE SECTION

Mr. St. Laurent defended the federal government's action this year in extending the scope of production in federal personal income tax to Quebec taxpayers, who have Canada's only provincial income tax.

"This is reasonable," he said, "for in the agreeing provinces we are making payments to the provincial government and thereby benefitting the people that provincial government in order to rent the exclusive right to levy those types of taxes and to collect them.

"It is wholly fitting, therefore, that the people should be subject to such a province than in one where we are not paying for the exercise of those rights by the province."

Mr. St. Laurent also replied indirectly to those who have contended the federal government took on responsibility for care of unemployables when it made a proposal to that effect at the 1945 federal-provincial conference.

"The proposal concerning unemployment assistance," he said, "was an integral part of the program which was not accepted. . . ."

The proposal was withdrawn only "notwithstanding our constitutional responsibility."

SUGGESTED REVIEW

In the federal view, the provision of assistance to jobless not entitled to insurance benefits was the constitutional responsibility of the provincial and municipal governments, and the cost of discharging this responsibility was within their financial capacity in the normal field.

First step in getting it going, he said, should be a review every few years to determine a percentage of each province's population that would be included in the load of unemployables.

From month to month, when the number of people on relief in any province exceeded this level, federal payments would begin.

Mr. St. Laurent suggested the federal percentage might be payment begin at 30 per cent, move to 40 when the level rose by a certain point and to a maximum of 50 at another point.

"In this way," he said, "we should provide a higher proportion of federal assistance when and where the load is heavier."

Mr. St. Laurent appeared to throw cold water in advance on proposals expected to be received from some provinces later for a general plan of federal grants to the provinces for public works to stimulate employment.

City Solicitor Submits Letters On Recent McFarland Suit

The inadvisability of council seeking legal advice during public meetings was stressed to city aldermen Monday evening in a letter from the city solicitor, R. A. Pringle regarding the settlement of the H. J. McFarland suit against the city.

In a second letter Mr. Pringle outlined the terms of the settlement, showing that McFarland's claim for street resurfacing had been $25,478.51 to which was added the amount of the deposit not returned of $1,138, making a total of $26,617.31.

On the payment the sum of $1162.78, being $500 for defective work and $622.78 for stone was deducted, making a total judgment of $25,454.73. Costs to be paid by the city had been set at $2,200.

In his letter covering the trial procedure Mr. Pringle referred to an item from The Ontario Intelligencer which had been introduced as evidence by the plaintiff. The item quoted the city engineer giving an opinion to council in public that if any action was brought the city would lose. The same item quoted the opinion of a member of council nonsuiting which were prejudicial to the city's interest, as well as the city engineer's report.

This again shows how inadvisable it is for council to discuss legal matters in public, the solicitor said in his letter.

"I agree with the solicitor when he says that words were said," said Ald. Safe. The alderman asked who had decided on the settlement terms in the McFarland suit.

HAD POWER TO SETTLE

"I conferred with a number of aldermen and made the agreement as I had power to do," replied the solicitor.

"That is a lot of authority to invest in a solicitor," commented Ald. Safe.

"Every solicitor has that authority," was the reply.

Alderman Bruce Smith noted that Mr. Pringle had received two letters regarding an offer of settlement from McFarland, which if they had been produced to council would have been no court case.

Mayor Bolt said he had taken no responsibility in the settlement and noted that city council had not started the action. "I suggest that the two letters be handed to the press," he said.

"This is serious," stated Ald. Hyde. "Did you have those letters long?" he asked the solicitor.

Mr. Pringle noted that council was misconstruing the contents of the letters referred to. He noted that a copy of one had been forwarded to Alderman Safe, while the other had been received too late.

Ald. Safe admitted receiving a copy of the one letter from the solicitor but had been advised not to divulge its contents to the council.

Ald. Grandame wanted to know to whom and advise the city got into the lawsuit.

"Not on mine," replied Mr. Pringle. "We were sued. Council received a letter from Mr. Pearce threatening suit if the McFarland bill was not paid and the letter was not referred to me."

DISCUSS DISBURSEMENTS

There was some discussion as to the disbursements made by the solicitor. The solicitor was asked concerning his hiring of a junior counsel for the trial. Mr. Pringle replied he had needed a junior counsel and one had accordingly been hired.

"Was McFarland asked to patch the bare spots in the pavement and take back the gravel purchased by the city engineer?" asked Ald. Meaman.

"Yes," was the reply, "but McFarland would not settle for five cents less."

Mr. Pringle said the settlement arrived at was more favorable to the city than had been suggested before the case came to court as the city was not guaranteeing the amount of gravel being returned to McFarland.

Following is the text of the letter addressed to council from City Solicitor Pringle reporting on the McFarland suit:

CONTENTS OF LETTER

Gentlemen:

I have been asked to write a report regarding the settlement of this lawsuit for the information of council.

I need not review the evidence, as the evidence of all witnesses was very fully reported in the local press and I assume has been read by all members of council.

During the course of the trial, Professor Lee and Dr. Martin, our experts from Queen's University, were in continuous attendance and heard all the evidence submitted on behalf of McFarland Company, and advised me from time to time on the technical details of the evidence submitted by the plaintiff. At the conclusion of the plaintiff's case, I again conferred with them and we were unanimously of the opinion it would be advisable to settle.

Alderman Smith, whose good faith has been previously questioned in the matter by the motion of a city document, thought he should be given an opportunity to reply, and as His Lordship Mr. Justice Moorhouse remarked, there was absolutely no evidence that Alderman Smith throughout acted in any way other than in perfect good faith.

At the conclusion of Alderman Smith's evidence, and particularly bearing in mind costs of roughly $700 to $1,000 a day, which were running against the city, I exercised my discretion and made the most favorable settlement possible.

At the trial, as an exhibit was put in the Ontario Intelligencer, dated Wednesday, September 15th, 1954, which gave an opinion to council in public that if any action was brought, the city would lose. Again demonstrates how inadvisable it is for council to discuss legal matters in public.

In the same article was the opinion of a number of members of council, which was prejudicial to the city's interest as well as the city engineer's report, which again shows how inadvisable it is for the council to discuss legal matters in public.

Also filed as an exhibit was a letter from Mr. Pearce threatening suit in two weeks if this account was not paid. This letter was never referred to the writer which demonstrates how advisable it is that when you receive a letter from a solicitor threatening suit, it be referred to the city solicitor.

If any member of council has any questions to ask regarding this lawsuit, I will be very pleased to answer them.

Yours very truly

Robert A. Pringle

City Solicitor.

About 20 persons were at work in the building, a cement affair about 150 feet long.

HOUSE CONSIDERS

A government proposal to provide pensions for common - law wives of deceased regular army officers was objected to by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich).

The wartime army commander on the west coast termed the proposal "unsound and unwise." It would lead into questions the character of army officers and lower their standards as officers and gentlemen.

Defence Minister Campney replied that the measure is intended chiefly to cover situations where a couple believe themselves legally married only to learn later that a band - officer's death that the woman is without pension protection.

PROVISION WAIVED

Under the bill, a woman is eligible for pension if she can prove an officer maintained her and provided for her in his wife for several years before his death. The seven-year provision is waived if neither the officer nor the woman was married to another person.

John R. Hamilton (PC—York West), former armored corps major, objected to the present law under which a township decision of a court martial can sentence a man to death. Mr. Campney replied that the sentence is always reviewed by the cabinet."

Dealing with other legislation, the Commons gave second reading approval in principle—to a bill cutting off certain discharge benefits to those enlisting in the regular forces after July 1.

'Nothing to Wear' Flea From Wife Brought Action

Police witnesses said Elkin flung himself out of his house in a temper and shortly returned with a bundle containing 36 pairs of panties, 14 pairs of nylons, 12 brassieres, five slips, four camisoles, four nightgowns and three garter belts.

Police said Elkin, 24, got the lingerie by smashing a show window and removing the entire display. The magistrate ordered him held on a theft charge.

Weddings

LLOYD—BROWNING

Christ Church, Stirling, was the setting on Saturday, April 16, at 4.00 p.m., for a pretty wedding when Gladys Ellen E. Browning, rector of the church, united in marriage, Marietta Margaret Lloyd, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Browning, to Carman Ernest Lloyd, of Hudson, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Lloyd.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. A. Browning, the bride wore a lovely ballerina length gown of white Chantilly lace over white satin, with matching jacket having full-length sleeves pointed over the wrists. The lace bodice was encrusted with seed pearls and fingertip veil of tulle illusion. Her bouquet was a nosegay of Bettertime roses and white pom poms edged with white gladioli florets with long white satin streamers.

She was attended by Mrs. E. Browning sister-in-law of the bride, wearing maroon satin with waltz length over taffeta, with matching accessories and head dress. She also carried a nosegay of yellow roses, white pom poms and maroon sweetpeas.

Miss Cickie Browning, niece of the bride, was flower girl, dressed in her yellow organza frock with matching accessories. She carried a tiny bouquet of mauve sweet peas.

Mr. Sept Browning, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Keith Lloyd and Mr. A. Lloyd, both brothers of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Road, where the bride's attendant wore a floral crepe trimmed with lace, and corsage of white roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in blue sheer lace reingote style with corsage of pink roses.

For travelling to Watertown, N.Y., the bride chose a navy blue suit with white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd will reside at 66 Cedar street upon their return. Guests were present from Kingston, Selby, Trenton, Frankford and Wooler.

9TH BELLEVILLE BROWNIE Pack—BROWN OWL KUNTZE

Early this season two more Brownies, Judy Hamilton and Joan Wilson were enrolled in this pack. The Golden Bar Second Class—Gloria Ann Lipes; Woodpecker—Lorraine Dyer; Athletes—Donna Blue and Lois Hickson; Singer—Donna Blue.

Two more Guides have been enrolled—Sylvia Schwab and Dawn Partridge.

8TH BELLEVILLE BROWNIE PACK—BROWN OWL MAUND

10TH BELLEVILLE BROWNIE PACK

This Pack meeting in the church school at Rednersville, held its first meeting on Wednesday, March 23, when Mrs. R. D. Arnott, district commissioner, visited four Brownies, Daryl Ward, Ann Weese, Alice Wannamaker and Hallace McMurray.

World University Treasure Van Unloads at Albert College

On Thursday, under the auspices of the Albert College Women's Guild, the World University Treasure Van' visited Belleville and unloaded its treasures at Albert College Manor, where they were displayed on long tables which had been set up in the living rooms of the Manor.

From India, there were necklaces, brooches and earrings of delicate silver filigree work; necklaces and earrings of jade, and other semi-precious stones; articles of carved ivory, trays and small chests of carved Indian wood; tablecloths and rugs, glowing with color and purses embroidered in silver.

GRECIAN VASES

From Greece, there were vases, dishes and candlesticks, also bracelets, earrings and brooches, fine embroidered linen tablecloths, place mats and other articles. Some of the silver jewellery was covered with turquoise and Greek designs showing the double headed eagle and the head of Alexander the Great.

There were handicrafts from Mauritoulin Islands, birch bark canoes and other things of interest.

The contents of the van were grouped together and arranged under the efficient direction of Miss Wade, who was in charge of the van.

ARTICLES ON DISPLAY

The display was open to the public from two o'clock in the afternoon until ten in the evening. The Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, principal of Albert College, gave a short address opening the display and sale and welcoming those who came to the Manor.

Mrs. McMullen, convener and the social committee of the Women's Guild served tea, both in the afternoon and evening. Mrs. Frank Hinchley, Mrs. Arthur May and Mrs. C. Morgan poured tea; Mrs. Harry Vanderby, Mrs. T. Franklin, Mrs. H. B. Fetterly, Mrs. F. Moon, Mrs. Ross Bateman, Mrs. Herb. Fox, Mrs. Wilbur Sherry, Miss F. Down and Mrs. L. Hudgins served the refreshments.

Mrs. A. MacKenzie and Mrs. J. Gillis welcomed the guests at the door. Mrs. R. Hibbard acted as treasurer at the door for the afternoon, while Mrs. Lang and Humphreys acted as sales treasurer, and Mr. E. C. Irvine took charge of the sale.

Mrs. W. H. Finkle, president of the Guild, together with some other members, and some of the students living in the Manor, helped with the various articles.

The members of the Guild were much grateful to the large number of people who came to the Manor on Thursday to admire the display, and to purchase many of the beautiful objects. It was a delightful and rewarding occasion.

Mrs. Cecil Sinfield took charge and called on Mrs. M. B. Wesse, who gave an interesting interview on "Broken Silences".

Later the Friendship Circle was formed and refreshments were served.

Studied World Through Many Tourist Brochures

TORONTO (CP) — From an eighth-floor downtown office here, pretty Muriel Fleger, a travel-travelled westerner advises on where to stay in the big business centres and holiday resorts of North America.

Miss Fleger graduated to her job as first Canadian manager for a big United States firm of hotel consultants after 10 years of selling air travel, travelling the world, world herself and arranging transport for thousands of people from Europe.

The dark-haired, slightly-built executive who was born at Neepawa, Man., followed her zoology matriculation with a business course in Winnipeg. Her first job was with a small company in the aviation business. She figured a small travel agency give her greater variety of work.

Soon she was coupling office work with some hard selling of her own. She studied the world through tourist brochures to find out possible travellers in faraway places.

Three years later she joined Trans-Canada Air Lines, became head of its international travel department and began a series of trips to Europe and the Caribbean for herself. For two years she was attached to the Canadian government to help organize the immigrant airlift from London, England.

Hrs was the type of experience U.S. travel representative Harry F. Warner was seeking in the manager for his first branch in Canada.

Fashion Flashes

ADROIT AND NEAT is a new raincoat fashioned of cotton twill. It is available in colored lines but with a suggestion of the English trench coat, with more obvious by a detachable, novelty belt which wraps twice around the waist.

ISN'T IT NICE to see those soft, tissue-thing silk-crepes back again — those cool, beautiful, printed silks that go up so nicely into Summer dresses? Back again after many a season in thin silks in soft, small, all-over floral patterns with plenty of light blues and pinks in the designs.

IODE Hears Missionary Say World Needs Sharing

By PAULINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HAMILTON (CP) — A United Church minister who spent six years as a missionary in China says no person or nation can live any longer as a self-sufficient island.

Rev. George W. Birtch said "we are learning that if we are going to keep anything we are going to have to share it." He spoke to about 1,000 delegates at the annual meeting of the provincial chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

Mr. Birtch is pastor of Melrose United church in Hamilton and chairman of the radio and television committee of the United Church of Canada. He served in China from 1939 until his mission was driven out in 1945.

"The 1,000 years the world has been operating on the theory of 'Eat, drink and be merry' is because being gained by hurting simply because you are hurt."

LACK OF INTEREST

During a conference session Thursday IODE education secretary Mrs. H. C. Bennett of Hamilton criticized Canadians for a lack of interest in education.

"Canadians spent more on hosiery than they did on universities last year," she said. "We spent twice as much on carbonated beverages and three times as much on tobacco."

She also said Canadian universities are not receiving government financial assistance worthy of comparison with that received by universities in either Britain or the United States.

The IODE in Ontario spent $98,132.86 on education assistance and scholarships last year, but we must find more students who need our help."

During discussion on education, Miss Ida M. Algaire of Cornwall suggested British history be again taught in public schools.

"British history should be taught especially in bilingual centres like Cornwall," she said. "Our St. Lawrence chapter has offered British history prizes for many years to students in grade 8 and for the past several years none has been awarded because history is not taught in public schools."

Jessana Knapman of Hamilton was re-elected to her third term as president of the provincial IODE chapter. Others elected included the treasurer, Mrs. D. A. Bruce of Hamilton, and secretary, Mrs. W. R. Morrison of Hamilton.

Others elected included: Mrs. T. E. Briot, Welland; Mrs. E. H. Lancaster, St. Catharines, vice presidents; Mrs. J. Murray Campbell, Chatham, organizing secretary; Mrs. W. N. Smith, Sudbury, assistant organizing secretary.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

CONSEQUENCES ALWAYS CATCH UP WITH YOU

To say that far fewer mistakes would be made—whether little ones that don't make too much difference, or the very big ones that make all the difference in the world—if people would stop to think about consequences before they take a questionable step, is merely to repeat a thing you've often been told, however, a cliche that will bear repeating until the end of the world, since no matter how often it has been heard, it seems to make so little impression on those who hear it.

Over and over again, a person may see the consequences of a foolish act catch up with somebody else, but he never really believes that consequences will ever catch up with him. So he—and of course also she—blithely goes along acting first, and stopping to think only when caught by the inevitable consequences. Then, when the awful moment comes, the usual reaction is, not to figure out the honest, wisest and most direct way of handling the matter, but how to get out from under as easily as possible and without losing face.

A neat illustration of both these things—failure to consider probable consequences beforehand and then trying to dodge them—appears in a letter from a young wife whose story is, sadly, not an unusual one.

This is that story:

"For the past year, and, of course, since my husband, I have been going out with a man I met through a friend. After we met, he called me up one evening when my husband was out of town, and asked me to go out with him, and I have been doing that about once a week ever since.

"I like this man very much, he has told me he loves me and wants to marry me, and all he talks about is marriage. You see, he does not know I am already married, and after going out with him all this time without telling him, I certainly can't start him now by doing so. Anything but that!

"I am so confused that I don't know what to do, especially because my husband and I get along very well, and the only reason I've ever began to go out with this fellow was when my husband had to go off on a business trip and I was lonely."

See what I mean?

Here is a young woman who started out on a program of deceiving her husband without ever looking ahead to the consequences. Now the consequences have arrived, and she refuses to accept them. "Anything but that!" she says; in other words, anything but owning up to the inevitable results of the wrong she has done.

Obviously, the one clear way out of this disgraceful situation is to do, at long last, what she should have done in the very beginning, or what she is dead against doing now. That is, of course, to tell him that that she has been married all along.

Doubt very much if the real reason for her reluctance to do so is usually, as she says it is, because she doesn't want to hurt him, is far more likely that she doesn't want the man to find out what cheat she is. What she really is, is to get out of the mess she is in created in such a way that she will remain a glamorous memory to a man she has been deceivingly as much as she has deceived her husband. So now she is trying to deceive the third person involved—herself—by imagining there must be some way out other tha to tell the truth, and because she won't think of a way herself, she wants me to think one up for her.

Well, I am not even going to try to dish up a nice comfortable lie for her to tell. All I can say is that if she doesn't make up her mind to tell the truth at long last, matters will only get steadily worse. For if she doesn't come right out and admit to him that she has been playing the game of double-cross with both her husband and himself, he is certainly going to bar it from somebody else sooner or later. Whether she likes it or no, that's the way life is, and the way these games of double-crossing always end up.

The only advice I can give her is to face the consequences of what she has done, tell the man the facts herself and send him off for good, pdq, or, no doubt, but also no doubt far wiser in the ways of foolish women than I am, to warn her that if she doesn't take this advice, the day will come when she will be even sorrier than she is now.

DAYTIME DELIGHT

By VERA WINSTON

Wool, sheer and tissue-thin, is an important fabric favorite this spring. It is handled smartly for a handsome daytime dress in black, with black satin edging the large white fallie collar. To lend interest to the collar, it stands up and away from the neckline. There are shiny black buttons at the Empire waist from which a black satin belt is followed around the back with a buckle. Skirt is gently flared. A wonderful dress for a big luncheon or important committee meeting.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

BRIDE'S MOTHER IS "SCARED"

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My daughter is to be married soon: church wedding, with reception in her home. I have booked from the church. I'm really confused about several questions, for at the weddings I've been to recently the procedure seems to be handled so differently.

(1) After the church ceremony do we form a receiving line in the church vestibule, or is all this receiving kept until we arrive at the hall?

(2) What is the proper order for the receiving-line? (Both sets of parents are living.) I am very shy. Do I have to stand in the receiving-line?

(3) I am wearing long gloves. When may I remove them? Am I supposed to carry a purse to match my accessories? (I hate to.)

(4) Who takes care of the gifts at the hall? The bride's parents or someone else?

Don't be "scared"— if you have any questions about the church procedure, consult with the minister and he will gladly review them with his directions and his experience with weddings in his church. And keep asking questions about the reception procedure, so you'll be reassured about this.

(1) Since, as I judge, you are having only a small reception at the reception also, please don't have any receiving-line at the church.

(2) You, the hostess, stand first in the receiving-line, to greet and welcome the guests. Next the bridegroom's father, then the bridegroom's mother. Next the bride's father. Then the bride and bridegroom . . . the bride at the bridegroom's right. Next, the maid of honor, and then the bridesmaids. (It is optional whether the fathers stand in the line —they may if they wish, or they may prefer to mingle with the guests.)

(3) You wear your gloves during the church ceremony of course and while you are in the receiving-line. Then you may remove them. If you carry a small afternoon purse with handle, you may find this very convenient, more convenient than carrying an envelope purse. The purse may match your other accessories in color or harmonize with them.

(4) If wedding presents are brought to the reception (they really should be sent to the bride's house before the wedding date), someone (not the bride's parents, for they will be busy with other responsibilities) should be assigned to take charge of them.

Chatterton W.I. Appoints New Officers

The Chatterton Women's Institute held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. Gerald Irvine with an attendance of 11 members, one visitor and a number of children.

Mrs. Irvine opened with the president in the chair.

After the disposal of a small account of business and a few thank-you cards read, the meeting was given over to the convener, Mrs. E. D. Finkle.

This part of the meeting was opened with a sing-song, followed by a number of readings "Our Collect", "Our Code" and "Grace" by Mrs. Berson Mitts, and "What's Wrong," by Mrs. Lorne Reid; "Hope of the Crop", Mrs. Gerald Irvine, and "How Pa Killed the Tractor", (humorous) by Mrs. Harry Reid.

A short paper on "Research on Wild Flowers"; "A Romp in the Woods," "The Trillium", first mentioned the emblem flower of Ontario. Stress was made on the protection of this emblem.

The red trillium was also named as one of the rare flowers on account of its being few in number.

The "Blood Root" when broken will bleed and the Indians used the juice to decorate their faces. It was their war paint.

The "Jack in the Pulpit" who preaches today. It is also known as "Indian turnip", "The May Apples", popping out of the ground, looking like a tightly closed umbrella, as it grows, it opens up, and stands straight when fully opened.

Mrs. Gerald Irvine had "Current Events". She passed out slips of paper with a prominent person's name on it, who had figured in the news and each told what they knew about that person. This was real interesting.

The re-organization came next by Mrs. Ben Bleecker and the following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Lorne Reid; vice-president, Mrs. Berson Mitts; secretary, Mrs. Gerald Irvine; treasurer, Mrs. Albert Carson; district director, Mrs. Gerald Irvine; branch director, Mrs. Harry Reid, Mrs. Mitts and Mrs. Floyd Mc-Ginnis; pianists, Mrs. Doug. Prest and Mrs. Mitts; card committee, Mrs. Nathan Reid; social convener, Mrs. Dixon; auditors, Mrs. Ross-well Reid and Mrs. Dixon; press reporters, Mrs. E. D. Finkle and Mrs. Gardiner.

Standing committee conveners: Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. Leonard Prest; Citizenship and Education, Mrs. Harry Reid; Community Activities and Public Relations, Mrs. B. Mitts; Historical Research and Current Events, Mrs. E. D. Finkle; Home Economics, Mrs. G. Irvine; Resolutions, Mrs. E. Demille.

FACIAL CLEANLINESS

Surveys show that tons of atmospheric dirt fall in every great city in a short period of time. An enterprising gentleman who makes these surveys figures that every citizen picks up a pound of soot a year on face, hands and clothing. An appalling thought!

He also states that it contains three per cent of grease. It stands to reason, then, that face washing should be a definite ritual—not just a little flick of a soaped cloth—if we are to keep the pores of the skin thoroughly clean.

The healthy, normal skin exudes through the sebaceous glands a constant almost invisible amount of moisture that contains a certain amount of oil, the purpose of which is to keep the outermost surface from drying out. This semifluid attracts and holds on the skin the dust and dirt of the air; no one can easily realize that the first important step in the intelligent care of the complexion is cleanliness.

If make-up is used, it should be removed with a cleansing cream, or emulsion. The soapy scrubbing follows. Soap should be bland. The water warm but not hot, since hot water is too relaxing to the skin, especially if tissues have softened.

Rarely is there a skin so sensitive as to be irritated by soap. But if that is the case, a cosmetic meal can be used. These meals consist mainly of powdered oatmeal. The starchy content not only cleans, but is a great softener.

If the complexion is excessively oily it should be literally "shampooed," the lather frictioned in with the finger tips. There should follow a warm rinsing, then a cool one, after an astringent should be slapped on with pledgets of cotton.

Bonus Readers' Column

NOTE 1:

I have a letter for Mrs. E. H. who was seeking information on how to market homemade baked goods. At the time of printing her letter I said there was a reader in her community doing the same thing. That reader, M.A.M. has responded to my request for help, with practical down-to-earth suggestions in marketing baked goods. Will Mrs. E. H. please send me her address, then I can forward M.A.M.'s letter to her.

NOTE 2:

The same alert Women's Editor who helped us when we were puzzled about fruit cakes molding, has come to the rescue again. In April 22nd column a reader's letter appeared asking for spiced wine. Mulled wine may be, what she wants, so here it is:

MULLED WINE

Serves 8. Bring to boiling point 1-2 cup water, 4 ounces white granulated sugar, the rind cut in strips of 2 small lemons, one 4-inch stick cinnamon, 4 or 5 whole cloves. Strain and combine with 2 bottles Claret which have also been brought to boiling point. Serve hot.

Last week I promised to give you the letter which follows:

LETTER:

(From Marjorie A.)

I am sending my recipe (for Spiced Beef) for comparison and can recommend it highly. The first time I served it was at a "moving-away" party of about 30 people. I served it hot with hot potato salad (recipe enclosed) and cole slaw. There were a few scraps left when the guests departed and my husband finished them. The next day I gave the recipe to six of the guests, so there was no doubt about the success of the food.

We have had it since and prefer it hot although it is good cold too. I also prefer the brisket point to other meat cuts. When I use it for the entire recipe it takes two pints, in which case I turn them twice a day so each piece is turned once. I am a herb and wine cookery addict and have some good recipes using them. If you would be interested in any I would be glad to send them. I also have sour cream layer cake, which is rather different.—Marjorie A.

SPICED BEEF

Sufficient for 10 to 12 lbs. of meat.

Mix 1-3 cup non-iodized salt and 1 teaspoon salt petre and rub well into all sides of meat. Mix 1-3 oz. each ground ginger, allspice, cloves, pepper, with 1 1-3 cups brown sugar. Rub this mixture into the meat. Store in covered hydrator in frig. for two weeks, turning the meat over every day. Roast at 350 deg. until "done" to the degree you like your beef. Recommended roasting on rack with full underneath as the sugar will burn the pan.

NOTE:

Having no scales I measured the contents of a spice bottle and arrived at 4 level tablespoons for 1 oz.—making the recipe read 2 tablespoons of each of the ground spices.

HOT POTATO SALAD

Eight to ten cooked diced potatoes, 6 hard-cooked eggs diced, 2 large chopped onions. Season these with 1 tablespoon salt and 1 teaspoon marjoram. Moisten with French dressing (do not make too wet). Add 1-3 pint commercial sour cream. Store in frig. overnight or until ready to cook. Add pepper to taste and 1 cup diced pickled beets. Cook at 350 deg. 1 hour or until bubbly. Serve hot.

ANSWERS:

Thank you Marjorie. I am plainly see that these recipes come from an experienced cook. They along with cole slaw are scheduled to be the menu for the next sizable Moore party. Please do send the recipes using herbs and wine. I am very fond of the delicious-sounding sour cream cake.

Court of Appeal Orders New Trial

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday set aside a 12-year sentence imposed on John MacDonald of Brantford when he was convicted of rape.

MacDonald was sentenced last Jan. 12 to 12 years in Kingston penitentiary by Mr. Justice C. D. Stewart.

The Court of Appeal quashed the conviction and ordered a new trial on the ground that MacDonald was convicted on the uncorroborated evidence of the complainant.

The girl testified that she was raped in a car similar to MacDonald's. Police said they found clothes in MacDonald's room similar to the clothes the girl said her attacker had worn.

Chief Justice J. W. Pickup said: "Such evidence is not capable of corroboration and the appeal will be allowed, the conviction set aside and a new trial ordered."

Civil Defence Plan Needed Says Nickle

GANANOQUE (CP)—Provincial Secretary Nickle of Ontario said Monday that the time has come for Canadians to "take off the blinkers" in regard to civil defence and to think "with grave and understanding vision" about bringing their fellow men.

"We can't take the position of an ostrich and put our heads in the sand and say, 'It can't happen to us.' Should a third world war occur it will be a bombing war . . . and bombers today can fly anywhere. We have to face up to the problem."

Speaking to the Rotary Club here before leaving for the Dominion-provincial conference, Mr. Nickle said that the federal and Ontario governments were in accord on the civil defence program.

Public Address System May Be Put in House

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature may get a public-address system by the time the next session convenes.

Tests now are being made to determine what equipment will enable members to be heard without shouting.

If the equipment now being tested is adopted it will provide one microphone for each two members. Only one member would be able to use the microphone at a time.

A green light would indicate the microphone is live, thus ensuring that conversations between members remain private.

The House of Commons considered a similar plan a few years ago and rejected it in favor of a system of 23 microphones suspended from the ceiling and controlled by a technician in the gallery. There are small loudspeakers between each two members with a similar arrangement of amplifiers in the galleries.

TORONTO (CP) — Police today are seeking two men who forced their way into the home of Charles McAleer, threatening him with a knife, pulled his daughter's hair and then fled.

McAleer told police the men entered his home and told his wife: "This is it."

While one man stood by the door, the other grabbed Mr. McAleer and prodded a knife against his ribs. He then walked into the living room where McAleer's two daughters, Barbara and Teresa, were sleeping. He pulled Barbara to her feet by her hair and told the family: "I'm not kidding."

Mr. McAleer ran out of the house and called for help. The two men fled. Police did not reveal the motive behind the incident.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Get Time Extension

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta petroleum and natural gas conservation board has granted Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. extension of its permits to finance construction and export natural gas from Alberta.

This was announced Monday by Trans-Canada which had asked extension in view of its inability to complete financing of the $320,000,000 line to eastern Canada by April 30.

Under the extensions, arrangements for financing construction of the project must be completed by Oct. 31, 1955; construction of the 2,328-mile pipeline is to begin no later than June 30, 1956; and removal of natural gas from the province shall be on or before Dec. 31, 1956.

Officers said they found two empty sleeping-tablet bottles on the floor beside her. The actress was rushed to hospital.

Hospital authorities said her condition was "fair" after emergency treaty with a stomach pump.

Man Threatened Before Slaying Says Witness

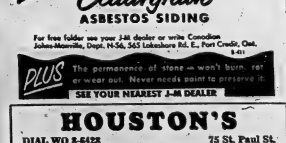
TORONTO (CP)—John Szentandrassy, 43, on trial for the murder of Joseph Major, was threatened by the victim a few hours before the knife slayings, a witness said Monday.

"I'll get you, one way or another," restaurant waitress Mrs. Anita Karlovits quoted the 23-year-old Major as saying.

An argument had started about the price of a 10-cent cup of coffee which Szentandrassy claimed Major refused to pay, she said.

Mrs. Karlovits said Szentandrassy told Major:

"Never mind the 10 cents. I bet ask you to come no more to this restaurant."



Some hours later she saw Szentandrassy talking in a group outside the restaurant.

Then he knocked on the door, Mrs. Karlovits said. When she opened it she saw Major fall in the sidewalk and Szentandrassy asked her to call police.

The trial is continuing.

The Royal Bank of Canada can help you

Build a Home of your own

Naturally you need some money of your own to get started. But it is surprising, as the example shows, what a large part of the cost can be spread over the years. And the monthly cost of paying off the mortgage is often less—perhaps substantially less—than you are now paying in rent.

Of course your house may be more or less costly than the example. Maximum loan on a single dwelling is $12,800. NHA loans may also be obtained from the Royal Bank to build semi-detached, duplex and other types of dwellings.

To the amount of monthly mortgage payments you must add a monthly amount to cover local taxes. If these combined monthly payments are no greater than 23% of your gross monthly income, then it will pay you to see your local Royal Bank manager. He has all particulars and an informative booklet telling you exactly how to work out your financing and then what further steps to take.

Loans to help home owners, too

A HOME IMPROVEMENT LOAN, repayable in instalments, may be just what you need to get started, now, on repairs, extensions, other improvements. Information and a helpful booklet on this type of loan is also available at your local Royal Bank branch.

*The amount you may borrow depends largely on the "lending value" of home and lot, which is set by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. This valuation may be higher, equal to or lower than the actual cost of your lot plus the price your contractor quotes for your home. For a single home you may borrow up to 90% of the first $8,000 of the lending value, and up to 70% of the balance.

Biologists Conducting Harp Seal Census from Air

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dominion government biologists, fearful that Canada's economically important harp seal herds may become depleted, are conducting a seal census from the air.

Early conclusions are that the herd in the northwest Atlantic numbers about 3,000,000 but that the annual killing rate is near the danger point.

The harp seal, unlike the fur seal of the Pacific coast, is valued more for its oil and leather. During the last four years, an average annual value of sealing products to the Canadian industry has been close to $1,500,000. To Norwegians, who also catch seals off Canada's east coast, the industry is worth $2,500,000 annually.

BABY PELTS VALUABLE

Sealers, who work on the ice pans off the Newfoundland coast each spring, prize the baby harp seal pelt, white coat which it loses 9 days after birth. Average annual value of baby seal furs is $360,00.

With an eye to protecting this industry, the federal government has hal two marine biologists at work estimating whether the seal population is increasing or diminishing.

The scientists, Dr. Dean Fisher of E. Andrews, N.B., and Dr. Daryl Sergeant of St. John's, Nfld., have been taking flights over the icepans and counting hundreds of photographs to make their count.

The photographs, taken over a period of three weeks last month now the seals as they come on ice for the whelping and mating season. The plane flies at a constant altitude taking large-scale photographs. The density of adult seals and pups for each square mile is determined and from this the total population may be estimated.

Dr. Fisher, who went on all the survey flights, says the data gives evidence that the harp seal population is capable of maintaining itself at a rate of killing comparable to that in the 30 years before the war—about 150,000 a year.

MUST PROTECT HERD

But, he says, in recent years the kill has been well above this level.

Among his recommendations for protecting the seal herd are:—

1. Continued efforts to establish a high standard of marksmanship with high-powered rifles to minimize loss of wounded seals.

2. A closing date of April 30 for sealing which would allow good hunting during the latter part of March when older seals appear. At the same time it would provide some protection for breeding females which do not appear until later. At present sealing begins in Newfoundland about March 10 and runs into April and May.

"There remains a possibility of a sustained kill of young seals in the same numbers as at present only if the industry recognizes that it must protect the stock that produces these young seals," Dr. Fisher says.

"If complete protection were given to maturing and breeding seals, the production of young seals would build up. But once the breeding stock is seriously down, it will take many years to recover."

No Surprise Geraldine Brooks Should Become an Actress

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) —It may not have been inevitable that Geraldine Brooks should become an actress, but the signs were suspicious from the start.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stronck, she was named Geraldine for famed soprano Geraldine Farrar.

Her father was and still is head of a company that has costumed countless stage and TV plays, and her mother is a top theatrical designer.

When she was very young Geraldine liked to dress up in adult clothes as do all little girls.

"But I didn't have to wear mama's clothes," she recalls. "My playmates and I used to spend hours dressing up in costumes that had been worn by famous actresses."

TOOK FIRM NAME

The actress, who has become a familiar figure on television screens, used her father's firm name for her own professional name.

"I started out as Geraldine Stronck but when I signed up for films with Warner Brothers they wanted me to choose a name easier to remember," she explains. "I wanted to make it Gloria Dalgerfield but they wouldn't have it. I suggested Brooks and they liked it."

Geraldine's most recent TV appearance was with Macdonald Carey in CBS' Appointment with Adventure Sunday night. She's just back from Europe where she acted in a pilot film for a proposed TV series is entitled "My American Wife." If it clicks with a sponsor, she'll probably return to make additional films in Paris.

Miss Brooks also has appeared on Studio One, The Web, Danger, Playhouse of Stars and many others, including the recent Climax production of Champion. Her first professional role was in the play Follow the Girls which included Jackie Gleason and Wendell Corey in minor parts. She has made a number of movies.

Daytime TV may be making gains but radio still is king during most of the sunlight hours. Surveys by the A. C. Nielsen research firm give radio an edge of nearly three to one in number of sets turned in between 8 and 9 a. m. The margin swindles until the 4 to 5 p.m. period when it's about a standoff. Then TV moves out front and takes over the big night time audiences.

Enrolment Should Not Be Restricted

WINNIPEG (CP) —Dr. J. A. Corry, vice-principal of Queen's University, said Monday Canadian universities must not adopt a seriously restrictive policy of enrolment.

Speaking to the Canadian Club, Dr. Corry said that in about three years universities will be "feeling the first ripples of the tide of post-1941 babies with the full flow of the rapidly increased Canadian birth rate entering universities between 1961 and 1970."

"The time to do something is now, not when some expected 85,000 students start knocking on the university door."

Montreal Gas System May Be Sold

OTTAWA (CP) — The Quebec hydro-electric commission is "seriously considering" sale of its Montreal gas manufacturing and sales division to a company which would pipe United States natural gas into the city.

Premier Duplessis announced in an interview Monday night that the Quebec crown corporation would turn over its gas division to a new company to be formed by interests behind Trans - Canada Pipe Lines Ltd.

It would be a $30,000,000 deal, informants said.

Trans-Canada plans a $350,000,000 project to bring Alberta gas to eastern Canada and to import U.S. gas until the Alberta fuel reaches the East.

Informants said that the principals of Trans-Canada would set up a company legally divorced from Trans-Canada and with a majority of the voting stock offered to Montrealers.

Though retaining a heavy voting interest, Trans-Canada would be prepared to have a representative of Quebec Hydro on the board of governors.

Council Forgives

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Rich was granted forgiveness by city council Monday—after 12 years—for violating the laneway-by-laws and defying council.

City council voted to seek dissolution of an injunction preventing Rich from using an apartment he built at the rear of his store without a building permit and in violation of the zoning by-law.

Rich built the apartment in defiance of the building department which refused him a permit because the property did not provide the required yard space for a dwelling. The apartment has been vacant since it was built.

Controller Fred Brand told council Rich had admitted he was "a silly old guy. . . I think he has paid the penalty.

"Certainly, his experience cannot offer anyone an inducement to violate the by-laws."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on the living room floor looking up at the ceiling and thinking while I was getting ready to begin my homework, and pop said, Look here, young man, I dont want you to think that I underestimate the power of thought, but unless you are really engaged in some constructive thinking, I'd advise you to get busy on your homework.

Well jimminies, pop, I was thinking about being more ambitious, I said, and pop said, Ambition in your school work by any chance?

Sure, pop, thats exactly what, I said, I was thinking that when a fellow skips a grade in school, everybody thinks he must be pretty wonderful, I said, and pop said, And so it is. Is there anything more wonderful than superior brain power? he said.

No sir, that's what-I was thinking, pop, and that's just what I'm going to have, I said, and pop said, That's a very cheering thing to know, and where are you going to get it?

I'm going to work and study for it, I said. That's all I'll do, study my lessons with all my might. I'll stay up late and study and I'll get up early and study some more, and I'll even study while I'm eating my meals, like some fellows watch television while they're eating their cereal, and the power of thought, be-cause, so I'll always be ahead of the class and even ahead of the teacher, and I'll start to skip grades, and I'll skip and skip till I'm the youngest president of a bank that ever lived. Oh boy, I've almost got a headache just thinking about it, I said.

I've almost got a stomach ache from listening to you pop said. How in exactly one hour I'm going to hear your lessons, and believe me you'd better know them, he said.

Which I did.

Regina Pats Confident Of Cup Victory Despite 3-2 Setback By Marlies

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

RARE, INDEED!

There is nothing so rare "as a day in June," quoth the poet. Apparently he had not heard of a dyed-in-the-wool amateur hockey player.

Fans who are believing the current Allan Cup series between the Kitchener Dutchmen and the Fort William Beavers will be surprised to learn that the Beavers are "amateurs" in the strictest sense of the word. Not only that but they are also "home-brew" in bed or sticks a mouse.

The Fort William Times Journal brought these facts to light in a recent editorial which lauded the Beavers for their "play-for-fun—and-not-pay" status.

The editorial pointed out that of the 19 players on the club roster only four did not learn to play hockey in Fort William. Of these four, three played their minor and junior hockey in neighboring Port Arthur. "Further," commented the newspaper, "unlike dozens of other hockey and senior teams in Canada, not a man on the Beaver team plays for money. A Beaver pay-roll is non-existent."

As the Cornwall Standard Freeholder points out editorially, "these statements should come as a bit of a shock to many sponsors of Canadian teams, particularly those of top-ranking junior and senior clubs whose members are paid regular salaries for their puck-chasing efforts. The pseudo-amateurism in Canadian hockey circles has long been a topic of discussion among sports fans and experts. Although termed amateurs, most, or all players seeking Canada's highest hockey honors for years have been under contract to their teams. Hockey promoters all over the country are well aware of this fact and frequently learn their method of operating an "amateur" team can prove a mighty expensive undertaking."

"It is refreshing therefore, to learn that the real spirit of amateurism still is not dead among a few of our top senior hockey clubs," the Freeholder editorial continued. "In fact, by adopting a trait that will bring back the old type hockey clubs which once flourished throughout Canada. Whether other cities and towns can build championship contenders from native-born players is a matter for conjecture. But at least no great harm could result if more hockey centres were to try and emulate Fort William's example of operating an amateur club with local, non-professional players. The play-for-pay trend, prominent for many years in amateur hockey circles in this country has been reversed by the Fort William team which has proved conclusively that one can still enjoy the ability of players who receive direct pay for their hockey-playing activities."

While the thought is refreshing, it is doubtful if the good old amateur days return. As long as ambitious sponsors are willing to pay top prices to see top players and as long will the present situation exist. And the annual cost of players is increasing. That is clearly evident in the eastern Ontario senior "A" group. The increasing cost of operation, playoff money—inaugurated in 1954—is practically all member clubs with the possible exception of the champion Kingston Goodyears into the red. The four clubs which participated in the playoffs were assessed a levy of $1,000 each, the money since the added revenue from playoff gates wiped out some of the seasonal deficit.

No, it seems the damage has been done. We know of a case of a peewee player who refused to turn out with his club because the sponsor refused to buy him a pair of skates. That in a far cry from the days not long ago when hockey players bought their own equipment, paid their own transportation and played the game just for the thrill of it.

And money must of necessity be the root of an evil that might sound the death-knell of hockey in more places than one. We learn via the grapevine that the Belleville Arena Commission will not sponsor a senior hockey club next year, due to the financial situation. Unless we do not look for any great rush of private sponsors willing to spend a few thousand dollars just for the fun of losing it.

And if a sponsor is to "break even" he must have a winning team. A fickle sports public will not support a losing one. Lucky is the sponsor who "breaks even" over schedule play. A team must get into the "velvet" playoffs if the "sugar daddy" is to get some of his investment back. And if the tab increases the next few years at the same rate as the past three or four seasons, it is doubtful if packed arenas at each game would meet the actual cost, taking everything into consideration.

BODGE PODGE

Apropos of "amateur hockey clubs, and a tip-off to those ambitious people who want to jump senior "B" to senior "A". In these here parts, the payroll of the Sault Ste. Marie Indians of the Michigan, last season was $500 per week for the Kingston paper: "Appears to be talk of having Kingston applying for the Olympic trip next winter" . . . . Another note in the same column: "Word from the weather bureau of the province is that with some forward line reinforcement and another defenceman Kingston could make a creditable "A" showing." Cannot Kingston leave well enough alone? And is that last "note" a shielded alibi for the showing of Sarnia against the Goodyears? . . . . Chick (Stratford Beacon Herald) Appel commenting on the "sending Kingston to the Olympics note," says: "No, remember Toronto Lyndhurst's" Without belittling the Kingston senior "B" champions, they're just not good enough. The team to send is the Allan Cup titleholder—or none (period)."

Hall of Fame Will Include Many Athletes

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian sports Hall of Fame to be set up in Toronto this year has been extended to include Canadian Olympic and world champions and athletes who have brought fame to Canada.

This was announced Monday by sports director Barry Price of the Canadian National Exhibition, sponsor of the Hall. Originally, the Hall was to house this year athletes chosen in the half-century poll conducted by The Canadian Press in 1950.

Although plans are not yet official, it is planned to appoint one representative from each province in the country to sit in on a committee to consider candidates and to draw up a constitution governing the general conduct of the shrine. The Hall will be opened at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto next August.

The Hall of Fame will not conflict with the hockey Hall of Fame to be opened in August by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada Hall of Fame.

Westerners Two Goals Down Outshot, Outplayed Toronto; Officiating Gets Broda Blast

REGINA (CP) — Toronto Marlboros lead 3-1 in games in the Memorial Cup final but Regina Pats coach Murray Armstrong says his team will win the junior hockey trophy.

"We're going to beat that team" he said in the dressing room Monday night after his club lost 3-2 in the third game of the best-of-seven series.

Pats, after allowing two easy goals to Marlboros in the first period, rallied strongly to outshoot and outskate the eastern Canada champions.

One of their goals came in the second period when Marlboros had two men off with penalties.

TEMPERS ROUSED

He figured Pats received special treatment as far as penalties were concerned from referee Len Crevieu and Charlie Deziel of the Quebec Junior Hockey League.

The 4,000 fans saw an exciting game, one which drew the first real spark of temper in the series. Murray Balfour, Pats bruising defenceman, threw a swipe at Gerry James of Marlboros and all players piled up near the end of the game but no punches were landed and there were no penalties called.

Bill Hunter, Jack Pulford and Mike Nykoluk scored for Toronto. Billy Hay, who was rarely off the ice and winged Lee Colwill, a replacement brought up from Lethbridge Native Sons for the series, scored for Regina.

Marlboros went ahead 1-0 at 8:04 of the first period when Pulford took the puck away from Balfour, who was attempting to clear but hind his own net. Pulford flipped the puck out front to Harris, who stabbed it in.

PASS ESCAPED

Pulford and Harris combined on the second goal of the period at 11:05 when Fred Wrigot of Pats let a pass get away from him 30 feet from the Regina net. Harris grabbed the puck and passed to Pulford who scored on a hard screened shot.

Nykoluk sent Marlboros into a 3-1 lead in the second period at 16:17 with Ron Casey off for Toronto. Colwill's goal was dazzling, fired from the Toronto blueline and nestling high in the right side of the net. Netminder Johnny Bower had, Armstrong pulled Selinger with 20 seconds to go but the move didn't pay off.

Fourth game is Wednesday night, the fifth Thursday night and sixth Saturday if necessary.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that baseball's lower and Texas Pacific circuit's great start has subsided somewhat, the important thing to settle is that the Dodgers are being followed. As the second phase of the season's pennant race began with an invasion by the western teams today, Milwaukee Braves were only a game behind the streaking leaders in the lost column.

Charlie Grimm's fine club had clicked off seven victories against only three losses for a percentage of .700. You may be sure that such a pace, if sustained all season, will be plenty good enough to land the Braves in the next world series.

As they opened a seven set against the Giants here today, Grimm's shiggers had played three fewer games than the record breakers and as yet had not had to meet the two wooy Pittsburgh Pirates, whom the Brooks mangled four times while winning their first 10.

With Bobby Thomson apparently fully recovered from his broken ankle and slugging the ball at a murderous clip, the Braves appear to be that much stronger than they were last season. It should not be forgotten, however, that they were in there battling for the '54 pennant until Sept. 29 and only were when first baseman Joe Adcock, who was in the midst of a sensational hitting streak, was struck on the wrist by a Don Newcombe fast ball.

Thomson at last is proving that the Braves were not so dumb when they surrendered pitcher Johnny Antonelli to obtain him. Besides the Giants, in his first 16 games the Flying Scot hammered home 17 runs, tying him for the league lead with Duke Snider of Brooklyn.

Perez, Castellani Victors Over Varona, Garcia

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Castellani and Luis Perez, the victors in the two network television fights Monday night, looked forward today to May Fights while their victims began involuntary layoffs because of staff cuts.

Castellani, the third - ranking middleweight contender from Cleveland, staggered Cuba's Chico Varona often to win a decisive 10-round decision at St. Nicholas Arena. Varona, outweighed 159½ to 156¾, required 10 stitches to patch up a cut over his left eye. That should keep him sidelined at least 30 days.

Rocky is expected to sign for a May 23 show at the same arena against either Milo Savage of Salt Lake City or Paul Pender of Boston.

Castellani's manager, Al Nalman, said Rocky has been promised a title fight with middleweight champion Bobo Olson if the champ remains among the middleweights.

Perez, in his best shape in more than a year, celebrated his 22nd birthday by trouncing Rudy Garcia, 147½, over the 10-round limit, contender from Los Angeles, at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena. Luis weighed 138, Garcia 138.

Garcia was gashed in two places and Dr. Samuel Swetnick said the California featherweight king will be out of action about two months.

Will Square Series Tonight Say Beavers

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, carrying a 2-1 lead in games over Fort William Beavers in the Ontario, seven Allan Cup final, go into the Beavers' dressing room confident they can extend the margin.

"If we can keep moving the way we did on Saturday," said coach Bobby Bauer, whose Dutchmen humiliated the western champions 8-2 in the third meeting, "we're going to be tough to beat in the next two games."

Beavers, who haven't lost two games in succession all season, had a different opinion. After a brisk workout Monday, the feeling in the Fort William camp was that they will come up with a top-flight effort tonight to square the series.

Beavers may have one lineup change, Lefwinger Jim Millar, in hospital most of last week with a facial infection, worked out Sunday and Monday and may be ready to step back into uniform.

Horne suffered a 25-stitch cut on the face in a collision Saturday night and Bauer does not plan to use him tonight. Horne may be ready Thursday for the fifth game.

A near-capacity house is expected tonight.

BEERS ELECTION

LONACONING, Md. (AP)—Robert Mones (Lefty) Grove, whose only previous election was to baseball's Hall of Fame, is the Democratic candidate for town council in Lonaconing's May 9 race.

It will be the 31-year-old pitching great's first political venture although he has been active in the Lonaconing Republican Club since he retired from baseball in 1941.

He is one of eight candidates for the four council seats.

Lefty Grove, the last major league pitcher to win 300 games, played 17 years of major league ball. From 1925 to 1933, he pitched for the Philadelphia Athletics, including a 16-game winning streak he had a 31-4 record with 16 straight wins.

IBC Fingers in Fight Pie, Signs Cockell to Big Contract

LONDON (AP)—A London sports editor said Monday the International Boxing Club has signed England's Don Cockell to a three-year contract and that if the stocky Britton should upset heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano he may expect to be seen in a British ring again.

In an article headlined "a champion Don Cockell is best in British ring," Pat Reekie wrote in The Daily Mail.

"Now the ghastly truth is out. In order to get his fight with Rocky Marciano, Don Cockell, our heavyweight champion, had to sign away his freedom to fight where he likes, or even where his manager tells him."

Reekie quoted Cockell's manager, John Simpson, as saying:

"I knew it was not the normal practice, but what could we do?"

British promoter Jack Solomons, however, denied that Cockell, as a world champion, would be "lost forever" to fights where he likes, or even where his manager tells him.

Reekie quoted Cockell's manager, John Simpson, as saying:

"I knew it was not the normal practice, but what could we do?"

British promoter Jack Solomons, however, denied that Cockell, as a world champion, would be "lost forever" to fights where he likes, or even where his manager tells him.

MANAGER FINED

BROOKLYN (AP) — Brooklyn Dodger manager Walter Alston was notified by the National League front office Monday he had been fined $50 for his run-in with plate umpire Babe Pinelli in last Friday night's game between the Dodgers and New York Giants.

It marked the first time in his career that a fine had been levied against the former school teacher, either as a player or manager.

The infraction occurred after an argument Alston had with Pinelli in the eighth inning. Pinelli, the veteran arbiter called Don Zimmer of the Dodgers out at home on a squeeze bunt by Jackie Robinson.

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—There's nothing unusual about the fact that Don Cockell had to sign a contract with the International Boxing Club in order to get his fight with champion Rocky Marciano, Cockell's manager John Simpson said Monday.

"Certainly we signed with the IBC," said Simpson. "So does any other fighter who wants a chance at the championship. What's so unusual about us doing it?

"You can't get a championship fight without doing business with the IBC, for that doesn't mean they can dictate where a defence can be held. That has to be done by mutual agreement. All it means is that the IBC has a finger in the pot, gets a share of the receipts."

Cockell, British heavyweight champion, and Marciano are scheduled to meet in San Francisco's Kezar Stadium May 16.

TO DEFEND TITLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Lightweight champion Jimmy Carter will defend his title against Wallace (Bud) Smith of Cincinnati at the Boston Garden, June 1, promoter Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club said Monday.

It will be the 15th title scrap for the 31-year-old Carter, first champion to lose and regain a world championship twice. The hard-hitting New Yorker earned that unique distinction when he stopped Paddy De Marco in the 15th round in San Francisco, Nov. 17. He had lost the championship to De Marco in New York, March 5, 1954. Previous to his two-fight series with De Marco, Carter lost his title and regained it from Lauro Salas.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Hockey players have been glorified and idolized by the scars. But little is ever written in appreciation of hockey's lonely men, the referees.

This is a grave injustice. Somebody should write a piece about the trials and tribulations of the men who dodge from point to point, alone from all human contact so that no shadow of suspicion shall be cast upon their calling. They come almost fearfully into the limelight when they do their duties, brave the mass loathing, then make their mouse-like exits to their private dens of obscurity.

These thoughts occurred with the announcement that Bill Chadwick, after 16 years of braving the hostility of fandom and the whimpering of players, will call it a career. For 16 years he has been travelling 50,000 miles per winter season. When he quit, he had covered about 700,000 miles, had refereed in every Stanley Cup play-off since 1939, and had never missed an assignment.

Referees today never travel with the teams, nor do they stay at the same hotel occupied by a visiting club. They talk to no one. They travel and live a solitary life during the hockey season.

Referees in the big league today have it somewhat easier in one respect than their predecessors of an earlier era, like Mike Rodden, Cooper Smeaton, Bill Stuart, the late Lou Marsh and Ion. Today's referees are not generally exposed to violence.

Mike Rodden, tough and game as they come, was punched in the back by a spectator at Montreal's old Mount Royal Arena one night. He wheeled, and lashed out at the party he thought to be guilty. Next time Mike visited Montreal the recipient of his light blow had Mike arrested. League heads had a busy time getting Mike out of the hoosegow in time to referee.

Lou Marsh was almost mobbed at the same arena one night. The crowd rushed on the ice, but Marsh shrewdly tripped up the leaders, who fell in a heap. Those behind, skidding inevitably, fell over them, and Lou skied blithely to the dressing-room while his assailan's untangled themselves.

But even without the threat of physical violence big league refereeing is a lonely job. Referees are the unsung heroes of hockey.

Baseball Twain Meets Today In First East-West Battles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Now comes the first test of power in the American and National League pennant races.

Milwaukee and St. Louis get a first hand look at the 1955 early season by Brooklyn in the National. And New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox see what's new with Chicago White Sox and Cleveland.

The first east-west meetings of the season open today and tonight, but only Yankee Stadium, scene among the leaders, get right down to business. They play a day game at Comiskey Park. The rest of the American schedule sends Washington to Cleveland, a pair of two return for Senators, and Baltimore to Detroit this afternoon with Boston at Kansas-City tonight.

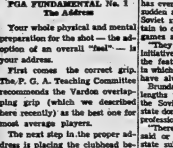
BRAVES MEET GIANTS

In the National, Milwaukee and St. Louis get around to Brooklyn in a few days. Tonight, Braves open at the Polo Grounds against New York Giants and the Cards are at Philadelphia. Cincinnati is host to Brooklyn and Chicago at Pittsburgh in another night pair.

Milwaukee opener cast with Bobby Thomson in fine shape, its pitching as good as expected with only 5½ games behind the Brooks despite Dodgers' 11 start. Thomson has hit first crack at making Braves look better in that deal with Giants for Johnny Antonelli. Bobby out with a broken ankle, wasn't much help in Braves' last season. Antonelli won 21 for the world champs.

Manager Lee Durocher, still 5½ games off the pace although his Giants stopped Brooklyn's win streak all plan last weekend, figures his lads are "all straightened out now." He'll go with Ruben Gomez (0-1) or Antonelli (0-2), who've had tough luck thus far in it's Gomez if it's warm. Bob Buhl (1-0) goes for Milwaukee.

CARD, GM DEBUTS



Cardinals, packing some relief help for a change, run into Robin Roberts (3-1), who's "real tough back" after getting slugged off his winning streak by the Dodgers. St. Louis, a game behind the Braves, go with Harvey Haddix (1-0) and the hitting of Ray Jablonski (.368) filling in for the unusually slow start of Stan (The Man) Musial.

Now that Boston's Willard Nixon has beaten Yanks straight, the American League figures to revive its' "southpaw-the-Bombers" idea. Chicago sends the right-hander Billy Pierce (1-0) against Whitey Ford today with Bob Shaw (1-0) trying to victory aside New York into first ahead of the White Sox, who start the game in Cleveland with Early the good.

Boston also could climb into the lead with New York if Tom Brewer (0-2) stops the A's. Kansas City goes with Arnie Portocarrero (0-1).

The Address

Your whole physical and mental preparation for the shot — the adoption of an overall "feel" — is your address.

First comes the correct grip. The P. G. A. Teaching Committee recommends the Vardon overlapping grip (which we described here recently) as the best one for most average players.

The next step in the proper address is placing the clubhead behind the ball and making sure that it rests flatly on the ground and the clubface is at right angles to the intended line of flight.

Then your feet are positioned, with careful attention to aim. For a drive they should be about shoulder width apart, toes pointed slightly outward, ball opposite your left heel.

Notice that while your arms are extended, they are relaxed. Your knees should not be locked either. The keynote of your address must be a comfortable stance and relaxation in all parts of your body, in order to achieve a smooth easy swing in the right groove.

Toronto Nortowns Win Junior Basketball Title

The Torontonians defeated Winnipeg Light Infantry Oak Leafs 95-87 Monday night, their third straight victory in the best-of-five final series. Toronto won the first game Saturday 75-69 and the second 73-61 Sunday.

Toronto Central YMCA was the last amateur club team to win the Canadian title—in 1949. Winnipeg Monarchs won in 1939 and 1941 and Oak Leafs took the title the next two years. Vancouver Mapleleafs won in 1948.

Monday night's loss was the fourth in 31 games for Oak Leafs this season. Nortowns won 27 of 43 in the season and playoffs.

Don Gucci was the sparkplug for Nortowns. The Big Four football prospect scored 20 points, highest individual total of any game in the series. Guest hit the basket on 94 per cent of his shots. The six foot-four centre also turned in a sparkling defensive game.

Nortowns jumped into the lead with the first basket of the game and never were behind. They had no trouble cracking the zone defence of Oak Leafs which used man-to-man coverage in the first half and a change-of-pace combination defence in the second.

Oak Leafs pressed in the first 10 minutes of the second half and managed to within six points of the lead but Toronto soon widened the margin.

Izzy Mandel scored 17 points for Nortowns and Bill Karpiaski got another 15.

Don Harvey led the losers with 19 points. Al Bruno contributed another 12 points for Winnipeg. Norm Ratsharn, leading Winnipeg scorer in the first two games with 24 points in each, was held to 11 last night.

Forty-nine personal fouls were called with Winnipeg getting 23.

Russians Wool Still Smogs Brundage Eyes

NEW YORK (AP)—Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said Monday American sports have "become more of grandstand and bleacher sitters" and are in grave danger of losing their athletic supremacy to Russia.

"We think it's sport to find a good vantage point in the stands and watch professional baseball, football, boxing and horse racing," he added in an article in this week's Saturday Evening Post.

"This is not sport. These events shouldn't even be carried on the sports page. They should be described in the amusement sections of newspapers, along with the theatre, circus and vaudeville."

Brundage, who spent three weeks looking over the Soviet sports program last summer as guest of the Russian Olympic committee, said everywhere "even in remote little villages I saw evidence of tremendous athletic development."

The IOC executive said:

"Russia is building the greatest mass army of athletes the world has ever known. Unless there is a sudden awakening in this country, Soviet sportsmen are almost certain to dominate the 1956 Olympic games at Melbourne, Australia.

"They are threaten to seize the initiative even in track and field, the feature phase of the games, in which the United States athletes have always been supreme."

Brundage said he went to great lengths to look into charges that the Soviet athletic program was state dominated and was, in effect, professional.

"There was little that could be said or done on the question of state subsidization," he said. "In communistic countries everything is subservient to the state."

Brundage said he had been assured by ranking Russian Olympic officials that the Olympic code was being followed and he added: "I saw nothing during my brief trip which would have made me question (it)."

Meaford Clips Tillsonburg 6-3

TILLSONBURG (CP) — Meaford Knights clipped Tillsonburg Panthers 6-3 Monday night to take a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate A final.

Charlie MacDonald counted twice for Meaford. Singles went to Sonny Robinson, Ray McCallum, Frank Hamilton and Ray Wheeler.

Tillsonburg scorers were Alex Wood, Robbie Hewson and Bill Simpell.

Sixth game will be played in Collingwood Wednesday.

Anderson Wins American League Rookie Award

NEW YORK (AP)—Competing against the largest rookie crop in American Hockey League history, James William (Andy) Anderson of the Springfield Indians made a runaway of the get in league Dunlop (Red) Garrett Memorial Trophy.

Results of the balloting for the league's outstanding rookie were announced today by the AHL newsmen here. Anderson polled 28 of a possible 30 points.

In addition to receiving permanently the Garrett trophy—a new one is presented each year—Anderson will get a cheque for $200.

Anderson also was voted the third-best left winger in the all-star team balloting. He ran up a total of 71 points during the 1954-55 season on 39 goals and 32 assists with Cleveland in 1950 and 1951.

A total of 22 players were named to the rookie team, each of 10 of them received votes. Andy's two closest rivals were Springfield teammates Don Simmons with nine points and Graham Hastings with five.

Others who received points were Gordon Wilson, Hershey, Ian Cushenan, Cleveland, Ed Litz, Providence, Reamue, Pittsburgh, three each; Jack Henderson, Providence, two and Bill Buregs and Gerry Foley, Pittsburgh, and Jimmy Farrell, Cleveland, each.

Boy Incident Draws Larson Temporary Ban

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States Lawn Tennis Association cut off Art Larsen's expenses Monday for 30 days in temporary suspension pended as an aftermath of the little Californian's hassle with a ballboy in Genoa, Italy, last Saturday.

Larsen, former U.S. champion from Oakland, Calif., struck the 16-year-old boy in the face with a tennis ball during a match in the international tournament.

Apparently upset by the ballboy's overzealousness in hastily stamped the ball toward the boy and the ball struck him in the face. The boy left the court bleeding.

Renville McMann, USLTA vice-president and chairman of the group's international play committee, sent the following cable to Larsen in Florence, Italy, where he was scheduled to play next:

"Permission for further foreign play withdrawn pending complete air mail report regarding Genoa ballboy incident."

McMann's body can only withdraw permission. Conceivably, Larsen could continue playing in foreign tournament if accepted by foreign tournament committees and if he paid his own freight.

'No Goal' After Leap Over 70-Foot Cliff

PLYMOUTH, England (AP)—Goalkeeper George Cornelius made a prodigious leap to stop the ball in a sandlot soccer game Monday—and vanished over the lip of a 70-foot cliff.

Other players peering down in horror saw Cornelius in his 25-year-old George rising from a patch of wet sand at the edge of Plymouth bay with the ball still in his hand.

"I'm all right and it's no goal," he called to them. "I landed on my feet."

At hospital where he was sent just in case, doctors said there was nothing wrong with George but a few bruises.

Eddie Litzenberger 'Rookie of Year' Wins National League's 'Calder Cup'

MONTREAL (CP)—The Chicago Black Hawks, who haven't had many reasons for jubilance in the past few years, were decorated the day by the selection of Eddie Litzenberger, their rangy right winger, as winner of the National Hockey League Calder Memorial Trophy for rookies.

This award, named in memory of the former NHL president, is given annually to "the player selected as most proficient in his first year of competition." Litzenberger is the first Chicago winner since Cully Dahlstrom in 1937-38.

Litzenberger polled a total of 128 points out of a possible 180.

Don McKenney, Boston Bruins' clever centre, finished second with 72 points. Others were Jacques Plante, Montreal, 54; Larry Popein, New York, 25; Jackie Leclair, Montreal, 17; Parker McDonald, Toronto, 4; Keith Allen, Detroit, and John Henderson, Boston, 1 each.

Litzenberger, a 22-year-old native of Neudorf, Sask., started the season with Montreal Canadiens. After 23 games he was sold to Chicago, Dec. 10, 1954, and played 47 games for the Black Hawks. He thus had the unusual distinction of playing 73 games in a 70-game schedule.

He scored 22 goals and assisted on 28 for 50 points, finishing his rookie season ninth among the league goal-getters and 12th in scoring.

For winning the trophy, Litzenberger receives a $1,000 bonus from the league.

Repulski Tops National Loop Batters, Tigers' Kaline Leads American Hitters

NEW YORK (AP)—Hitting behind Stan Musial must be an inspiration. At least it's doing wonders for Eldon (Rip) Repulski, the new cleanup batter for St. Louis Cardinals.

With the 1955 major league season two weeks old Monday, Repulski leads the National League in batting with a .396 average on his 19 hits in 48 times at bat. In 10 games, the 26-year-old outfielder also has produced five doubles, two homers and nine runs batted in.

Al Kaline, the speedy outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, has taken an early lead in the "American League batting race. He's batting an even .300 with 19 safeties in 39 trips after 10 games.

Kaline also holds the distinction of being the only major leaguer to have hit three homers in one game this season.

Bob Nieman of Chicago is second to Kaline in batting with a .423 percentage. The ex-Detroit Tiger, who was traded to the White Sox during the winter, has collected 11 hits in 26 at bats.

SHOWRON IS THERE

Bill Skowron of the New York Yankees, who is setting the runs batted in pace along with Nieman at 14 apiece, is third in the hitting competition with a .422 mark. Chico Carrasquel of Chicago is fourth with .400 followed by Vic Power of Kansas City with .381 and Harvey Kuenn of Detroit with .372.

Behind Repulski in the National League come Johnny Logan of Milwaukee with .389, Granny Hamner of Philadelphia, .367, Billy Bruton with .364 and Roy Campanella of Brooklyn and Dee Fondy of Chicago with .362 each.

Carl Furillo of Brooklyn is the senior circuit's home run pacesetter with six. Ted Kluszewski of Cincinnati, the majors' home run king in 1954 with 49, is second with five.

Duke Snider of Brooklyn and Bobby Thomson of the Milwaukee Braves are deadlocked for the home runs batted in lead with 17 apiece.

Y Leaders Win In Kingston

At the recent gymnastic championships held at the R. M. C. in Kingston, among the Eastern Ontario "Y" Leaders the Belleville leaders won one first place, one second place and three fourth places.

Bob Wesley won first place in the senior division, Don Webb won second place, and Ron Sparks, Ian Valcamp and Robert Blaker all of Belleville tied for fourth place in the junior division. Mats, parallel bars, and pommel horse were the apparatus competed on.

The gymnastic championship is part of a two-day leaders conference held in rotation at various cities of Eastern Ontario and the gymnastic competition of it is usually very keen. Twenty-two leaders competed in the junior division and nine leaders in the second.

Leafs Trounce Columbus 15-3; Sugar Kings Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Goliat, Toronto Maple Leaf second baseman who was sent to the Columbus Jets during the fall after the White Kids of Philadelphia had won the National League pennant the previous year, is making an impressive bid for another shot at the majors.

One of the key figures in Toronto's try for another league championship, Goliat collected 11 hits in 19 trips in the Columbus series, which concluded as the Maple Leafs trounced the Jets 15-3 Monday night.

The Havana Cuban Sugar Kings won their seventh game in eight starts and remained one and one-half games ahead of the Maple Leafs by blanking Montreal Royals 4-0.

RAIN INTERFERES

Goliat led the Toronto assault with a single, double and triple while driving in three runs. The Leafs banged out 15 Columbus pitchers for 18 hits and during the four-game series pounced on Jets pitchers for 40 hits and 46 runs.

The 30-year-old second baseman has skipped his Maple Leaf home of '51 for what manager Eddie Sawyer said were disciplinary reasons. Last year he was voted the Arthur Leman Trophy for being the most popular player in the league's championship team.

EASY FOR R. JOHNSON

Starter Art Johnson, Sugar Cradock, less than two weeks out of Syracuse University, and reliefer Charley Haag were credited for the runs in the first two innings. Ken Johnson easily coasted the route for his initial win for Toronto.

Defensive pitching by veteran Kenny Raffensberger and reliever Charlie Harris gave the Sugar Kings their third straight victory over the Royals.

The Cubans tallied two runs in the first inning and two more in the fourth. Raffensberger hurled six-hit ball for seven innings before tiring and received credit for his second win of the season.

Wealthy Western 'Racing' Rancher Will Recall the Good and Lean Years

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Big Jim Speers, whose motto has been to "forget the past and look at the future" in his 71 years, may break with tradition tonight and take a good look back to the old days in Canadian racing. Some were mighty lean.

The bluff and affable R. J. Speers will be guest speaker at a dinner called to honor Chop Chop, owned by Toronto industrialist E.P. Taylor, as champion Canadian sire of 1954. Chop Chop, the puppy of Canadiana, horse of the year and Queen's Plate winner in 1953, also won the honor two years ago.

Jim, of Winnipeg, is one of many racing figures who will be at the gathering. He is to tell everybody how the sport has progressed in Canada.

It was 53 years ago that Speers, then a kid of 18, left his home in Perth county and went to Toronto and headed for the Prairies.

He now has a wealthy and outstanding racing name. He can leave the business pressure of his Winnipeg office, turn it over to others and hit the open range of his 12,000-acre Bar 10 ranch at Cochrane, where beef cattle roam and thoroughbreds play in their spacious paddocks.

Speers, owner of the Whittier Park track, has also been one to see the gradual development of the western Canada thoroughbred.

His racing career started at Battleford shortly after he arrived from his home in Ontario. He now the site of Melton airport on the outskirts of Winnipeg.

He bought his first race horse at Battleford. Everything went fine and he owned it several times, at the First World War. In 1924 and 1925 Speers owned Sir Barton and Whittier Park. He established the prairie province racing circuit.

Speers has been involved actively in 1926, his first crop of foals failed to win a race. Speers then invaded Kentucky in search of better stallions and mares. Things were tough at the time and he refused to buy thoroughbreds for a song. They paid off.

Women Spend Too Much Time In Beauty Parlors Says Actress

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—June Allyson today comes up with the startling statement that women spend too much time and money in beauty parlors.

This is startling because the mild - mannered Miss Allyson usually avoids controversy.

"Oh dear," said the actress, "I suppose lots of women will be mad at me. On the other hand, their husbands will be happy. And I'd much rather have them like me."

Miss Allyson swore that she is not and she has been a frequent quenter of beauty salons.

FIRST AND LAST

"I went just once, before I started 'remains to be seen'," she added, mentioning her last, ill-fated film while under contract to MGM. "I decided to have a permanent the first I'd ever had.

"My hair came out looking like steel wool. I had to cut if off. I looked a mess but I didn't care; everything about that picture was wrong. They even put me in a lovely gown!"

How come she never became an addict of the glamor emporiums?

"When I was a kid, I was too poor," she explained. "Even when I was in Broadway shows, I couldn't spare the money. I learned to do everything myself."

Even when she became a Hollywood star, she continued to do her own beautifying.

GLAMOR TREATMENT

"I never go in the hairdressing or makeup departments," she said. "And they probably hate me for it. I made the mistake once. I was up for a role in 'Two girls and a Sailor' and they gave me the glamor treatment. I looked at myself in the mirror and almost fainted. I washed my face and hair and did everything myself, and I got the role."

She added with a giggle: "Of course, I was playing Gloria de Haven's plain sister; maybe that's why."

Miss Allyson said other women could follow her own example and do their own grooming at home.

"Think of the money they could save!" she said. "Of course, if I want to buy a dress, I tell Richard (Dick) Powell her husband that I've saved the money by not going to beauty parlors."

Movie Film May Upset Boxing Verdict

PARIS (AP) —French Boxing officials Monday claimed that films showed veteran American boxer Percy Bassett should have been counted out in the first round of his fight Sunday with French lightweight champion Seraphin Ferrer.

Bassett, from Philadelphia, was knocked down in the first round but went on to score a 10th round technical knockout.

Boxing promoter Gilbert Besnin and Ferrer's manager said films showed Bassett clearly gripping the ropes after the referee counted nine.

They said the films would be submitted to the French Boxing Federation to see if a change in the fight result is possible.

Nashua Cinch To Win Derby Says Jockey

NEW YORK (AP)—Jockey Ted Atkinson has three words for Nashua—"ungeneerous," "unresponsive" and "unnerving" — but he figures the headstrong Belair colt is a dead cinch to win the Kentucky Derby May 1.

"If he can spot Summer Tan the lead he did in the Wood last Saturday and catch him over a mile and an eighth," the 38-year-old Canadian - born saddleman said Monday, "then he's bound to run off and leave him in a mile and a quarter."

Nashua and Summer Tan, prime favorites in Wednesday's 39 - car "two-horse" derby, will have to go an extra eighth of a mile at Louisville next Saturday.

Describing Nashua's thrilling neck victory over Summer Tan in the Wood memorial after the latter had set the early pace and hit the stretch a length and a half in front, Atkinson said:

"Some horses respond completely, are eager to do all they can, others over-respond and still others under-respond.

"Nashua falls into the last category. He is a headstrong colt. To describe him, I would say he is ungeneerous. That is, he refuses to give when the rider asks him to—he gives when he wants to."

Percy Favored Over McFater

TORONTO (CP)—Tony Percy of Drummondville, Que., makes his first defence of the Canadian welterweight championship tonight against Allan McFater of Toronto, a former lightweight making a comeback after time out to go back to school and get married.

Percy, 21, who won the welter crown Jan. 24 by defeating Reggie Chartrand in Montreal, is a slight favorite in tonight's 12-round bout at Maple Leaf Gardens.

McFater will be after his third victory since he returned to the ring after a two-year layoff. The 24-year-old Toronto fighter recently defeated Young Junior in Hamilton and Wes Lowry in London, Ont.

Percy, whose manager says he likes to eat too much," is expected to weigh in at the welterweight limit of 147 pounds. McFater will tip the scales at about 142.

Both boxers showed well in training, but the odds-makers give Percy a slight edge because of McFater's long spell of inactivity.

In two eight-round bouts on the card, Jean Chartrand's Charlie Chase, Canadian middleweight champion, meets Ronnie Wallace of Brantford, Ont., and Bobby Courchesne, a vegetarian young featherweight from Holyoke, Mass., clashes with Tommy Corrick of Toronto.

Action, Dual Love Story in "Private Hell 36" Thriller

A fast-paced hard-hitting story of two detectives gone wrong, Filmakers' "Private Hell 36", is showing Today at the Belle Theatre, with impressive five-star cast, Ida Lupino, Steve Cochran, Howard Duff, Dean Jagger and Dorothy Malone.

Jagger is cast as the captain of police and Miss Malone as Duff's devoted wife. Collier Young produced the thrilling feature.

The film benefits from the commentary pleasantly narrated by Dan O'Herlihy and the stirring music composed by George Antheil.

The popular latest world-news events is an added attraction.

City in Turmoil

KINGSTON (CP) — Times do change—especially in Kingston and district this week.

Most Ontario points turned their clocks ahead to daylight time during the weekend. But a Kingston by-law prevents the city from making the change until next week.

Consequently many persons living in Kingston and working in district towns are arriving late for work. It works conversely. Shoppers and workers crowd the city centre before their watches ahead or back an hour.

And a bewildered public is looking forward to next week when times are uniform.

WHEN FELLOW NEEDS FRIEND

This young bear cub, recovering from a broken leg, makes friends with a toy rubber dog in the clinic of Dr. Norman Anderson, of Winnipeg, a veterinary. The cub was captured in Manitoba, only for the United States but was rejected when the cub broke a leg. Dr. Anderson set the leg and the cub has become a pet around the clinic. He may go to Winnipeg zoo when he gets too big to keep around the house. (CP Photo).

GUN DESIGNER

Earl Guy, 39, of St. Catharines, Ont., spent four years on the development of the Heller, the Canadian army's new anti-tank weapon used by the infantry. The weapon has more than double the muzzle velocity of the Second World War bazooka. It also has longer ranges and is more accurate. Guy now works with the defence research board at Valcartier. Housing Program Of Government Is Attacked

TORONTO (CP)—Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said Monday night the Ontario government's housing program "is actually dwindling away."

In a broadcast in the free-time "Provincial Affairs" series over a CBC Ontario network, he said:

"We need low-cost and low-rental homes; we need them desperately. Some 40,000 dwelling units were built in Ontario last year—by people who could afford them. But for people who need houses most, those in the lower and middle income brackets, a new home is farther and farther beyond their budget."

If employment were a major concern of the Frost government, housing would have been highlighted in its program, he said. Housing would provide more jobs than any other kind of public project, the federal government was committed to sharing the cost on a 3-to-1 basis, and it would meet a crying social need.

"Yet in face of all this, the Frost government's housing program is actually dwindling away."

Given Additional Terms

SUDBURY (CP)—Two men who escaped from Burwash prison farm March 16 were sentenced Monday to an additional two years for their five-day venture.

James Pheasant of Hamilton also received three months for threatening a police officer with a shotgun. The other man is Harvey Heath of Chatham.

Police said both bolted from a work gang at the prison farm. They were arrested near Espanola, 40 miles west of here.

PROFITABLE BUSINESS

MITO Japan (AP) — The tax office today reported the top 10 income taxpayers in this north-central Japanese city. Six are manufacturers of sake (rice wine).

Former RCAF Chaplain Heads Presbyterians

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Rev. Alexander Nimmo of Wingham Monday was elected 81st moderator of the London and Hamilton synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He succeeds Rev. J. Lloyd Hughes of Niagara-On-The-Lake.

Mr. Nimmo was chosen on the second ballot over Rev. James Fleming of Wallaceburg at the opening session of the annual synod.

Eliminated on the first ballot were Rev. Richard Stewart, Rodney; Rev. Charles Carnegie, Hamilton; and Rev. G. Deane Johnson, Brantford.

Mr. Nimmo came to Canada from Northern Ireland in 1925. He was an RCAF chaplain during the Second World War and served at several Ontario stations including St. Thomas and Trenton. On his discharge he moved to Wingham, 40 miles northwest of Stratford.

Hamilton Homes Surrounded By Foot of Water

HAMILTON (CP)—Sixteen Crescent Beach homes were surrounded by one foot of water Monday night as Stoney creek pond united with Lake Ontario.

Residents prepared for an all-night battle to save their homes from being washed into the lake. They stuffed sand bags into cracks opened in the cement breakwater by the pounding waves of Monday night's storm.

The pond, a placid, shallow body of water about 100 feet inland from the lake, overflowed its banks Monday as it swelled from a two-day rain and waves which splashed over the breakwater.

Only two homes were in serious danger of being washed into the lake. The home of Mrs. Arbrey Ransome lost the foundation to its kitchen. The room is hanging two feet above water.

41 Ministers Will Attend Ottawa Parly

OTTAWA (CP)—A total of 41 cabinet ministers, including six from the federal government, are listed to attend today's federal-provincial conference. In addition there will be four dozen federal and provincial lower-echelon advisers.

The ministerial delegates listed by the conference staff Monday were:

Federal — Prime Minister St. Laurent, Health Minister Martin, Labor Minister Gregg, Justice Minister Garson, Works Minister Winters and Finance Minister Harris.

KILLED BY CAR

KITCHENER (CP)—Seven-year-old Richard Pilote, son of Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Pilote, was killed Monday when he was struck by a car in front of his school. Police said the accident occurred during the noon recess.

Eisenhower Feels World Peace Prospects on Upswing

Our Babu Wins British Classic In Photo Fmish

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEWMARKET, England (CP)—Our Babu won the two Thousand Guineas today the way he did in 1948—by a whisker.

In a three-way photo finish, the bay son of My Babu just nosed out the 5-to-1 favorite Tamerlane and the French colt Elafos in the first of the season's classic races. The English horses thus repelled one of the strongest French and Irish challenges ever mustered in this famous race over the Rowley mile, named for King Charles II's horse, Old Rowley.

Gladiator IV, another of the five French horses, was third in the field of 23 top three-year-olds.

My Smokey was fifth.

Our Babu, owned by Bedfordshire businessman David Robinson, came with a late run on the stands side to catch the pacemaking Tamerlane by a neck. The fast-finishing Elafos was a short head away for third place.

My Babu, the winner's sire, won the Guineas in 1948, also in a photo finish.

Our Babu's dam is the Blue Peter mare Glen Line. The winner was the joint second favorite at 5 to 1. It was the top English colt of 1954 but lost most of its form when it finished behind the Queen's Almoner in a trial race at Kempton early this year.

QUEEN'S COLT ALSO RAN

Today the Queen was present to see her colt Alexander finish among the also rans after figuring prominently in the early going.

Tamerlane is owned by Lord Porchester and Klairon, trained in France by Jack Cunningham, is owned by M. M. Fabiani. The French horse, a 20-to-1 pick in the betting, was ridden by J. Deforge.

Time for the race was not immediately announced.

The race was worth £13,758 to the winner, set by British champion Jockey Doug Smith.

The Two Thousand Guineas was the first of the flat racing classics. The others are the One Thousand Guineas over the Oaks for three-year-old fillies and the Derby and St. Leger for three-year-old colts and fillies.

Frost Urges Speed-up of Gas Pipeline

OTTAWA (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario Tuesday urged a speed-up of the proposed all-Canadian natural gas pipe line to strengthen Canada's defence and boost employment.

The use of Alberta's gas through construction of an all-Canadian pipeline "would strengthen our national security and raise our living standards," he told the federal-provincial conference.

"In addition, it would give impetus to the construction and steel industries and make a significant contribution to employment and economic activity generally."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: In southern Ontario sunny, warm weather today will be followed by an even warmer, sunny Thursday. In northern regions the approach of an active low pressure area from the Dakotas will cause increasing cloudiness this Thursday, and in the north west showers, and thunder-showers.

PORT COLBORNE TRIO DIES AS CAR UPSET AT CURVE

Hitting Tree in Mid-air Auto Lands on Roof

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP)—Three Port Colborne area residents were killed today when their car missed a curve on Highway 3, eight miles west of here and struck a tree.

Dead are Beverly Barrick, 23, and Robert Cowell, 24, of Port Colborne and Mrs. Walter Shwart, 25, of Fenwick, 16 miles north of here.

Police said Miss Barrick and Cowell were driving Mrs. Shwart home after taking her husband to work at the International Nickel Co. refinery here.

The car, heading west, missed a curve and struck a tree. It apparently hit the tree in mid-air, police said, and left the road 100 feet on the roof.

The crash was heard by provincial constable Tom Collins of the Wainfleet detachment, whose home is nearby.

He ran from his home and found all three dead. Miss Barrick and Kerswell were pinned in the wreckage. Mrs. Shwart had been thrown clear.

Provincial police from Port Colborne took over the investigation. They said they were not sure who was driving the car, but Shwart was driving when he left home and when the couple took Shwart to work.

Shoots In-laws, Holds Mother Hostage 4 Hours

FRACKVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A man angered by a pending divorce shot two relatives and then held his mother hostage for four hours until a neighbor surprised and disarmed him early today.

Charles Klebash, 28, was wounded by a fusillade of bullets as he attempted to flee following his disarmament by Joseph Rebuck, 41.

He went to the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Helen Klebash, 41, late Tuesday night and kicked in the front door, Mrs. Klebash told police as she was rushed to hospital for treatment of critical wounds of the chest.

In the house with her were a daughter, Charlotte, 15, and a sister, Mrs. Rose Rebuck, who had initiated the divorce action.

Mrs. Rebuck told police Mr. Klebash said:

"My wife tried to push a table against him but he pinned her to a wall and then shot at Mrs. Klebash as she was running for telephone police and at Charlotte Klebash, who was hiding in the house. The girl was wounded in the arm, back and hip. Her condition was reported to be fair. Mrs. Rose Reidel Klevin then ran to the home of Rebuck, about 100 yards away.

He held her and visiting neighbor, Mrs. Tony Hancher, at gunpoint until Rebuck returned and disarmed the intruder.

Rebuck finally persuaded Klevin to open the door. As Klevin came on to the front porch he pumped two more in the mouth and knocked her against a wall.

Rebuck leaped at him. Klevin fled toward the back yard through the building.

As Klevin came out the back, police sent up flares and shouted at him to stop. He was hit by one shot but continued running and was brought down by several bullets.

Atomic Test For Canadians Is Postponed

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (CP) — The atomic indoctrination of Canadian troops scheduled for today has been in private correspondence with Soviet Defence Minister Zhukov within the last three weeks. He said the correspondence holds out some slim hope of betterment in United States-Soviet relations.

Eisenhower told of the correspondence at a press conference, and said he has a feeling world peace prospects are on the upswing.

In saying he feels peace prospects are improving, Eisenhower said it is also possible, however, to balance every encouraging development—such as Russia's willingness to agree on an Austrian peace treaty—with an adverse development, such as the Red Chinese air buildup in the vicinity of Formosa.

NO MEETING NEEDED

He said that at this time he sees no reason for a meeting between himself and the British, French and Russian heads of governments as a result of the Austrian treaty negotiations. But he said such a meeting could be arranged.

State Secretary Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Pinay have scheduled a meeting May 9 in Paris to discuss a meeting with the Russians.

Eisenhower declined to give details of his correspondence with Zhukov until the Soviet government official gives the word. He was asked specifically about a published report that he asked Zhukov —a wartime acquaintance—to intervene to seek release of Americans airmen imprisoned by Red China.

The president replied he was not at liberty to discuss the contents of the correspondence exchange.

Protecting His Collie From Big Eagle, Boy, Aged 14, Knocked Down, Dazed

SPOKANE (AP)—The mother of a 14-year-old boy said Tuesday her son was knocked down and dazed by a big eagle that attacked the family dog on their farm north of here.

Mrs. D. A. McKernan said her son, Warren Pat McKernan, was attacked three times but finally beat off the bird after it had pounced on the dog.

She said the incident happened Saturday. Warren told her about it after she called the state game department. A reporter who went to the farm Tuesday said the dog, Collie, was wounded and the youth had marks on his back and his head bandaged.

Bob Hemstreet, district supervisor of the game department, said: "I never knew of a verifiable instance of an eagle attacking a human being. I have heard stories of them attacking children and animals but I was never able to verify such a story."

Mrs. McKernan said Saturday's attack on the child in less than a year by the eagle which had almost six feet wingspread.

Federal Relief Aid Offer Leaves Premiers Unexcited

By JOHN LE-BLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal offer to share in unemployment relief costs stirred no early official excitement among provinces at the federal-provincial conference here.

Prime Minister St. Laurent put it down on the conference table before 10 premiers Tuesday. Most of them ignored references to it in their own opening speeches, which followed Mr. St. Laurent's conference-opening proposal.

Ontario's Premier Frost, directly Ontario's Progressive Conservative Premier Frost was non-committal. British Columbia's Social Credit Premier Bennett said he wouldn't object to it, though it didn't coincide with his own ideas.

Some other premiers called for faster action, and of a type involving more federal help for the unemployed, than Mr. St. Laurent proposed.

However, the premiers could display more restraint in terms of the federal plan when they get down to closer grips today.

The federal proposal as outlined by Mr. St. Laurent at the opening meeting of the two-day session initially intended to draft an agenda for a full federal-provincial conference, called for the federal government to pay up to 25 per cent of the cost of some unemployment relief now borne by provinces and municipalities.

He sought early action to get it—before other plans—into great welfare the fall meeting. Two premiers — Saskatchewan's T. C. Douglas and Nova Scotia's Henry Hicks—wanted even faster work. Mr. St. Laurent's proposal would be based on a federal-provincial assessment of the number of per-for later in the conference.

Islanders Have Guns Loaded To Guard Doctor From Police

THORSHAVN, Faeroe Islands (Reuters)—A general strike movement spread throughout the Faeroe Islands today in sympathy with the villagers of Klaksvik who are fighting the Danish government over the removal of their doctor.

Postal services and ferries running between the islands of this group in the North Atlantic midway the Shetlands were still operating, but police officers were certain the movement had popular support in all larger industries and businesses.

The Danish finance minister, Viggo Kampmann, in Copenhagen by air in an effort to revive stalled peace talks and avert a crisis.

WON'T COMPROMISE

A spokesman for the defiant villagers said "we dare not compromise" on the issue of whether to surrender the island's doctor, Olaf Halvorsen, to 130 Danish riot police.

The invasion force is waiting only a few miles from the tiny island, ready to make a move to land. The Klaksvikers have vowed to shoot it out if the police come ashore.

The Klaksvikers stood by Dr. Halvorsen when he was ordered to quit his post two years ago after he left the Danish medical association. They put him in hiding, and when the government brought a new doctor to the island, the rebels ripped his clothes off and chased him back to his ship.

CHINA'S CHOU EN-LAI IN BANDUNG

Poker-faced Premier Chou En-lai of Red China, is surrounded by bodyguards as he walks through the streets of Bandung, Indonesia, where he is attending the Afro-Asian conference. Advance predictions were that Chou would just about dominate the conference. But it was not so. Chou had to listen to some outspoken criticism of "Communist colonialism". He said Red China is willing to negotiate on the Formosa crisis, but would not agree that Chiang Kai-shek would be offered equal status with him in any negotiations. (Central Press Canadian.)

CNR PRESIDENT RECEIVES SEVERAL KNOCKS IN DEBATE

Members Are Critical Of Authority Attitude

A Liberal member pictured him Tuesday as too much of a dominant force in running the government-owned company. And an opposition member complained of an "authoritarian" attitude by Mr. Gordon toward the Commons.

His name was brought into the Commons discussion on a resolution preliminary to a bill, later introduced, to consolidate all existing legislation on the CNR.

Jean Pouliot (Lib.—Temiscouata) moved that the CNR be kept free from politics.

He said Mr. Gordon, as president, should not also be chairman of the railway's directors who now were "puppets" chosen by and subject to the president."

The directors' duty was to control Mr. Gordon and his vice-presidents. They should "hold him by the hand to keep him from getting into the same excesses that were the downfall of poor Sir Henry Thornton"—a reference to a former CNR president.

"Perhaps how great Sir Henry Thornton would have been if he had not been the president of the CNR for many years. He was alone and his extravagances were notorious. He used to ride in private cars and rugs is his house every time he had a visitor of note."

William Hamilton (PC—Montreal North-Dame-de-Grace) said both Mr. Gordon and Transport Minister Marler have an "authoritarian" attitude toward Parliament, shown at a recent meeting of a Commons committee.

Supreme Court Hearing Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — Argument opened Tuesday before the Supreme Court of Canada in the case of Nunziata Tripodi.

The 32-year-old Italian was convicted Nov. 5 1954, of murder in the strangling death of his 17-year-old wife, Domenica, last July 27. The woman was killed two hours after the arrival of Mrs. Tripodi from Italy with her two sons.

Tripodi's appeal was taken to the Ontario Court of Appeals and a new trial was ordered. This decision was set aside by a majority in the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Justice Rand said Tripodi's department stocks to have the Ontario Appeal Court decision overturned. He said the evidence showed that Tripodi reinstated Tripodi, who admitted at his trial that he knew that he strangled his wife but said he didn't know what he was doing, had been sentenced to life imprisonment Jan. 25.

A statement admitted as evidence at his trial quoted him as saying he killed his wife because he was convinced she was unfaithful to him during her years in Italy while he worked in Canada.

Gem-like Speeches

BIDDEFORD, Me. (AP)—It took only two minutes for 96 students to speak their pieces at a testimonial dinner Tuesday for the retired jeweler Henry Dupre.

Each spoke one word in a class graduating in the ancient fisherman, who was presented a gift bait box full of live worms.

Rarest Blood in World Being Rushed By RCAF Jet to Save Unborn Babe

EDMONTON (CP)—Two bottles of the rarest of all blood types are being rushed to California from a Canadian Air Force station in Alberta in time to bring the gift of life to a baby yet unborn.

An RCAF T-33 jet trainer was scheduled to leave here today on a non-stop flight from Edmonton to Jean Cailliou, they are from the Rocky mountain foothills.

An appeal for the blood was made by the International Red Cross on behalf of Dr. W. J. Hamilton of Redwood City. El-

Red Cross officials said only 25 persons are known to have the blood. There are two in Canada, both from the Calilboo Indian reserve near Edson, Alta.—two in the U.S. and two in England.

Dr. D. I. Buchanan, provincial director of the Red Cross blood transfusion service, said the blood type results when persons with RH positive and RH negative have a child.

In most cases, the first offspring lives but those following die.

Dr. Buchanan said Mrs. Robertson has had four babies and three miscarriages.

The blood was packed in a special container surrounded by ice and the bottles have special tops to prevent bursting at the high altitudes the jet will fly.

The plane, attached to central proving and testing group at the RCAF's northern headquarters, is piloted by Lt.-Cmdr. Allan J. Wood of Vancouver and Flt. Lt. H. Robertson of Stratford, Ont.

Eisenhower Ready To Confer Without Nationalist China

But Would Limit Parley To Cease-Fire in Strait

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the United States is willing to confer along with Red China regarding a Formosa area cease-fire, but on no matters affecting Nationalist China.

Backing up the position of State Secretary Dulles, the president told a press conference it may have been a bit of an overstatement for the United States to say last Saturday that it would "insist on free China's participation as an equal in any discussion" concerning the Formosa area.

The state department put out such a statement Saturday, after consultation with the president, when Dulles declined to say negotiate with the U. S. to relax the tension in the Formosa area.

Said a press conference Tuesday, however, that the United States is willing to negotiate with Communist China regarding a possible cease-fire in the Formosa straits.

He emphasized, however, that the U. S. would not deal about with Red China on any matters concerning the Chiang Kai-shek Nationalist regime.

Before the president stated his own views, Senator H. Alexander Smith (Rep., N. J.), a strong backer of the Chinese Nationalists, endorsed a move for face-to-face talks with the Reds on a possible cease-fire.

Smith, a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, said he thinks State Secretary Dulles took the right tack Tuesday in announcing that the United States is exploring the possibility of such discussions.

Dulles' statement was received with approval in London and Paris officials quarters on Formosa itself a Nationalist spokesman voiced disappointment, saying that "We strongly believe that any contact with the Reds will be fruitless."

Smith, in an interview, said: "I hope we can get them to sit down and talk with the Communist Chinese on the question of obtaining a straight cease-fire."

Smith thought Dulles had drawn an "important distinction" between cease-fire and other talks with the Red Chinese. He said he found it difficult to find out if Red China's Premier Chou En-lai was sincere in proposing a cease-fire in the Formosa straits.

Dulles said he would prefer United Nations handling of Formosa cease-fire negotiations.

Dulles is expected to ask Premier Mohammed Ali of Pakistan to seek clarification of Chou En-lai's intentions concerning Formosa, Pakistan Premier Mohammed Ali has emerged in the role of go-between. Dulles told a press conference Tuesday he was uncertain what Chou meant in saying the conference should deny Red China's "sovereign right" to "liberate" Formosa from the Nationalists.

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain today disclaimed any special pledge to help the United States in the defence of Formosa but announced she is probing the current movement in Peiping toward talks on the crisis.

Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan told the House of Commons that the British charge d'affaires in Peiping has been instructed to ask Premier Chou En-lai to elaborate "still further" his recent statements on the possibilities of talks with the United States.

Chou suggested such talks in a statement to the Afro-Asian conference last week and State Secretary Dulles suggested Tuesday the United States would be willing for cease-fire talks with China.

Macmillan said Britain was "encouraged" by Chou's conciliatory solution of the problem."

NOT WITHOUT HOPE

"I am not without hope that the whole situation in the Far East may begin to develop along more favorable lines," Macmillan said.

Labor member Ian Mikardo, who raised the matter in the House of Commons, asked whether the foreign secretary could confirm or deny "unanimous reports" in the American press that the British government was considering under certain circumstances joining the United States in the defence of Formosa "but was frightened to say so now after the Bandung campaign."

Macmillan retorted: "I think that statement is rather unworthy of the honorable gentleman, I have not seen any such statement."

"The British government has no communiqué other than such general obligations as might arise from membership of the United Nations," Macmillan said.

SOLUTION SOUGHT

"We are using our endeavors to try to bring about a conciliatory solution of the problem."

Mikardo's original question asked what new commitments the government had accepted concerning the defence of Formosa.

Macmillan replied:

"The government have no commitments other than such general obligations as might arise from membership of the United Nations."

"British policy has always been to try to get a cease-fire and see the problems of Formosa and the offshore islands settled by negotiation.

"I am not without hope that the whole situation in the Far East may begin to develop in more favorable lines."

Launch New Ferry Amherst Islander On Thursday

KINGSTON — Launching of the new Ontario Municipal ferry, the M.V. "Amherst Islander" at Kingston Shipyards, Limited, here at 5 p.m., Thursday, may mark the beginning of a new era for Amherst Island, generations and Addington County township, 3 miles off-shore in Lake Ontario, which entered Canadian history as a portion of the seigneury granted to the Baron de Longueuil by King Louis XIV of France. It comprises 14,183 acres. With completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway and international hydro-electric power generation dams, heavy industrialization in and near Kingston may make the island, now an isolated rural community, an ideal location for year-round estate and other housing developments.

Mrs. W. Nickle, wife of the Hon. W. M. Nickle, Q.C., Provincial Secretary of Ontario, who is a member for the riding of Kingston City, will sponsor the new ferry which will built at Kingston Shipyards, Limited, on designs by Canadian Car Limited and Gherman, naval architects, Montreal.

Warden E. Morley of Lennox and Addington County Council and other members of council, Reeve J. F. Fleming of Amherst Island township, will be prominent at the launching ceremony, which is scheduled to take place at 5 p.m. Thursday. A detachment of Island school children accompanied by their teachers will attend the historic function.

CARRIES 19 MOTOR CARS

The new ferry, "The Amherst Islander," will be 192 feet, amidships, mainland port on Highway No. 33, and 60 feet, at the operative centre of the island township. It will be able to accommodate 19 automobile vehicles and 125 passengers in addition to the crew. Maximum speed will be 11 miles per hour.

Dimensions of the vessel are as follows: Length 192 feet; breadth 37 feet, six inches; depth, 10 feet. It will be powered by a 330 horse power diesel engine.

The new ferry will be a side-loader with special provision on the bow for transporting horses, cattle and other livestock. The vessel will be equipped with its own chiller system and cooler to insure germ-free water of excellent quality.

Upper deck of the new ferry will be used by passengers. There will be adequate room for unloading off the enclosed lounge and an open promenade deck.

Following Thursday's launching a reception for guests will be given at Kingston Shipyards, Limited, executive offices.

Radio Talent Auction Will Be Sponsored by Rotarians

Some people hide their lights under a bushel, while the talent possessed by some people should be given them to hide under a bushel.

If you're the typical Joe you're bound to have some or other hidden hands. For instance, you may have a friend — (you must)—who is really cool on the Irish bagpipes and revolutionary airs of Lower Provence. Him you'll want to help.

Or conversely you may wake up limp-headed and soggy-eyed in the morning because the guy next door sits up all hours—practising Ukranian folk songs while accompanying himself on the balalaika. You'll want to get public opinion behind regarding this guy.

Now, thanks to Belleville Rotary, you have a chance to do both that this coming week-end and at the same time make a worthy contribution to community service.

Next Saturday the club is presenting for the first time here a radio talent auction, which will be broadcast from the city council chambers over CJBQ.

Starting at 8.30 p.m. the auction will continue indefinitely through the evening and will be open to exploitation by every mother's son who can sing a song, tell a wholesome story or play the clockenspiel with widgets in his hair.

WILL COMPLY WITH REQUESTS

For a pledge of anything from $1 to $100 you can name anyone you want to hear perform and anything over the air and the club will do its darndest to comply with your request, and the proceeds from the pledges will be given to the club's crippled children's fund.

Prizes for the auction are available in several city locations, including Latimer's Drug Store, the Yacht and Shrine Clubs and the officers' mess at the Armouries. Beside each small stack of cards is a jar.

All that is necessary is to fill in one of the cards, naming the person you want to hear perform, what you want him to do and, together with your pledge, drop it in the jar.

In this way it is possible to entertain those whom you do not love by presenting them a phonograph or live talent and side those whom you do by making it possible for them to reach a wider audience through the immediate medium of radio.

The night of the show you can make your pledges and request simply by calling WO 2-5481.

The auction, quite an undertaking in its way, depends for its success on the co-operation of everyone involved, from the Rotarians down to the artists requested to perform. In particular does it rely on the sporting attribute of the latter.

Spontaneous and unrehearsed, when the show goes on the air, the event will just be starting to roll.

ENTIRE COMMITTEE TO HELP

Emceeing the entire event through its unlimited time schedule will be Jack Ellis, Rotarian, who will be responsible for keeping the presentation going at a breathless and lively pace, and the pledges and requests come pouring in.

Backing up Jack will be a phoning committee of Rotarians, standing duty over a system that nine phone lines into city hall, and a treasurer constantly ready for immediate action, when a pledge is phoned. It will be their duty to get the pledge and have the artist named to perform.

Without doubt, the show on the air Saturday night may be weird, wonderful or woeful but it will be a good community service. It also spells a barrel of fun—and maybe a bushelful of talent.

Toronto Youth Held by Police After Car Taken

Ditching of a stolen car near Grafton has led to the apprehension of a 16-year-old youth, who is being held in connection with the theft.

Provincial police at Belleville stated that Albert Swan, Toronto, had been turned over to Cobourg police following his apprehension through a road block set up half-a-mile west of Trenton at 4.30 this morning.

A transport driver saw a car roll into the ditch near Grafton and noticed two men leave the vehicle in a hurry. He notified provincial police at Cobourg, who checked and found the ditched car had been stolen in Nelson township.

Acting on the assumption that the men would attempt to hitch-hike, police called for assistance and roadblocks were set up.

Swan and a second man, Gilbert Day, of Centralia, were taken by police from a transport outside Trenton. After questioning Day was allowed to go.

Seeding Is Now Underway In South Hastings

Seeding is now underway in South Hastings, but many farmers will not be on the land for at least another week, due to the cold, seedilious improve rapidly.

The weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture states that farmers in Northumberland county are also ready for good seeding weather, but little has been done to date. The same is true in Prince Edward, where some corn sowing has been made in sowing peas and spring grain.

Increased interest is being shown this year in the use of legume inoculant for canning factory peas.

Livestock has been selling better during the past few weeks with finished beef animals commanding a special premium.

Council Defers Decision to Hire Engineering Firm

Council decision to hire a firm of consulting engineers to report on plans for the Parkwood sewer system for the Parkwood Heights area will be deferred until such time as the commissioner of works is hired.

This was the decision Monday evening when a letter from Redfern, Laughlin and Smith, consulting engineers, was read to council indicating the firm would guide the Belleville plans for only one per cent of the cost of the project.

"Why do we want a firm of consulting engineers to do this work when we have to hire a commissioner of works?" asked Alderman Tice.

"There is common sense in that suggestion," replied chairman of the board of works Alderman Ben Safe. "Maybe we should postpone our decision and save the cost of the engineering fee."

The letter was accordingly returned back to the board of works committee.

John Luscombe To Represent 'Y' at Conference

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the YMCA, John Luscombe of the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Services, was named the city's representative of the Belleville Association to the centennial celebration of the World's Alliance of the YMCA's to be held in Paris, France, this August.

John will be sailing with other Canadian delegates on the S.S. Homeric from Quebec on August 3rd, arriving in Southampton, England, the next day. There he will join a four-day tour of England, visiting farms and historic places in London, Windsor, Oxford, Eton and Stratford-on-Avon.

In Paris, France, he will attend two conferences: The World's Conference of 'Y's Men and the World's Conference of the World Alliance, which will culminate with a mammoth rally in Paris, at which over 7,000 YMCA delegates from all over the world are expected to participate.

Before sailing back for Canada, he plans to join a second tour, visiting cities in France, Belgium, Germany and Switzerland.

Commenting on John Luscombe's coming trip, D. Diamantides, general secretary of the YMCA, who heads a North American delegation to Europe last summer to help in the preparation of the centennial, said "John will have an experience that comes only once in a life time."

John Luscombe is a very active member of local YMCA. He is chairman of the Young Adult committee of the 'Y's Men's Club, chairman of So-Ed, and a member of the program committee of the YMCA.

North Carolina Kiwanians Guests Of Local Club

Three Kiwanians from Burlington, North Carolina, yesterday were the honored guests of Belleville Kiwanis at the presented the U.S.-Canada Good Will Week.

At the same time Bud Punchard, member of the club's Boys' Work committee, presented the Burlington Kiwanis club was on his way to Burlington to return Kiwanis Buck.

U.S.-Canada Good Will was established 34 years ago as a project of Kiwanis International and commemorates the signing of the Rush-Bagot Agreement in 1817, which demilitarized the boundary between the U.S. and Canada.

The visitors to Belleville were Earl Pardou, president of the Burlington Kiwanis Club; past-president and Howard White.

Speaking on behalf of the visitors, Earl Pardou noted that Belleville and its Kiwanis club were known about the same size Burlington and its Kiwanis organization and commented on the fact that only an "imaginary border" exists between both countries.

"We are neighbors in Canada and what the clubs are doing," he said.

He then presented the club with a package of hoer, a product of his home-town while Belleville president Staff McKenna reciprocated by presenting each of the visitors with a box of Belleville cheese.

The club also heard an appeal for volunteer canvassers for the Salvation Army of Red Shield appeal from 2-20, made by Ted Schwab.

Guest speaker at the luncheon was Bill Barrie, Northern Electric, who spoke on his 1953 trip to the Western Arctic.

The speaker was introduced by Stuart Robb and thanked by Larry Kells.

Letters Find Way Into Waste Paper Basket

Belleville city council wants nothing to do with anonymous letters which find their way to the city clerk's desk.

This was forcibly demonstrated Monday evening when no less than three letters signed "Citizen" and "Interested Citizen", found their way into the waste paper basket, without being read.

"If the writers can't sign their names they can't expect their letters to be read in this council," was the comment heard as the letters were "filed" in the waste paper basket.

Trades and Labor Council Holds Monthly Meet

At the regular meeting of Belleville Trades and Labor Council, Art Whitehead, vice president, took the chair in the absence of President Ed. deLeeuw.

Mr. Henry Nokes, district representative of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, was present and gave a very interested group of delegates an instructive talk on the education of working people regarding such subjects as Workmen's Compensation, Unemployment Insurance, stating that a school should be set up to instruct workers on these and other subjects.

Ken Blaind, delegate from the I.B.E.W., stated that his local is seeking to bring into effect the licensing of electricians. The council was unanimously in favor of such a move and promised to support Mr. Blaind, especially the plumbers as they also are after the same by-law.

Art Whitehead, representative on the Hospital Board, gave an enlightening report. Mr. Whitehead is chairman of Public Relations and told the council that the board is doing a good job and he was happy to be associated with the Board.

Mr. Henry Nokes congratulated Art Whitehead on his report stating that he was glad to know that Belleville Council is now taking an interest in public affairs. The Council also has a representative on the Belleville and District Apprenticeship Advisory Committee.

Chicago Couple Drown in Lake At Huntsville

HUNTSVILLE (CP)—A Chicago husband and wife were drowned Tuesday in Rebekah lake, about 18 miles west of here, when they leaped from their boat to escape the flames of its burning outboard motor.

The body of John Murray, 38, was recovered from the lake Tuesday night and his wife's body was found later.

Witnesses said the boat seemed to erupt suddenly into flames as it neared a cottage owned by Mrs. Murray's mother, Mrs. James Quinn of Port Sydney. It appeared to onlookers that Mrs. Murray leaped overboard to escape the fire and was followed by her husband. Both disappeared within seconds.

Mrs. Quinn saw the accident but at the time was unaware the two were her daughter and son-in-law. Despite a heart condition, she attempted to paddle a canoe to the burning boat.

When she reached the boat it had already been taken in tow by Robert Field, a neighbor, who went to the rescue but arrived too late to save the drowning couple. Mrs. Quinn recognized the boat when she drew near.

Four Dangerous Prisoners Break Jail at Canton

CANTON, N. Y. (AP) — Four prisoners described as dangerous broke out of the St. Lawrence county jail today and fled in a blue automobile.

Sheriff Henry Denner said the men were armed.

One of them struck Jailer Howard Jenkins over the head with a pistol. Jenkins was not hurt seriously, however.

State police issued an order to "shoot to kill" if the four resisted arrest.

They said one of the men was a "potential killer."

The escape car, a deputy sheriff's, was reported seen at 7:45 a. m. on a rural road about eight miles from Canton. State police said it probably was headed toward Route 3, which runs east to Tupper lake and west to Watertown.

The fugitives might drive to Route 12 and go through Carthage toward Utica, police said.

Police said one of the fugitives, Frank (The Hook) Talarico, 44, of Utica, was a three-time loser in criminal convictions and had said he never would be taken alive again.

Ex-Hubbie Flies To Susan Hayward

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Actress Susan Hayward lay in a hospital today, recovering from what detectives said was a suicide attempt, while her ex-husband waited for a chance to see her.

Actor Jess Barker flew from New Orleans Tuesday after learning that the redhaired star had been rushed to a hospital by detectives who broke down a door and saved her from what was termed an overdose of sleeping medicine.

Her doctor wouldn't let him see her Tuesday night. She was described as in "satisfactory" condition, but Barker said her physician said she was "not yet fully recovered."

Friends believed Miss Hayward, 33, was despondent over a long dispute with Barker. They were divorced in August in one of Hollywood's bitterest trials in recent years.

But when Barker learned of his former wife's plight, he said:

"Oh, my God! I love her. I love her."

ENVOYS RETURNING

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Two high-level United States envoys left today on the long trip to the White House to report on their military - diplomatic emergency mission to Formosa.

Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state, maintained the same tight - lipped silence that marked their three days at President Chiang Kai-shek's suburban retreat.

Nationalist Chinese fears that their mission sought abandonment of the off-shore islands of Quemoy and the Matsus seemed to have subsided. Their disappointment and bitterness replaced these earlier apprehensions in the wake of State Secretary Dulles' Washington announcement Tuesday of a new open-door policy toward ceasefire talks with Red China.

WOULD BE FRUITLESS

"We strongly believe that any contact with the Reds will be fruitless," a qualified Nationalist official said.

"Everyone knows what the Communists mean when they visit Formosa and they want to continue with their program of world conquest."

Robertson and Radford had "a useful exchange of views" with Chiang. The purpose of their trip, he said, was to consider problems relating to the U.S.-Nationalist mutual defense treaty. Robertson declined to say whether they had advised Nationalist withdrawal from Quemoy and the Matsus.

The Nationalist - garrisoned islands of the Chinese mainland within range of Communist big guns.

CNR

He said Mr. Gordon had protested when opposition members tried to investigate the sale for $915,000 of four CNR hotels and lodges with a book value of $3,300,000. The railway head apparently considered it an indiscretion to give full information to Commons members.

Mr. Hamilton added that Mr. Marier seemed to think there was something wrong in the committee trying to pass judgment on CNR directors.

The new legislation on the CNR provides only two innovations. The company would be authorized to build branch lines of less than six miles without specific parliamentary approval and to operate motor vehicle and telecommunication services now carried on by subsidiaries.

C. E. Johnston (SC—Bow River) expressed fear that the measure will give the CNR added power in what he said is a campaign to drive truckers out of business.

NOTHING SINISTER

Mr. Marier replied there is no "sinister change of policy" in the bill. The CNR would have no more power than its subsidiaries now have. The change would facilitate provision of highway service where CNR rail service was discontinued.

The provision covering branch lines, he said, will permit the CNR to meet requests by industries more promptly.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) said CNR employees are living in fear of layoffs. In the Calgary area, those laid off were passed over recently when 1,000 immigrants were hired for extra gang work.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) urged immediate action to prevent further CNR layoffs, and A. M. Nicholson (CCF—Mackenzie) asked an investigation of R. F. Welch Co., which he said profited by hiring immigrants to do contract road work for the CNR.

ISRAEL SEVEN YEARS OLD

Today the state of Israel celebrates its seventh birthday.

Few seven-year-olds have been exposed to so many hardships and have survived to face, with such great vigor and so much confidence, the future years.

That future is not particularly bright.

Representatives of 29 nations in Asia and Africa, meeting at Bandung, Indonesia, have just passed a resolution expressing support for the "rights of the Arab people in Palestine."

It would be incorrect to misinterpret such a resolution expressing support for the "rights of the Arab people in Palestine."

It would be incorrect to misinterpret such a resolution as evidence of anti-Semitism, or perhaps, since the Arabs like the Jews, are members of the Semitic race, we ought to say to regard this resolution as a sign of anti-Judaism.

The Arabs have a case against the Jews and it is a strong one. But the Jews have a case against the world and it is a stronger one.

The terrible persecution at the hands of the Nazis, climaxing a long and bloody history of oppression in many corners of the earth, fanned the ever-glowing ember of desire of the Jews for a homeland that they could call their own.

Who is to say that the Jews are not entitled to realize this dream?

Their claim to Palestine, though, is not one which will overly impress any person with even a smattering of knowledge of the manner in which the various races of mankind have migrated across seas and continents in past centuries.

If every race insisted on re-establishing control of its original homeland havoc would rule on every continent.

The claim of the Jews to Palestine cannot, therefore, be justified on the basis of history. But the Jews have as much or more right to Palestine as any migrants in the past to any of the lands in which they settled and which they made to blossom and bear fruit.

The world, however, does improve and today our sense of justice will not permit the Arabs to drive out such as Spaniards and Frenchmen and Britons treated the Indians of the Americas, as the Belgians and the Germans treated the natives of vast portions of Africa, as the Dutch treated the Boers of South Africans, even today, treat the members of the colored races in that country.

Nor is there adequate evidence to suggest that the Jews would have treated the Arabs in similar fashion, had they been given an adequate opportunity to work out with the Arabs in Palestine a solution to the intricate and innumerable problems arising from the establishment of a Zionist state. The native Arabs, though, not unnaturally, resented and resisted Jewish immigration to Palestine; war followed; passions rose to white heat; bitterness ate its way into the hearts and minds of those on both sides of the struggle.

That is the situation as it exists today. Those of us who are not engaged in the struggle, either by the color of race or creed or by geographic proximity to the scene of the conflict, have a duty to refrain from hasty judgments and quick denunciations and this duty applies alike to both sides in the struggle.

We might also ask ourselves whether our past history is not such as to leave us in debt to the Jews—and whether perhaps this debt could not be discharged by the world governments now providing some practical aid to the displaced and embittered Arabs and their fellows. The best gift that could be given Israel is to provide her people with an opportunity to work out their own salvation in peace—and this gift may perhaps most easily be bought not by any move to appease her foes but by endeavoring to devise such methods of correcting injustices of the kind that were inevitable in any such an adventure as the birth of a new nation.

TRIBUTE TO THE PRESS

Colin Cameron, CCF member for Nanaimo, B.C., and Hon. Walter E. Harris, Federal Minister of Finance, have been at dagger points over a speech by Mr. Harris concerning Trotskyites in the CCF.

Mr. Harris has denied the accuracy of the news report which aroused Mr. Cameron's ire.

"Misquotation appears to be an occupational disease of Liberal cabinet ministers," quipped Mr. Cameron in the House of Commons.

He said that he himself had made speeches for twenty years without being misquoted.

Since very few newspapers support the CCF, could there be any higher tribute to the integrity, as well as the capability, of the average Canadian newspaper reporter?

Thanks Mr. Cameron!

THE MARTHAS

The Marthas of the church are those
Who serve the Lord from day to day.
There always is a group that sews,
Or keeps the altar flower-gay.
A group will bake the cakes and pies,
But seldom stay for speech and song.
Without the aid each one supplies
The church could never get along.

The Marthas work in aprons white.
The linen on the board they spread.
And then they vanish out of sight
As soon as every guest is fed.

To get the program under way,
The chairman is supposed to say:
And to the throng assembled
"Let's give the women-folk a hand."

The Marthas serve the church for love,
Their service freely they allow.
I sometimes think the Lord above
Must smile to see them "take a bow."
For all their courage while they live,
For all the patience they command,
I'm sure, some day, that God will give
The Marthas of His Church a "hand."

Los Angeles 'Drunk Farm'

(By Grove Patterson, In The Toledo Blade.)

Have you ever heard about the two million dollar "drunk farm", six hours' ride from old row in Los Angeles?

There you find a spread of pink concrete buildings on a 533-acre farm. And there the courts send thousands of temperance lecturers, with accent on the temporary. Latterly, some labor-Catholics Anonymous and some don't.

A fair percentage are cured by work and rest but not what is sometimes called the Rehab centre and sometimes the "drunk farm". It's mostly for the "chronics".

Before the farm was established thousands of chronics were bundled poured into the Los Angeles jail farm, Sybil Brand, often referred to as Iglase, came back 10, 20 or even 100 times. The jail sentence did them no good. They were just straightened out on the farm.

The mess hall seats 1,500, and the recreation room-auditorium hall seats the same number.

Most of the men live in their forties, and a large number are repeaters. After an inmate is "dried out" he can apply for a lease and he will get help in finding a job, and a home. In the meantime he will have gathered some experience in various kinds of work on the farm and in the greenhouses.

The nursery is the showpiece of the center. It is a fairly new development, but already the chronics who work eight hours a day have put 8,000 plants in the ground and rows of eucalyptus trees. Last year the inmates canned 32,000 gallons of tomatoes.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AFTER SHIPWRECK

One of the great outstanding words of the Christian gospel is "liberty."

The worldly living think they are free, but in reality they are not. Take an extreme case—the alcoholic. He has cast all restraint aside and drifts all the way he can, any time he can get it. He is perfectly free to do as he wants to do in this regard. But is he free? Seven million miserable men and women in this country would, if you were to ask them, tell you, weeping, that they are slaves. Nobody is a free man who has to have any particular thing in life to make him happy. We are only free when we get on top of life. We may think we are free when we are living our own way, but there is probably no slavery in the world so degrading as the slavery of those who can do whatever they want to do at any time they want to do it, and if they want to do it, they are recalled from this slave more than from among any other.

St. Paul went through the terrible experience of shipwreck before he reached the city of Rome. Much of life's happiness and many of its most significant objectives become ours not after fair sailing but after shipwreck. Life is so constructed that many of its blessings are yielded only after much sacrifice and trouble. It is after shipwreck that one of Paul's companion's wrote: "And so we came to Rome."...

Himalayas Call Climbers

(Manchester Journal)

When Mount Everest was scaled at last in 1953, many people doubtless thought that the strange fraternity of mountain climbers would lose interest in the Himalayas. Any such expectations, however, have been falsified by events. 1954 proved to be perhaps the busiest year on record, with expeditions from Britain, Italy, Germany, Switzerland, Argentina and Japan attacking a host of peaks.

The great exploit of the year, of course, was the conquest of K-2, or Godwin-Austen, by an Italian party. Then came word that a British expedition will make the climbing season this spring with an attempt on Kanchenjunga, third highest mountain in the world, and the tallest remaining unclimbed.

Kanchenjunga — the name is said to mean "The Five Treasuries of Great Snows," from its five peaks—has 28,146 feet high, a thousand feet below Everest. It is however, much bigger in mass and considered more accessible. It has always been considered a harder climb. Attempts to climb it were made by both British and German expeditions a quarter century ago, and disasters eluded them.

Early reports of Kanchenjunga's difficulties have been amply confirmed by the aerial reconnaissance recently undertaken in preparation for this year's attack. The ridges appear a possible route to the topmost peak. Nevertheless, the problems facing the climbers are said to include a 500-foot cliff at the 27,000-foot level, surmounted by a roof with the most of the time and a steep rock ice ridge above it. Moreover, a snowcap that no snow can rest on it. Negotiating such obstacles on ordinary mountains in the Rockies is hard enough, but at these altitudes and latitudes, where every move is an effort, it is a supreme test of human endurance. The party will probably include some of the conquerors of Everest, the only men physically fit. Kanchenjunga an even sterner antagonist—something that is. Even the violent and unpredictable Himalayan weather gives little respite.

Even if the "Five Treasuries of Great Snows" is conquered this year, plenty of targets will still remain. Apart altogether from the famous "big peaks" there are still scores of unclimbed peaks above 25,000 feet, and literally thousands between 18,000 and 25,000. Many of them present much greater difficulties than Everest, K-2, or even Kanchenjunga. There is, for example, the Mustagh Tower, near K-2, which has been called the ultimate citadel." It is a mere 24,000 feet high, only 4,000 less but it rises virtually sheer from base to summit, with no ledges for camps or protection of any kind, so that it is regarded as the perfect test for good skill, has learned to control the atom.

Population Grows Fast

(New York Times)

While the swerage reader is going through this brief editorial the population of the United States will have increased by half a dozen or more. This does not mean merely that that many babies are being born. It means that births minus deaths and departures and plus arrivals of permanent residents amount to over that number a day, or more than 2,000 a year. Thus our population on March 1, as reported by the Census Bureau, was 164,307,000.

This is a large number of people although it constitutes only about 7 per cent of the total population of the globe. To emphasize the rate of increase it may be pointed out that the population today is greater than 100,000,000 above that recorded by the census in the year in which President Eisenhower was born—that is to say, 1890. We have been fruitful and we have multiplied far beyond the expectations of the population students of even a generation ago.

The growth of population brings new problems, of course, but they, however desired and loved, is a problem, and a growing army of babies is not a problem as well as a delight. But these are problems that we have to face in the world. Old Dr. Malthus, with his nightmare of population and food, is not the best of subsistence, need not frighten a generation that has learned to control the atom.

Of all sports, high-altitude mountaineering is the most exhaustive and the most dangerous. The risks and hardships its devotees joyously undertake seem almost insane to the average man. But there will always be found able to explain exactly what drives them on. There is never any shortage of recruits for their ranks—nor is there yet any lack of raw material for their efforts.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Two beautiful new insurance company buildings have just gone up in my town. They are ornate, marble, lofty. Apparently the insurance business is now on pretty firm ground and it is doing more than it doubtless has money in the bank. So, might this not be a good time for a quadrennial look at insurance companies that has been going on for the last 40 years or a good many of us for some years past?

How about changing insurance policies to read what we are Not going to cover, instead of what we cover, after you have carried a policy for years and years, that you have paid premiums that were insured for is one of the few things I can't find in the policy. And since these exceptions are so few, how easy it would be to list them. Then I could see at a glance, save, and the anxious and troubled reading on the part of the insured.

Until I was finally trusted with a "floater" policy by an insurance company that persuaded Dad that I was honest man, I carried policies in which it was specified that fire or the salesman who sold them to me to discover just what I was not insured for. By the time the fire came, there they were! I once got a cigarette burn in the leather upholstery of my sport touring car. What do you know? Cigarette burns are not insured against. The one thing the policy didn't cover! On my summer cottage and its contents I had a fire insurance policy, side contingency including winds, but it didn't cover the cost of rent a canvas canoe to be re-covered after it had been stove in by a rock. The market's shop burned down with my canoe. Sure enough, my canoe was not insured. It was sent from my premises. And to my surprise I found another policy which must have been printed by delayed-action ink, which said that watercraft will broke from the moor my wharf were no longer insured.

Called the agent in to get a complete list of the things I was not insured for, which I could paste in the policy about the size of a quick lunch menu!

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Modern Treatment of Piles

Practically painless injection (ambulant, office) treatment for internal hemorrhoids (piles), which detains the patient only a few minutes, once or twice a week, for from four to eight times, is far more satisfactory than the crude 19th century clamp and cautery operation, which hospitalizes the victim for from two to three weeks and is generally attended with or followed by a good deal of pain.

This is the consensus of the many correspondents who have reported their experience.

I hope no reader will assume that injection treatment is the best modern treatment for all cases of hemorrhoids (piles). In my judgment it is the method of choice for internal (bleeding) piles—at least it would be if I were the patient. But injection treatment is not applicable to external (the most painful) piles.

External piles demand surgery —the surgery may be done in the doctor's office, perhaps under local anesthesia, but there is no alternative, to the best of my knowledge.

A great deal of popular misunderstanding of the question of treatment of piles is due to the fact that a so-called "attack" of piles—that is, accession of or development of great pain and discomfort—naturally subsides in the course of days or weeks, or less, no matter whether any remedy or treatment has been used or not.

Many old timers still in practice will agree on meer at you if or when you venture to ask about this ambulant or injection treatment you have heard about and if they tell you the method was tried long ago and discarded as "no good" or too dangerous or doesn't cure, that is all true. The same objection may apply to radical surgery, except that, as I have tried to explain, the modern injection method is worth trying first, unless you are a stoic.

What Might Have Been

(International Science Press Service)

The great English poet, Keats, died at the age of 26; the Polish composer, Chopin, at 39—both of tuberculosis.

Both would probably have survived had they received treatment with modern drugs and if they had been treated in accordance with present day methods.

Had modern drugs like penicillin, cortisone, or polycycline been available not so long ago, history might have been quite different!

Princess Charlotte, the only child of George IV, died in child birth. Her son was stillborn. It is said that the obstetrician, Sir Robert Croft, over-bled her during pregnancy. At any rate, she was exhausted even before her long and fruitless confinement began. Such a mistake would not occur today. Croft later shot himself for his mistake. This loss of two people in direct succession to the British throne meant that George IV was succeeded by his brother William, and he in turn by Queen Victoria. Is it too fantastic to claim that a doctor's error changed not merely a great dynasty, but also influenced the world's history?

Three celebrated composers died of infectious diseases that succumbed off Schubert, Pritheol Jee Weber and Mendelssohn. Antibiotics now are often effective against the first two fatal and sickness cholera is much more difficult to treat. It has been more or less epidemic in many countries by the purification of water supplies, and by immunization.

Another famous composer who died young was Mozart. He was always be cured in all but its last stages, and which may result, sometimes even then, in recovery. His affliction was paresis, a late manifestation of syphilis in the brain and nervous system. Today, this is treated by deliberately bringing on fever with malaria. The malaria parasite and then applied. Several cases of this other, and when penicillin is also given, this treatment usually saves the patient's life. Mozart, as he is not cured of the damage which the disease may have already caused.

The French story writer, Guy de Maupassant, was another victim of syphilis.

Alexander the Great was cured of by malaria at the height of his power and in the prime of life. The English statesman, Oliver Cromwell, died of malaria, another victim of malaria. He certainly died of a fever closely resembling that illness. His great enemy, Charles II, was cured of the disease by quinine, which was introduced to Western Europe after Cromwell's death. He and Charles XII of Sweden were among the first notable Europeans to receive the drug, which still remains the best treatment for many types of malaria.

Another famous victim of a now-curable infection was the poet, Byron, who died in Greece of what doctors think was rheumatic fever complicated by pneumonia. Treatment with the derivatives of salicylic acid and penicillin would probably have saved this great romantic poet. Like Byron, the French composer, Chopin, died a tragic death far from home. He caught leprosy during his travels, on Tahiti, in the South Pacific. Drugs of the sulphone group might have proved a cure or arrested the course of the disease.

But these people died from diseases or conditions which medical science has since learned to deal with. Many more people have died of complaints that modern treatment so frequently conquer. Napoleon died of cancer — probably of the stomach. This is now often eradicated in an early operation.

The successful treatment of the Emperor Frederick III of Germany might have had important consequences. He died of cancer of the larynx after a brief reign after ascending the throne. His official physician was Sir Morell Mackenzie, the leading throat specialist of the day.

Mackenzie is criticized for not having removed the emperor's larynx. He was probably right in not doing so, since it would have left his royal patient dumb, in any case, this operation was usually fatal 70 years ago. Nowadays it is often performed, the patient can be supplied with an artificial larynx, or taught to speak by practising a method that is brought up from the stomach.

Another victim of cancer was Mary Tudor, Queen of England, who died of an ovarian growth. Its exact nature is unknown, this is now fairly common and successful. Queen Anne suffered from gout, for the growth led at least twice to the production of false gangrene requiring surgery. Had she given birth to an heir, would the Roman Catholic faith that England have remained the national religion?

These are the most fascinating IF questions of history posed by the absence of a scalpel, a hypodermic needle, or a dose of some drug.

Good Question

(Brantford Expositor)

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority is seeking a staff that is trained personnel man at $4,800 a year and three $3,000 a year administrative officers "with high school graduation or equivalent." Why spend money on high schools to collect $200 a year less than a man who went only to high school?.

Trout Fishing Was Good On Berkeley Street

LONDON (Reuters)—Trout fishing was good on Berkeley street in the centre of London Tuesday. Some 200 live trout wriggled and flipped about on the pavement to the astonishment of passersby. Traffic ground to a halt and stared at the spectacle.

The fish spilled out of a tank which slid off a truck as it turned a corner near Berkeley Square.

Most surprised person of all was the truck driver. He watched in amazement as the honest passersby collected all 200 fish and stipped them back into the tank.

Employees at a nearby restaurant even brought out buckets of water to fill up the tank again.

Unable to Meet Demand For Gas

WASHINGTON (CP)—An official of Union Gas Company of Canada Limited told the Federal Power Commission Tuesday it still may be unable to meet all of the demands for natural gas in the area it services in western Ontario.

Thomas Weir, vice-president and general manager of Union Gas, was testifying in support of an application by Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company for permission to increase its exports to Union Gas by 14,500,000,000 cubic feet a year. It now supplies Union Gas with 5,500,000,000 cubic feet a year.

Weir said his firm handled 8,700 applications from new customers last year. As of April 11 this year, applications on file numbered 4,750. He did not expect the company would be able to service all of these on the basis of present supplies.

BANCROFT

Accused Guilty Of Receiving Stolen Property

BANCROFT — Pleading guilty to receiving stolen property, Lloyd Francis Anderson, of Wilberforce was sentenced to six weeks in jail in Magistrate Jackson's court. A further sentence of four weeks to run concurrently with the first, was imposed on a second charge of supplying liquor to a minor. Anderson was also fined $10 and costs, when he pleaded guilty to a charge of having liquor at a place other than his residence.

Cpl. Cal. Archie Grayling told the court that, whilst investigating another case concerning a juvenile, he had occasion to question accused, who admitted receiving money, knowing it to have been stolen.

On April 16, accompanied by Constable Ray Hooker, Cpl. Grayling discovered an abandoned car on Highway 28, the floor of the car was strewn with beer bottles. Apprehended, Anderson said that the beer was his. He had been drinking with a party which included a 14-year-old girl.

FINED $100

Found guilty on a charge of driving, whilst his ability was impaired, William, H. Barker, of Bancroft, was fined $100 and $66 or in default one month in gaol, by Magistrate R. C. Jackson. No evidence was offered by the Crown on further charges of careless and dangerous driving.

The case arose from an accident on March 13, when a panel truck, driven by Barker, left the road on Monk Street, hit a tree and injured four boys riding in the vehicle.

Crown witness Professor Rogers told the court that he tested a sample of Barker's blood and found it to contain two parts per 1,000 of alcohol, which would represent the consumption of 15 ozs. of liquor, or eight times that amount of beer. "Such a figure", the witness said, "would definitely produce intoxication". He had seen people dead with a ratio of less than four parts per 1,000.

Asked by defending counsel W. D. Bark, whether he was aware that other authorities might disagree with him, the professor replied that a very small minority might do sb. When Mr. Bark mentioned a Dr. Ravinovitch, Professor Rogers said that the doctor was probably the only man who could disagree with his opinion. Dr. S. S. Kelly, of Bancroft, asked by assistant Crown Attorney John Lennox, whether he noticed anything about Barker when he examined him on the night of the accident, replied that he noticed a smell of stale alcohol, "the old raspberry smell".

OPP Constable John Hawkins told the court that accused smelled of liquor, his eyes were bloodshot and he was very voluble.

Giving evidence, Barker admitted being at an all-night drinking party on the night before the accident, but said he had consumed only two bottles of beer that day. When driving into Bancroft he was dazzled by the lights of an oncoming car and narrowly missed another car parked on the highway without lights. His vehicle then went out of control and hit the tree. Milton Brough, who was walking along the road at the time said the only other traffic he saw was a car parked in a driveway with its lights on.

After listening to 10 witnesses for four hours the magistrate decided there was sufficient evidence to register a conviction.

Reserves Verdict In Dresden Case Of Discrimination

CHATHAM (CP)—Judge H. E. Grosch of Kent county reserved judgment Tuesday in the appeal of two Dresden restaurant owners against conviction under the Ontario Fair Accommodation Practices Act.

The day-long hearing of Morley McKay and Anne Emerson, appealing conviction and fines of $20 for refusing to serve colored persons, went on during arguments over the constitutional validity of the act.

"This case has great significance and implication," said Judge Grosch. "Not only do I wish to further examine the evidence but if the constitutional question is to be considered I must carefully read the great number of references given by both counsel."

Earlier the judge suggested to Crown attorney A. D. Bell that he might be instrumental in making recommendations to change the wording of the act. Referring to the words "deny service," he said it was difficult to gain a prosecution under such wording.

DEFENCE ARGUMENT

Defence counsel William Doonan of Sarnia said the act aimed against racial discrimination, is outside powers of the Ontario legislature defined in the British North America Act and was an attempt by the province to set up its own "bill of rights."

If Ontario claimed discrimination was bad which other parts of other provinces from saying discrimination was good?

"It is opening the way for utter confusion and chaos in regard to these discrimination laws if any government can run off by itself and pass them," he said.

Mr. Bell maintained the Ontario act deals "specifically with property and civil rights and comes squarely under provincial jurisdiction."

Judge Grosch did not indicate when his decision would be announced.

Labor Minister Gives Statement On Insurance

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Gregg said Tuesday night the government feels unemployment insurance benefits should be made available for those "genuinely in the labor market" and for young persons who have difficulty getting steady jobs.

He told the Commons that over a five-year period only 3.5 per cent of those eligible drew the insurance payments for 30 weeks.

These, he said, could be more appropriately dealt with in another way—by incorporation in the proposal Prime Minister St. Laurent gave Tuesday to the federal-provincial conference.

NOT AFFECTED

The labor minister emphasizes however, that the security of the worker under the Unemployment Insurance Act "is not affected in any way at all."

Mr. Gregg made his statement on a government bill making broad changes in unemployment insurance. It would raise top benefits for unemployed to $30 a week for married persons and to $23 for single unemployed, compared with present ceilings of $24 and $17.10.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC—Hamilton West), later spokeswoman for her party, immediately criticized Mr. Gregg's remarks in meaning the 3.5 per cent of the workers who drew a full 30 weeks' unemployment insurance were not "genuinely" in the labor market.

If this meant a man who was out of a job simply because he was 60 or 65 years old, she objected strongly. She said this would set up a means test for those eligible for unemployment insurance since welfare payments were on a means test basis.

Mr. Gregg gave the House a table covering a five-year period which he said showed the average benefit period extended over 15 weeks with 90.1 per cent drawing benefits of from one to 19 weeks.

Member Says Hotels Were Sold Too Cheap

OTTAWA (CP) — An Opposition member said in the Commons Tuesday night there have been reports that an American enquired about purchasing for $2,000,000 just one of four Canadian National Railways hotel properties that eventually sold for a total of $21,000,000.

C. Owen Trainor (PC—Winnipeg South) said the property is Minaki Lodge on the Lake of the Woods in northwestern Ontario where he understood the golf course alone cost "$1,000,000 of the taxpayer's money" to build.

His information was, he said, that the prospective buyer was told there wasn't much chance of purchasing the Minaki property for $2,000,000. Yet Minaki, along with CNR hotels at Brandon, Man., Port Arthur, Ont., and Pictou, N.S., eventually had been disposed of for $21,000.

Speaking on legislation to compensate soldiers' estates representing the CNR, $220,000 for the Brandon property, Mr. Trainor said he had information that another person was prepared to pay $400,000 for the Port Arthur hotel and that another prospective buyer intended to pay $250,000 for the Brandon property.

He protested the way the hotels were sold. Public tenders had been called when the transactions should have been placed in the hands of a skilled real estate merchandiser.

If that had been done, Mr. Trainor said, much more could have been realized from the sales.

Free Cooking School Draws Many Interested In Food Preparation

For the second day of the five-day free cooking school sponsored by the Loblaw Stores, the auditorium of the Capitol Theatre was filled yesterday afternoon with food-conscious housewives of the city and neighboring districts, who came, not only to receive instruction in the preparation of foods, but to learn as well food for the mind, as Miss Elsie Clay Rogers, internationally known home economist, mixed sprinklings of refreshing humor, spoke briefly on "Courage to be One's Self."

"Some people," said Mrs. Rogers, "have the ability to stir others for good, but no one can make a success of some one else; you cannot change your husband, but you can change your own thinking concerning him, and his idiosyncrasies—there is always some good in every man—even though buried deep, sometimes."

Many women live in a teacup—without any outlook. Discover some other interest, which makes troubles bigger than they are; you are the master of your own circumstance; all trouble is just as real as you make it.

Have something to do to develop your thinking and to keep you occupied doing nothing, or spend the morning on the telephone with a friend—it will do. Done. Make up your mind what you want to do, and then do it. Don't tell your neighbor what to do or how to bring up her children when you don't know or care about yourself. Give your children some freedom; let them develop their own life as far as possible with wise guidance, and govern the circumstances in their own life."

In speaking of trying to change someone else, Mrs. Rogers mentioned the story of the five Boy Scouts who were asked if they had done for their good deed for the day, and one by one they said they had helped an old lady across the street. "But were there five old ladies?" questioned the Scout Master. "No," replied the boys, only one, but she didn't want to go."

HAMBURGER BOATS

Among the delightful recipes demonstrated was that of the hamburger boats. These were made from pastry filled with the following ingredients: 1 1-2 lbs. ground beef, 1 small onion minced, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-8 teaspoon of ginger, 1-8 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1-4 cup soft bread crumbs; 1-2 cup dried milk, mix together all ingredients, shape in 8 rolls about 5 inches long. Divide pastry in half, roll each half in a 15-8 inch rectangle. Cut each rectangle in half, lengthwise, and then crosswise, to make 4 pieces. Put a beef roll in centre of each piece. Moisten ends of pastry with cold water; bring sides up around meat, overlap ends of pastry; press together firmly; moisten again, fold up over ends of meat, and press firmly. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees about 30 minutes. These are delicious for picnics instead of the ordinary sandwiches and your family a good cold hot. These hamburger boats make a hearty hot dish for a supper meal and can be served with a tossed salad, consisting of lettuce, cucumbers, green peppers, celery, minced parsley, and vinegar and sugar. Added to these two dishes a fruit jelly or Peppermint Devil's food cake, and one has a delicious meal.

DEVILS FOOD CAKE

Peppermint Devil's Food: 2 1-2 cups sifted all purpose flour, 1 1-2 tsps. baking soda; 1 teaspoon baking powder; 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 cup shortening (melted), 1 1-4 cups sugar; 2 eggs, 1-3 cup cocoa; 3-3 cup hot coffee, 1-2 cup sour milk.

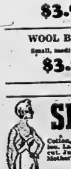
Method—Set oven at 350 degrees F. Grease two 8-inch round cake pans and line with foil. Sift together dry ingredients. Cream shortening until smooth and fluffy; add sugar a little at a time; rubbing it well into the shortening until the mixture is light and creamy. Add eggs one at a time, beating until smooth. Dissolve the cocoa in the hot coffee and set aside to cool, then combine with the sour milk.

To the shortening and eggs add the dry ingredients and liquid alternately, about 1-3 at a time, beating well after each addition and each addition. Spread evenly in the lined cake pans and bake in a moderate oven for 25 to 35 minutes. Frost with fudge frosting by mixing 2 packages of Peppermints with one can of Eagle Brand condensed milk, add butter and vanilla, and frost cooled cake. White icing may be added to form a marble effect.

OTHER DEMONSTRATED RECIPES

Other demonstrations included tomato bread; pork Hawaiian; fruit salad bowl; refrigerator strawberry shortcake, (delicious); weiners and scalloped potatoes; crusty dinner rolls; high church pudding from Australia; Hungarian goulash; cabbage wheels; Shepherd's pie made with Irish stew (canned) and toasted corn flake ice cream.

Following the demonstration, the prizes were drawn for, including oven wears; bags of groceries, which were donated during the session which concluded a most enjoyable and highly entertaining afternoon.



Mrs. Rogers was introduced to her audience by Mr. E. Salgie, of the Loblaw Stores, and assisted in the homecooking by Mrs. Owen Scott, Jr., and Mrs. J. Ball. Mrs. Ken Lowrie and Mr. Wes. Hawley of Kingston, also lent helping hands.

Appreciation is tendered to the Walker Hardware for their electrical supplies for the cooking school.

The Cooking School will continue until Friday inclusive of this week.

Holy Rosary C.W.L. Names New Officers

The regular monthly meeting of the Holy Rosary CWL was held in the hall with 21 members present and Mrs. Eves presiding.

Father Michael opened the meeting.

Mrs. Schrieder advised 50 visits were made to the hospital.

The membership tea was first on the agenda and a motion was made by Mrs. Hogan and seconded by Mrs. Brown, that the new executive take charge of this project which is to be held the first Sunday in May.

Final plans were made for the pot-luck supper and the "Lilac Tea", which are to be held in May and the various convenors appointed.

The annual Strawberry social was left to the executive, date set for the latter part of June. The main draw will be a floor polisher and tickets will be on sale from members.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

The new slate of officers was presented by Mrs. Smith, chairlady of the nominations, as follows: 1st vice-president, Mrs. A. Eves; 1st vice-president, Mrs. F. Brennan; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. H. Brown; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. J. Hogan; treasurer, Mrs. F. Brennan; corresponding secretary, Mrs. D. Windsor; recording secretary, Mrs. M. Smith.

Councillors: 1st section, Mrs. B. Thompson, Mrs. M. Bradden; 2nd section, Mrs. L. Bowers, Mrs. R. Lovelace; 3rd section, Mrs. L. Mossman, Mrs. J. Marshall; 4th section, Mrs. Fox; 5th section, Mrs. M. Waller.

Father Michael thanked the out-going officers and welcomed the new ones and wished them every success in the new year. He urged all to attend the monthly communion in a body and also as an act of charity to visit the sick. He closed the meeting.

Refreshments were served and a social time spent.

If boiled starch is not dissolved completely, never stir more slowly. The will usually prevent a skin from forming on top of the starch.

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Sinker (Mother of 5)

Sometimes I think we all have a bit of the biographer in us. (Remember when you used to keep a diary?) Well then, how about keeping a record of baby's "firsts"? The first time he came back at you (the first time a coo comes out as a word—or a wobble miraculously changes into a step. Sprinkle liberally with soapsuds and you'll have a fascinating review of your child's development. Fun to grin over in the future.

It's well worth knowing why so many doctors suggest Gerber's Cereals when it's time to start baby on solid foods. Gerber's Cereals supply baby with the nourishment he needs because they're enriched with iron, minerals and essential B-Vitamins. Good tasting, too—Gerber's Cereals have the smooth texture and mild, pleasant flavor that appeal to the very young. Try all 4 kinds: Barley, Oatmeal, Wheat and Mixed Cereal.

Park-y idea. An ingenious cocker spaniel suggests that the family percolator makes a swell substitute for a bottle warmer—especially for that 2 A.M. feeding. Just place on the night table at bedtime—plugged in when feeding time rolls around.

Bright idea! division. An inexpensive flashlight is a good night-table accessory. It eliminates turning on an overhead light; spares dad's sleepy eyes and saves a fumble in dark halls. Modern models have plastic safety cap over the switch which gives off a soft, diffused light.

Vitamin C . . . sexy as 1-3-3. No squeezing or straining to give baby the precious vitamin-C he needs every day. Canned Orange Juice is made from vine-ripened oranges selected for high vitamin C content—mild, natural flavor—appealing true color. It is carefully processed to remove most of the peel, pith and bitterness. (Courtesy Gerber-Ophrie Baby Foods Ltd., Niagara Falls, Canada.

Rev. W. Newell Addresses Y.F.C. Rally

The Rev. William Newell of Oshawa, addressed recently the Belleville Youth for Christ rally in the Victoria Avenue Baptist church, which was artistically decorated by Miss Pansy Sampson, with baskets of spring flowers and green ferns on the platform. Y.F.C. posters were also placed at strategic points.

Mrs. Beverley Foster played the piano as young people continued to gather from Napanee, Toronto, Marmora, Plainfield, Deseronto and other points.

The song service conducted by Doug Rumble, opened with the well beloved hymn "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name", followed by several lively choruses, after which Mr. Ernie Belch, Y.F.C. president, led in prayer.

Mr. William Stapley, master of ceremonies, introduced the Rockwell Trio, who sang two beautiful numbers entitled "Take Your Burden to the Lord and Leave it There", and "Just Keep on Praying."

Miss Eleanor Baragar, soprano, gave her testimony in song, singing "Only Believe and Live", and "When I Met My Saviour."

The speaker the Rev. William Newell, Y.F.C. director of Oshawa, based his remarks for the evening on Genesis 11:1-9 "Roman Thoroughness", proving the necessity for God's word between divine thoroughness and human thoroughness. He said "Divine thoroughness will take us into eternity but human thoroughness will just take us to the burial." Many people today are using human rather than divine methods. Heaven are using confirmation instead of reformation; baptism in place of justification; religion instead of the born again experience. But Jesus said in John 3:3, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. This indeed is the divine way to heaven.

Contact Club Plans Future Meetings

Monday evening, a short business meeting was held by the Contact Club of Christ church.

A most interesting letter from St. Paul's high school, Palampur, India, was received and given to the members to read. Also received was a report from the Ontario Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. A number of thankyou notes from members who had received Sunshine gifts were read to the girls.

Plans for future meetings were discussed. It was decided that next Monday would be a work meeting, when members would continue their work on the various articles, which are to be offered for sale at the "Melody Tea" and bazaar in June.

Miss Marilyn Agnes Westlake, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil F. Westlake, of Kingston, and Mr. Charles Hilliard Albert Potter, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred C. Potter, Belleville, whose engagement is announced. The marriage will take place in St. John's Anglican Church, Kingston, on May 21 at 2.30 p.m.

SMART SUIT SELECTION

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The jaunty little box suit is showing up everywhere this year, either as a suit or put together with a boxy topper and slim skirt. This suit is a youthful affair in tweed and the jacket collar opens low to permit a glimpse of a pretty blouse neck or colorful scarf. The large button for the closing and three rows of stitching border the jacket and sleeves for extra interest. Skirt is slim and straight.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BIGOTED GIRL WILL HAVE A VERY DULL LIFE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Recently through a friend, I was introduced to a very nice boy.

Later, he asked me out on a couple of dates, and that was when I found out that he isn't of my faith. Because of this, I don't want to go out with him any more. My mother doesn't want me to go with him either.

How can I explain to him so as not to hurt his feelings? — Selby.

Dear Selby:

I don't know any polite way to tell anyone so intolerant a thing as that you don't want to associate with him because of his faith. If you are so bigoted and prejudiced that you can't enjoy and get a lot out of a friendship with anybody except a person who thinks exactly as you do, then I don't see anything to do but tell this boy so plainly. If you're that kind of girl, I'm sure he'd prefer to know it, and would never bother you again.

But you are going to make a very narrow and dull thing of your life if you give up every chance to know people who have ideas and ways of doing and thinking that are different from your own. I'd suggest you give your creed a little overhauling before you cheat yourself out of a lot of interesting experiences.

HOW CAN THEY BE SURE IT'S "THE REAL THING!"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going out with a fellow who is five years older than I am. We have grown to like each other a great deal, we enjoy doing the same things, and have many of the same friends. Both of us seem to want to be with each other more than with anyone else, yet although we have discussed it a number of times, we aren't sure that we are in love.

How can two people who feel this way about each other make sure if it's the real thing? — Helen P.

Dear Helen:

If you had told me how long you ... together, how old you ... and this young man have been going, and how long you have felt as you do about each other, it would be easier to appraise your relationship.

Some young people think they are in love and want to get married after no more than the briefest of acquaintances. Because they happen to feel mutually attracted right away, they jump to the conclusion that it's "Love at first sight." So far from marrying in a hurry, the only safe thing to do in such a case is to wait and see whether the feeling grows and ripens or gradually wears off. On the other hand, if two people who seem a good deal of each other over an extended period of ... it, in the main, their interests ... the same pattern if they ... the same sort of recreation ... the same kind of friends, they hold approximately the same ... and standards of conduct; ... if, on top of all this, they ... a constantly increasing pleasure in ... other's company, there I would ... it was very likely they were in ... and ready to consider marriage.

If you think your own situation ... with these points in mind, I'm sure you will be able to see ... more clearly just where you and your young man stand with regard to each other.

HERE COMES THE GROOM WITH ATTIRE-QUESTIONS

Dear Mrs. Berckman:

1. What is the "season" when the groom and his attendants may wear white dinner jackets instead of the black dinner jackets worn in the winter season?

2. Is it correct for the men in my wedding party to wear these white dinner jackets at a 4 o'clock wedding?

3. I've been told that I, the groom, may wear a white bow tie with my white dinner jacket, my best man and ushers wearing black bow ties. True? — Groom-to-be

1. Generally speaking the "season" when the men in the wedding party may wear white dinner jackets is between Memorial Day and Labor Day; the last week-end in May, through the first week-end of September. But of course that depends on the part of the country.

2. No, No, No! A dinner jacket, black or white, is evening attire . . . never correctly worn before 6 o'clock at the very earliest. A 4 o'clock wedding is an afternoon wedding . . . dinner jackets, black or white, are evening attire. For the informal, daytime wedding in summer, the groom and his attendants may wear the classic white jacket (Not the white dinner jacket), with dark tropical-worsted trousers; or the now-very popular all-white suit.

3. No . . . this is not true. You as well as your attendants should wear the black bow tie.

Striving for The Impossible (cont'd.)

By Mary Moore

There are a few basic rules that should be added to last week's first instalment entitled "Striving for the Impossible" addressed to Shirley M. in response to her S.O.S. for ways of making $10 per week stretch for four people (not including cost of eggs).

These rules are obvious and not necessarily gems from Emmen, but I subscribe to them and adhere to them. I firmly believe that if you feed your family 100 per cent wholes what bread it will prevent an untimited variety of potential ailments. I will send Shirley M. the recipe we are at present using. She should hunt out a flour miller where freshly ground wholes wheat flour and wheat germ may be purchased.

Also skim milk powder will be adequate for all of her milk needs and should be bought in 10-lb. drums.

LOW-COST DINNER MENUS

No. 1: Pork liver with milk gravy, corn muffin, cole slaw, Danish applesauce pudding, cocoa.

No. 2: Salmon cream eggs, scalloped tomatoes, baked potatoes in jackets, prune whip, oatmeal cookies (as for adults, milk for children.

No. 4: Hot cream meat and vegetable soup, cottage cheese and tomato ring salad, buttermilk pie (see April 23), coffee for adults, milk for children.

No. 5: Oxtail stew, old-fashioned chopped cabbage salad rhubarb crumb, cocoa.

Obviously you will want some of these economical recipes and I will start by giving you what I have room for today. Next week in a third instalment on this topic of economy I will give you recipes for more of the items mentioned above.

CORN SOUFFLE

One 15-oz. tin cream style corn, 2 eggs, 1-3 cup ice cold water, 1-3 teaspoon lemon juice, 1-3 teaspoon or 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup skim milk powder, 1-2 tablespoon salt. Separate yolks from whites of eggs. Add yolks to cream style corn until stiff and fold into corn mixture. Whip together the milk powder, lemon juice and ice water until stiff. Fold into corn mixture. Bake in buttered dish at 375 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes.

DANISH APPLESAUCE PUDDING

(Courtesy Mrs. Cesar M.)

Have ready 2 1-2 cups slightly sweetened applesauce and 1 1-2 cups breadcrumbs sweetened with 1 tablespoon sugar and gently browned in frying pan with 3 tablespoons margarine. Arrange these in alternating layers in baking dish, making the applesauce layers thick and the breadcrumb layers thin, finishing with layer of crumbs on top. It is not baked but it is chilled well. Mrs. Cesar M. says she serves it with lots of whipped cream but I think they have their own dairy here. She also suggests adding lemon juice to the applesauce.

GOLDEN CRUST EGGS

Hard-cook 8 eggs and chill and shell them. Carefully cut into halves and remove yolks. Mash yolks with 1 tablespoon chopped mustard pickle and mix well with pepper and 3 tablespoons milk. Put yolk mixture back in egg whites and put together in pairs. Prepare 3 cups freshly-mashed potatoes and season with 1 tablespoon grated onion and some salt and pepper, and moisten with 1-4 cup milk and beat until fluffy. Cool until potatoes may be handled. Wrap each devilled egg in cooled potato. Roll in crushed corn flakes. Bake in greased baking dish at 450 deg. Fahr. about 20 minutes.

NOTE:

Golden-crust eggs may be fried in deep fat at 390 degrees. Fahr., instead of baking them if desired.

More low-cost recipes for above low-cost meals next week. Would Shirley M. send her address again please?

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

TREATMENT FOR DRY SKIN

Nature has devised a most effective oiling system for the human skin. But when this process slows up, as it may in certain diet deficiencies, in cases of poor circulation or with the accumulation of birthdays, the cutaneous surfaces becomes dry.

The conditions of the sebaceous glands serve to weather-proof the skin and have a favorable effect upon the underlying tissues. When functioning normally they help prevent wrinkles from forming. Many women who try to reduce on completely fat-free diets wind up with arid complexions. Drinking insufficient amounts of water may bring about the same results.

Dry skin rebels against make-up unless carefully selected. Powder should be of heavy consistency with an oily base. A cream rouge should be substituted for the dry variety.

The obvious thing to do is to apply creams freely. It is surprising how quickly the flesh will tap them up. Use a full fat cleansing make-up and for general cleansing purposes, a heavy one to massage into the skin for at least five minutes every night, and a creamy foundation for make-up. When the lips are also dry use a white pomade, stick daily.

A creamy foundation cosmetic will help the even distribution of powder, make it more smoothly becoming. It will serve as a protective measure against harsh winds and strong sunlights, two enemies that the "drys" must combat. One may have to experiment with different products until the right one is found.

It often happens that dryness is not confined to the facial areas, but extends over the entire body. In that case an extremely bland soap must be found for bathing and water should not be too warm. There are bath oils to be used after gentle friction with a coarse towel.

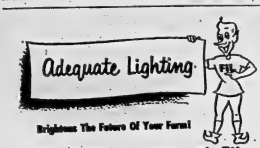
CAMPBELLFORD

School Inspector Makes Report To Board Members

CAMPBELLFORD — Mr. C. W. Young, Inspector of Public Schools for Northumberland, was present at the April meeting of the Campbellford Public School Board, with all members present and Mr. F. E. Frederick presiding.



Mr. Young reviewed his report sent after his recent official visit to all classes in the Public School. His various recommendations were studied and wherever possible, plans made to follow. Mr. Young congratulated the board on its splendid effort in the interests of public school education and commended the work of the principal and staff. He remarked favorably on the co-operative spirit, that exists between the principal and staff and board and staff. He also asked that the secretary record his thanks to the board for allowing this Inspectorate to hold the recent book display in the public school.

In view of the large saving in public school supplies for the following year, an additional amount of $400 was voted for the purchase of books for the school library. This amount is also to cover the purchase of dictionaries for complete class-room and certain film strips for the film library.

The big question of the April meeting was the problem of accommodation for the expected increase in attendance this fall term. The school is full and a door-to-door survey made recently by the Home and School Association shows that larger numbers will be coming each year for the next five years at least.

The board members had two plans, which were (1) That the large kindergarten room be divided and make a small class room which would take care of this year's increase in attendance, or (2) leave the kindergarten as it is and allow the classes to be filled to capacity this year, and study what must be done for future years, and bring it to the attention of the taxpayers.

It was finally decided that it was too large a question to decide without further study, but the matter will be brought up at the May meeting which will be held on May 4th in the public school library.

RAWDON

Mr., Mrs. James S. Barron Celebrate Golden Wedding

RAWDON. — On Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Barron, R. 2, Rawdon, a reception Rawdon, was filled with friends and relatives from the Bethel community, as well as old neighbors, who had moved elsewhere from Belleville, Stirling, Mount Pleasant, Harold and other points. The group had gathered to honor this great old couple a few days previous on their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Barron and their family, came to Canada from Aberdeen, Scotland, just 48 years ago in March, 1926, and at that time they did not know a single soul in this new homeland. Today they have a wealth of friends who join in greetings on this happy occasion.

They have two sons: Staff Sergeant John Barron who is with the Occupational Army in Germany, and is in charge of a new workshop for German civilians; Jim, who lives on the adjoining farm and Mona, Mrs. Irv (David, Stirling, R.R. 2, who resides in the Mount Pleasant community. Another son, Roy, is deceased.

There are ten grandchildren and three great grandchildren. These are Rosemary Lynne Wilkes of Calgary, and Butch and Barbie Barron of Petawawa.

MANY GREETING CARDS-GIFTS

Mr. and Mrs. Barron were the recipients of a large array of lovely greeting cards also a bouquet of red roses from Mr. and Mrs. Dave Lamb; yellow daffodils from Mr. and Mrs. John Mulheron and Margaret; cream roses from their granddaughter, Mrs. Roy Wilkes, (nee Mona Barron), of Calgary, and a flowering hydrangea from an old neighbor, Mr. John Scott and family.

Their son, John, has sent them a cuckoo clock from Germany, which has not yet arrived. Jim and family gave them a Duncan Phyfe extension table as a gift from their daughter and her family was a gold dinner bell engraved and a gold wool blanket with satin trim.

The other gifts included gold cups and saucers, gold cake plate; gold sandwhich and gold lattice tea pot and also other attractive kitchen articles.

Mr. and Mrs. Barron received their guests with the bridegroom wearing a white carnation and the bride wearing a periwhkle blue crepe gown with lace trim and a corsage of yellow roses.

The three-tier decorated wedding cake was made by their daughter-in-law, Belleville, and was the central theme on the gift table flanked by the candles and a vase of red roses.

CHAIRMAN—MARK WEDDING

Mr. Mark Wedding was chairman for a noisy charivari with firecracker predominating soon after the guests arrived. This was followed by a humorous mock wedding. The group were led down the hall with Mr. Harry Thomson, Belleville, and his bag-pipes, which gave out old Scottish airs.

Mr. John Mulheron, as soloist, sang "Roamin' in the Gloamin'" before the ceremony and at the close all sang "Every Girl Loves a Sailor". The wedding party were impersonated as follows: bride, dressed in flowing veils and a Dior model hat, John Ryan; groom, in conventional black, Faye Hamilton, Belleville; bridesmaid, in a New York model of lace, Edgar McKeown; groomsman, Mrs. Ray Sine; flower girl, in a costume of gold crepe with bouquet of all-day suckers, Kenneth Brostworth; minister, in regal attire, Mrs. John Mulheron; bride's father, Mrs. Gordon Green. Guests at the wedding, Mrs. John Ryan, Mrs. Ken Brostworth and Mrs. Edgar McKeown.

Following the hilarious performance, Councillor Ken Mumby was master of ceremonies for a short program. He spoke words of appreciation to the honored couple, stressing their value as neighbors and extended best wishes on this happy occasion.

Mrs. Percy MacKillop recited "The Inventor's Wife"; Mrs. Thomas Laycock read greetings from Rev and Mrs. T. F. Townsend, Rednersville, which included a poem "Gold-O' Mine", and all guests signed their names on the script as a memento.

Mrs. Walter Barron sang "The End of a Perfect Day".

Reeve Theodore Cooney spoke briefly and gave a few excerpts from his stay in Aberdeen, Scotland during the war years.

ADDRESS READ

Mrs. Bruce Murray read an address of appreciation which was decorated with a gold crepe corsage. It closed with these lines: "May you have good luck, good friends and good health, in the years to come and in the words of Scottish folk, the world over, "Lang may your lum reek", in our language "May your smoke always go out the chimney."

On behalf of all the friends, Mrs. Edgar McKeown and Mr. John Ryan made the presentation of an oblong coffee table, and modern reading lamp with standard, gold base and umbrella shade also a large anniversary card and list of names of those who contributed.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Barron gave brief addresses and voiced their thanks for the lovely gifts and for all the kindness extended to them throughout their stay in Canada.

Mr. William Calrns took several flash pictures during the evening.

The grandchildren assisted with serving a large array of fancy sandwiches and delectable cookies of all varieties. Following the cake ceremony, each guest shared a slice.

AFTERNOON GUESTS

The afternoon guests included the Rev and Mrs. T. F. Townsend of Rednersville; the Rev. W. C. Fletcher and Mr. John Scott, while several other guests called over the week-end which included Mrs. James Warren, Kingston and Mrs. C. F. Lloyd, Harold.

Mrs. Barron was the former Mary Ann McGregor of Dundee, Aberdeen, Scotland, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McGregor. She had three brothers, John, James and Alex and one sister, Jessie, Mrs. J. Tormon, all living in Scotland.

Mr. Barron was the son of the late James and Jane Barron. He has one brother, Mr. John Barron, of Vancouver, B.C.

The wedding was held on April 25, 1905, in the King's Hotel, Union Street, Aberdeen, Scotland. It was a very fashionable affair as this was the first wedding in the bride's family. The attendants, his brother and her sister are both deceased as they were casualties in World War II. The bride, Mary Ann McGregor, and Captain James Barron of "The Luddick" were highly feted on this auspicious occasion.

The guests Friday evening included Mr. Frank Milne, Worcester, Mass.; Mr. C. P. Lloyd, Harold, Ontario who is 94 years young; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Thompson and daughter, Barbara, of Belleville.

The piper, Mr. Harry Thomson was originally from Dundee, Scotland, and his Scottish airs were greatly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Barron thoroughly enjoyed the delightful evening arranged by their neighbors in their honor.

GALLOWS TO GO

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland, one of 21 states which still executes by hanging, will abandon its gallows next year, Governor Theodore R. McKeldin signed a 131 Monday night which substitutes the gas chamber as the legal means for executing criminals. It becomes effective June 1, 1955.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE. — Lieutenant Robert Fisher and Mrs. Fisher of Barrie, were week-end guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Silss. Mrs. Fisher returned home with them to spend a few weeks with her son and wife.

Mrs. Dorothy Wannamaker and children, were recent week-end guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Carr.

The new dial system has caused much confusion in dialing their parties as it was entirely new to so many.

Quite a number of farmers are busy on their land as the recent weather has been favorable.

Master Allan Wannamaker met with a painful accident on Thursday while watching the boys playing ball. He was struck in the eye with the bat, and was rushed to the doctor. Three stitches were necessary. He will be under the doctor's care for awhile. His many little schoolmates with Allan a speedy recovery.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips on the arrival of twin daughters in the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Ross Pound and son, Dale, spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris.

On Sunday morning, the Rev W. E. Dovey gave an inspiring message on "What Must I Do To Be Saved". A good attendance was present.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Frank Longabeer and called on Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pope of Trenton, and spent the tea hour with Mr. and Mrs. Galsforth, of Glen Miller.

The April showers are bringing out the May flowers as a number of children have been to the woods and gathered quite a few bunches.

Mrs. Miller Parks is spending the week with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith, of Belleville.

LORA euchre party was well attended on Friday evening in the Orange Hall. Refreshments were served by the ladies.

Sorry to report Mrs. V. Moore is quite ill at her home. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. Harold Bilsky and family, have moved into Mr. Ken Massey's tenant house and all welcome them to the neighborhood.

The sound of lawn mowers is again heard and people are busy cleaning up their yards. The recent warm weather with the rain has made grass and flower beds present a great appearance.

Major Incentive for A-Power Stations Is Cheaper Electricity

SECOND OF THREE STORIES
By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A foreseeable limit to Canada's ability to produce low-cost electricity by hydro and coal is the major incentive for the development of atomic power stations in this country.

Research at the Chalk River, Ont., atomic energy plant and elsewhere in the world has proved that it is practicable to produce electricity with atomic energy. However, it is not yet possible to do this cheaply enough.

Canada must design atomic power stations capable of producing electricity at a cost of five to seven mills a kilowatt hour. Electricity now is being produced by coal-burning plants at that figure.

DIFFERENT SITUATION

The United Kingdom and other countries lacking cheap coal and other fuels that fuels may be ahead of Canada in starting to use atomic power to produce electricity. It will be economical for them to operate atomic plants which produce power at a cost greatly in excess of five or seven mills a kilowatt hour.

"This will not mean that Canada will be behind in the field of industrial atomic energy," said Dr. G. C. Laurence, director of the reactor research and development division of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

"The United Kingdom and other countries pay the equivalent of 10 to 15 mills a kilowatt hour to produce electricity by coal," he said. "If they can produce electricity by atomic power at the same price it will be economically advantageous."

Research here now is aimed at solving problems preventing production of low-cost electricity by atomic plants. At the same time, design work is proceeding on a small experimental atomic plant to produce electricity.

OTTAWA RIVER LOCATION

This plant will be built jointly by AECL, the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Canadian General Electric Co. at a cost of between $13,000,000 and $15,000,000. It likely will be located on the Ottawa river at Des Joachims, 145 miles northwest of Ottawa, produce about 20,000 kilowatts of electric power and be completed in mid-1958.

This reactor will give scientists the information they need to build a plant which will be economic. This goal is expected to be reached some time between 1960 and 1965.

An atomic power plant will replace the coal-burning equipment used in conventional plants. It will produce heat to raise steam for turbines which will operate electric generators. Instead of coal it will use uranium and probably plutonium as fuels.

Scientists at Chalk River see no difficulty in keeping the cost of the fuel fairly low. They also expect to develop methods to utilize a substantial part of each pieces of uranium placed in the atomic furnace. At present, much less than one per cent is consumed. It is hoped that this figure can be raised to three per cent.

However, many problems still must be solved in development of a method by which a fluid can be heated to a sufficiently high temperature in the reactor to generate high temperature steam.

The fluid, expected to be heavy water in the experimental plant, must not absorb neutrons released by the fission or burning process. Any high absorption rate would stop the plant from operating and producing heat.

MUST CUT COSTS

Heavy water, produced at Trail, B.C., smelter now costs between $28,000 and $32,000 a ton. This must be cut because the demand by 1970 is expected to be several hundred tons a year. Methods also must be found to speed output, now about six tons a year from Trail.

The uranium rods which form the heart of the plant must be sheathed to prevent heavy water from coming into contact with uranium and the fission products in it. The metal used for sheathing must be resistant to high temperatures and corrosion and must not absorb neutrons.

The reactor being considered is zirconium which costs about $14 a pound. Efforts now are being made by government metallurgists to reduce that figure.

A cheap and efficient chemical process must be found for extracting plutonium. Depleted uranium and other fission products from the uranium fuel after it has been in the furnace. This is important because unused uranium and plutonium still can be utilized as a fuel if the fission product "ashes" can be eliminated.

The chief advantage of an atomic power station will be the low annual fuel bill. Even the capital cost of building stations must be kept as low as possible to prevent interest charges offsetting benefits of lower fuel costs.

For Colds use lemon and soda

Put the juice of one lemon in a half glass of water and add ½ teaspoon bicarbonate of soda (baking soda). Take this combination immediately several times a day to help reduce acidity and relieve discomfort.

Prospects For 'Limit' Catch Fair to Excellent Depending On Co-operation From Trout

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fishermen take note: The speckled trout season opens in Ontario Saturday and prospects for a "limit" catch are fair to excellent—depending, somewhat, upon co-operation from the fish.

A Canadian Press survey shows trout generally plentiful; also fishermen. Lake and stream levels are near normal throughout the province's prime fishing areas and lakes in the north are free of ice.

The Ontario lands and forests department expects more than 100,000 persons to bait and cast on opening day.

About the only thing that doesn't look good is the chance of a record weight catch. Dr. Wm. J. Cook of Port Arthur pulled in the world's record speckled trout — a 14½ pounder—18 inches long—from the Nipigon river, 40 miles northeast of the lakehead. The record has stood since 1915, although some forest rangers and conservation officers consider fish at large or larger exist in isolated waters.

The size normally caught in Ontario is less than a pound. A five-pounder will create considerable fisherman interest and eight-pounder usually wins fishing contests.

KEEP IT LEGAL

Legal length in the province is not less than seven inches. Limit of catch is one and six additional 14 in one day, provided the additional 14 in the aggregate weigh not more than 20 pounds, except in Elgin, Middlesex and Norfolk counties where the limit is 10 and an additional nine in one day, provided the additional nine in the aggregate weigh not more than five pounds.

Fishing conditions generally are reported good except in the extreme northern sections of the province where trout are not easily found. The extreme north is closed to outsiders because the local residents need fish and game for food.

In the south, Guelph and Peterborough areas report prospects and conditions good. Galt reports creeks high and muddy due to heavy rain.

Water in the Kawartha lakes and rivers drainage basin is two feet lower this year than the normal spring-time level. Observers say trout appear plentiful.

Around Peterborough in the Big and Little House, Havelock and Bewdley areas and in Cavan township, fish and fishermen expect the usual scramble for trout. Many district fishermen are expected to travel south from Peterborough to the Frost streams in Northumberland near Cobourg.

Wellington county and the surrounding area report fish plentiful.

In the North Bay district conditions are excellent. Spring water run-off is practically over and streams are moderately high and running clear. Best opening day prospects there are the lake and stream network between Mattawa and Temiskaming along the Ontario shore of the Ottawa river and in the northern parts of Algonquin park.

Many anglers are expected to head up the Ontario Northland Railway line which crosses the roadless region of Timagami game preserve north of North Bay and the area north of Sturgeon Falls, which holds several dozen speckled trout lakes.

Fly hatches are reported limited and most fishermen in the district will be using spinning lures and worms or minnows.

A heavy pre-season stocking program has been carried out in the North Bay district with fingerling and yearling trout. Several thousand legal-size trout have been placed in lakes near the city to afford weekend anglers a good opportunity for early catches.

Run-off in the district has been surprisingly small and only scattered patches of snow remain in the bush. Lakes are clear of ice.

In the Porcupine area, lakes are free of ice, water levels are only slightly high and conditions are reported good. More than 50,000 trout were stocked in the majority of trout lakes in the area last fall.

Sudbury district reports several thousand are expected to flock to trout waters in a 50-mile radius of the city. Some are expected from Detroit, Cleveland and other American cities.

Fair is the report from the Sault Ste. Marie area where streams are reported a little higher than normal. Lake Superior's level is about normal, however, and conservation officers say fishermen should do well there. Even the northernmost lakes and streams are reported free of ice.

At Sudbury, an over-enthusiastic fisherman was apprehended during last weekend while getting a head start on the season.

Mayor Comments On Unemployment

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Nathan Phillips said Tuesday the cost of unemployment relief is a responsibility of the federal and provincial governments and should not be borne in whole or in part by the municipalities.

He was commenting on Prime Minister St. Laurent's proposal at the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa Tuesday that the federal government would share up to 50 per cent of the cost of unemployment relief.

Indians Worried

CORNWALL, (CP) — Possible flooding of Indian-owned islands in the St. Lawrence river near Cornwall by the seaway power project has members of the Iroquois tribe on nearby St. Regis reservation worrying about compensation.

With about 10 islands due to be wholly or partially flooded, the Indians called a meeting on Cornwall island. T. L. Bonnah, superintendent of St. Regis agency, was asked by head chief Clifford White to outline the power and seaway development and the effect it would have on Indian lands and the welfare of the tribe in general.

Head chief White said: "We are not against this project. But we must be assured that our losses are not going to be greater than our gains."

Hess is Reported To Have Tried To Poison Self

BERLIN (AP)—Allied doctors today were reported discussing a United States proposal to transfer Rudolf Hess to a mental home. Informed sources revealed Tuesday that Adolf Hitler's former deputy, now serving a life sentence as a war criminal, recently attempted suicide in Spandau prison.

These sources said Hess has deteriorated mentally in recent weeks and a special guard has been placed on him. He is reported convinced that he has cancer, although medical examinations have disclosed no evidence of the disease.

Hess is one of six Nazi leaders held in Spandau prison under joint American, British, Russian and French guard. Any decision to remove him would have to be approved by all four powers.

Although an American doctor at the prison denied the reports of a mental illness, other sources said Hess swallowed insecticide he had been given for his garden in the prison grounds.

SANITY QUESTIONED

Besides Hess, prisoners include Grand Admiral Erich Raeder and former Reichsbank president Walther Funk, army group leader and former Nazi youth leader Baldur von Schirach and munitions minister Albert Speer, 20 years; and Admiral Karl Doenitz, whose 10-year term expires in October, 1956.

There has been some question of Hess' mental state since he flew from Germany to Scotland May 10, 1941, with the expressed notion that he could bring about a peace between Britain and Germany.

British psychiatrists described him then as suffering from paranoid schizophrenia and hysterical amnesia. At the start of the Nuremberg war crimes trials in 1945 he put on such a show of amnesia that there was some doubt whether he would continue as a defendant.

He later astounded the court by saying his amnesia had been faked, but he escaped the death penalty meted out to 11 other top Nazis.

Served With Unit

KITCHENER (CP)—The Kitchener school board and its chief inspector, R. M. Buie, have been served with a writ demanding the readmittance without any condition of Rosalynde Butterworth, 11, suspended from school since Feb. 16 for alleged disrespect to a teacher.

The school board has ruled the child may return as soon as she makes an apology to the teacher. But her father, Wilfred Worth has refused to accept this condition. The writ is returnable before an Ontario Supreme Court justice within 10 days.

Abyss of Difference on How To Resolve Tax Issue

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Beneath the serenity of federal-provincial talkfests an abyss of differences on how to resolve tax issues.

Generally, the "have-not" provinces want more money. The federal government says it is opposed to increasing fees paid to provinces for rental of tax fields.

And the central and wealthiest provinces, Ontario and Quebec, have given no indication they would be willing to share more of their wealth with the lower-income provinces.

The differences showed Tuesday at the opening of the two-day federal-provincial conference called to set the agenda for a full-dress meeting next fall.

The issue is what tax arrangements are to replace the five-year federal-provincial tax rental pacts which expire March 31, 1957. All provinces but Quebec are parties to the agreements, and they have indicated dissatisfaction with them. The central administration has offered to negotiate an alternative.

Under the agreements, consenting provinces exchange rights to personal and corporation income tax, along with succession duties for most provinces, in return for annual federal payments, amounting roughly to $325,000,000. The payments vary in accordance with national production and provincial population.

Tuesday's opening session was marked by expressions of warm and friendly co-operation by provincial premiers. But Premier Duplessis of Quebec decided to withhold any proposal he may have on taxing arrangements until closed-door sessions today. Quebec has consistently opposed the tax rental pacts, arguing it should have jurisdiction over provincial taxes.

Premier Frost of Ontario sidestepped making any pronouncement on the value of the tax agreements, saying he will make his stand known later. He proposed study of a national health insurance scheme, revision of federal health grants and organizing a permanent federal-provincial fact-finding economic body to study economic problems.

The Maritimes showed clearly they are in the "have-not" class and want agreements continued on a more permanent basis but with inclusion of a scale of payments to compensate for their lower average income.

Apparently anticipating these and other demands, Prime Minister St. Laurent made clear at the outset that the federal government opposed increasing the scale of payments under the tax rental agreements. There might be some improvement through redistribution of payments among the provinces, but it would be up to the provinces to suggest a "logical formula."

But St. Laurent said that if it is not possible to work out an improved plan for the tax rental agreements, the government would have to consider extending the present pacts "perhaps with some modifications."

Dunbar States Ontario Election Sure This Summer

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no doubt that Ontario elections will be held this summer, Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar said Tuesday night.

"When it comes," he told the West end South Ottawa Progressive Conservative Association, "we have got to be prepared for it." He represents South Ottawa in the legislature.

One date mentioned for the election has been June 9, though nobody has been announced officially.

Mr. Dunbar touched on the proposal Premier Frost brought up earlier Tuesday at the federal-provincial conference—conservation of a national health scheme.

The health minister said any health insurance scheme involving Ontario must be directed by the federal government and be supported by all provinces. He said the Frost administration is in favor of a contributory health insurance and hospital plan, "but we have got to have the hospitals first."

Metro Budget Of $62,528,455 Is Endorsed

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council Tuesday endorsed a Metro budget of $62,528,455 for 1955 after one amendment to estimates submitted by the treasury department.

The amendment increased the proposed parks department estimate to $100,000 from $50,000 to be used for maintenance and improvement of Toronto Island.

Described by Metro chairman Fred Gardiner as a budget "with lots of elbow room," it will require a levy of $36,034,556 from the 13 area municipalities. Provincial grants and other sources of revenue will provide $26,493,899.

This year's budget will collect $1,089,556 more from the area municipalities as a result of increased assessment.

A tax rate of 13.7 mills was set on the municipalities, one less than last year.

Hett Convicted On Charges Laid By Surgeons

WINDSOR (CP)—Dr. John Hett, 85, operator of the Hett Cancer and Research Foundation here, Tuesday was convicted on charges brought against him by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The college charged Dr. Hett with using the title "doctor" as an occupational designation for the purposes of treating human ailments while not registered under the Ontario Medical Act, and with practising medicine for hire.

Dr. Hett was fined $100 on the first charge, and $50 on the second.

The charges were laid by the college following investigation of allegations that Dr. Hett had secretly carried on a medical practice and treated patients from the United States.

During the last 18 years, the college has twice refused Dr. Hett's name stricken from the list of practising doctors in the province.

FOUND HIM GUILTY

In both cases the college, the provincial medical licensing authority, found Dr. Hett guilty of professional offences in connection with claimed cures for cancer, arthritis, diabetes and peptic ulcers.

Dr. Hett was first expelled by the college in April, 1937, when he was in practice in Kitchener, after he refused to reveal the formula of a serum he claimed would cure cancer.

He was reinstated the following year when he agreed to give the formula to a three-man committee of the Ontario legislature. The commission found the serum "harmless but valueless."

In April, 1952, while practising in Windsor, the name was again struck off the roll after the college found him guilty of "infamous and disgraceful conduct in a professional sense." On this occasion charges against Dr. Hett were investigated by a five-man committee set up by the council of the college.

The committee held Dr. Hett refused to disclose the formula of a substance he used to the medical profession generally, that he published pamphlets containing "extravagant and unwarranted claims," that he published pamphlets containing statements derogatory to the profession.

GOODWILL VENTURE

LONDON (CP) — Pat Hillyard, head of BBC light entertainment, leaves early in May for a tour of Canada and the United States. He is referring for CBC the same popular British programs free. "We have grown a little weary of Britain-style comedy," he says, "so perhaps we can work up a similar interest in ours."

Mrs. H. J. Madill gave a reading; a duet, was rendered by Mrs. Art Dunham and Mrs. H. Pearce accompanied by Mrs. Storey of Batawa.

Mrs. Clarke introduced a school-day friend, Mrs. Bertram, who gave an inspiring message.

The Batawa friends again favored with a duet, which was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Clarke closed the meeting. Mrs. Lott, the hostess assisted by Mrs. Madill and Mrs. Clarke served refreshments. All enjoyed a social half-hour.

Nerve Weakness

How common is it among men and women over a certain age?

Nerve Weakness—Nervous Exhaustion. There are many words for it, including the Greek word Neurasthenia, meaning nerve weakness. Neurasthenia is often used to describe a condition that can affect many people over forty—when you may complain of being easily tired, with no energy or inclination for your daily tasks.

Yet your symptoms are vague, hard to trace to any definite physical cause.

LIFE AFTER FORTY

It is often after forty that the wear and tear of modern living may take a lot out of you—day after day, the same old things to do, the eternal rush with the clock.

Although you consider yourself physically fit, from time to time you may run into a spell when you feel "all in"—no interest in work or other people—irritable, moody, poor appetite. Such a spell may last for weeks—or for months. At such times many people wisely turn to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for dependable help.

How long should you take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?

It's important to remember this: it may have taken many months for your body to become gradually "run down", finally sending out distress signals that many people call "nerves".

Although Dr. Chase's Nerve Food helps to build up nerve energy quickly, for best results you should continue for at least six weeks. This gives your body a chance to get the full benefit of the iron, Vitamin B1 and other valuable medical ingredients in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. They work together to help build you up and strengthen your nerves—improve your general health.

At the end of 6 weeks you must be able to say to yourself: "I feel like a new person . . . or we'll refund every penny you paid for the entire Plan. Why not get started today? 19-26

O.H.A. CONVENTION

The Ontario Hockey Association goes into annual convention at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, on Friday and Saturday of this week, and from the look of the list of suggested amendments to the rules and constitution the boys are due for a very busy session.

While the majority of the proposed changes likely will go by the board, there are some that probably will lay the groundwork for argument.

The Whitby senior "B" club wants players living inside the metropolitan area of Toronto to be allowed to play with any senior outside the area while still maintaining their onsite residence and that they be allowed either as imports or reinvested players to the clubs they sign with outside the metro area.

The Orillia senior "B" club wants a new series inaugurated to be called "Senior C". This series shall be for towns of over 10,000 and under 20,000 population.

The Belleville Mosque management has sent in a proposed amendment which reads: "a senior "B" club may sign eight transferred players, but may only play four in any one game up to December 15, after which date only four transferred players may be carried, the remainder to be given their release."

It looks as though the association is trying to put teeth in its regulations regarding players and officials. Suggested amendments include "any official who knowingly makes false representation to the association shall be suspended for a determined period." Another amendment calls for "a coach suspended by the OHA will not be permitted to have any active connection with the team in a managing, coaching or in any other capacity for the duration of the suspension."

An addition to the constitution as suggested is "any player who leaves the players' bench or the penalty bench to enter into an altercation on the ice shall be reported to the president as if he had been given a match penalty and together with the coach of the team shall be subject to such penalties as the president shall deem advisable."

Another addition calls for any player molesting an official (referee) shall remain suspended until his case has been dealt with by the executive committee, the usual penalty to be a suspension for not less than a year.

And if this addition goes through, any player whose name appears in the referee's report sheet, forwarded to the member of the club, the same as if properly registered and shall be ineligible to register with any other club during the current season.

This one should cook some of the hotheads. "Any player who touches or holds a referee or any minor official with his hand or his stick, or intentionally trips or bodychecks any such official shall automatically receive a match penalty and shall stand suspended until his case has been dealt with by the president or executive committee. The use of a substitute shall be permitted." And when the captain of a team receives a penalty he shall lose his privilege as captain and proceed immediately to the penalty box."

And to dispense with a lot of this face-off delay, it has been suggested that two lines, thirty inches apart, shall be painted on the ice surface in each end zone face-off circle equi-distant from the centre of the face-off spot in order that players must stand with their skates on their side of these lines. This, it is felt, will bring about cleaner face-offs.

And here's another intended to curb some of the "smart players." That if any player of an attacking team causes a face-off by shooting the puck on the back of the defending team's net, then the resulting face-off shall be taken to a face-off spot in the neutral zone just outside the blue line of the defending team.

And just one misdeed to a game, fellas. It says here, another proposed rule addition, is that any player who incurs a second misconduct penalty in a game, then this second misconduct becomes an automatic game misconduct penalty.

The above are but a few of the long list of proposed additions and amendments to the playing rules and constitution which will deal with at the convention this week-end.

Messrs' manager Bruce Smith and secretary Dewey Donevan will head the Bellville delegation to the convention. It is expected a strong representation of the eastern Ontario senior "B" group will be on hand.

Incidentally the OHA announced today that its slate of top officers has been returned by acclamation. The incoming president is Frank Buckland, of Peterborough. Others returned are: M. L. Gregg, Wingham, immediate past president; Lorne Cook, Kingston, first vice-president; Ken McMillan, Georgetown, second vice-president; Dick Maitland, Lindsay, and W. A. Hewitt, Toronto, secretary. Four members of the executive will be elected at the annual meeting. Those nominated are: Mel Cumnbam, Lindsay; Jack Devine, Belleville; Dane Foord, Toronto; T. A. M. Hulse, Aurors; J. C. McDonald, Orillia; Herb Parker, Stratford; G. C. Patterson, Brampton; Lloyd Pollock, Windsor, and Bruce Smith, Belleville.

Blanks Chisox by 5-0 Score As Red Sox Lose to Kansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Charlie Grimm watched the rain bounce off the sidewalks of New York Tuesday afternoon and figured both his Milwaukee Braves and his sickers were in good shape, what with Bobby Thomson hitting and all.

Jolly Chelly agreed with bre-season talk that had his guys winning the National League pennant. And he was sure the Johnny Antonelli-for-Thomson deal with the Giants was about to swing in Milwaukee's favor at last. A year ago, of course, Thomson socked a broken wrist ankle while Antonelli was the pride of New York's pitching staff as the Giants swept to the world title.

"Thomson already has won two games for us in the field," said Charlie, "and three with his bat." That accounted for five of the seven won by second-place Milwaukee so far.

EXCEPT FOR JOHNNY

It might have been six games chalked up for Thomson Tuesday night—except for a guy named Antonelli. The young lefty, beaten in his two previous starts, three-hit the Braves in a 3-2 New York victory. And he made Thomson, tied for the league leads in runs-batted-in (11), was like just another batter.

Twice he fanned Thomson as Bobby went hitless, in four trips. Three times, Thomson failed with runners on base, his eighth, a rally fizzled as Thomson dribbled the ball in front of the plate for the final out with the tying run on third.

That was the only National League game played, with rain and cold putting the rest on the shelf. The American got off all four games, topped by Bob Turley's one-hit pitching in a 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox that moved the New York Yankees into first place, one game up on the Sox.

TIE WITH TRIBE

Boston had a chance to tie the Yankees, but lost to Kansas City, 8-7 in 11 innings. That tied the Red Sox for third with Cleveland's Indians, who beat Washington 3-2 as Bob Lemon won his fourth with a home run.

Al Kaline's ninth-inning blast beat Hoyt Wilhelm and Detroit 3-2.

New York had its three runs on a walk and four singles before Bob Buhl had retired a man Tuesday night. That did it. After the second, the Giants didn't make a hit off Buhl and two relievers, Dave Jolly and ace Warren Spahn. Hank Aaron tripled home the first Braves run in the third and they got another in the eighth on Aaron's single and a pair of infield outs with the help of an error and a passed ball.

Pats Confident Of Victory In Fourth Game

REGINA (CP) — The Memorial Cup hockey final goes into a fourth game tonight with Regina fans still claiming their team should have won the third.

As far as, Toronto Marlboros edged Regina Pats 3-2 for a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. Odds for the fourth game were close to even after the strong showing Pats made in the third encounter, losing after allowing Toronto two easy goals in the first period.

Coaches Murray Armstrong of Pats and Turk Broda of Marlboros will use the same lineups. Armstrong is using all three replacements the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association permits the western representative.

FLAMAN RESIGNS

Pat Wigger Harvey Flaman missed the third game due to a stomach ailment and will be missing again tonight.

Broda was pessimistic Tuesday. "We'll need some luck if we're going to win. The way things have been shaping up, it'll go into overtime."

Broda rated Pats as good as Toronto. First goals came after sloppy clearing and Armstrong was unhappy about it.

Royals Nip Sugar Kings By 4-3 Score

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montreal Royals, who finished second last year without a good pitching staff, are finding that just a fair mound corps is keeping them near the top of the International League.

In the only game played Tuesday night, Montreal nipped the league-leading Havana Sugar Kings 4-3 on Charlie Neal's seventh-inning home run. The Buffalo Bisons-Richmond Virginian doubleheader was postponed because of rain. The other four clubs were idle.

Relief pitcher Hal Jeffcoat broke Joe Stanek, who replaced starter Jim Cox in the first inning, enabled him to record his first victory of the season.

The victory moved Royals to within 2½ games of the Sugar Kings.

Dutchmen Glimpse Allan Cup Edge Beavers For Third Win

KITCHENER (CP) — Fort William Beavers fell victim Tuesday night to something they avoided all season. They lost their second straight game and it means trouble in their search for the Allan Cup.

The western Canada champions lost 7-6 to Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen following their 6-2 loss here Saturday. Kitchener now leads the best-of-seven series 3-1 with the fifth game to be played here Thursday.

The eastern champions came from behind twice for their victory. Beavers jumped to a 1-0 lead early in the first period and were ahead 6-3 toward the end of the second.

But it was 56 minutes through the final frame and Charlie Brooker broke it up with less than two minutes remaining.

"What can you say after a comeback like that?" asked coach Bob Bauer of his Dutchmen. "For a while I didn't think my club would ever get rolling."

LED WITH THREE

Big Joe Schertzl, 200-pound defenceman, led Dutchmen with three goals, one in each period. Ken Laufman scored two goals and singles went to Clare Martin and Brooker.

Alex Struk ow and Tom Kompon paced Beavers with a pair of goals each. Harold Beshaw and Morris Sapiyay added the others.

Beavers, keyed up for this one after their Saturday loss, led 6-3 at 14:46 of the second period and then yielded four successive goals to a team that never stopped trying.

Coach Bob Drainville said Beavers "booted it away."

"We should never have lost that one."

Key figure in the winning drive was Schertzl. The former Hershey Bear star scored the tying goal at 8:15 of the third period. He outfought two Beaver players for the puck and struggled in to beat Paul Morris from close in.

Brooker got the winner from a long pass by Don Bauer at 18:35.

BAD BOUNCE

Only a minute earlier Morris Hamilton of Beavers had hit Keith Woodall's arm and the puck bounced over the net.

Kompon got the Beavers off on the right foot when he scored from in close at 3:40 of the first period. Laufman tied it 1-1 at 4:27 when he steered in a pass from Schertzl. Struk, playing his first game in the series for Beavers, scored on a 50-foot blaster at 11:19 and Kompon made it 3-1 at 13:00. Schertzl scored at 16:35 and Martin revened the game at 17:34.

Beavers got in front again in the second period when Struknow scored twice while Kitchener drew a shorthanded, goals coming at 8:32 and 9:18. Brooker sank a perfect pass from Struknow at 14:46 to make it 6-3 and it looked like a runaway.

Dutchies roared back in a spurt that sent the 5,400 fans crazy. Schertzl converted Brooke's pass at 15:43 and Laufman tipped in Garry Theberge's relay to make it 6-5 at 17:55.

AUSSIES FIRM

GEORGETOWN, B.G. (Reuters) Australian cricketers took a firm grip on the third test match against the West Indies on the opening day of the six-day game this Tuesday. Already one up in the five-match series, the Tourists ended the day only 90 runs behind, with nine first innings wickets in hand.

Eastern Ont. Minor Hockey Marked Highly Successful Season in 1954-55

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association completed a record year in Eastern Ontario, according to O.M.H.A. executive member Doug Patterson of Stirling, and an even larger aggregation is expected for the 55-56 season.

Nearly 40 teams took part in play from this region, some travelling as many as 65 miles to play group games, Stirling-Trenton chairman Patterson showed. From Belleville alone came 36 teams, six teams in each of the squirt, pee wee, bantam and midget and two in the juvenile section. The other 28 clubs were from Brighton, Coe Hill, Campbellford, Cooper, Hastings, Havelock, Norwood, Madoc, Stirling, Warkworth and Wellington. They included seven juvenile, ten midget and five bantam squads, in addition Kingston entered seven teams.

A combined total of 33 teams battled for O.M.H.A. honors in Eastern Ontario; ten juvenile, 10 midget and seven bantam. There were also hundreds of squirts, pee wees and atoms and you finished hockey which would bring the total number of boys participating to around 2,000.

Although no Eastern Ontario team took a provincial title, several came close. Teams advancing to the semi-finals were Gananoque in juvenile "B"; Trenton in midget "B"; Marmora in juvenile and bantam and Port Hope in the latter "B" division.

BETTER NEXT YEAR

Two pee wee tournaments were held in this district, one each at Marmora and Havelock, and more are expected next year.

Doug Patterson stated "There is no reason to doubt that next reason will see at least 40 to 45 teams battling it out in Eastern Ontario." He added "In the midst of all this growth increased hockey activity let's not lose sight of the main objectives of minor hockey. Let's promote, as good, keen team competition and hockey for every boy who wants to play. If any team is fortunate enough to win a provincial title, let us make sure they know how to win graciously and for those who fall by the wayside, the good grace to lose in a sportsmanlike way."

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association will ring down the official curtain on a successful season with their annual presentation banquet, this gala affair will take place on Saturday, May 21 at the Capitol Theatre with plenty of fun planned for the local youngsters.

O.M.H.A. secretary Jack Christie paid fine tribute to Eastern Ontario in the following commentary—

"The Ontario Minor Hockey Association is pleased with the showing made by eastern Ontario teams, who have improved each year. Marmora, who have reached the late stages in past years showed signs of regaining strength with a fine bantam team in the semi-finals, and Wellington, who have been patiently developing teams, made a splendid showing before losing out to Stouffville. More important, however, the O.M.H.A. is aware of, and proud of the fine co-operation and good sportsmanship shown by the officials of the eastern Ontario teams. It is hard and you friends are setting a fine example for all to follow."

"This brief message from your O.M.H.A. office would be only partially complete if we did not remind you that we who are elected to guide the affairs of Minor Hockey in Ontario are proud to be associated in our efforts with Doug Patterson and Albert Watkins. These men represent you on the O.M.H.A. executive and represent the O.M.H.A. to your district. These remarks may embarrass these hard working fellows, but we know you will agree that no district is represented by better fellows than that represented by Doug Patterson and Albert Watkins.

"In closing, my personal word of greeting to the many friends and co-workers in eastern Ontario. It is my sincere hope that in the near future I shall have the pleasure of accepting an invitation to attend a banquet at which an O.M.H.A. Championship trophy is presented. It will be tilting reward for some of you who have toiled so long, and so well, for wayside, the good grace to lose in minor hockey and for boys."

Cataracts Rally To Nip Flyers In Third Win

By GERRY LA FONTAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Shawinigan Falls packed their main scoring punch in the last minutes of the middle period Tuesday night to come from behind to nip Edmonton Flyers 4-3 in the third game of their Edmundston Trophy series.

The victory gave the Quebec Hockey League club a 2-1 lead in games in the best-of-nine series. The teams square off on the fourth time in Shawinigan Falls Thursday.

The Flyers scored two unassisted goals—the first one coming on the opening shot in the game. The Cataracts tied the contest twice in the second period before moving ahead in the same frame. They added an insurance marker in the final stanza.

A partisan crowd of 12,782 saw Edmonton's Jean Beliveau and Cataract defenceman Jean-Paul Lamirande and goalie Claude Pronovost get into a fight with a 13-foot blast from a difficult angle to open the scoring at the two-minute mark. Goalie Bob Perreault looked bad as he moved too deep to block what should have been an easy shot.

TIED IT UP

Eddie Kachur tied the game 1-1 early in the second period on a picture play set up by Erwin Grosse.

Edmonton went into the lead again when Norm Ullman sifted through Shawinigan defence and caught the near corner of the net.

Three minutes later Fern Perrault tied the game again with a sharp-angled 20-foot drive.

Jean-Paul Denis made it 3-2 for the Cataracts when he back-handed the Flyers' Gaetz rebound.

Claude Provost gave Shawinigan Falls their two-goal lead again early in the third on a pass from Connie Broden.

PGA FUNDAMENTAL No. 2
The Waggle

The second golf fundamental—the waggle — may seem relatively unimportant to you, but the PGA Teaching Committee insists that it is a basic part of every good golf swing.

Even we tournament players can't stand up there and address the ball without developing some rigidity and tension. That's why all pros use the waggle as a vital preliminary before actually starting the swing.

The waggle up tension and prevents any tendency to freeze over the ball. It also helps establish the rhythm and tempo of the swing.

But don't overdo the waggle. Just lift the club and with your wrists loose and relaxed,' make two or three passes over the ball as your body settles into position for the actual swing.

Too much or too much you'll only tend to build tension, rather than relieve it.

Bookmakers, Touts, Creditors Colored Early Racing Days

By JOHN PATERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Bookmakers, touts, bothersome creditors and the Depression formed the early days of racing in western Canada, Jack (Jim) Speers of Winnipeg told Ontario horsemen at their luncheon Tuesday night.

He was guest speaker at the second annual get-together dinner to the owner of Canada's leading thoroughbred sire of the year, "Thoroughbred of Canada," a monthly publication. For the second successive year the award was won by Chop Chop, owned by K. P. Taylor, Toronto industrialist.

Speers said that from 1905 to 1913 racing in western Canada was conducted on the fair circuit "under the control of men who were in the book-making business."

"They paid a cash price to the fair associations for the racing privileges at the various towns—Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Calgary.

"They were unscrupulous and ruthless and delighted in fixing races to their own financial benefit. It was amazing the number of so-called smart business men who seemed to think such behavior was part and parcel of horse racing."

In those days, too, and in the early 30s, the tracks were "overrun by touts" and Mr. Speers believes he is the only track official who ever paid "protection" money for a tout.

"The touts were from the United States. One told me that they would leave provided I allowed them to stay long enough to make their railway fare.

"I told him I'd rather pay the fares than have them around the track and that if they'd be on the railway station platform that afternoon there would be tickets waiting for them. They left . . ."

Now a wealthy business man, Speers said his early days as a racing promoter and breeder were hectic.

He recalled when Whittier Park track in Winnipeg was being built in 1924. He was conducting a race meeting at nearby River Park. His backers had drawn out, his credit was extended to the limit and the workmen wanted their pay.

"The climax was reached one day when we had to have a payroll of $18,000 by noon. I told the superintendent to hold the men 3½ hours overtime and I would pay them at three-thirty that afternoon or I slipped over to River Park and as fast as the money came in there I sent it over to pay the workmen at Whittier Park. It was close."

Age Problem Non-Existent In OMHA

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Christie, secretary of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, said Tuesday the association is anxious to dispel any thought that a province-wide investigation is needed into use of over-age minor players in hockey.

He said in a statement the league is satisfied that use of over-age players and players using assumed names are non-existent in organized hockey.

Christie issued the statement after it was reported that Newmarket, winners of a recent Queen tournament at Goderich, had used three over-age players.

Christie said tournaments are not organized as hockey and it's possible some opponents permit use of specified numbers of over-age players in tournaments to provide balanced competition.

But that is different from illegal use of over-age players by deception and doesn't warrant investigation, he said. Christie said the Goderich tournament was not conducted by the OMHA, but by the Goderich Young Canada Week Committee and Lions Club.

Christie said at the request of the Goderich committee the OMHA is investigating present charges.

McFater Verdicts Percy For Welter Title

TORONTO (CP)—Allan McFater, young Toronto fighter who couldn't get far in the lightweight ranks in nearly four years of boxing, today holds the Canadian welterweight championship.

The 21-year-old McFater stripped Tony Percy of Drummondville, Que., of the title by unanimous decision over 12 rounds Tuesday night.

It was Percy's first defence of the crown he won from Reggie Chartrand of Montreal last Jan. 24.

There were no knockdowns, although Percy was wobbly in a couple of rounds. A small crowd of about 3,000 saw a sturdier, stronger McFater hammer Percy with jarring punches to the stomach and head in nine of the 12 rounds. He had Percy on the verge of a knockout early in the bout but couldn't connect with a K.O. punch.

WAS VULNERABLE

McFater, in going 12 rounds for the first time, discovered early that Percy was vulnerable to attack. He concentrated on that. When Percy dropped his guard, McFater went to work on his head. The dark-haired champion suffered a cut on the inside of his mouth in the early rounds and was bleeding freely.

Percy had trouble making the 147-pound limit. He had to speed a couple of hours in a steam bath early today to shed about 2½ pounds. That probably weakened him, McFater observed. (AIM)

In an eight - round semi-final, Gord Wallace of Brantford, Ont., was awarded a unanimous decision over Charlie Chase of Montreal. Canadian middle champion who competed for Canada in the 1952 Olympics at Helsinki, Chase's title was not at stake.

Neither fighter was cut and there were no knockdowns. Chase weighed 162½, and Wallace 159½.

American League MVP Award Goes to Lowe

NEW YORK (AP)—Ross Lowe, Springfield centre, Tuesday was named the American Hockey League's most valuable player for the 1954-55 season in the closest vote in league history.

The result of the vote gave Springfield Indians two of the league's special awards and reflected the nattiness of owner-coach Eddie Shore in transforming Lowe from a defenceman into a centre.

As a reward for winning MVP honors, Lowe will receive the Les-lie Cunningham Trophy and a league bonus of $500.

Lowe, a native of Oshawa, played with Hershey and Buffalo in the AHL, Boston and Montreal in the National League and Victoria in the Western League, always at a defence post.

Englands' Hope in Classic Guineas Rides On Horse With Weak Heart

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEWMARKET, England (CP)—A horse with a weak heart was England's main hope to hold off the foreigners in today's two thousand guineas, first of the season's classic races.

Tamerlane, selected to keep the home flag flying, belongs to Lord Porchester, who once wanted to sell Tamerlane to North America. But the deal collapsed when a veterinarian's examination indicated traces of a heart complaint.

The brown colt, by Persian Gulf out of Eastern Emperor, was touted as John Bull's best in the big race over the rowly mile at Newmarket, annually since 1809. The event, restricted to three-year-olds, is £16,000 including a winner's share of £13,706.

Of the 25 probable starters—from an original entry of 425—five were expected to represent France, whose horses are thought to have profited by an easier winter, and three were from Ireland. Most experts gave the nod to France.

Favorite among the gallic gallopers was Beau Prince II, owned by Georges Wildenstein, who predicted victory for his colt in England.

Ireland's three were Ballymarital, Flying Story and Windsor Sun, all representing millionaire Joe McGrath, the man who started the Irish Sweepstakes. Hugh Lupus, owned by Lady Churchill Vernon, daughter of the late Duke of Westminster, was the weekend scratch after suffering skinned ribs on the air trip from Ireland. The Queen's Alexandra, a possible, underrated son of Alycidon.

SARATOGA SKIPS DERBY

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Saratoga, decisive winner in the Chesapeake Stakes here last Saturday and a Kentucky Derby eligible, was counted out of the Derby Tuesday. Trainer Frank Bonsal said after a consultation with Saratoga's owner, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan Scott, that 3-year-old would not be sent to Kentucky for the May 7 big race.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A little knowledge is too dangerous a thing for some of your bridge friends. Offer them a little leeway and they will land you in the worst port all covered with a spray of lost points.

Talking of pre-empts, I pick up a letter with this deal:

	NORTH
	♥A 6 5
	♦A 8 5
	♣K 8 7 3
WEST		EAST
♠A 7		♠5
♥K J 97		♥10 8 3 2
♦K Q 10 9 4 3		♦J 6
♣Q 4		♣J 10 9 6 5
	SOUTH
	♠K Q J 10 9 6 4
	♥Q 4
	♣A 8 7 2

This is the reported bidding:

South	North
4 Spades	Pass

When slam in spades rolled in on wheels, both partners blamed each other, the letter states. North was getting the last of the argument. So, south wants me to say who was wrong.

An opening of four in a major suit is a pre-empt. Its purpose is to shut out partner as well as opponents. It is done with a long suit hand that denies any hope of a good score.

Only if partner has three aces and a couple of kings is there a chance to make slam. So, partner has very little excuse for any error in the auction when his hand could crush rocks.

Such a pre-emptive opening makes one definite promise. It says that the quality of the hand is such that it could not make a sound opening bid of one; that it lacks anything promised by a bid of one.

Some players quickly learn the minimum needs for an opening pre-empt. But not what it denies and forget what partner could must have to carry it further. Evidently this south is one of them.

This south holding is definitely out of the pre-emptive class. Why? It has the qualities for a sound opening one bid. And for an opening of one, north may respond with much less than shown.

With south's opening of one spade, north will be able to show enough values to reach their best goal; a slam in spades.

This deal should help south. He needs it.

CENSURE LARSEN

GENOA, Italy (AP)—A leading Italian Tennis Federation official said Tuesday he believed, "a reprimand" is justified in the incident of tennis star Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., and a Genoese ballboy.

The official, Ugi Maffei, added, however, he did not think the case warranted any more serious action against the American player. The U.S. Lawn Tennis Association temporarily banned Larsen from further international play after the incident last Saturday when the 18-year-old ballboy batted a ball which struck the 13-year-old ballboy alongside the head after the ballboy failed to respond his request to get off the court.

TURPIN WINS

LONDON (AP)—Randy Turpin, former world middleweight champion now on a comeback campaign, became the new British light heavyweight champion Tuesday night with a second-round knockout of Alex Buxton.

It was one of the strangest knockouts seen in a British ring. The referee twice warned both boxers for stalling and brawling. Then in the fifth minute of the contest Buxton went down and was counted out. Ringside observers could not make out the punch that put Buxton out.

Turpin weighed 171¼ pounds, and Buxton 168¾.

UNIVERSITY PENALIZED

Leafs Meet Home Town Gang

TORONTO (CP)—Manager Lake Sewell and his Toronto Maple Leafs of the international Baseball League came home Tuesday night to a meet-the-ball-club crowd of more than 900 persons.

Leafs, who won the league pennant last year and open the 1955 season here against Syracuse Chiefs today, met the fans in a downtown hotel. The Oldtimers' Baseball Association conducted the show.

Owner Jack Kent Cooke figured the 1955 Leafs "should not only win the 1955 pennant, they should go right through the playoffs."

Cooke put a two-year time limit on one of his fondest hopes—major league baseball for Toronto.

"I hope that by 1957 we'll have maybe a third-place team in one of the major leagues," he said.

ANNOUNCE HUGE PURSE

CHICAGO (AP) — A $212,000 purse for Tam O'Shanter's all-American and "World" golf tournaments in August was announced Tuesday by promoter George S. May. The big plum is a $50,000 first prize in the "World" with an accompanying potential of 100 exhibition appearances at $1,000 each.

Sponsor Explains Strange Trade

GALT (CP)—Bill Lindsay, co-sponsor of Galt Terriers in the Intercounty Baseball League, explained Tuesday why he traded one of the league's top shortstops for an unnamed Kitchener player.

Lindsay said the deal, made following a meeting of club operators in Galt, sent Mike Pontarelli, former part-owner, in a n a g e r and shortstop of Terriers, to Kitchener Panthers for a player to be selected at a later date.

Lindsay said Pontarelli refused to play in Galt unless he was named manager.

"I talked to Pontarelli by telephone and told him we'd like him back and asked him how much he wanted to play in Galt," he said.

MADE CONDITIONAL

"But he refused to consider my offer unless he could manage the team. I told him that was out."

Bert Pankratz of Detroit, Lindsay's partner, will manage the team.

"The player we get from Kitchener will be one of our choice and not one that they may especially want to give us," Lindsay said.

In Kitchener, Jim Gallagher, owner of the Panthers, said his club will do everything it can to supply Galt with a capable player in exchange for Pontarelli.

HAWAIIAN HOLIDAY CAN BE YOURS, SAYS MR. FAWCETT

Mr. W. J. Fawcett, manager of the Odeon McCarthy theatre, tells the Ontario Intelligencer today that he will shortly offer his patrons a chance to win a wonderful dream holiday for two in the gorgeous Hawaiian Islands. This opportunity will come to the public in conjunction with showings of the sensational and intriguing movie "Chance Meeting". This story of two young lovers who dared to snatch an ecstatic, forbidden love when the world tried to keep them apart, comes to the Odeon McCarthy theatre, Monday, May 2nd, for three days.

This exciting, gripping story, abounding with thrills and international intrigue has inspired a contest to give two people a holiday in the tropics they will never forget. For just as the emotional impact of "Chance Meeting" will remain forever in your moviegoing memories, so will this holiday with its sun-kissed days and moonfilled nights never be forgotten by the lucky winners. A flight to Hawaii in a luxurious Pan American Stratocclipper, wardrobes by Tip Top Tailors, sets of famous Flite 69 travel cases by Dominion Luggage Ltd., and two weeks of glorious, carefree living at the Hana Maui Hotel on the Hawaiian Island of Maui will make this the most wonderful holiday the world has to offer. Watch for "Chance Meeting". It can be your chance to win these fabulous prizes.

Rockey Whipped "Lot of Old Men" Says Cockell

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—Rocky Marciano won his world heavyweight boxing title "by beating a lot of old men," English challenger Don Cockell said Tuesday.

"I'm confident youth will win the championship for me," the British boxer added. "I'm bigger, I'm huskier and I have a two-inch reach advantage. And besides that I'm just years younger."

The two meet May 16 at San Francisco, with Marciano's title at stake.

Cockell, training here for the fight, listed Joe Louis, Jersey Joe Walcott and Ezzard Charles as the "old men" Marciano had defeated.

"I never saw Louis fight," Cockell said, "but English friends of mine tell me Marciano facing Louis in his prime wouldn't have lasted three rounds. Against Louis, I think Father Time licked Joe, not Marciano."

Marciano will be 31 next September and Cockell 27 three weeks to the day later.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, April 28, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — With generosity of heart and a willingness to assume your share of responsibilities, you can advance gainfully. On the whole, a favorable day. - Cooperation always brings results.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Benefic vibrations. Don't waste time talking; pitch in and act — you so ably can. Personal affairs, romance, marriage, family matters favored — if well handled.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Don't put yourself out on a limb without assurance that you can get back if need be. While doing your own work, assist and encourage others. It will be appreciated.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — You may need extra vim and vigor to get things straightened out this day. However, be neither uncertain nor anxious. Just be natural; figure out the ways. You will be "in".

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Follow well-made plans to the letter — with alacrity, enthusiasm and confidence. Be warned against indifference and inattention to details; these could set you back needlessly.

August 23 to September 22 — (Virgo) — You may be besieged with good prospects today, but don't "go overboard." The influences favor a sensible pace if you would make lasting progress.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Neither stimulating nor restrictive tendencies now. The day can be productive if you plan and manage cleverly; a wasted one if you procrastinate or are indifferent. It's up to you.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Today gives you "a break" many ways. Seek out opportunities to advance and give your very best in all endeavors. Then will come satisfaction, reward — and no regrets.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Expect some tricky situations, unusual ideas. An unpredictable day. Be prepared, alert, withhold opinions — and smile.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — More-demanding and less expanding is the likely situation now. Some problems in finances and business suggest you adhere closely to sensible procedure, sound principles.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Not much let-up for you who are anxious to achieve, move forward steadily. Some obstacles may be unexpectable but you can keep out of trouble by good thinking, attention, consistency.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Avoid a tendency to mix things by plan, by pushing on too fast without reconnoitering first. Not an inviting day for the non-thinker. Be soundly hopeful.

You born today are practical, conservative, energetic and often persistent. Use many restraint in situations you know may get you into needless trouble. You have executive ability. The energy of the Sun with your ruling planet Venus indicates mental strength, also some secretiveness. You don't hesitate about wise plans; you are deliberate, some times refuse to take suggestions. None of us listen as we should to those who may "annoy us." Don't let haste to accomplish cause you to be careless. Never neglect your soul's needs. Birthdate of: James Monroe, 5th U. S. President.

Cast And Plot of Bing's New Picture Entirely New

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Time for a chat with Bing Crosby.

The crooner is making his 30th picture and, for the first time, a remake of one of his oldies. It's "Anything Goes," which he filmed in 1936 with Ethel Merman and Victor Moore.

The cast and plot are entirely different this time; only the title and the Cole Porter score remain. And Crosby. He's joined by Jeanmaire, Mitzi Gaynor and Donald O'Connor, who appeared as brothers in "Sing You Sinners" in 1937.

"I guess they don't like me on this lot," cracked O'Connor. "They waited 18 years before giving me another job."

Actually, it's a delayed appearance for O'Connor, who was under contract to Paramount as a wee lad. He was set to appear with Bing in "White Christmas" last year. Illness kept him out of the film and Danny Kaye replaced him.

"Anything Goes" is still played on shipboard, and Bing and Donald were doing a scene in the condemned liner's salon. When they finished, Bing sauntered over to give a report on his future plans.

What about his summer?

"I'll be tied up with this picture for another couple of months. Then I'll get some time at Elko (Nev.) and my place in Idaho. I might get over to Europe, too. I've got two boys in the service; if I could get rid of the other two, I wouldn't have much to worry about."

Phillip and Dennis are the soldiers. Lindsay is still in high school, and Gary has been launching his own singing career.

"I doubt that the army will take Gary," Bing said. "He's got a football shoulder that would disqualify him. It's too bad. The army would be good discipline for him; might knock some sense in his head. Of course, he'd probably spend the first six months in the guardhouse."

It was suggested that Gary's independence might be inherited from a close relative.

"Oh, it couldn't be me!" Bing laughed. He reported with some pride on Gary's career, which includes several TV shots, three weekly appearances with the Tennessee Ernie radio show and a Chicago theatre date with Louis Armstrong. Bing allowed that the boy would be picking up good experience.

What about Bing's TV plans?

"I'll probably be doing two hour shows on films this year. I won't be a variety format. Ralph Levy, the producer, is angling for the rights to 'Our Town' and High Tor.' They'd be played pretty straight, with a few songs thrown in."

Bing is one of the few veterans radio stars who is sticking to the medium. He has a nightly 15-minute chatter show and likes doing it.

"I ramble along on any subject that interests me," he explained. "Radio is a funny thing. You think success is fleeting. Then you say something controversial and you get a flood of letters."

Bing dropped many pounds after his kidney stone operation and still seems slim. He said he's feeling great. He'll have plenty of time for rest after "Anything Goes."

John D. Hayes Named 'Candy Man of Year'

NEW YORK — A Canadian business man, last night named "The Candy Man of the Year" by the American Candy Industry.

For distinguished service to the candy industry, John D. Hayes, president of the Laura Secord Candy Shops, was tendered a testimonial dinner and honored by the Association of Manufacturers of Confectionery and Chocolates, at the Hotel Biltmore, New York City. Mr. Hayes is also president of the Fanny Farmer Candy Shops Inc.

Mr. Hayes, has had a long record of accomplishment in the candy industry. His shops and manufacturing standards have long been of the highest calibre.

Along with his brother-in-law, the late Senator Frank P. O'Connor, Mr. Hayes helped start the Fanny Farmer business in a small shop in downtown Rochester, N.Y. in 1919. From that very humble beginning, Mr. Hayes helped lay the ground-work for the Company's growth. Despite meagre eyesight, Mr. Hayes has helped Fanny Farmer to grow into a national organization of more than 3,500 employees with approximately 400 shops in more than 200 cities. Last year Mr. Hayes reported sales for Fanny Farmer as the largest in the company's history.

Mr. Hayes, associated with many charitable and philanthropic organizations, plays an active and aggressive role in the community and civic affairs of Rochester, N.Y., the site of the company's executive offices. He also has a home in Toronto, Canada.

Representatives of leading candy organizations made up the committee sponsoring Mr. Hayes' testimonial dinner.

Lloyd George's Daughter Joins Labor Party

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Lady Megan Lloyd George, until recent years the only woman to have represented Wales in the British House of Commons, has forsaken the Liberal party and joined Labor in a search for what she calls the old radical tradition.

Her decision may have an influence in the forthcoming campaign for the May 26 general election. Lady Megan will not run for Parliament, but will speak in selected constituencies where she thinks she can sway radical sympathizers.

The round-faced, smiling Lady Megan, popular with all parties when she sat for 22 unbroken years as Liberal member for Anglesey, lost her seat in the 1951 election. She was always a left-wing Liberal and it had been felt for some time she might join Labor.

In a letter to Labor leader Clement Attlee, the 52-year-old daughter of David Lloyd George, the late Liberal prime minister, says she now is convinced that only in the Labor party can she be true to the radical tradition.

CONTACT LOST

"For a century, radicalism was a movement of the people, a protest against social injustice and grinding poverty, a democratic stand against privileges at home and imperialism in foreign affairs.

"The official Liberal party of 1955 seems to me to have lost all touch with the radical tradition which inspired it."

Form Committee To Study Ottawa's Relief Proposal

Federal-Provincial Parley Will Open on October 3

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal offer to share in providing welfare relief for Canada's unemployed is to be thoroughly investigated by a special federal-provincial committee of experts.

From there it will go to a new federal - provincial ministerial meeting which may result in the final decision as to whether the provinces will accept the offer. It may take several months to reach that decision.

Creation of the committee was announced at Wednesday's windup of the two-day federal-provincial conference. It set October 3 as the date for its main 1955 meeting to discuss new tax-sharing proposals, a health insurance scheme, federal aid for resources development and the whole field of federal-provincial fiscal relations.

"After three weeks I asked my wife to leave," Mr. Cochran said judge John D. Cochran: "Divorce granted."

Salk Vaccine Well Treated Before Release

TORONTO (CP)—A spokesman for Connaught Laboratories, major producer of Salk poliomyelitis vaccine in Canada, said Wednesday the vaccine is subjected to rigorous tests before being released to the public.

She said samples of each batch of vaccine are tested on monkeys and held for two months before distribution to medical authorities to ensure no deaths occur in the manufacture.

The vaccine is also tested by the food and drug division of the national department of health and welfare, which must give its approval before the vaccine can be used on patients.

The Connaught spokesman was commenting on the United States public health service's decision for the temporary withdrawal of Salk vaccine manufactured by the Cutter Laboratories of Berkeley, Calif. because one death and seven cases of paralysis have been reported among children vaccinated with the Cutter vaccine.

"It may be that the Cutter labs used some variation in their method of making the vaccine," she said.

Strike Postponed

CANANOQUE (CP)—Strike action at Cananoque's largest industry, Parmenter and Bullock Manufacturing Co. Ltd., has been postponed indefinitely, just hours before today's deadline.

Textile representative Dwight Storey of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) announced Wednesday night that the scheduled walkout had been delayed following conciliation meetings. Local 2222.

The 95-member union, which two weeks ago voted 62 per cent in favor of a strike April 28, heard reports of efforts to arrive at a new contract with the company. Mr. Storey expressed hope for a peaceful settlement.

Jelke Is Given 2 to 3 Years On Vice Charge

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Jelke, 35-year-old heir to an oleomargarine fortune and convicted café society procurer, was sentenced today to two to three years in prison.

Jelke, tried twice, was convicted of inducing Patricia Ward to enter a life of prostitution and of attempting to induce Marguerite Cordova to do the same.

His first conviction was thrown out because the trial judge excluded press and public during presentation of prosecution testimony.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Fine sunny weather will continue over the southern half of the province today, but with temperatures five to 10 degrees higher than those of Wednesday. A disturbance drifting northward through Manitoba caused clouds and an occasional thunderstorm overnight in regions north of Lake Superior. Those showers will persist across the northland today, and will skirt nearby their way into southern Ontario late tonight or Friday.

CCF MEMBER SAYS P.M. OFFERS PALTRY RELIEF

Attacks Proposals Made at Conference

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF member says Prime Minister St. Laurent plans only paltry relief payments to the unemployed instead of providing work and wages.

Grande Ellis, Regina, criticizing the prime minister in Wednesday's supplementary budget debate, said the government is quite prepared to permit a certain level of unemployment in the country.

His speech was an attack on proposals by Mr. St. Laurent Tuesday to the federal-provincial conference, offering federal contributions to help "the more unemployment passes certain levels in each province. He suggested the present share ranging from 30 to 50 per cent depending on the number of jobless.

Mr. Ellis said the prime minister is "absolutely refusing to consider anything but a paltry contribution to direct relief."

CLAIMS BEFUDDLED

When a CCF member recently demanded jobs for the unemployed, he said, "the prime minister refused bluntly even to consider a work and wages program—he thinks only terms of direct relief."

Supporters of free enterprise accepted a certain amount of unemployment.

"Big business requires a surplus of workers over jobs. . . They've got to have it in a certain percentage of unemployment in this country."

The prime minister's proposals showed the government befuddled in the same view and considered it had no responsibility toward supplying work relief until unemployment passed an unspecified level.

Mr. Ellis demanded federal action on building the South Saskatchewan river power and irrigation project. It would provide more jobs.

He said the only suggestion from the Liberals to ease unemployment was that of Elmore Philpott, Vancouver South, who proposed that up to 40,000 young men could be given extensive military training each winter.

QUOTES HECTOR

"If Mr. (Mr. Philpott) left any doubts as to what he meant," Mr. Ellis said, "they were removed by Hector Dupuis, Quebec East, Paul William (Dan McIver, Liberally) . . . Conscription would be a splendid idea and certainly it would take care of these men who are now on relief rolls."

Mr. McIvor said he doesn't agree with those who say we have had good times. It was difficult to "get a seat" in the street car in Montreal last year Canadians spent $868,600,000 on liquor and $465,000,000 on tobacco.

LEGISLATURE PROROGUES

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Newfoundland legislature Wednesday prorogued after a short 2½ hour session, ending one week of three daily sittings.

Fear Some Vaccine Is Faulty As 8 Get Polio After Shots

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public health authorities expressed anew today their confidence in the Salk polio vaccine, even as they checked the possibility that a defective batch from one of six United States manufacturers may have been faulty.

Intensive tests were ordered after it was reported that three American children had been stricken by polio—one fatally—within a week of receiving their first polio shots. Four other suspected cases of the disease were reported.

In each case, the vaccine used was manufactured by the Cutter Laboratories of Berkeley, Calif., which said that more than 750,000 doses of its product had been injected.

As a "precautionary measure," all further use of Cutter vaccine has been ordered halted immediately pending tests, and the inoculation program was suspended in most of the U.S. west coast areas where it was supplied for free use in the schools.

But Surgeon - General Leonard Scheele of the public health service called for continuance of the program in other areas of the country, where vaccine supplied by five other drug firms has been used without harmful effects.

CONFIDENCE EXPRESSED

"We believe that the immunization program against poliomyelitis should continue," he said in a statement, "and I urge that parents and children scheduled to take part in the vaccination program continue to follow their plans."

He said his seven-year-old son will receive his first shot as scheduled early next month.

Meanwhile, federal and state authorities worked in California to investigate whether their vaccine or merely coincidence caused the polio cases at this time.

Of the two eight diagnosed cases and three of the suspected cases occurred in California. Two other cases were reported from Pocatello, Idaho, and one from Chicago. Another suspected case was reported from Denver, where a 13-month-old Colorado child had been inoculated with vaccine supplied through commercial channels.

Officials said it normally takes 10 to 14 days after exposure for polio to develop, and emphasized it is possible that all the stricken children had contracted the disease before they received their shots.

The Cutter vaccine was supplied for mass inoculations in parts of California and in Arizona, New Mexico, Idaho, Hawaii and Nevada. Much smaller shipments for inoculation of children were made to other areas of the country. All the vaccine was produced from virus from the company's ranch.

A source which asked to remain unidentified said in Berkeley that suspicion had been directed against only four batches out of possibly 100 made by the Cutter laboratories.

Eden Ready to Participate In Big Four Meet 'at Summit'

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Eden said today he is ready to participate in a Big Four meeting "at the summit" as soon as the treaties to rearm West Germany are ratified.

Reply to Labor members' questions about when he proposes to meet with Soviet Premier Bulganin, Eden told the House of Commons:

"It was agreed by the allies that before there could be useful talks with Soviet Russia, the Paris agreements (rearming West Germany) must be ratified and progress made with the Austrian treaty.

"Fortunately progress has been made with both these matters. . . . As a result of the recent progress, the way now is clear so far as we are concerned and we are anxious to explore with the Soviet government the possibility of reaching agreement on all outstanding matters between East and West.

"We shall be ready to take part in talks at any level whether heads of government or foreign ministers."

The Paris agreements are due for final ratification by all the allied powers on May 5.

Fire in Hold Damages Baggage On Cunard Liner

CORK, Ireland (Reuters)—Fire aboard the 27,666-ton Cunard liner Britannic in mid-Atlantic badly damaged passengers' baggage and mails, it was disclosed on the ship's arrival here today.

Most of the 260 passengers who disembarked were without baggage.

The blaze broke out in No. 4 hold Saturday morning when the ship was three days out of New York and burned for six hours.

Most of the passengers knew nothing about it at the time, a spokesman said.

The hold contained 221 heavy trunks, 559 bags of parcels and mail and four cars, most of which were damaged.

Steam and water were piped into the hold by the liner's fire-fighting squad.

Prince Edward Island's Election Set for May 25

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A Prince Edward Island general election will be held May 25, two years from the day Premier Alex Matheson took over the leadership from the late senator J. Walter Jones.

The election announcement was made Wednesday by Highways Minister Dougald MacKinnon, who is acting premier while Mr. Matheson is in Ottawa for the federal-provincial fiscal conference.

The Liberals hold 23 of the 30 seats in the legislature. The Bell's Progressive Conservatives have six and one is vacant.

Trans-Continental Trains Complete First Fast Trips

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's two major railways made history Wednesday when their new trans-continental trains clipped half a day from the Vancouver-Montreal runs.

The eastbound trains of the CPR's Canadian and the CNR's Super Continental left Vancouver last Sunday, the same day westbound versions of the same trains left Montreal and Toronto.

First to arrive at its destination was the Canadian. It pulled into Montreal at 10:15 p.m. PDT after cutting 16 hours off the run with a time of 71 hours, 10 minutes.

The Super Continental arrived at 2:45 p. m. its 73 hours, 20 minutes for a cut of 14 hours.

LEVEL CROSSING CRASH KILLS 4 NEAR RENFREW

Freight Train Hits Vehicle Broadside

RENFREW, Ont. (CP)—Four of six Quebec bushworkers heading for northern Ontario were killed Wednesday when a fast freight train destroyed their car at a level crossing east of here.

Among the victims is the father of one of the seriously injured survivors of the crash, Jean-Paul Desjardins, 36. He and Ibreal Desjardins, whose relationship has not been determined, are in "fair" condition in Victoria Hospital here.

They and the dead were coming from the Riviere-du-Loup district in Quebec on their way to work in the Cochrane area of Ontario. Killed when the Ottawa-bound Canadian National Railways freight hit the auto were:

Viateur Dumas, 27, Herve Dumas Marcel Deschenes, 30, and Louis Desjardins, 36, all of Jean-Paul. The relationship of the Dumas men has not been established.

NO WIG-WAG

The accident occurred at the Glasgow-Calumet intersection, seven miles east of here. There are warning signs at the crossing, but no flashing lights.

Wreckage of the car and pieces of the men's baggage were strewn for 60 feet along the right-of-way. The car turned over and came to rest in the ditch on the inverted V, pinning a victim under each end.

The injured men have not been in condition to give an account of the accident, but occupants of a car following the wrecked vehicle said the driver failed to see the Viateur Dumas, apparently saw the train before it hit. The car swerved at the last minute to run beside the train, but it swerved too late.

The train engineer hidden from the highway by a slight rise on the eastern approach to the crossing, ploughed into the car broadside. The weather was clear.

Reds Would Lose Any War Today Gruenther Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther says the Russians, despite their H-bomb, "would lose'. . . if they went to war today . . . because of our overwhelming air superiority."

Gruenther, North Atlantic Treaty Organization commander in Europe, thinks the Russians are "having plenty of trouble" and "may well be over-extending themselves" in view of complex domestic economic problems.

In closed-door testimony given to the Senate foreign relations committee Tuesday, but made public today, Gruenther said he was "somewhat afraid" that a recent estimate from time to time their capabilities, which are already high enough."

Atomic Test Postponed Once Again And More Bad Weather Is on Way

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (CP)—The first atomic test in which Canada plans direct participating for the first time was postponed for the fourth straight time just 15 minutes before it was due to be set off at dawn this morning.

The latest postponement of hard-luck Operation Cue—now getting the dubious distinction of being called the 5,000 personnes involved on the Nevada desert—came from here by security relult in a major delay in the tower shot originally scheduled for 5:15 a.m.

Weather officials said today's postponement was caused by adverse upper-air wind conditions. The winds, governing the direction of the deadly radiation fall-out associated with a nuclear explosion, were such that a heavy fall-out was threatened on inhabited areas adjacent to the 415,000-acre proving grounds.

In addition, weather officials said a front moving towards the area from the Pacific Coast will probably force postponement again Friday. It is the weather forecast to check every four days. However, some officials think it might be possible to get off the check until Saturday if conditions are favorable for a shot before then.

Lt. Col. Robert: Klasha of Ottawa, officer commanding the Canadian unit, said the test postponement would make no change in his unit's participation. Canadian test team's plans to continue detection and monitor training in the test area.

Over 100 Killed In Bloody Battle Raging In Saigon

Attack on Society Ordered After Rebels Shell Palace

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON, Indochina (AP) — Flames burned a square mile of Saigon tonight and hundreds were killed or wounded in bloody fighting for control of South Viet Nam's government.

Premier Ngo Dinh Diem declared war to the finish against the rebel Binh Xuyen Society after a brisk attack on Diem's palace, army and police headquarters.

Three battalions of nationalist infantry and parachute troopers, using machine-guns and supported by tanks, pressed the attack on the society of former river pirates' 5,000-man private army.

PLEAS FOR CALM

At nightfall, with Saigon under a pall of smoke, the premier appealed over the government radio for calm. He asked the government troops ,had the situation in hand.

Massed nationalist infantry and troops from the Binh Xuyen back toward the bridge which leads to their territory in Cho Lon, about seven miles from the French residential business area.

A spokesman for the premier said early tonight the cease-fire had been ordered in the bloody battle, which began at 1:15 p. m. There was no definite count of casualties but it was known that more than 100 were dead and some 200 wounded by early evening.

PALACE SHELLED

The premier ordered the army by a state after the Binh Xuyen had shelled elements of his palace. Previously Diem had withheld the command to fire because French authorities feared it would touch off a civil war. It was the second clash here in a month.

The army laid down artillery barrages immediately on Binh Xuyen headquarters at Cho Lon, Saigon's Chinese sector of 2,000,000 people several miles from the French section of the city.

Within two hours more than 50 wounded civilians had already been admitted to hospital.

In swift, bloody blows Diem's troops knocked over four principal garrisons and posts held in Saigon and Cho Lon by the powerful armed society.

The fighting continued through the afternoon, then slackened about 5 p. m., when a report circulated that a cease-fire had been reached. However, the struggle flared up again soon after.

DEAD CATCH

Though the population hastily fled from immediate danger spots, thousands stood in the streets in stunned silence to watch and listen. In the French residential district life went on almost normally. Shops stayed open, the sidewalk cafes filled and traffic moved in its accustomed manner.

Fighting appeared to be becoming general in the non-French quarters of the city. Machine gun mortars mixed with the screaming sirens of ambulances rushing to and fro on the streets.

Wanted to Wear Firemen's Hats, Set Store Afire

OTTAWA (CP) — Assistant fire inspector Phil Larkin, after investigating a small fire in the basement of a grocery store Tuesday, tells this story:

Three boys, aged four, five and six, were given firemen's helmets as gifts. That gave them an idea: They acquired some matches "for my daddy" at a neighborhood store set a string of minor fires outside buildings until they reached the grocery store.

There they dumped waste paper down the basement stairs and set it afire. One of the boys, hearing the approaching fire trucks, hurried home and told his mother: "Hurry, mummy, get my fireman's hat."

That was the inspector's tipoff.

a pall across the clear, tropical sky as hundreds of straw huts caught fire in Cho Lon and the blaze swept through the poorer section of the town.

Initial fighting appeared to be favoring the well-equipped Diem forces, which outnumber the Binh Xuyen four to one, but estimated 5,000 men of the Binh Xuyen.

An artillery barrage laid down on the Binh Xuyen headquarters area in Cho Lon and in the crew huts around Cho Lon. Clouds of black smoke billowed into the sky.

A block of houses and commercial buildings near the Canadian-French consulate was destroyed. Sun burst into flames late in the afternoon.

BCI Marksmen Make Fine Showing In Provincial Rifle Tournament

Leaving a number of the cream of Ontario secondary schools rifle teams in their wake, the Belleville Collegiate Institute sharpshooters came up with a highly creditable performance in the tournament for the Department of Education's Province of Ontario Challenge Shield held in March.

The results just released show that the BCI team finished in twelfth position with a score of 953.2 out of a 100 possible. The man of the team shot a 97 with the lowest score of the seven-man squad being 96.

The performance of the Belleville team is all the more creditable since 84 of the province's 97 secondary schools took part in the tournament. Nearly 620 boys fired in the match.

In addition the Belleville score of 953.2 was a mere three points behind that of the Westdale Secondary School, of Hamilton which took the honors.

RECORD FOR SCHOOL

The twelfth position standing is a record for the BCI marksmen. Last year they finished in the 16th position, and a glimpse at the school records fails to reveal a lon. higher standing than that achieved this year.

School officials in charge of the team are extremely proud of its achievement this year. They feel the success of the marksmen will create additional interest in rifle shooting and they look for a record number of entries in this phase of school activity.

The members of the BCI team and their scores are Robert Coon, 97; Robert Hume, 96; Bill Guilridge, 96; Alan Daniel, 95; John McMahon, 95; Gerald Wallbridge, 94, and Brian Redfearn, 94.

BCI's chances for even greater success in the Challenge Shield shoot next year are enhanced by the fact that the rifle team will be back intact.

The shoots for the Challenge Cup are held in the individual schools and the results forwarded to the Department of Education.

A short time ago Robert Coon, top shot in the tournament shoot, created a school record with a 99 out of 100 during a practice and caused quite a stir in school marksmanship circles and it is reported that this record has been equalled on more than one occasion.

Salvation Army's Campaign For $8,000 Opens on Monday

The Salvation Army's Red Shield Appeal committee for Belleville and district is already in high gear according to Captain S. Fisher in charge of army operations here.

Chairman of the campaign committee, Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, today expressed hopes for a ready response to the appeal which begins on Monday, May 2, with an objective of $8,000.

Campaign headquarters will be located at the Salvation Army Citadel, 258 Pinnacle street.

The campaign organization consists of Col. Vanderwater, chairman; H. Price, treasurer; Captain Fisher, secretary; C. Lundy, special groups; Lorne McDougall, publicity; William Oliver, business section; Mrs. R. McCabe, city canvass, and T. R. Schwab, public relations.

The fine work being done by the Salvation Army is known to everyone. Its helping hand is stretched out in need and its good works will never be known in their entirety.

In previous years Belleville has proudly supported the annual appeal of the Army, and campaign officials feel that this year will again see a generous response go "over the top" in its response.

Your donations, no matter how small, will be gratefully accepted by not only the committee but the Army as a whole. Any lassie or other representative calls on you.

Many people, not only in Belleville and Canada but the world over, have had reason to be thankful for the Army. The veterans of two wars recall with heartfelt gratitude the work done for the troops overseas as well as at home. We shall never forget the famous "Sally Ann".

Remember your donation no matter how large or small, will go to a great cause. The Salvation Army helps those in need — it calls upon you to help them to do just that. Be generous.

The fire brought the girl out of the house, Hallburton testified, but she still wouldn't leave with him.

Newly-Decorated Restaurant Will Open Friday

When the Belmont restaurant on Front St. opens its doors for business tomorrow morning Belleville will find itself with the most ultra-modern establishment of its kind in the area.

Closed for redecoration Saturday night, the Belmont opens Friday about 11 a.m. with a sleek, easeful interior designed to appeal as much to the customer's eye as the establishment's catering to his appetite.

The new interior is a continuation of the remodelling of the counter area of the restaurant, unveiled to the public earlier this year. It incorporates the same color motif — yellow and dark brown mahogany with blue upholstery.

Comfortable, low-slung booths replace the older type in the body of the restaurant, while a domino and feature bar, 27 feet of counter, seating 35 which cuts the interior in half and gives a semi-private air to the back of the establishment. This makes possible the use of the restaurant for large-scale luncheons.

The new seating arrangements have boosted the dining capacity to 120 and this has resulted in additional staff being employed.

Highlighting the wall decoration will be paintings and mirrors while the fluorescent lighting is being replaced by incandescent lighting, from suspended chandeliers.

A second service counter also has been added to handle patrons in the rear portion of the restaurant.

Authority Will Add 100,000 Trees This Year

Thousands of small trees from the Trenton Forestry Station and Ard Forests nurseries are now being received in the district. Planting in the various areas commenced on the 18th of April. The Sandbanks forest plantation, which is a department project to control blow sand, will be increased by over 23,000 trees. Species such as Scotch pine, Carolina poplar, Black locust and Caragana as they are the most hardy under very adverse conditions. A special planting of experimental hybrid poplars will also be carried out.

The Moira River Conservation Authority project will have 50,000 trees added to their plantations. The Department and Authority tree planting machines will be used for this work. The planting site is located near Belleville. The agricultural students from the Belleville and Trenton high schools will be assisting with the planting.

Reforestation projects on crown lands in Hastings County will commence the first week in May. 250,000 trees will be planted.

14 Couples Take Part in Ballroom Dancing Contest

Competitive ballroom dancing, which last night had its debut in this initial phases here, now will be a regular feature in Belleville.

First competition was held in the Harry Morrison Studio at Ballroom Dancing and following awarding of prizes Mr. Morrison announced his intention of holding such competitions regularly.

The competition, the first in Belleville and, I believe, one of the first in Ontario. From now on I am going to hold one every three months," he said.

With 14 couples taking part, all students of the studio, last night's competition took just over two hours and four different dances to find the winners for the novice four-dance trophies presented by the studio.

Winners were Harry Cavers, BCIVS student, and his 18-year-old partner, Joan Lohn, who have been attending the school since its inception here.

Runners-up were man-and-wife team, Douglas and Marion Richardson, while third were Hermon Van Den Broek, 19-year-old Ontario Hydro employee and his pretty partner, Shirley Hall, BCIVS student.

Winner's sister of the first prize winner, Tony Cavers.

Youngest entrant in the floor was 14-year-old Jimmy Lovelock, who though he did not achieve the polish of the older entrants, won an award.

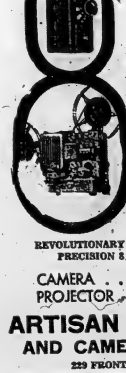
JUDGING POINTS

To win the trophy the competitors had to prove tops in four dances: the slow foxtrot, waltz, jive and slow foxtrot. All were judged on a points system based on the degree of perfection in basic steps, poise and bold, timing and floor-craft.

Judges for the event were: Mr. Morrison, business studio manager Vic Kessler and Ed Kibbee, of Trenton, a former Arthur Murray dance instructor.

Last night's competition was a new departure in dancing here, though not for its instructor. Dancing, the epitome of carefree pleasure, is to be given more business with Mr. Morrison.

Possession of such trophies he first took up dancing seriously in 1938 in England and a year later won his first cup trophy. In 1942 he qualified as an instructor and began studying under England's renowned Victor Sylvester. In 1945 he decided to turn professional. He came to Canada in 1947 and opened his studio here in Belleville in September.



From a small enrolment of 12 students his classes expanded until there now are 160 regularly taking instruction.

STAPLEY. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Sarah Elizabeth Stapley, who passed away April 28th, 1954.
We had a mother with a heart of love
She was so true to us
Her memory is dear
Words cannot express
Without farewell, she fell asleep
With only memories for us to keep.
We have her memory, God has planted
One of the best mothers the world ever granted.
—Sadly missed by son Roy, daughter-in-law Rose and grandson Gail, Allan and Ronald.

LAWRENSON. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. H. Lawrenson, who passed away April 28th, 1951.
Her face is ever before us,
Her memory we shall never forget.
Her smile will last forever,
In memory we see her yet.
Her thoughts were full of us,
Her love was true and kind.
Her memory is dear to those she left behind.
She must be watching yet
For we pray she is safe and upright,
And picture her face as near,
In silence we stand in prayer
For the one we loved so dear.
Lovingly remembered —Ever remembered by Blanche, Bill, Janet, Russell and Mary.

STAPLEY. — In loving memory of a dear daughter, Mrs. Sarah Stapley, who passed away April 28th, 1954.
Yes, the years but not forever,
Will dim the memory
Of the one we miss the most,
Jesus died the last to save.
Sadly missed by her sister Ivy.
When the troubled night is over,
And the day of rest shall dawn,
Will rejoice to see her morn.
—Sadly missed by her grandson Jack.

STAPLEY. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Sarah E. Stapley, who passed away April 28th, 1954.
We do not forget her love nor her care
Her memory to fade from our hearts
Never can be.
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.
In our home she is sadly
In memory missed.
—Sadly missing day by day, her name,
Those who loved her in life sincerely
Still love her in the same.
—Sadly missed by daughter Nora, son-in-law Harold and family.

STAPLEY. — In loving memory of my dear mother, Sarah E. Stapley, who passed away April 28th, 1954.
Gone, dear mother, but not forgotten,
How we miss your smiling face;
Death has left a loneliness
Nothing can ever take your place.
Sadly missed by daughter Eva, son-in-law Irvin, and family.
But death has left a loneliness
For us to bear
—Sadly missed by husband Allen.

STAPLEY. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Sarah E. Stapley, who passed away April 28th, 1954.
The golden gates have opened wide
To welcome home a friend,
But few of the best whom God could send.
She was loving, gentle, thoughtful and true,
Always willing a kind act to do.
Her memory is a treasure stored
That tell how beloved in the soul that
But tears through many a long night and
And loving remembrance fondly keep
Her memory green in the heart and mind
And soon-to-law John.

STAPLEY. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Sarah Stapley, who passed away April 28th, April 28th, 1954.
God gave us a wonderful mother,
Her memory will never grow old.
She's waiting for some out of the sunshine
He moulded her heart of pure gold.
He needed a new star in heaven,
A beautiful light to shine;
So out of this old world of sorrow
He chose that dear mother of mine.

Says Rainmakers May Have Caused Missouri Floods

By BILL RICHARDSON

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—The man who pioneered the science of making rain believes armed forces experiments may have helped touch off disastrous Missouri valley floods of June, 1952.

Dr. Irving Langmuir, a Nobel prize winner and consultant for General Electric Co. experiments with rainmaking, also declared in an interview:

1. A United States Air Force test on a tornado off the eastern coast Oct. 17, 1947, may have turned the storm off its course and pushed it into Savannah, Ga., with damage of $3,000,000.

2. There is evidence that rainmaking in some areas may create floods downstream.

Langmuir was interviewed while attending the International arid lands symposium where scientists from 16 countries are seeking answers to the problems of arid regions which already cover a third of the earth's land surface.

He declared that he thinks now, and insisted at the time, that a cloud seeding airplane mission operating at Alamogordo, N. M., caused the heavy rainfall which drowned the Missouri valley three years ago.

"We had been seeding for some time, and the storms kept getting bigger and bigger. I told them the military heads administering the project) that I felt we ought to stop seeding as the rains like Missouri valley kept falling.

"Finally I told them we must stop, things were getting serious. "We stopped on July 2. On July 7 we flood just about devastated Omaha."

"If we had stopped our generator two weeks earlier," Langmuir said, "the Missouri valley floods would not have happened."

Langmuir also said that on Oct. 17, 1947, an Air Force plane seeded a tornado heading north off the east coast. The storm turned 135 degrees "which the weather bureau said was impossible" and smashed on to Savannah.

"There was not one chance in 7,000 that the tornado would have turned if it had not been seeded," Langmuir said. "I had suggested that we wait until the storm was further north and out to sea to experiment."

Langmuir directed research for a joint armed force operation which started as a search for effective protection from poison smokes and ended with rainmaking.

Langmuir believes rainmaking should be subjected to inspection and regulation and badly needs more research. But he believes humanity must be prepared to pay for possible benefits.

Eight Persons Perish in Two Chicago Fires

CHICAGO (AP)—At least eight persons, including three children, were killed and more than 20 others injured early today in separate fires which swept a hotel and an apartment building.

In the hotel blaze, a fire captain was reported missing and fire officials expressed fear that some other persons may have been trapped in the building.

Four unidentified persons, a woman and three men, were known dead in the hotel blaze.

Fire officials said the fire at the Green Mill Hotel was set by an arsonist. An investigation disclosed that explosions preceded the flames.

Steel Profits Running About 70 P.C. Higher

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Profits in the steel industry are running about 70 per cent higher than a year ago.

More important, net earnings after taxes are rising much faster even than sales and output. And in some cases they are setting records—as distinct from just making a better showing than comparable period a year ago when business was fairly slow.

Bethlehem Steel's report today makes it all but unanimous. For the industry it's the story of a high production rate, increased efficiency and a cheerful backlog of new orders.

United States' Steel, biggest in the world, reports its profits are 62 per cent higher than a year ago.

SMALL FIRMS PROSPEROUS

But even better gains are shown by some of the smaller companies. Leave "big steel" out of the picture and the other 24 firms that have reported first-quarter earnings so far have a 74.8 per cent gain over the 1954 period.

The fact profits are increasing at a much higher percentage rate than are sales or shipments can be explained by the tremendous efficiency of mill operations. Dollar sales gained by five per cent over the 1954 period and tonnage shipments by four per cent.

"The men are working harder," says Benjamin F. Fairless, chairman of U.S. Steel. "We have better tools and are getting more out of the tools now."

BREAK-EVEN POINT DOWN

In other words, better plant and equipment have lowered the break-even point. Steel companies showed last year they could make money operating at only 65 per cent of capacity. During the Second World War they looked upon 80 per cent as their break-even point.

Now that they are running at above the break-even point, their earnings increase at a faster rate.

The auto industry and the building boom have been given much of the credit for the increased steel production 'this year. But other metal users have increased their buying, too—the makers of home appliances, industrial machinery and electrical equipment.

Many users are building up inventories of steel because it takes longer now to get deliveries and they are afraid of temporary shortages.

Recover Body Of Lone Miner

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — The body of a coal miner, buried for nearly 32 hours 150 feet below the surface at his mild independent mine near here, was recovered by rescue workers Wednesday night.

Michael Chervenak, 45, who worked the operation by himself, was trapped Tuesday morning in a cave-in.

The victim's wife and several other members of the family kept vigil at the mine entrance until word was received that Chervenak had been found dead.

Rescue crews said Steve Chervenak was suffocated. His body was not bruised enough to indicate that he was crushed by falling rock.

Obituary

MISS NORMA WEDDEN

In ill health for some time, Miss Norma Wedden, 104 North Front Street, a lifelong resident of this city, died at her home, early this Thursday morning.

She was born in Belleville, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Wedden, and had lived her entire life in this community. After receiving her education in the public and high schools in this city, she took up the teaching profession and for many years taught at King George School. She resigned about five years ago, because of ill health. The late Miss Wedden was well known and highly respected and her death will bring sincere regret to a wide circle of friends.

Miss Wedden is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Robt. W. (Edna) Turner, and Miss Leila Wedden, Reg. N., and one brother, Harry Wedden, all of Belleville.

She was a member of Tabernacle United Church, and took an active part in the work of that congregation. Previously she was a member of Belleville Chapter, No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star.

U.S. Considers Hydrogen Bomb Tests Next Year

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (CP) — The United States Thursday night believed to be giving serious consideration to staging another series of hydrogen bomb tests in the South Pacific.

The tests, if held, probably would take place sometime in 1956. This belief is based on the announcement made earlier this week that no future tests are planned at the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada desert proving grounds for two years following completion of the present spring series.

Customarily, comparatively small-scale atomic tests are carried out here about every other year with the off year devoted to tech level tests more learned about radiation effects.

Embalmed Bodies Of Scores of Cats Found in House

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A 74-year-old recluse, protesting that "I am competent, you can't do this," was led from his litter-filled 15-room home by police Wednesday. Left behind were the "embalmed" bodies of scores of cats and dogs plus several tons of junk.

City judge John B. McKenna ordered Bayard Martin taken to hospital for observation. Judge McKenna himself tried to enter the house, but was turned back by the odor.

It took police and health officials four hours to get Martin out of the house. They followed him through the piles of empty cat and dog food cans, books and clothes as he looked every window and door "lest somebody steal this stuff."

EMBALMED CATS

On the second floor of the house, police found in a room 40 dead cats and lying on plates under transparent plastic covers. Several ornate parent plastic cake covers. Several more were found on the third floor, and the owner of the birds' house gave up a few more to preliminary probers.

Ten live cats and three dogs, as well as a flock of pigeons, were taken from the house by ASPCA inspectors. Police were called by neighbors who complained of the odor coming from the house.

Martin was charged with violating city health and sanitation ordinances.

CAN OPINIONS BE EXPORTED?

"The Letter-Review" of Fort Erie is critical of the manner in which Clement Attlee, leader of the British Labor Party, kept "harping on his favorite theme of getting rid of Chiang Kai-Shek" during his recent visit to Canada.

There will be many who will quarrel with Mr. Attlee's views on Formosa. There will be others who will question the propriety of a political leader from another country touring Canada under the auspices of a Canadian political party, even if his speeches were termed "lectures."

These points, however, are not the basis for the "Letter-Review's" criticism.

"As a British subject, Mr. Attlee is entitled to express his views," says the Letter-Review."

With that statement we hope all our readers will agree, adding that the moral right to express a view is not confined to British subjects but belongs to everybody alike.

"As leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition in the British Parliament, he (Attlee) has' no right to express views before a Canadian audience on matters which have so direct and delicate a bearing on this country's relations with the United States, which is committed to defend Formosa against attack by the Chinese Reds," continues the "Letter-Review."

If one interprets this sentence to mean that because of his position as leader of the Opposition in the British House Attlee has a special responsibility to avoid interfering in any way in the political affairs of another member of the Commonwealth, then this statement approaches a view which, while it will not meet with universal approval, is capable of being vigorously and logically defended.

The next sentence, however, destroys any illusions that the "Letter-Review" is willing to permit the export of views accompanied by conditions.

"If Mr. Attlee wishes to influence Canadian opinion in the matter of Formosa and to drive a rift between this country and the United States he should first qualify as a Canadian citizen and join the CCF," says the "Letter-Review."

Here there is no suggestion that Mr. Attlee could acquire the right to influence Canadian opinion merely by ridding himself of the special responsibilities attached to his position as leader of the Opposition in British. Instead, he would have to become a Canadian citizen.

The universal application of such a rule would mean that no person would be entitled to endeavor to influence public opinion outside the country of which he was a citizen. A great number of persons would not even have the right to attempt to influence public opinion in the lands in which they reside, since they are not citizens of those lands.

Any similarity between such a system and that based on a belief in freedom of speech would not be merely coincidental—it would be a miracle.

CANADA AN ANNEX OF U.S.?

"Le Devoir," one of Montreal's most influential French language newspapers, says that "when Canada detached herself from Great Britain, she transformed herself into an annex of the United States."

As long as newspapers like "Le Devoir" wield great influence in the minds of Canada's most important provinces, that statement will not be true.

As a matter of fact, even if there was no such province as Quebec, the statement would not be true today.

For one thing, English-speaking Canada has not "detached herself," from Great Britain, except in the sense that a child at birth is "detached" from her mother.

We are not going to be sin of nagging. "The United States it is only in the same sense that a wife is an annex of her husband, or vice versa.

"Le Devoir" may object that this is precisely what it was saying, that Canada has "forsaken all others," including Britain, and wedded her fate to that of the United States.

That is true—and geographic and economic facts made such a development inevitable. But the wife never entirely forgets what was taught at her mother's knee and, under most unfavorable circumstances in modern days—sometimes ventures to disagree with her husband.

Still, "Le Devoir" has a point. It is well that it should be made emphatically. "Our foreign policy is planned in Ottawa, but important decisions are taken in Washington," says "Le Devoir." Then let our government express its own views as frequently and as vigorously as possible, without going to the sin of nagging. "Big business is carried on in Wall Street." Let our financiers and industrialists redouble their efforts to build our own economy. "New York decides our fashions and Hollywood imposes its stars on us." The remedy here lies not with our politicians and our financiers, but with all of us, as individuals.

And, oh yes, we cannot bid "Le Devoir" adieu without reminding it that many of its French-speaking readers are themselves wedded and not to a vigorous and helpful spouse but to a divorcee, to a France which ceased to exist a century past, to out-moded traditions which the motherland of their ancestors discarded many generations ago.

LOST SAILOR

When I was maybe eight or nine,
The thought occurred to me
That it would be a lot of fun to run away to sea.

But I would have to hide away
as soon as I'd embark,
And I was very much afraid of being in the dark.

I thought it over many times.
I used to watch the ships.
I saw them sailing out to sea on most exciting trips.

But if I stowed away I knew my mother wouldn't be
On hand to give me bread and jam when it was time for tea.

I don't know why I changed my mind and lost the wish to roam.
I only know I thought that I'd be better off at home.
But now I wonder many times
what had occurred to me
If when I was a little boy I'd run away to sea.

30 YEARS AGO

April 28, 1925

The members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club made formal presentation of a motor car to the Victorian Order of Nurses Belleville branch shortly after the club's regular luncheon meeting at the New Queen's Hotel today. The presentation was made in front of the hotel by the president of the club W. H. Lattimer, who explained that the car would remain the property of the Kiwanis Club, but was to be entirely for the use of the Victorian Order of Nurses in this city. He wished Miss Shand, the nurse in charge, all success and expressed the pleasure of the Kiwanians in being able to assist her in the good work she is doing.

Tack Inspired Sharp Idea

(By James C. O. Conniff, in Hardware Magazine.)

Major Brooks Walker dismounted from his horse one melancholy day some 18 years ago, stepped squarely on a tough carpet tack that pierced his riding boot and the foot inside. Cavalryman enough to exhaust his vocabulary, the major nonetheless kept his head—and his military imagination.

While his foot was healing, he parlayed the memory of that tack into a design for an ingenious modern caltrop which has since been patented, with full rights assigned to the government.

A caltrop? That's a four-pointed "tack" of iron so designed that no matter how you drop it, it lands with one of its points always aimed upward. Its name comes from two Latin words meaning a snare for the heel, and the Romans are said to have used it against the barbaric hordes of Alaric and Vercingetorix, who evidently threw it like a way. The medieval French adapted it to play hob with the hooves of enemy horses. And our own American actiers found that miniature caltrops, hammered by needle sharpness on Colonial forges and flung on the ground outside lonely cabins, were handy for discouraging the enthusiasm of night raiding Indians.

Major Walker's caltrop, bigger than its ancestors and of chrome steel, comes packaged with hollow needles to pierce the pneumatic tires of enemy vehicles. Unlike ordinary tacks, which tend to plug the holes they make and permit only a slow leak at best, the Walker caltrop lets the air out in a hurry.

Many a North Korean truck driver wished that some less thoughtful major had stepped on a tack.

MEASUREMENTS

The other day a workman was measuring our windows to fit some storm sashes. He—was extremely precise. Probably no one else has ever calculated to the sixteenth of an inch the exact size of the opening.

And yet his measurements, careful as they were, failed altogether to record the important statistics about windows. What matters, as we live in the house, is how much light and air they let in, and how our hearts are lifted by the view we see from them, and this sort of thing we cannot really measure at all.

Measuring is important. We do it all the time—weights and prices, him?"

lengths and breadths, shoe and shirt sizes. But the really important things in life, the things we work and fight for—freedom, love, happiness, and so forth—we have no scales or rulers to compute.

We live in an intangible space and an eternity of time beyond our measuring. Our recorded history is but a speck on the calendar of time. Our neighbors' worlds are hardly scratches on the surface of one of the smaller orbs in the universe. We know not whence our spirits come, nor whither they go. In fact, we had better stop saying, "Man is the measure of all things," and say instead, "What is man that Thou art mindful of

The Water Wizards

(Written for Unesco by Etienne Siretta and Mahmet Basman)

This article has been written by Prof. Etienne Siretta, a French hydrogeologist sent to Turkey by Unesco, and Mehmet Basman, a Turkish scientist. The two men are working with a newly founded Institute of Hydrogeology at the Technical University of Istanbul whose goal is to study the water shortage problem plaguing semi-arid Turkish farming regions. A library of hydrogeological data has been set up and courses taught for future engineers. This article describes one stop on an extensive summer field trip where students and professors alike were able to make an immediate practical contribution to the problem of water for farms and villages.

One morning in August, 1954, a caravan of trucks grunted to a stop in a thick cloud of dust on the market-place of Desan, a Turkish village 450 miles south-east of Ankara and 100 miles from the sequi border.

At first, the good people of Desan thought they were witnessing a mirage. Never, in living memory, had they ever seen so many visitors at one time in the summer. But the mirage turned into 40-odd young men and women descending on the village's one and only garage, and the illusion vanishes were awaiting the first thirsty customer of the day.

The whole business of the caravan was too busy wondering how he would find enough glasses and bottles to satisfy all the thirsty questions. At any rate, the caravaners had brought their own liquor and as for the girls in the group with their blue jeans, they were little interested in the local peasant women he had seen behind his fife.

By this time, the entire able population of Desan had surrounded the caravan. Suddenly, a spokesman stepped forward, obviously the leader of the group, on his cap meant anything. He turned to the caravan's interpreter. "Ask what they want," he ordered. "I'm probable company give its information since?"

Desperately trying to keep a straight face, the interpreter of the caravan asked him to take them to the local administrator. He did, but he was not in. He had gone away from his fellow villagers to Ankara, despite the fact that they hadn't understood a word, were laughing themselves sick.

Only then did the group learned that two experts on underground water—one a French scientist sent to Turkey by Unesco and the other an American geological engineer from the Point Four Operations Administration — had been assigned by the Ministry of Public Works to survey the country his country's water resources and, if possible, to improve them.

The administrator was even more surprised to learn that his visitors were going to be in the first of a series and that it would probably be followed up with others, thereby giving him a chance of finding deep in the earth the precious water and the more precious in this village that stingy springs were worshipped almost as gods by the peasants.

This undertaking, he was told, would be performed not by forbidding experts of the younger sters over at the cafe. They had been brought to Desan precisely to put to practical use what they had been taught in hydrogeology by their professors at Unesco's experts.

As for the American and the Turkish engineers, he was part of a survey of this dry, but fertile land, periodically ravaged by violent storms. On this vast alluvial plain, the civilization of ancient Mesopotamia flourished. Since then, the weather — with the help of men and their herds — has eroded much of its wealth. The forests of antiquity were gone and the desert was spreading inexorably on the still fertile patches.

It would be pleasant to report that the arrival of the foreign scientists and their students in this little section of Southeast Anatolia was hailed immediately as a great boon for the future.

Unfortunately, this wasn't the opinion of the villagers. A hundred years ago, they owned the water to the village's tricking springs. Nowadays, they stop-watched while students measured the output of the springs with a mysterious ser- ies of gadgets and stop-watches and rulers.

Their interest suddenly soared when the young geologists turned to the black volcanic stones around the spring and began to break them with hammer and chisel so that they could be studied under a magnifying glass.

No one, as far as the villagers knew, had ever touched a stone before. Were they supposed to produce water with a stroke of a wand? After all, the young administrator was a city-bred lad and he didn't know much about country life. He could believe anything of these foreigners but not that as the Turkish boys and girls in the caravan were convinced, they seemed to be talking in some mysterious language which had nothing to do with water. Whatever their ancestors, had always called water, land, rocks and wells.

Soon, the August sun chased the visitors back into their trucks. They disappeared, leaving behind them only a cloud of dust which settled back slowly to swallow up the last jeep in the caravan.

The crew had promised to return and it did on a September morning. The sun was up strong and the road as dusty as ever, but there was something new in Desan. Right next to the village well on the road with its stone walls and roof of packed earth, a new well had been dug on the edge of the fields which had been abandoned after June's meager harvest.

It was a well-drilling rig, the first ever seen in this region. It had been shipped there in a box as it was unloaded from a freighter at Smyrna.

There was no hope of explaining to the villagers that their land was a Tertiary synclinal, a sort of geological basin where, millions of years ago, the sea had deposited pulp clay, sand and gravel. Those rocks had accumulated in the deepest part of the prehistoric basin and the geologists had found the layers again by means of their drills. The villagers gave their presence away. They knew there was water in digging these farmers that a trained eye and a few instruments could find underground water and that underground water washed beneath the earth by well thunderstorms could help neighborhood wells and springs.

This did not stop the village from declaring a holiday the day the well-drilling rig first tasted water. Everyone from the newly-landing Turkish hospitality to visitors who had poured in to help celebrate. Even handshakes to be given to allow time for speech-making.

Besides, no one wanted to ask questions. The machine was there and the village had already helped erect it. Its crew had sworn to them that this machine really could help them — just as other machines had brought up water from deep in the earth. The Turkish oil fields where a good many villagers had emigrated a few years back.

Everything was ready for the drilling operation — enormous wrenches, yards and yards of bits and other tools which no one could name.

Everything was ready — except the water. Which, according to custom, was to be sacrificed to bring good fortune to the undertaking.

Six months later, the Unesco expert was back in Desan and his caravan crewmen who had become city-dwelling students once more. By then the well-drilling machine had discovered underground water in abundance at each other and that pumps were going to be installed next to the well-drilling rig, all ready and packed earth.

And he thought of the white-bearded old farmer who was probably repairing his chairs and buying more tin plates in welcome back to his village next year the young engineers who had brought it new and undreamed-of wealth.

French Sell Rail Stations

(Faire de Paris, France)

With modernization of French railways, many small railway stations have been abandoned and are for sale. There are 2,000 small stations within a radius of 50 miles round Paris were the trains stop. Six of them have found buyers.

When old stations? Sometimes they are bought to be used as storehouses or factories, sometimes as residential quarters. Sometimes they are bought by artists who turn them into studios, or people of a poetic turn of mind who like to see the grass growing up between the rusted rails, the worn board where the station bell once stood, and in imagination hear all the goodbyes and see the flurry and bluster of the peasant woman hurrying to the station and the guard blowing for the last time the whistle which is the last train on its way before the station closed down to silence and dreams.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Everyone Wants To Feel Just Fine

The young person who takes his (or her) first drink, smoke, "goof ball," shot of morphine or heroin, "mitt" of cocaine, benzedrine or benzedrine (amphetamine) tablet does so, usually, because he's a weakling—he hasn't the intelligence, the courage or the character to say "No, thank you" when friends (if you can call them friends), associates or gang leaders invite, urge or dare him to have one.

"Come on, chicken," they say in effect, "just one won't hurt you—everybody else is having one. You going to be different?"

It is not only juveniles that are delinquent but, unfortunately for our country's welfare, many mature adults prominent in the public eye, betray the same defect. For example, a high government official attending many social functions in Washington is a teetotaler, but circulates, carrying a glass half filled with pop, so everybody will think he is drinking. At Yalta, Uncle Joe, according to a correspondent, refused toasts to England and America in colored water, but Joe's motive was not so commendable as that of the Washington official.

But the prodigious growth of the "cocktail" evil and the invention of the American home bar, beer, wine and liquor via radio, television, movies, magazines and newspapers in the past two or three decades, combine to give growing children a view of life quite different from that which you and I saw when we were growing up.

What with the ready availability of beer, wine and liquor, the insistent idea that everybody drinks at least an occasional glass and the belief that children today do not need and are not being asked to take the pledge, it is wonder that anybody at all reaches the age of 21 without having acquired the drinking habit.

That way does a young person of normal I. Q. take his or her first drink of beer, wine or liquor, a young person, that is, with character gained from home training? This, it seems to me, is a question of vital importance. I have pondered it for years: I have sought the views of many, young, and old, teetotalers, moderate occasional or social drinkers and confirmed alcoholics. The most enlightening answer, I think, was that of a periodic drinker, who, in a sober interlude, explained:

"At times I drink to excess because I feel the need of a stimulant, 'or rather I just want to feel better.... Drinking is not solving the same thing. (As we shall try to show in a piece to...follow.)

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Maybe you have noticed: cole slaw has lost a flavor. It doesn't even taste like cabbage anymore. It is just pretty, finely shredded little dish the restaurant throws in with your order. It is perhaps dampened with French dressing, or maybe topped with a dollop of mayonnaise so elegantly made that you can't taste either the egg, the oil, the lemon or vinegar. Like the rest of the dressing it is refined, so chaste, so formal, so mechanized that it might better be called by a lubricant than a dressing.

Something rather horrible is happening to the food world. While I am sure the food industry would deny it furiously, and bring out experts to prove it, thousands professional dieticians and five thousand unsalaried housewives to support them, it seems to a great many of us that food that has been frozen has lost some of its flavor. It is also suspected by countless others that eggs from modern hen factories are not as tasty as eggs from barnyard hens; that scientifically fattened beef and hogs produce meat that lacks the zestful flavors of beasts that eat what they naturally prefer; that maple syrup processed with up-to-date equipment lacks a good deal of the lovely delicacy produced as a sideline by thrifty Canadian farmers who overchristing the first of the rites of spring; that apples and other fruits that enjoy the benefits of modern science plus tons of artificial fertilizer have lost much character for prosperity; and that food in general is suffering from too much perfection.

There are businesses in all large cities that specialize in frozen potatoes. All they do is peel and slice tons of potatoes a week to supply the restaurant trade. Ready for French fries, boiled or mashed, these potatoes are the last word in supply of professionally sliced potatoes all ready to dump into the fat. Ready for the fat all ready professionally prepared in large buckets. There are large cellophane bags, pie fillings manufactured in factories, dressings, toppings . . . to say nothing of the scores of aphrodisiacs concocted in the name of spring. Everything is ready-made.

Many of us have met this aloneness in the big city with no one near and dear with whom to talk, and some of us have fat ill sides under the stars, crossing the desert. Or getting in touch with someone who has this aloneness worse than you do.

Aloneness is a state of mind. Therefore it's the mind that needs immediate attention! It's "when a aloneness!

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ALONENESS

Not even a student of the human body and mind, or even an experienced doctor, can with accuracy diagnose a strange case of loneliness. Perhaps something fine has started to leak from the heart, or maybe the mind is all clouded up like many of the days we know which saturated with dreary loneliness.

You can't cure this invented disease merely by running away from it, for the more you try it the more it spreads. You just have to replace the aloneness with something that it doesn't like, the getting immediately interested in some useful hobby or devoting one's time to the reading of some great book—one that has proved its greatness. Or getting in touch with someone who has this aloneness worse than you do.

Aloneness is a state of mind. Therefore it's the mind that needs immediate attention! It's "when a aloneness!

feller needs a friend" that this aloneness gets in its deadly work. Though how many times the arrival of that friend makes all the difference in the world to many of our "kind" often works miracles.

Many of us have always known how known all too well this thing that we call aloneness. Washington Irving sensed it at Valley Forge. Lincoln, at Gettysburg, knew its heartbreaking sting. Winston Churchill met it many a time during his often stormy career. Only it spread like a cancer of spiritual courage over ride it out.

Many of us have met this aloneness in the big city with no one near and dear with whom to talk, and some of us have fat ill sides under the stars, crossing the desert. Or getting in touch with someone who has this aloneness worse than you do.

Aloneness is a state of mind. Therefore it's the mind that needs immediate attention! It's "when a aloneness!

Community Presents Gifts To Fire Victims

WOOLER—A community shower was given in honor and Mrs. Harold Haggarty, who lost their home by fire in the winter.

A large company of friends gathered in the town hall on Thursday evening and presented them with beautiful gifts for their home: lamps, blankets, pillows, spreads, towels, dishes, bed linen and money.

Mr. Lambert Whaley was master of ceremonies and kept the orchestra busy with music, with Mrs. C. N. Bell and Mr. Steve Manna, of Trenton, at the piano, and Howard Arthur with the violin.

Mr. A. G. Austin gave a reading, also showed colored pictures on the screen; a solo by Nancy Smith; four of the Institute women sang a number, also a male quartet, Paul Ross, Harold Haggarty, Noble Crosby and Howard Arthur sang "My Old Kentucky Home." A frog dance was done by the Webb brothers. Mr. Austin gave a reading and many other items were on the program.

Mrs. E. McMaster and Mrs. Charles York were the committee in charge and the members of the Women's Institute served refreshments.

Youths Given Jail Terms After Beating Woman

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Two 18-year-old youths were sentenced to a total of 22 months in jail when convicted Wednesday of assault in the blackjack-beating March 4 of a young Byron mother.

Francis J. Morrow of nearby Lambeth was sentenced to one year and eight months for assault inflicting grievous bodily harm. John C. Swanson of London received two months on a reduced charge of common assault.

Morrow pleaded guilty to beating Mrs. Shirley Ogg, 25, at her home when she tried to telephone for help. He said the break-in was engineered by Vince Shewbaker, former London township police constable, to force the combination of a store safe from the woman's husband, manager of a Loblaw groceteria here. Mr. Ogg was absent at the time.

Swanson was convicted on a lesser count of common assault. Evidence was that he did not touch Mrs. Ogg during the raid.

FORM COMMITTEE

Mr. St. Laurent told reporters he had no ceiling in mind. How much of the jobless could receive in local welfare relief would be up to the municipalities to decide in accordance with their local finances.

MUCH DATA NEEDED

But other officials said there are a great number of complications in the plan. Some provinces did not know how much municipalities are paying out in relief for unemployed. The federal government had no idea how much federal participation might cost—perhaps $5,000,000, perhaps $10,000,000.

It would be up to the special committee to get all the facts. The provincial ministers then would have to act on the scheme.

Generally, the premiers expressed satisfaction with the preliminary conference, first federal-provincial meeting in five years. Premier Frost of Ontario, said the meeting made good progress considering there were 11 different sets of problems.

FIVE-POINT AGENDA

The premiers proposed a number of items for October discussions. The agenda:

1. Federal - provincial fiscal relations, particularly the question of a replacement for the tax rental agreements which expire in March 1957.

2. Public investment plans by the various governments and natural resources development, including possible provision for federal aid in discovering and blue-printing these resources, such as minerals.

3. Desirability of establishing a federal-provincial continuing committee, a fact-finding body to look into and possibly help co-ordinate economic planning among the governments.

4. Health and welfare services, including consideration of a national health insurance scheme.

Premier Duplessis of Quebec, insisted a suffering of previous opposition to such a scheme.

5. The timing and scope of such other special conferences as may be desired.

Workers Given Hike

TORONTO (CP)—Three Toronto civic employee unions representing nearly 8,000 workers have won a 3½ per cent general increase, Mayor Nathan Phillips announced Wednesday.

The increase, retroactive to April 1, is expected to cost the city an additional $432,000 a year, which represents about one-third of a mill on the tax rate.

Three Charged With Illegal Fishing After Midnight Fracas

TRENTON — (Special) — A deputy game warden who broke up a midnight fishing party below No. 1 dam last Thursday night had his gun and flashlight taken away from him in a fracas that followed his decision to take a shot at one of the poachers.

The deputy, Vernon Crosby of Trenton, was also relieved of a homemade billy, when he struck at one of the three men he surprised.

Later Herbert Doyle, 20, Donald Gosleigh, 26 and Archie Williams, 27, all of Trenton were arrested by Trenton police and sent to Belleville jail to await trial yesterday. They appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills yesterday charged with breaches of the Game and Fisheries Act.

Their cases were laid over to Monday May 9. Each posted $200 bail to be released from custody.

Donald Gosleigh said he was fishing with his companions when the deputy spotted them. He said he heard a shot and Doyle told him later that he had whistled by his leg. Williams grabbed the gun from the deputy and fired three shots into the bank before giving it back to him.

SAID GUN POINTED

"Crosby pointed the gun at me," Gosleigh related. "I figured there were still shells in the chamber so I took the rifle away from him. I emptied the remaining bullets from the bank."

Gosleigh claims that the deputy became infuriated at this point and struck at Doyle with a homemade club. Doyle caught the blow and pulled the billy away from the deputy.

Gosleigh said he took Crouter's five cell flashlight away from him when the deputy threatened to hit him with it.

The trio with the deputy's gun, billy and flashlight in hand insisted on being driven to the local police station. Gosleigh said Crouter consented and took them in his car.

The deputy was charged by Trenton police for having firearms without a permit to carry same. He was not held in custody. His case will be heard May 9.

District Game Warden Fred MacDonald recovered the illegal catch, one bass and two medium sized pickerel. He preferred charges against the three.

ACCEPTS INVITATION

Executive of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion received notice yesterday that Major John Poole, V.C. had accepted the invitation to attend the branch's V.E. Day dinner Friday May 6 as guest speaker.

BAZAAR SUCCESS

A tea and sale held by the First Trenton Scout Mothers' Auxiliary in Canterbury Hall yesterday was a financial success and the auxiliary has raised the required sum to pay the expenses of one Scout from Europe attending the World Scout Jamboree at Niagara Falls in August.

Pouring tea at a table displaying a miniature scout camp complete with totem pole were: Mrs. Ken Hamilton, Mrs. Sam Mowbray, Mrs. Ila Jordan and Mrs. Stan Smith. The group were received by Mrs. H. Scarborough and Mrs. Jim Smith.

Sale of attractive novelties and home baking provided by the auxiliary awthin total receipts.

JEWELS SAFE

LONDON (Reuter)—Dozens of clanging police cars rushed to the Tower of London this morning to answer a false alarm caused by a short circuit in the bell protecting the priceless crown jewels. Patrolling police boats moving around in the Thames and headed for the ancient stronghold on the river bank. Detectives and all available foot police, got there as quickly as possible.

Time Turns Back the Clock At Minerva's Fine 'County Store'

Yesterday afternoon the O.E.S. Minerva chapter held its old-fashioned "Country Store" in the Masonic Temple, with a great concourse of patronages present. In viewing the spectacular costumes one was reminded of the old poem, "Backward, turn backward, O time in thy flight," or the gay 90's gives just a hint of what a wish an answer uttered than the fairy who wields the magic wand brought into new fancy-eye-catching costumes.

In stately garb, appeared Martha Washington, clad in blue with voluminous skirts; the quaint Quaker girls in mauve; a "Merry Widow" or as the old Indian when trying to buy a wide hat or that vintage for his squaw, asked for a 'Glad he died hat,' in trailing black alpaca with wide, black hat; others in black with high, button boots in black and white kid; while the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Meta Williams was regal in her gown of beige with shades of old flowers, fashioned in high necked fitted bodice with long-o-mutton sleeves and trailing skirt.

Gracing the large tea room were feathery ferns in tall, white standards, and lending much color were the various booths.

RECEIVING

Receiving the guests were the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Meta Williams, and Mrs. Mabell Hinchey, wife of the Worthy Patron.

Selling tickets was Mrs. Charlotte Stirland, and taking tickets, Mrs. Jean Ingram; while inviting in the tea room were the hostesses, Mrs. Minnie Moorman and Mrs. Grace Farmer; Mrs. Edna Dobbs and Mrs. Nella Wonnacott. Those who served included Mesdames H. Mott, M. Hunt, R. Benning, P. Skelly, R. Barnett, M. Finkle, F. Marner, R. Gray and J. Dillon.

In charge of the candy table with its delicious pail stuffed chocolate creams; chocolate fudge, and divinity fudge and maple cream, all of which were prettily packaged in little yellow, pink, mauve and pale green cups, were, Mrs. M. Stalker, Mrs. M. Welch, Mrs. G. Gray and Miss D. Craigdon.

The miscellaneous table with its assortment of oddments was in charge of Mrs. F. Wetton; Mrs. M. Adams, Mrs. F. Lennox, Mrs. D. Asay, Mrs. R. Heath and Mrs. C. Oliver.

On the hat and post office table was a collection of little packages, and many hats and other hats on the garden variety. Convening this booth were Mrs. Ross and Mrs. E. Broad.

The homecooking table was replete with dainty confections to tempt the appetite of the most particular of epicures. Here were pumpkin pies, fragrant with spices; apple pies needing only a steamy piece of cheese to complete its perfection; cherry pies rich with juices, and lemon pies crowned with golden meringues; chocolate cakes with mounds of rich icings; white cakes with boiled icing, and coconut toppings; all kinds of tarts; cookies; date breads; jellies, preserves, relishes and marmalades. In charge of these delicacies were: Mesdames H. Hunter, A. Furnidge, M. Armstrong, M. Bidwell, B. Rees, L. Hinchey, G. Batchelor, Putman and E. Nicholson.

GARDEN OF APRONS

The apron table, like a spring garden of tulips, and daffodils was decked with aprons in prints, organdy, broadcloth and were in fact ever popular 'I-could-use-a-well' in half type, a pleasing collection, any one of which would make any discriminating woman happy to receive as a gift. Mrs. R. Carmichael, Mrs. M. Andrews, Mrs. Ann Chapman, Mrs. Nellie Clarke, Mrs. Bessie Marsh, Mrs. Vera Bowerman and Mrs. Anna Little were in charge of these.

A "chicken dinner" which was most tempting was drawn for and became the property of Mrs. V. Fairman who takes it to her home, 202 George Street and 190 Dundas St., Belleville. The convener of this was Mrs. D. Tugnutt.

The lovely, handmade quilt, conversed by Mrs. J. Empey and Mrs. A. Brumfield, was won by Mrs. Reta Lloyd, of 26 Howard St.

A most successful and delightful old time "country store," bringing much credit to its conveners, Mrs. W. Reddick, and Mrs. H. Matthews, and also to those who worked behind the scenes, especially to Mrs. J. Williamson, N. Cathcart, M. Fitchett, and Miss F. Fitzgerald, who served in the kitchen.

UNITED CHURCH W.A.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. of the Frankford United Church, opened with the singing of the hymn "He Leadeth Me." President Mrs. Ross Reid led in the Lord's Prayer.

The secretary's minutes were read by Mrs. Hazel Rowe in the absence of Miss Helena Charlesworth. Mrs. Rowe also gave the treasurer's report. There were 19 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Wallace reported that a blanket had been sent in Mission Hospital in Alberta. Correspondence was read, accounts were passed to be paid; plans for the Evening Auxiliary musical concert by the St. Andrew's United Church choir of Belleville, to be held on May 13 at Rose Lawcey hall, were made.

After the singing of grace the members were served refreshments by the hostesses, Mrs. C. Bennett, Mrs. S. Martin, Mrs. H. Caldwell and Miss P. Sine.

Trends in Home Furnishing Shown St. Andrew's Group

Trends in home furnishings, a major interest in every homemaker's life, were explained by Eleanor Brown, consultant at Simpson's Company, Toronto, to an interested audience at St. Andrew's hall on Wednesday evening. The address was sponsored by the Friendship group of the church.

COLORED SLIDES

A series of colored slides showed the latest color combinations used in living rooms, kitchens, dining rooms, bathrooms, recreation rooms and bedrooms. Gone are the violent deep shades of the years following the war and in their place the popular shades are muted tones with pink, mauve and soft yellows. The color accent in women's clothes plays a role in the newest decorating colors and these should complement each other so a woman shows at her best with a home, that harmonizes with her clothes and personality.

Glitter in draperies is glamorous and is being used extensively. Sheers and semi-sheers to dress windows are gaining in popularity. The picture window is being covered with materials which let in the light, but insure privacy and the pink tones give a softened effect which is utterly feminine, especially in a north room.

NEW SYNTHETIC MATERIALS

Mrs. Brown explained the various properties of the new synthetic materials used for drapes, plus curtains and spreads including nylon, orlon, dacron and chromspun. The newest chintzes have open-spaced patterns, and the colors are lighter with lots of gold overlay.

Kitchens are being designed for family living with room divisers for dining space. An interesting color scheme carried throughout a house was shown with apricot, terra cotta, beige and dark green used in varying tones. This year there is a definite interest in mixing modern furniture with antique.

Mrs. Brown suggested using dark bedspreads, even black, in young people's rooms to save wear and tear on cleaning. Bleached furniture is being rubbed with blues or pinks to produce pastel effects, according to the reports from the latest showings.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. N. A. McMillan, and appreciation was expressed by Mrs. H. Brown.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A 15-YEAR-OLD ASKS KIND QUESTIONS

From a 15-year-old girl comes a letter in which she says that she has "a few questions" to which she would like to have answers. She tells us that she lives with her grandmother and that the grandmother takes a dim view of the subject matter of any of the questions.

"But think, these things are all wrong to do," is the way the girl puts it. Incidentally, I might add that the "wrong" questions add up to nine, so let's take them up in the order she presented them.

(1) How old do you think a girl should be before she kisses a boy?

Kissing a boy has nothing whatever to do with the age of a girl. It is entirely a matter of good taste, and it is never in good taste to make kissing a routine part of a girl's relations with a boy. There is no harm in a quick good night kiss after the evening has wholesome fun. But I'm against making a habit of even that. Your real kisses should be saved for the man you'll marry.

(2) How old do you think a girl should be before she can date? As I have often said before, I think a girl of 15 should be allowed afternoon and early evening dates to go to movies with boys or to occasional parties. As she grows older, she should normally acquire a few more dates in her activities from year to year, and be allowed to stay out a little later. Much depends on the kind of boy she wants to date and the kind of girl he takes her on.

(3) When you meet a boy on the street, are you supposed to speak first or is he?

I don't think it matters who speaks first. It would be silly to be so formal as to wait for the boy. Chances are, you'd both be saying hello at the same time.

(4) How old should you be before you dance with a boy?

Dancing is a good activity at any age. The time to begin is as soon as you learn how, and be sure to learn how to do it in a ladylike way.

(5) Should you ask a boy to dance?

It's usually the boy's place to ask a girl to dance. But if a girl knows a boy well, and they're in a place where good dance music is being played, there's no reason why she shouldn't say "let's dance" if the boy doesn't happen to think of it.

(6) If you go to a dance alone, and a boy asks to take you home, should you go?

It depends entirely on the boy who asks you. If he is a boy with whom you are already acquainted, and you know him to be a well-mannered chap who would take proper care of you and see that you get home promptly, let him take you, of course. But don't take chances on boys who don't seem to have the right attitude toward girls.

(7) Should you call a boy or should he call you?

If some particular thing has come up that needs immediate talking over with a boy friend, there's no reason why you shouldn't call him. But I don't think it's a very good idea for a girl to call a boy just to have an interminable chatter session with him—or to have a prolonged chatter if he's the one who calls.

(8) If you go to a dance with a boy, should he put his arm around you or hold your hand?

Here, again, you have a question of good taste, and fussbudgy people in public is in very poor taste, whatever age you may be. However, a little inconspicuous hand-holding in a movie, can hardly be called objectionable, provided it doesn't develop into a cuddling and petting project.

(9) Should you give a boy your bracelet or ring?

Now what would a boy do with a girl's bracelet? On that one, I'd say keep your bracelets to yourself. As for the ring, I realize that girls and boys do exchange and wear each other's rings, and if you like the idea it, go ahead. But remember it may make things even more uncomfortable, if the time comes, as it probably will, when you want the ring back to give to some other boy.

So there you are. Are you going steady? Are you engaged? Are you married? Then you have problems of your own, and you should write to me about them.

Another Chicken Casserole For Your Approval

By Mary Moore

Every time we go to the story for our weekly groceries there is a huge stack of fresh green broccoli for sale. It lures the world and more and more other Canadians into me, or the grocery would not import it in such quantity and sell it for such a reasonable price.

So when I received a C.N. letter (which you will read tomorrow) asking for a chicken broccoli casserole with cheese sauce I thought it was a pretty fair idea for all of us.

Some gal also wanted a recipe for preparing liver which might appeal to her little toddler.

CHICKEN AND VEGETABLE CASSEROLE

Prepare a 4-lb. stewing chicken in the usual way and pour off all but cups boiling water. Add 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, cover and simmer until meat is tender. Cool in broth. Remove bones. As soon as possible lift chicken from broth in a large platter and separate meat from skin and bones. Do not cut meat up, but leave it in its natural large pieces.

Divide 2 cups broth into two pots. In one of them boil for only five minutes enough broccoli cut into serving pieces, to serve six people. In the other pot boil the equivalent of 3 cups uncooked narrow or broad noodles for about five minutes. Drain (but reserve the broth). Put the noodles on the bottom of a very large buttered casserole. Arrange the chicken and broccoli pieces over it. To 2 cups of the reserved chicken broth add 1 cup evaporated milk and 1-4 lb. cut up process cheese and heat in top of double boiler. Blend together 5 tablespoons each melted butter or chicken fat and flour and stir into the hot broth-milk mixture, until thick. (If desired 1 teaspoon each paprika and curry powder may be added or 1 teaspoon of either.) Pour this sauce over the chicken and broccoli evenly. Sprinkle with fine buttered crumbs. Bake 30 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. for 6 people.

NOTE:

Other vegetables such as frozen peas, unchopped raw spinach, parboiled new carrots or new potatoes, blanched almonds, may be used instead of broccoli, and cooked rice may be substituted for the noodles.

The above is excellent for a picnic-hot-dish meal or picnic, with crusty rolls and a crisp green salad.

BRAISED LIVER WITH VEGETABLES

Cut 1 lb. baby beef or pork liver, (or use chicken livers uncut) in 1-2 inch slices and roll in salted and peppered flour. Gently saute them in three tablespoons butter with 1-2 cup each chopped onion, carrot and celery, for five minutes. Place in buttered casserole and pour over 2 cups canned or cooked tomatoes. Cover and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 to 1 1-2 hours.

LIVER LOAF

This dish is popular with men and children alike. The cold loaf when sliced is excellent for sandwiches or a cracker spread.

Brown gently 1 lb. beef liver in melted butter. Put through food chopper with 1-3 lb. pork sausage meat. Add 1 1-3 cups soft breadcrumbs, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon celery salt, 1 eggs, 1-3 teaspoon monosodium glutamate and 1-3 cup water. Pour into a loaf pan. Bake in buttered loaf pan 45 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

HOUSEWARMING . . . WHEN TO GIVE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My husband and I recently bought an old house. It is pretty run down at present, especially the interior. It will be anywhere from six months to three years before everything will be in order. My question is about giving a housewarming. My husband and I have a great many friends; they expect me to have a Housewarming, and we ourselves want to have one. Our problem is when, under these circumstances, to have this Housewarming. (We are moving into the house in the middle of next month.) — C.

I'd like to have you and your husband plan to give this House-warming fairly soon . . . certainly no need to wait until "everything will be in order." Since you are moving in so soon, perhaps the interior painting and other big jobs around the grounds are finished, and you can get very busy enough of the assembling-of-furnishings to make it look enough ready to bid your friends welcome to come to greet your new home. The manner is such a fine season in your part of the country, why not plan to have your Housewarming in August, say, or the first part of September? But don't feel that you have to wait for three years before you give this party in welcoming your friends!

INVITING MANY EMPLOYEES

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I'm going to have a church wedding in about four months. I work as secretary for a man who has about seventy men working for him. Some of the men I consider one of these men, and their families, I shall have to send individual invitations! I know that very often there are some wives who don't know about or don't recognize an invitation that is posted on the department bulletin board. — H.B.

The really correct thing for you to do is to send individual invitations. You are right indeed about the invitation posted on the bulletin board. It is a lackster elevitation which is not clear as to who is being invited . . . the man-employee only, or the man and wife. And, as you say, very often the wife doesn't know whether or not she is "included" in the invitation. So, since apparently you sincerely want to "take over" the wedding(!), write invitations, assemble your lists of names and addresses, and know whether or not if sending so many invitations might be too much of a strain on you. Perhaps you might write letter of invitation to the employees and their wives.

Mother's Helper

THE LITTLEST tube haven't time to waste lying quietly while you change or dress them. Keep a few special small toys handy which you wouldn't ordinarily give them, and they'll be no hour as you are, without fussing at necessary combings.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

PALER AND PRETTIER

With changes in fashions and figures come changes in faces. Twice a year the dictators of feminine attire display their offerings and cosmetic chemists follow along with new shades of powder, rouge and lipsticks to harmonize with them.

As make-up is important to a pleasing appearance, the rouge pad and lipstick are always active. But today they must be slick and subtle. In the words of the beauty industry, the effect now must be "pastel." Powders of delicate peach shade are recommended. Rouge must be as faint as the wild rose. Lips are going back to the youthful coloring you had in your high school days. "Pearl" nails are supposed to look almost natural.

Very good! The new trend in make-up sounds interesting and alluring, but it will not fill the bill for all types of complexion or all types of women. Make up must be an individual problem.

Cheek coloring that comes closest to the natural bloom is the one for which one should strive. The less obvious the cosmetic used, the more securely can one rest upon one's laurels as a color crafty woman. You can ascertain your natural coloring by pinching your cheek until white, then quickly, letting the first flush subside a bit.

There are three points about rouge to remember: light colored ones are youthful, blue-reds give an appearance of age; the orange-reds are for complexions that have a golden cast.

A sallow, tanned or olive skin responds agreeably to rouge but for the skin that is typed as "magnolia"—a creamy tone that is almost white—it is beautiful in itself that rouge should never touch it.

Blondes should use rouge sparingly and in only the most delicate tint. A light touch of wild-rose, passed over so lightly over creamy powder, preserves their charming fairness and "dogs things" to accent a golden halo.

MADOC

H-S Association Sponsors Successful 'Variety Night'

MADOC—On Friday evening, the Madoc Home and School held a successful "Variety Night" at the public school, with a large attendance of parents, pupils and visitors.

The president, Mrs. Perry Brownson, extended a few words of welcome, after which the guests dispersed to different rooms of the school which were all in use.

Beautiful paintings by Madoc ropes in time to music; Grade 3 sang and acted "In the Shoe Maker's Shop"; Grade 2 delighted all with a square dance, "Captain Jinx." Grade 4 sang a number of delightful songs in rounds.

In Mrs. Eric McCoy's room, Mr. Baalim enchanted old and young alike with his fluorescent lamp on his rock collections. Also a sewing display of dresses and scrap books from Mrs. Fleming's class were exhibited here.

DELICIOUS CAKES

Upstairs in Mrs. Derry's room, delicious cakes, cookies, pies and tarts, also bags of home made candy kept Mrs. G. Duffin, Mrs. Ed. Armstrong, Mrs. K. Kinsvid and Mrs. Derry busy selling the wares.

The Brownies, Guides, Cubs and Scouts had exhibits in Mrs. B. McCoy's room. Also in here talent were on display in Miss Conner's room.

Miss Anderson's room was converted into an antique museum, where old-fashioned clothes, guns, a spinning wheel, apple peeler, old papers and books and many other interesting articles were found.

HIVE OF ACTIVITY

Mrs. Brownson's room was a hive of activity where the junior grades put on demonstrations. Grade 1 showed its skill with bean bags and jumping and walking the leather work taught by Mrs. Anderson to Grade 8 girls was much admired as well as other hobbies by pupils and adults.

Mrs. Mahoney, Mrs. Owens, Mrs. Brintnell and Mrs. Grant were kept busy in Dr. Anderson's room serving freshie and doughnuts to the children, while doughnuts and coffee were served to the adults in Mr. McKee's room by Mrs. Drinkwalter, Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Quinn, Mrs. Adams assisted by Mrs. K. Gordon, Mrs. L. Empey, Mrs. Blue and Mrs. Howes in the kitchen.

The refreshment committee was most efficiently convened by Mrs. J. Livingstone.

The financial results of the evening were most gratifying and everyone left feeling they had spent a most enjoyable evening.

Much credit is due to Mrs. K. Kincaid, who was convener of the "Variety Night", also the teachers and members of the H-S who co-operated so willingly.

Strong Support To Wage War On Sea Lamprey

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate foreign relations sub-committee Wednesday heard strong support expressed for plans by Canada and the United States to wage joint war on the sea lamprey, pre-historic fish-killing parasite which is destroying the sports and commercial fisheries of the Great Lakes.

The committee quickly completed its study of the enabling treaty in a 3½-hour session and Senate observers voiced confidence it would receive quick approval in the Senate itself. The convention also is awaiting ratification in Parliament at Ottawa.

Support for the treaty came from representatives of the U.S. fish and wildlife service, the state department and state conservation boards. All agreed an international program was necessary to control the parasite, which is causing losses in the millions of dollars a year to fishermen in both countries.

A lone dissenting voice came from Ohio, which borders on Lake Erie but suffers little from lamprey infestation. An Ohio state representative said commercial fishermen of his state were "unalterably" opposed to the treaty but the state itself would not stand in the way of, its implementation.

Besides authorizing a joint campaign against the lamprey, the 16-year treaty also would establish a joint commission to co-ordinate the research of fisheries agencies in the two countries.

A similar treaty in 1946 failed to win Senate approval because it embodied regulation of commercial fishing. The new treaty does not.

Rise in Consumer Spending Ended Recession in Canada

MONTREAL — . . . The steady rise in consumer spending in the first quarter of 1954 was largely responsible for the recovery of the Canadian economy from recession in the first half of that year, according to an analysis recently completed by the National Industrial Conference Board. The Board stated:

"The buoyancy in personal consumption not only gave strong initial support to the period of contraction, but also provided a strong footing for forward business planning, so that progressive inventory liquidation was checked and cumulative slowdowns were averted.

CONSUMPTION UP

For the year as a whole, personal spending for consumer goods and services was over $450 million higher, or 2.1 per cent more, than in 1953. During the fourth quarter of 1954, the annual rate of consumption expenditure was over $500 million higher than the first-quarter rate. Although the rise in consumption was less than in any other postwar year, the 3.1 per cent increase is remarkable, for a period when personal disposable income increased by less than 0.5 per cent. To finance this spending, consumers reduced the rate of personal saving to considerably below the 1953 rate. This influences encouraging a sustained volume of spending were: (1) the more than 2 per cent increase in total labor income, despite more unemployment; (2) the reduction that became effective in mid-1953, and higher welfare receipts; and (3) more competitive salesmanship.

TRENDS IN SPENDING

Consumer outlays both for soft goods and for services increased in 1954; spending on nondurables by 3.3 per cent and services 4.6 per cent. In sharp contrast with the expansion of soft goods and services, total outlays for durable goods declined by 1.3 per cent. The newer products—especially television sets, automatic washing machines, and home freezers—sold at record gains, were more than offset by sharp declines in sales of automobiles and more standard household equipment—refrigerators, nonautomatic washing machines, radios, and furniture. The Conference Board notes that, in general, production declined by much larger margins than sales for most types of consumer durable goods, reflecting the additional pressure generated by inventory adjustments on the part of distributors.

RETAIL SALES DECLINED

The 2.1 per cent rise in consumer spending from 1953 to 1954 coincided with a 1.4 per cent decline in total retail sales. (Part of the explanation for this difference lies, of course, in the fact that retail sales do not include services.) The shrinkage in last year's total retail sales was confined to the Prairie Provinces, in line with lower grain marketing and poorer crops. There was also a fractional decline in Ontario. But in the Maritime Provinces, Quebec, and British Columbia, moderate gains were recorded.

OVER-ALL PICTURE

Recovery of the Canadian economy now appears to be well in progress. Latest figures show a significant rise in the seasonally adjusted output of goods and services during the last half of 1954. In fact, in the fourth quarter of 1954, the estimated rate of Canada's gross national product rose to the 1953 level of $26.4 billion. In this same quarter total output of goods and services in nonfarm sectors actually exceeded the 1953 rate by more than 3 per cent, and showed a resumption of business inventory accumulation.

MAJOR FACTORS

Last October, industrial production moved ahead of year-earlier levels for the first time in ten months. Increased mining and electric power production were major factors boosting the recovery of production. Recent advances in a variety of manufacturing industries reflect the widening area of improvement.

Primary elements sustaining recovery in 1954, apart from the rising volume of consumer spending, were booming construction activity and consistent strength in the natural resources sector. These buoyant forces have now been reinforced by marked improvement in exports and export prospects; a better outlook for agriculture; renewed business confidence stemming from the recent upsurge of business activity in the United States; and the knowledge that the worst period of seasonal contraction is now largely past. Stable prices and easy money continue, the latter highlighted by marked declines in interest rates and, more recently, by a reduction in the Bank of Canada's "discount rate" from 2 per cent to 1.5 per cent.

"AT THE FOUR CORNERS" — BELLEVILLE

WHITE'S DISTRICT

Mrs. S. Acker Reaches 89th Milestone

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Bayside's grand old lady celebrated the 89th anniversary of her natal day on Wednesday.

Mrs. Sarah Acker is hale and hearty and enjoyed the day as much as the guests who joined in wishing her many more happy birthdays.

There was a delicious birthday cake gaily decorated in pink and white with 89 years inscribed. There were numerous gifts, also two lovely bouquets of snapdragons and red roses and the many birthday cards received testified to the esteem of the well-wishers for such a fine person. She wore a corsage of roses for the occasion.

Until recently Mrs. Acker has been a regular attendant of White's Church and an active member of White's Women's Association, assisting in their suppers, their quiltings and their meetings.

Those who were present at the dinner and tea hours were: Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot Scott of Frankford; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Scott of Belleville; Mrs. Lorne Reddick of Kemptville; Mrs. Arthur Wiley, of Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Will Parcels, of Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Parcels and children of Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Meyers of Trenton; Mr. Harold Reddick of Belleville and Mr. Harry Acker of Trenton.

Mr. Arthur Wiley spent the week-end at the Acker home but was unable to attend the previous festivities.

Mr. and Mrs. Orliffe Pearson and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pearson and Carol of Trenton, were Thursday evening callers.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Brooks, of Johnstown, were Sunday afternoon callers.

Rawdon

RAWDON — Mr. and Mrs. G. Post and Paul, of Belleville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, fourth concession, on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Terry and daughter, Murray township; Mr. and Mrs. Harry McAdam, Mount Pleasant; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoard, town line, attended a presentation Friday evening at Carmel Jubilee Church hall for Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fryer.

Mr. Edward Montgomery, of Foxboro, spent a couple of days last week with his daughter, Mrs. Percy MacMullen and attended the farm sale of Mr. James Menzies on Wednesday.

'Dosco' And Steel Workers, Chiefs Exchange Tributes And Pledges of Co-operation

MONTREAL (CP) — The top management and chief union officials of Dosco, Canada's biggest industrial enterprise, today exchanged pledges of greater co-operation and mutual esteem.

The precedent-shattering labor relations manoeuvre was reported by L. A. Forsyth, president of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, who released the texts of correspondence with C. H. Millard, national director of the United Steel Workers of America (CIO-CCL).

A Dosco statement said Mr. Forsyth initiated the correspondence as a measure "helpful to the cause both of management and of trade unionism in our country."

WELCOME ATTITUDE

Mr. Millard replied: "In my opinion, since you became president of Dosco, a very welcome attitude of mutual respect and understanding has been growing in our union-management relations.

"I do not want to 'go overboard' and imply that all our troubles are in the past . . . but I do agree that it is the duty of both management and union to narrow the area of possible disputes as much as possible."

Both officials referred to bitter industrial strife which resulted in a number of strikes in the past, and Mr. Millard referred to "the present happy past and its legacy of prejudice."

More than 18,000 persons are employed in Dosco's steel operations. More than 60 per cent of these employees are represented by the USW, it was estimated here.

NOTES LENGTH OF TIME

Mr. Forsyth noted in his letter that he has been president of Dosco for more than five years.

Mr. Forsyth's letter continued: "Casual conversations, which I have from day to day, would almost seem to suggest that as between Dosco and the union a sort of continuous cold war exists which breaks out sporadically into open and active hostility adversely affecting our operations and the welfare of our employees and of the communities in which they live.

"Such . . . is definitely not the case; on the contrary, I think that it can, and should be said that . . . when difficulties do arise you and we meet at the conference table in a spirit which requires and receives official recognition of the responsibilities and duties of the representatives of the two important groups whose mandates we are obligated to fulfill. . . ."

In his reply, Mr. Millard, whose union represents 70,000 Canadian workers, declared:

"I heartily concur in your comment that friction and disputes get a 'big press' while amicable agreements and co-operation receive all too little publicity. . . .

". . . to treat one another across the bargaining table as fellow humans and not as a different order of being is perhaps the most essential of all. You can be sure that whatever influence I have in our union will be used to further the very real progress we have already made in that direction."

Rare Blood Ready To Save Infant When It Is Born

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (CP)—Doctors stood by today with a consignment of the world's rarest type of blood from an Alberta Indian reservation, ready to use it to save the life of a California baby not yet born.

The blood, of a type possessed by only 25 known persons in the world, was flown from the Canadian prairie province Wednesday in an Odyssey involving a jet plane and a licensed nurse-aide.

The story began when Mrs. Nathan Robertson of Redwood approached the time for the birth of her child. She and her husband have the combination of Rh positive and Rh negative blood types—a situation usually fatal for any but the first offspring.

RED CROSS APPEAL

Mrs. Robertson has one living child—her first. Since then she has had three miscarriages. So last week her doctor appealed to the International Red Cross for the type of blood known as the sub-sub Rh chromosome deletion, that which results from the combination of Rh positive and negative.

Of the 25 persons known to possess this type, 23 are Cree Indians living in the prairies. The type has only been known since 1950, and it was only 14 months ago that doctors in an Edmonton hospital discovered it when Jean Calihoo of the Cree reservation 30 miles west of the Alberta capital underwent surgery.

The International Red Cross asked the Alberta branch of that organization for help, and Dr. R. L. Buchanan, director of the Alberta Red Cross transfusion service, travelled by car and later by wagon over almost impassable roads to the reserve to get a donation from Miss Calihoo.

GOT TWO

Later he got another donation from Mrs. Clara Hirondelle, Miss Calihoo's sister, who lives in the foothills of the Rockies more than 100 miles west of Edmonton.

From these primitive surroundings the blood was whisked to the RCAF's testing unit near Edmonton and transferred in a modern T-33 jet trainer. Piloted by Lt.-Cmdr. Allan J. Wood, a Canadian navy pilot temporarily stationed at the air force base, and Flt. Lt. H. Robertson of the RCAF from Stratford, Ont., the blood was flown to California Wednesday despite a stop at Calgary caused by icing conditions.

When the baby is born—probably next week—doctors will replace its blood supply entirely with the sub-sub-RH chromosome deletion from remote Alberta. Without it, its chances for life would be virtually nil.

ASK SAFETY OBSERVANCE

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians were called on Wednesday by Governor-General Massey to observe the Victoria Day holiday, May 21-23, as highway safety weekend.

Britain to Spend Huge Sum To Build Restricted Highway

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Britain will spend £45,000,000 to build her first restricted four-lane highway from London to Yorkshire as part of a four-year plan to modernize the nation's roads into 20th century shape.

But government critics say the road program, involving eventual expenditure of about £217,000,000, is just a drop in the yawning bucket.

Britain's 190,000 miles of road are in a shabby state, they claim, and it will take about £750,000,000 worth of new construction to bring them up to standard. Meanwhile, lives, time and money are being wasted.

TIME FOR ACTION

Everyone agrees on the need for immediate action. Transport Minister John Boyd-Carpenter told the House of Commons recently:

"There have been few major improvements and very little new construction in our road system since 1939, and the problem which now faces us is therefore an immense one."

The government proposes to tackle the problem through three major constructions—two modern highways banned to cyclists and pedestrians and a bridge or tunnel across the Firth of Forth, near Edinburgh—and about 70 small improvement jobs on roads, bridges, tunnels and by-passes.

Expenditure of £37,000,000 will be authorized this year and another £130,000,000 in the following three years on the improvement projects, which begin immediately.

First big construction job will be the 70-mile stretch of four-lane highway from northern London to a point near Rugby, Warwickshire, 90 miles southeast of Birmingham.

This section, with two carriageways each 36 feet wide and separated by a grass strip, will cost about £15,000,000, or roughly £215,000 a mile.

80-MILE EXTENSION

Later it will be extended 80 miles to a point near Doncaster, with carriageways on this section 48 feet wide.

Total cost of the 150-mile highway is estimated at £45,000,000, about £300,000 a mile. Work will not begin immediately because before the road line can be fixed, the transport ministry must give notice of its intention to build and allow three months for lodging objections. Negotiations for the necessary land will then begin.

Second major job will be an 80-mile road through Lancashire from Preston to Birmingham. It will link the industrial areas of Lancashire with Birmingham. Estimated cost is about £20,000,000, approximately £250,000 a mile.

Entry to both these highways will be controlled. Both will be dotted with "fly-overs," half-size versions of the North American clover-leaf intersection, to save land and money.

Third large-scale project, scheduled to begin in four years' time, is a motor crossing of the Firth of Forth. Local authorities are considering whether a bridge or tunnel should be chosen across the 1¼-mile river to replace the half-hour ferry service, often interrupted by bad weather.

TUBE TUNNEL PLAN

A plan for a tube tunnel to be laid on the bed of the river has been submitted and is under study. It would carry two 22-foot-wide traffic lanes and would cost about £3,500,000, compared with £15,000,000 for a 2,800-foot bridge. The roof of the tube would be about 30 feet below the river surface at lowest tide level.

Although the government has authorized expenditure of about £217,000,000 over the next four years, actual expenditure will be much less. It is estimated that some £8,250,000 will be spent in 1955-56, rising to £42,000,000 in 1958-59.

Local authorities, who share the costs of road maintenance in most cases, will contribute about £25,500,000 more towards the road improvement program.

These schemes, says Boyd-Carpenter, represent the first instalment on a comprehensive program designed "to provide this country with an up-to-date road system." Expenditure in subsequent years is intended to be on at least the same scale.

LITTLE ENTHUSIASM

The government proposals have met with little enthusiasm. The independent Times commented:

"After so many years of neglect it was inevitable that the government's program for improving the roads should fall far short of what is required. . . . The program has indeed served to emphasize the enormous backlog of new road construction which has been allowed to accumulate."

Several groups, led by the powerful British Road Federation, comprising 107 national organizations, immediately voiced disappointment.

Said a federation statement: "The government's defeatist approach is simply unacceptable to the minister's own words in announcing the new proposals when he said, 'the construction of new roads is a process which takes some time to begin.'"

The Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders added: "The present condition of the roads, in relation to the enormity of the task ahead, is one of the most ominous and only scratch the surface."

CRITICS ABOUNDED

One point in particular—that the government is considered to still "should be charged in suitable cases" arrested city cases.

"The suggestion of toll is scandalous," says the Times. "Motor taxation has been so high for so long that Britain ought to have had modern roads years ago, like other countries in Europe. It is adding insult to injury to suggest that the first real roads to be built in Britain for motor transport should become an additional financial burden on trade and industry."

Federation officials consistently remind motorists that motor taxation has yielded more than £2,000,000,000 since the Second World War while less, than £300,000,000 has been spent on roads—"and this on piecemeal patching."

At Least Three Million U.S. Children Have Poor Hearing

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—At least 3,000,000 school children in the United States have impaired hearing.

The American Hearing Society put the figure by applying the number of children with impaired hearing in certain tested areas to the total school population across the country.

If Johnny or May happens to live where hearing tests are not required, their deficiency might go undetected indefinitely. Billy was one of these. And his is a more or less typical case:

He was a shy, quiet child, of a large family. After scarlet fever at three Billy became even more reticent. Often he didn't respond to directions from his parents. His father thought Billy was disobedient and should be spanked.

JUST ASSERT-MINDED

"He's not a bad boy," his mother always would say. "It's just Billy's nature to be absent-minded. Maybe he'll outgrow it."

When Billy started to school he didn't play much with the other children. Once when he saw the teacher ask him a question he said timidly he hadn't heard her. She smiled at him reproachfully, said "Some time to begin." Then she went on listening." After that he just shook his head that he didn't know the answer.

Billy lived in a state that left the problem of hearing tests up to the individual communities. When he was nine his town's school board decided to institute audiometer tests.

He was found to have a serious hearing impairment arising from an infection that didn't clear up after scarlet fever. With a hearing aid, Billy is at last able to hear everything said to him. There is hope, too, that proper medical care will improve his natural hearing.

Dr. Edmund Prince Fowler Sr., a specialist on hearing, says the number is the logical person to notice impaired hearing.

A SIMPLE TEST

"And she should do it long before the child enters school. All she'd have to do is put him in the next room and speak to him and see if he acts like other children. Then she'd know. But some parents won't face it."

Dr. Fowler helped invent the audiometer more than 30 years ago. Here are some tests he suggests for mothers to use in simple home checks every few months.

1. Does your baby react to sudden noises like a telephone ringing, a door banging, loud clapping of hands, dogs barking? He should, with normal hearing.

2. Does your baby react if you suddenly come into his line of vision, as if he hasn't heard you enter the room? This would indicate impaired hearing.

3. Is he learning to talk normally? Is he a lot noisier than usual? Children learn to talk from hearing others talk. If they can't hear properly, they obviously won't be able to talk properly either.

Children often develop hearing difficulties from whooping cough, mumps, colds, meningitis, even certain infections before the child is born," says Dr. Fowler. "Doctors can do a lot to prevent this if they're up to snuff and know their business."

TO BUILD SCHOOL

CORNWALL (CP) — A 12-room school to replace two public schools at nearby Mille Roches and Moulinette will be built by Ontario Hydro, Bryson Comrie, chairman of Cornwall township area school board, said Wednesday. Both Mille Roches and Moulinette will be flooded out by the St. Lawrence seaway power project.

Pairs of Mating Lunge Trapped To Secure Fry

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Workers at Canada's only muskellunge hatchery have set out 12 traps nets to catch pairs of mating muskies in preparation for the annual spring production of 4,000,000 fry.

The nets are visited daily by lands department employees from the Deer lake hatchery, 35 miles northwest of here, who dip out and release green and black bass, pickerel and other types of fish.

When the water temperature reaches 48 degrees, the muskies are ready to be milked of eggs. The roe from the female is gently pressed into enamelled basins and spread with milt from the male fish to fertilize the eggs.

Incubation jars at the hatchery already contain millions of sucker eggs which, when hatched, will provide natural feed for the muskie fry. In June the well-fed fry will be distributed throughout game fish waters of the Kawartha lakes north of here.

Unspecified Pay Boosts Sought By Steelworkers

PITTSBURGH (AP)—CIO United Steelworkers yesterday notified 96 basic steel producing companies that it intends to seek unspecified pay boosts for 600,000 members employed in the basic U. S. steel industry.

David J. McDonald, president of the 1,230,000 member union, said the notices were mailed out Tuesday. Under terms of the 1954 contract, steel companies are required to begin negotiations within 90 days after the notice is received.

The contract runs for three years, but contains a wage reopening clause.

The contract also provides that the union is permitted to strike in support of its position if no agreement is reached by midnight June 30.

McDonald said companies which received reopening notices from the union comprised the majority of the basic steel industry.

Dynamite-Laden Can is Tossed At Judge's Home

DETROIT (AP)—A garbage can containing dynamite was tossed at the home of Judge W. McKay Skillman Tuesday night. It exploded with a roar heard a mile away.

Police said it was thrown from a car seen speeding away from the scene.

The blast dug a two-foot hole on the property of Skillman's home in a fashionable district of Detroit's northwest side. Skillman, who was alone in the house, was unhurt.

Skillman is senior judge on Detroit's criminal court bench. He said he has no major cases pending and has received no threats recently.

Police placed a guard on the home for the night, although Skillman told them: "I am not worried or frightened and shall sleep soundly."

TRAILER TOWN

Hundreds of people who rushed to the oil-boom town of Drayton Valley, Alta., dragged skid shacks or trailers with them to live in. The Alberta government photo shows a section of the town with its trailers and shacks on skids. Beyond the town is an open field. The oil boom boosted Drayton Valley's population from 100 to almost 2,000 in two years straining its living accommodation. (CP Photo).

Black Gold Flows in Valley So Skid Shacks Rent for $75

By DAVID GANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DRAYTON VALLEY, Alta. (CP) Two years ago Drayton Valley had four stores, a cafe, a garage and a population of 100. It now has a $250,000 hotel, skid shacks, trailer camps, a population of almost 2,000—and problems.

Progress came to tiny Drayton Valley in the form of a 26-mile-long traffic jam, a housing problem, a school problem and jobs by the dozen. It also has an 18-member Board of Trade which spent its first dinner meeting recently discussing what it should do with an unincorporated town that grew too fast.

Two years ago the village 80 miles southwest of Edmonton and 30 miles south of Entwistle, the nearest railway stop, was the centre of a marginal farming area. One telephone line was sufficient for communication with outside centres. Accommodation for visitors was non-existent—there weren't many visitors.

OIL BROUGHT BOOM

Then oil was discovered. The 30 miles of narrow, gravelled road that led to Entwistle became a nightmare of cars and trucks as men and machines poured into the area. The field, known as the Pembina oilfield, now has 300 producing wells and, experts say, will have 2,000 before it is drilled out. That won't be for 10 years and by that time, geologists contend, the field may be the largest on the continent.

After the discovery of oil, sleeping space was at such a premium that 48 to 50 men bedded down nightly in the partially completed beer parlor. Hundreds of others commuted 50 to 60 miles.

It's impossible to buy or rent a modern house in Drayton Valley. A skid shack can be rented or space in a trailer camp, which must be approved by the provincial government.

Rents are high. For a skid shack —which is just what it says: a shack on skids slid into place—owners are getting $75 a month. For $37.50 monthly a trailer owner can rent a spot in a trailer camp, complete with running water and electricity. There also is garbage collection.

CAREFUL PLANNING

The Alberta government has said that Drayton Valley will be developed into a model town. No flimsy or haphazard building or development is permitted. Stringent building regulations prevail and building is on a carefully-worked-out plan.

The townsite is zoned into business, residential and industrial areas. Commercial buildings must be of masonry construction. Houses —when houses are built—must meet standards of the National Housing Act.

The town is being built on private property but speculation in land values is prohibited. The residential lot sale price has been set at $30 but no limit has been set on commercial lots; some have been sold for as high as $1,200.

Before anyone can build a house he must buy a lot, pay sewage and water costs in advance and also surveying and legal costs. The prospective home owner does not get title to his lot until the building has been started.

For those who wish small, reasonably inexpensive homes the government has set aside 40 lots with water facilities and 40 with neither water nor sewage facilities. So far 20 houses have been built or are under construction.

Commercial construction completed includes several stores, a 250-seat theatre and a 40-room hotel. Construction projected for this year, expected to top the $1,000,000 mark, includes another hotel, a motel, several stores, restaurants and other buildings such as oil company headquarters.

But despite the regulations, trailer camps that fail to measure up to minimum health standards have sprung up. Such operators have no garbage picking service, permit refuse to be strewn around their camps and crowd trailers together. Such operators are to be weeded out.

Drayton Valley will not get a hospital until it is incorporated as a town. The nearest hospital is at Edmonton. The one doctor divides his time between an office in the Drayton Valley hotel and a trailer-office at Violet Grove, approximately the geographical centre of the oil field.

CLASSES IN SHIFTS

The school population now is 275. The four-room school became so crowded that classes were conducted in shifts. Every movable classroom schoolhouse within 30 miles of Drayton Valley was dragged in to help ease the situation.

Plans are to construct an eight-room school with an auditorium before the start of the next school term.

In this razzle-dazzle atmosphere there is plenty of law-enforcement work to be done. The two RCMP officers who police the area so far have no quarters and no jail. They commute from the Entwistle detachment 30 miles away.

Drayton Valley's business men are optimists. They have reason to be. Two grocers from the Yukon mining town of Mayo Landing invested $7,000 in a store here two months ago. A week or so ago they rejected an offer of $12,000 for their business. Their reason:

"We like it here. It looks as though the town will be here for quite a while."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CANYER, Sports Editor

DISGUSTING!

Sportsminded people the province over, especially those who are directly or indirectly connected with, or have interest in minor sports, viewed with disgust the shameful proceedings that marked the Goderich championship preweek hockey tournament.

The Newmarket squad, it is charged, used three over-age players in their win-at-any-cost tactics. To make matters worse it has been revealed that they were used with deliberate intent, marked by the falsification of birth certificates.

To their distinct credit a thorough investigation is under way by the Newmarket council and its recreation commission.

Now, we understand, the Ontario Minor Hockey Association itself is conducting its own investigation, although it had nothing to do with the arranging of the tournament. And if those charged are found guilty, the OMHA should not pull its punches when dealing out punishment.

It is bad enough to have instances of players playing under assumed names in the roster sheets bracket, but people get to the gutter stage when adopting such tactics—and worse —when dealing with defenceless youngsters. What a fine way to teach sportsmanship.

Indirectly the unfortunate incident is a pat on the back for organized hockey, especially the Ontario Minor Hockey Association. And we thoroughly agree with OMHA secretary Jack Christie that use of over-age players, or players playing under assumed names is not prevalent in Ontario. Nor, as Chrjstie adds, is there any need of a province-wide investigation.

"As a result of 20 years' experience in providing regulatory legislation for teen-age hockey, the OMHA is quite satisfied that such tactics are non-existent within the framework of organized hockey," Christie said. "Tournament hockey is not operated within the domain of what is known as organized hockey, and it is quite possible that some tournament sponsors permit use of specified numbers of over-age players to become tournaments to provide balanced competition."

"However," Christie goes on, "this use of players by permission of tournament sponsors is something quite different from illegal use of over-age players by deception—and does not warrant investigation."

He points out that the Goderich preweek tournament is in reality a series of exhibition games, not conducted by the OMHA. However, that body has respect for the work done by the Goderich Lions' Club and has offered its full facilities for investigation and discipline either in the present case, or future tournaments. At their request the OMHA is proceeding with its investigation of the present charges.

Tournaments for the game's and kids' sake, should be operated under the jurisdiction of an organized body, its rules and constitution. The fact that they are exhibition games does not mean they can be run wholly-or that they should not get into the act." The teams involved in most cases have played under the aegis of an organization, and to veer them off the straight track of sportsmanship as exemplified in organized sport is merely inviting disaster.

We have been a staunch admirer of the OMHA and the fine type of men who operate it year after year, for a long time. We have studied their methods of operation, noted their fair-minded decisions, their high standard of sportsmanship and above all, have admired the personal interest they take in all and sundry clubs operating under their banner.

They make favorites of none. They rule with a firm, fair hand and their straightforward dealings with teams of that calibre assumed have gone a long way towards making minor hockey one of the cleanest, fairest-fought sports in Ontario today.

Evidence of the close touch the OMHA maintains with all the teams under its operation is borne out by the instances of breaches of rules and other untoward incidents grow less each year. It has a near-perfect constitution and set of rules. For instance at the annual convention last year in Toronto only three minor changes in the rules and constitution were tabled by member clubs, associations and the executive.

We are glad to hear that the OMHA will investigate the Newmarket incident. It will be a thorough one, conducted in a fair way for all concerned. That, we repeat, if those involved are found guilty as charged they should receive the maximum of punishment.

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association is already on record as being not in favor of inter-city playdowns for pee-wee or other age groups lower than Bantam, on the grounds that these boys are too young for extensive travel and competition away from home. For this reason the OMHA has refrained, even refused, to promote such playdowns. However, it is becoming evident that such tournaments are taking a definite place in the hockey life of our youth, and that legislation and supervision by the governing body is becoming increasingly necessary.

If tournament sponsors, and operators of other minor hockey competitions, which are now commencing to duplicate their services to the young lads of Ontario wish to take advantage of the facilities and legislation already provided by the OMHA, the danger of illegal tactics will be greatly lessened.

"MR. BOWLING"

The bowling season is practically over and the "Knife-and-Fork Leaguers" swing into action. And coincidental with the turkey-fests another sure sign of spring is the announcement of the annual "Mr. Bowling" competition. Bill Bateman, Bowl-o-Drome impresario, said today that the yearly bowlfest for the male of the species will get under way on May 7. On that date the keglers boasting an average of 215 and over start operations, while on May 14 the laddybucks with averages below 215 have their innings. The competition is open to any bowler anywhere in the district—from Kingston to Hogs Back and from Peterborough to Ulcered Tooth, Ont. Better get in that entry right away.

Stop Ford's Win Streak at 3 Dropo, Lollar Hit For Circuit Indians Win In 17th Inning

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It may be Ocean Kansas City steaks, but the Athletics are sprouting biceps and a home run punch. Trouble is, they were better off as puny singles hitters back in Philadelphia.

The A's have swatted 17 home runs so far, yet have won only five of 12 games. A year ago, with a mere four homers, they were 7-5. And in '53, with nine home runs, they also were 7-5.

The A's have a three-game winning streak going now, of course, and may be set to pad it. But the 1954 crew had won three straight after their 12th game, too.

Jim Finigan, Don Zernial, Bill Renna, Vic Power and Bill Wilson have clouted all the A's home runs. Zernial has four and Renna five each, the other three apiece. A year ago, Finigan, Renna and Power had four or a one after 12 games.

CONNECT AGIAN

Renna, Zernial and Wilson connected again Wednesday as the A's, with a sturdy five-inning performance by sore-arm Cloyd Boyer knocked off the Boston Red Sox 8-2. That left the A's just a game below .500 mark, in a tie for sixth place with Washington, first 2½ games behind the White Sox in a surprisingly tight AL race.

Chicago grew cozy by clubbing the New York Yankees 13-4. The Yanks dislodged the Chisox-Cleveland title with Cleveland—only 21 percentage points back—as the Indians beat Washington 6-5 in 17 innings. Detroit replaced Boston in fourth place by beating Baltimore 11-3.

In the National. Brooklyn beat Cincinnati 7-2 for its seventh straight win. Three games up on Milwaukee. The Braves whipped the New York Giants 9-6. Lew Burdette got Sal Maglie slipped out of the cellar as the Bridges fell in. beating Chicago 4-1.

OWN WILDNESS

Boyer, a St. Louis Cardinals castoff and brother of Redbird rookie Ken Boyer, was troubled only by his own wildness and Hyde Thornberry's home run as he beat the sagging Red Sox. He walked the leadoff batter in the fifth after Nord Zauchin's leadoff double and Billy Goodman's sacrifice fly gave Boston their Boston run.

Loser Frank Sullivan was tagged by Renna's solo shot in the first and Zernial's three-run clout in the fifth. Wilson, who also had two doubles, homered off reliefer Jim Henry in the sixth.

The White Sox got four-hit relief work from Billy Pierce, a disappointing 3-0 starter this season, over 6 3-3 innings after Virgil Trucks' departure. Pierce, with Bob Wah Dropo hammering home three runs with fourth and fifth-inning homers, Sherm Lollar belted for two and the Sox routed Whitey Ford.

ENDED STREAK

Ford, who was working on a 21-inning shutout streak, had a 2-0 lead on home runs by Hank Bauer and Andy Carey in the first.

Cleveland ended a three-game slide of Washington until Bobby Avila lifted a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the sixth inning. Both clubs used four hurlers. Chuck Stobbs lost it and Art Houtteman won it. Mickey Vernon batted in four of the Nats' runs with a three-run homer off starter Early Wynn in the third and a single that tied it in the seventh. It was the Senators' 14th consecutive defeat in Cleveland.

Detroit had a grand-slam from catcher Frank House, his first in the majors, and three-free runs to beat the Orioles. Bill Miller walked five in a row for two Tiger runs in the fifth and Lou Kretlow gave up a single before grabbing three in a row for another run in the eighth. Veteran Steve Gromek won it as Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn continued their batting spreaks, They now have hit in all 12 Detroit games this season.

Pitching was the big thing in the National League games. Bob Purkey gave up just four hits as Pittsburgh snapped a three-game Chicago winning streak. It was his first full-length performance in the majors.

Blame Not All Boucher's Says Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A New York Times sports columnist says Frank Boucher was not entirely to blame for New York Rangers' failure to produce winning teams during his nine-year tenure as general manager of the National Hockey League club.

Boucher, who resigned his Ranger post last week, "was overwhelmed by the persistentness of the hockey setup," writes Arthur Daley in a review of the one-time all-star centre's 29-year career as a Ranger player and executive.

Daley blames long-time Ranger manager Lester Patrick in part for the Rangers' downfall. Patrick had started in 1926 with a formidable team sparked by Boucher and linemates Bill and Bun Cook. As they grew older, they were replaced by Neil and Mac Colville and Patrick's sons, Muzz and Lynn, who succeeded Boucher as general manager, adds Daley.

"Along came the war," Daley continues. "The cautious Patrick refused to build. failed to stock for the future, . . Montreal, Toronto and Detroit grabbed off the kids. At the war's end the Colvilles and the Patricks didn't have it any more, So Lester was left with nothing. The Rangers have yet to recover."

John Holman Stops Charles In 9th Round

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—They call the Miami Beach Auditorium "speed arena" because so many well-known fighters are beaten there. One of the most popular victims is Ezzard Charles.

Wednesday night, unranked, 27-year-old Negro from Chicago, John Holman, launched a thunderous surprise attack in the ninth round to stop Charles, a 4-1 favorite, on a technical knockout.

"I've got no excuse," Charles said later. "I really blew that one. He was a hard hitter and he wore me down."

It was the second bitter upset for Charles in Miami Beach. Two years ago; in the same auditorium, he was outpointed by Nino Valdez, an unknown Cuban underdog who went on from there to become the top contender for Rocky Marciano's heavyweight crown.

WILL KEEP ON

"This won't stop me," said Charles, who still has hopes of winning a third shot at Marciano's title. "I'll keep right on fighting."

Holman dropped Charles in the first round with a right behind the left ear but the 33-year-old former champion came up at the count of three and immediately took command of the fight.

Charles had Holman with a consistent body attack and was leading on all cards when the fight went into the ninth.

Holman, who has fought a total of $9,042 to see Holman upset Charles. The fight was televised nationally (CBS). Holman weighed 202¾, Charles 193½.

Dutchies Win Tonight Will Clinch Cup

KITCHENER (CP) — Fort William Beavers will meet Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the fifth game of the Allan Cup finals tonight. It's either win or get out for the western champions.

Beavers are down 3-1 in games in the best-of-seven series and must find some way of stopping the high-scoring Dutchmen if they expect to prolong the series. They blanketed themselves for the 7-6 defeat they suffered in the third engagement Tuesday after holding a 6-3 edge at one stage in the game.

GOOD TEAM

"You should never lose a playoff game when you're in front like that," he said. "I don't want to take anything away from the Dutchmen. They're a good team, but we played into their hands."

Meanwhile, Dutchmen were still elated over their decision to play wide-open hockey in Tuesday's game.

"We had to gamble," said coach Bob Bauer. "And we had the guys who could fire the goals."

Beavers were still undecided today whether to make any lineup changes. There is a possibility of one switch in the defence but Drainville still has not made up his mind.

Toronto Wins Home Opener Before 16,000

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Good pitching and hard hitting marked the Toronto Maple Leafs, who won the International League championship last season, the solid favorite for a repeat performance this year.

Toronto opened Wednesday to within-a half-game of the league-leaders, the idle Havana Cuban Sugar Kings, when they scored five runs in the eighth inning to take their home opener with the Syracuse Chiefs, 6-2.

In the only other game scheduled, the Columbus Jets made it four straight over Rochester by nipping the Red Wings 3-2 in their home opener.

More than 27,000 fans turned out, 16,905—the top attendance this season in the league—for Toronto and 11,021 at Rochester in the two day games.

Mike Goliat, who was shipped to the Maple Leafs in 1951 for disciplinary reasons by the Philadelphia Phillies, led the Toronto attack with a three-run homer in the explosive eighth inning and drove in the first run in the fourth with a single. It was the eighth straight game that Goliat had hit safely.

Marlies Game Away From Cup, Edge Pats 3-2 In Overtime

REGINA (CP) — Coach Turk Broda of Toronto Marlboros was smiling again Wednesday night after his team's 3-2 overtime win over Regina Pats in the fourth game of the Memorial Cup junior hockey final.

"They played like a hockey team tonight," he said with pride after Marlboros went ahead 3-1 in the best-of-seven series. "Pats were not a hockey game all the way through."

However, Turk wasn't making any predictions about his club claiming the silverware in the fifth game Friday night.

"It's never over until the last whistle," Broda said.

Coach Murray Armstrong of Pats was a dejected figure in the dressing dressing room. He took the loss pretty hard.

"But you can't blame the kids," he said. "They did their best."

Toronto president Harold Ballard figured Marlboros looked their best of the season in the game. He said they were sharper and keener all-round.

REGINA (CP)—A dream goal, straight from a face-off and perfayed through the defence for an unessential score in overtime, has carried Toronto Marlboros to within a game of the Memorial Cup junior hockey championship.

The counter, scored by centre Billy Harris, broke up an overtime battle Wednesday night to give Toronto a 3-2 win over Regina Pats and a big 3-1 edge in games in the best-of-seven series.

Harris nailed the puck from the face-off and spurted towards the Regina goal. He seemed to half-jump, half-stickhandle his way through two Regina men to defence, Lloyd Repka and Grant Munro, and slanted fall into the net as he came up on goalie Joe Selinger.

His shot shot struck Selinger's stick as he went down to save and the puck flipped over his right shoulder.

Harris scored just 44 seconds after he'd been hardly a minute after Pats had sent the game into extra time.

Coach Murray Armstrong pulled Selinger with 37 seconds left in the game with his team down 2-1 and sent out a six-man line.

All-star defenceman Murray Balfour tied it 2-2 at 19:45, firing the puck behind Johnny Johnson as the Toronto net from a scramble.

Harris, his team's top scorer this season, was on all Toronto goals. He set up Marlboros' first goal by Al MacNeil in the second period after Pats went ahead 1-0 and passed to winger Ken Girard in the third period.

Balfour, a standout for Pats, also fired the second Regina goal.

Coach Murray Armstrong was dejected after the game and took the loss hard. He figured that his team was ahead on the play but missed the breaks around the net where it counted.

Armstrong said he couldn't blame his boys—they did their best.

Coach Turk Broda of Toronto, who had no kind comment for his players Monday although they won, was in a happy mood after the fourth game.

"They played like a hockey team tonight," Broda said.

Turk refused to make any predictions on the fifth game Friday night when Marlboros could wrap up the series with a win.

Boxer Refuses To Leave Ring After Verdict

HAMILTON (CP)—Casper Ross of Niagara Falls scored a three round split decision over Bill Demchuk of Port Colborne Wednesday night in a light heavyweight fight by the championship of the southern Ontario area of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

Ross from a small crowd of 250 greeted the decision. Demchuk's handler, Cap Teal, climbed into the ring with his fighter. Both refused to accept the decision or leave the ring for about 10 minutes.

Teal, when he did leave the ring, told boxing chairman Jack Miller he wouldn't let any more of his boys fight during the night. He later relented and allowed welterweight Tom McCoy to box.

Demchuk, who once before defeated Ross, said he counted because he thought he was far ahead in points.

Ross was awarded the fight for receiving the nod from two of the three judges.

Ross appeared to take more damage than Demchuk. His nose was puffed in the first round as Demchuk easily landed his left.

Decision in a bantamweight bout between Jim Lancelot of Niagara Falls and Ray Lavalette of Sarnia also met catcalls from the crowd when Lancelot was awarded the match.

The six winners may be sent to the Canadian finals in Regina early in May.

In the best bout of the night, Bob Carney of Niagara Falls had trouble solving the southpaw style of Ron Hamilton of Sarnia but took the 133-pound title on a unanimous decision after weathering some heavy Hamilton blows in the third round.

In split decisions, Dave Vansickle of Sarnia defeated Tom Whalen of Brantford for the 156-pound title and Joe Cavilliar of Sarnia won the 140-pound championship over Tom McCoy of Niagara Falls.

Other results:

148-pound special bout — Ron Monohan, Hamilton, gained a decision over Gordon McLaine, Niagara Falls.

165-pound final — Dick Eldered, Sarnia, decisioned Jocko DeMarco, Niagara Falls.

82-pound special bout — Johnny Irwin, Niagara Falls, and Bruno Manchurio, Niagara Falls, fought to a draw.

Clyde Wins Scottish Cup

GLASGOW (Reuters)—Clyde won the Scottish Football Association Cup for the second time in its history Wednesday night by beating Celtic 1-0 in a replay game at Hampden Park here.

A second half goal by International letwinger Tommy Ring, who had earlier missed two good chances, brought the cup to Clyde.

The two teams had drawn 1-1 on Saturday, necessitating Wednesday night's replay. A crowd of 60,000 saw Clyde seize the initiative and keep it for the whole game.

ONTARIANS WIN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The touring members of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association of Ontario wound up their 10-game California tour here Wednesday with a 190-177 victory over San Francisco Lawn Bowling Club. The bowlers, who leave today for Canada, have won six and lost four games in California.

Meaford Bows To Tillsonburg, Series Squared

COLLINGWOOD (CP) — Tillsonburg Pan-Orioles defeated Meaford Knights 7-2 Wednesday night to deadlock the Ontario Hockey Association intermediate A best-of-seven finals at 3-3.

Playing-coach Bill Simpell led Tillsonburg with two goals. The others went to Bob Bowman, Jack Campbell, Earl Rose, George Coulter and Joe Holots.

Murray Watson scored both Meaford goals.

Nearly 2,200 fans, the largest crowd of the season, sat in. The seventh game will be played at Tillsonburg Friday.

PGA FUNDAMENTAL No. 3
One-Piece Swing

I and most pros start my swing with a slight forward press. This is a thing best treasonably important, movement of hands, hips and right knee to the left, before actually starting the backswing. Like the waggle, it helps to break up tension, and also is a good way to put the one-piece swing into motion.

From there on the swing becomes a single, powerful movement controlled by the left side. To make this clear, in the PGA film they first black out a player's left side, so all you see is his right side in action. From this it is obvious that your right side plays only a supporting role in the swing—until the club reaches the hitting area, of course, where the right side explodes into action.

Then we see the player's right side blacked out and only his left is visible in a swing. This really proves that the authority lies in a player's left side. It not only controls and limits the backswing, but also leads the down swing.

Ti-Cats Sign Illinois Star

HAMILTON (CP)—Perry Moss, former All-American quarterback with the University of Illinois, has signed a 1955 contract with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union. He is the third import quarter to sign for Cats.

Moss has not played since he spent the 1948-49 season with Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, but Hamilton coach Carl Voyles thinks the 195-pounder can regain the form that led Illinois to the Big Ten and Rose Bowl championships in 1947.

The 28-year-old Moss has been a high-school coach at several colleges since he left Packers.

SUSPEND SENTENCE

NEW YORK (AP) — Former heavyweight boxer Clarence Henry Wednesday received a suspended sentence of one to three years in prison for "rifling" another fighter.

General sessions judge John A. Mullen said in suspending the jail term he was convinced the 27-year-old Negro was the tool of some other slimy creature." Henry pleaded guilty last February to offering a $15,000 bribe to fix a Madison Square Garden middleweight fight June 11, 1954.

Producer Relying on Pictures News Agencies For TV Shows

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—One of television's biggest problems has been its insatiable demand for fresh, new material. It has consumed great numbers of classic adaptations from literature, of past stage successes, of revivals of past movies. What's the answer?

The extraordinary things that happen to ordinary people as reported in daily newspapers and by news services, says producer Ed Byron.

Byron is relying on newspapers and news agencies for his latest venture, "Mr. Citizen," on Wednesday nights. They serve the chief source of material for his "Mr. District Attorney" show on radio, and later on TV.

Byron says that in telling about unusual occurrences in the lives of ordinary people, the problem is not in making them seem dramatic. It's in trying to convince viewers that they are fact and not fiction.

STORY OF EPILEPTICS

He is particularly excited at the moment over the third in his new series of programs, scheduled for next Wednesday, on the plight of epileptics.

"We're going to break the story of the American epileptic," he says. "He's a second-class citizen."

"The epileptic is discriminated against. He's only allowed to drive a car in one state (Wisconsin). In six states he can be sterilized, in a number of states he isn't allowed workmen's compensation. In 26 states he can't get a marriage license."

But, he added, "it has been shown that 80 per cent of cases of epilepsy can be controlled by medication."

AT THE McCARTHY — A quintet of Island beauties tempt Percy Kilbride but Marjorie Main is having none of it in "Ma and Pa Kettle at Waikiki," Universal-International's newest "Kettle" comedy now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Lori Nelson, Byron Palmer and Hilo Hattie are featured in the adventure which turns Hawaii into a riot.

AT THE CAPITOL — Major in mufti is Jack Powell in RKO Radio release of "Station West." Jane Greer co-stars in the drama of life at a frontier Army post opening tonight at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program now thrills in "Tarzan's Hidden Jungle" starring Gordon Scott.

AT THE CAPITOL — Tarzan Calls. New Tarzan, Gordon Scott gives famous yell in "Tarzan's Hidden Jungle", newest in the Sol Lesser RKO series based on the popular Edgar Rice Burroughs stories, now on the screen at the Capitol Theatre. Co-starred are Vera Miles, Peter Van Eyck and Jane Greer in "Station West."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Arbiter

Sound bridge is possible only when your partner appears with clean hands. This thought prompts me to select from my mail the letter that contains the following deal:

NORTH
♠A J 10
♥A J 9
♦K 6 4 J 10 5
♣J 8

WEST	EAST
♠Q 5 3 2	♠K 7 6 4
♥8 7 6	♥Q 3
♦2	♦8 7 3
♣A 9 7 3	♣Q 6 4 2

SOUTH
♥K 10 7 5 4
♦A Q
♣K 10 5

South was dealer and this was the reported bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 Heart	Pass	2 Diamonds	Pass
Pass

Between the lines I can read that north is almost in tears over south's refusal to keep the bidding open for one more round. It is not the final result that hurts her. It is the bidding principle.

Basis of the north disappointment is the south failure to abide by an accepted signal. To a dealer who opens the bidding the take-out to a new suit by partner is forcing for one round.

In this case, however, south was correct in passing the takeout of two diamonds. Where he was wrong is in making an opening bid. He did not have a sound opening bid of any kind.

Having lied to start with he must warn his partner that he lied. This he does as soon as possible by failing to obey a signal that he ordered him to fail again. It is a warning to partner that he lied.

If south had not started with a phony opening, north would have opened with a diamond. Thereafter, neither partner would have had to lie and matchpoint game would be smooth and easy to reach.

Also, north has a kick coming in that respect. The south opening not only was foolish, it was downright indecent. A bridge partner has no right to wreck the partnership with such an act.

I despise a partner who deliberately makes an unsound opening bid without warning. No matter how expert he claims to be, when it is his turn to sit opposite me, I'd rather see the devil appear.

BELARDI SENT DOWN

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Tigers Wednesday sent first baseman Wayne Belardi to Buffalo Bisons, their farm club in the International League on a 24-hour recall basis.

Top Impost For Prince Noor

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Prince Noor drew top weight of 126 pounds —the full Kentucky Derby impost —against nine other Derby hopefuls in the $25,000-added Blue Grass Stakes today at Keeneland. With 10 starters the winner would get $22,437.

Harry House Farms entered Prince Noor, winner of the Everglades Stakes, and Alibhi Wednesday despite reports that Prince Noor would pass the Blue Grass for the Derby Trial next Tuesday at Churchill Downs.

The Blue Grass, a furlong short of Derby distance at 1¼-mile, and the Trial are figured the last chances for hopeful 3-year-olds to earn a spot against heralded Nashua and Summer Tan in the May 7 Downs classic.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, April 29, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Today dreams calm action, some introspection; and finishing matters already started rather than undertaking heavy, new tasks. The aspects are neither restrictive nor too auspicious; just have care.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Much can be achieved today by study, research, conference, handling tasks and problems serenely and understandingly. Day favors healthy hobbies, artistic proficience, also rest, relaxation.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Achievement in any worthy undertaking is to be admired and today offers some opportunities to advance. They will not be spectacular however. Be ready for essentials; also make time for wholesome fun and rest.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — While financial matters, heavy building and many activities are not too auspiciously aspected, it, nevertheless, a favorable period for usual daily interests, for earned rest and relaxation.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — An in-between day that should neither rush you nor fail to register good if you attend to things as you should. Get unfinished tasks completed where possible; then good fun.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — The influences are pleasant and restful. Why not use free time for hobby, talent, some pleasant diversion from usual duty "grind"? Healthy exercise, outdoor pastimes favored.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Favorable Venus rays still linger from yesterday. Those sponsor family, home interests. Dealing in foods, beverages improve. Jewelers, dressmakers, designers especially favored.

October 24 to November 23 — (Scorpio) — Personal attention to business and financial interests can net gains now, but cautious attention and patience are urged in all matters and dealings with others. Self-restraint!

November 23 to December 22— (Sagittarius) — Your Jupiter in auspicious position. Be quick to take advantage of worthwhile opportunities, improve personal interests, make changes to better your work wherever you can.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Deal carefully with superiors, competitors, teachers, business associates; many may be on edge — and you, too. Not an entirely auspicious day, so be tactful, cheerful. You can benefit greatly.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Mixed vibrations with money matters, family and home affairs most highly favored, but restraint is urged in other lines, ialefiou tasks and mechanical trades.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Extra care stressed if handling machinery, sharp tools, chemicals, liquids. Day is favorable for business, occupations, for sound investments, selling, children's interests.

You born today have strong, strongly-marked characteristics, great talent and general capability. We find outstanding leaders and pioneers in your Zodiacal sector. You may have unusual aptitude for journalism, a military life, in music, acting, singing. Do not permit headstrong tendencies to take hold; they could defeat your better qualities. When troubled or in doubt about things seek steadiness and guidance in prayer and quiet reflection. Control temper and watch your health sensibly. You can reach top success in your chosen field. Birthdate: Lavado Taft, noted sculptor; Wm. Randolph Hearst, publisher.

Was Rundown; Suffered Stomach Gas, Indigestion

Also Had Backache, Rheumatic Pains, Nerves on Edge, Couldn't Sleep. Tells How Syntona Helped Her.

MRS. C. SHADWICK

"For the past two years I've had a bad time with stomach disorders and rheumatic pains, but I feel just fine since taking Syntona," said Mrs. C. Shadwick, 116 Clark Street, Woodstock, Ont., in a recent report.

"I would often have so much distress and my ankles would swell. I had to feel like eating. Even the lightest foods seemed to give me trouble with sour acid rising, belching and a distressed feeling after meals. I was rundown and nervous and had pains in my joints, back and shoulders. I got so that I could scarcely walk and when I sat down it was hard for me to get on my feet again. I became nervous, couldn't sleep at night and often felt tired out all the time.

"Much Different Now

"When I first read about Syntona I was skeptical, but I decided to try this medicine and I'm glad I did. It's much different now. I eat what I want and get what rest I needed. It wasn't long before I felt like a new woman. Since then Syntona has relieved me of my troubles. I sincerely have trouble at all and have Communist aided.

Has Helped Thousands

This Herbal medicine known as Syntona has helped countless numbers of folks who suffered from the same way. It is pleasant to take and contains no harmful drugs.

PREMIER CLAIMS VICTORY IN VET NAM

IT'S AN OLD BURMESE CUSTOM

Most countries celebrate their New Year's day by whooping or by feasting. In Burma, tradition allows people to go around soaking one another with water, and few restrict themselves to a mere sprinkle. When Prime Minister Nehru of India and Gamal Nasser of Egypt were in Rangoon as guests of Prime Minister U Nu, mine host took advantage of the occasion and thoroughly doused his guests. Here, U Nu, centre, is ready to let go with a bucketful of water at Nasser while Nehru, left, who has already been christened, is enjoying the spectacle.—Central Press Canadian.

COMMONS TOLD OF PROBLEMS OF QUEBEC FARMERS

Member Demands Probe Of Price for Pulpwood

OTTAWA (CP) — A picture of eastern Quebec farmers and settlers forced through low pulpwood prices to work for 75 cents a day has been portrayed in the Commons.

Bona Arsenault (L — Bonaventure) said Thursday it is "odious exploitation" and demanded a combines investigation of prices paid by Quebec pulp and paper companies.

The wood-cutter's return was less than the estimated worth of his horse's work.

Mr. Arsenault said that low prices since 1952 have meant an annual loss of some $2,000,000 for eastern Quebec farmers and settlers delivering pulpwood from their land. He called for parliamentary action to provide them a minimum price of $15 a cord.

Gasp prices last winter were as low as $10?50 and even $7.50 a cord. Even if they gave the wood-cutter 75 cents a day, since it took two men and a horse each day to cut a cord, and their expenses were $6, including an estimated $1 for the horse's consumption.

He said this exploitation by businessmen "is the most fertile seed you can find in the world for sowing communism and communistic ideas."

This is how certain capitalists, blinded by their own greed, are making the best propagandists of communism."

Another Liberal joined him to the budget debate to ask for an expanded federal contributions to the provinces for training skilled workers.

Francis T. Fairey (Victoria, B.C.) said provincial training efforts are pathetic and meagre.

Mr. Fairey, former deputy education minister of British Columbia, said federal-provincial arrangements for vocational training now being continued on an annual basis after a 10-year term should be made more flexible.

The $10,000 in federal funds allocated in the last 10 years for building training schools would build only one good technical school. More money was needed to produce a skilled working force which would help produce cheaper and better goods on the competitive world market.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) urged that the cost of drug prescriptions filled by druggists should be included in medical costs deducted from income tax, together with premiums paid on life insurance policies.

Hit-Run Car Upsets Truck Injuring Dozen Immigrants

Tokyo Airport Janitor Finds 24 Diamonds

TOKYO (AP) — Mrmihichi Mazuta, 63, is a janitor at Tokyo's International airport.

Two years ago he picked up a small cardboard case. There were 24 glass beads in it, he noted. He put the case on a shelf.

He took another look at the glass beads Thursday. Then he took them to a watchmaker friend.

"Genuine diamonds," the watchmaker exclaimed.

Smuggled, said police, taking over the diamonds—and worth $10,000 if they're worth a cent.

TORONTO (CP) — Twelve workmen were injured and four more shaken up early today when a pick-up truck in which they were riding rolled over on Highway 401 in suburban North York.

Police said the truck upset after being struck by an automobile.

Police said the truck skidded on its side for 70 feet, throwing the workmen out as it went. The wooden rack on the truck was smashed to kindling.

The injured were taken to hospital. All were Italian immigrants on their way to a brick-laying job in suburban North York.

Investigators said the truck was forced off the road by a collision with a car which did not stop.

Provinces Face Vast Relief Accounting Job

OTTAWA (CP) — The provinces face a vast unemployment relief accounting job in the next month. For some it may be vaster than for others.

All 10 must determine how much unemployment relief is required and paid out in their cities and towns so that a special committee of federal-provincial experts can decide where Prime Minister St. Laurent's formula for federal relief contributions will fit.

Some provinces, it is indicated, have a fairly clear grasp of their relief situations. Others, however, had no idea at all and must start from scratch to encompass all the details.

The committee also must assess the impact of various tax-raising proposals on provincial economies; how much a national health insurance scheme will cost, and whether each province can afford to participate.

The hope is that all the statistical information, at least on unemployment, may be gathered within a month. Once it is amassed, federal and provincial ministers—premiers in some cases—will gather then to reach a final decision on whether the St. Laurent welfare formula is to be accepted or rejected.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Fine spring weather will continue throughout most of Ontario today and Saturday. Slightly cooler air will spread across the provinces today and Saturday, preceded by some cloudiness in southern sections and one or two showers in the far north.

Telegram Says Election Date June 9 or 16

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says Premier Frost will call an Ontario general election Monday and the date will be either June 9 or June 16.

The paper says:

"A high official said the premier will not announce the date tomorrow at the annual meeting of the Western Ontario Progressive Conservative Association in London."

It adds that the premier is reported to have reached his decision after the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa earlier this week.

Faeroe Isles Squabble Over Doctor Turns Into Fight for Independence

THORNSHAVN, Faeroe Islands (AP)—The squabble over attempts to remove an expelled physician from these remote Danish-held north Atlantic islands appeared today to be developing into political independence.

The revolt started with resistance of Bordo islanders to attempts to remove Dr. Olaf Halvorsen from his hospital post at Klaksvig, Bordo's main town. It mushroomed into a general strike which has paralyzed industry throughout the 21 Isles.

Halvorsen indicated in a telephone interview Thursday that his role in the dispute has become a minor one.

"I would return to Denmark immediately, if it were up to me," he said, "but it is not certain that I myself am allowed to decide."

Irate islanders meanwhile fashioned crude hand grenades as a riot squad of 120 husky Danish riot mainland.

police men waited off shore for orders to go in and get the doctor. Danish police had made the squad available to Faeroe authorities after Bordo islanders last week beat the welfare police chief and the Faeroe capital of Thorshavn to remove Halvorsen.

The dispute over Halvorsen now appears to have become a fight between islanders in Bordo and Thorshavn, and a conflict between advocates of Danish rule and pro-Danish groups within the islands.

The strike, called Wednesday, was reported instigated by a group campaigning for local freedom. Many Thorshavn workers said they wanted to go back to work and had urged the Trades Union Council to call off the stoppage.

The Faeroes are in the north Atlantic between Iceland and the Shetlands. They are between 600 and 700 miles from the Danish

Air Force Larger Than Army For First Time Since 1946

OTTAWA (CP)—The air force, which has grown bigger than the army for the first time since 1946, has ordered about $1,400,000 worth of Chipmunk training planes from de Havilland Aircraft Company of Toronto.

The initial order, it was learned Thursday, is for 60 of the propeller-driven planes. The RCAF may take 20 more later.

The decision to introduce the Chipmunk into pilot-training was announced by the RCAF last December. It means the air force will revert to the training system it employed in the Second World War when pilots first flew a light, slow plane before advancing to the faster Harvard.

Both a scheme likely would enable the RCAF, which according to defence department figures issued Thursday had a strength at March 31 of 49,861 compared to the army's 49,409, to train a lot of pilots quickly should a war develop. The new scheme, air force officials said, has no direct relation to recent T33 jet trainer crashes.

Pilot trainees in recent years have started flying in the Harvard and graduated to the T-33 jet trainer which, like all jets now, has a nose wheel instead of a tail wheel.

The small Chipmunk is relatively cheap, as plane prices go, and can be used for both dual and solo instruction. It is the tricycle undercarriage.

The air force also is considering a successor to the Harvard, which also will have the tricycle undercarriage.

The successor may be a jet and the number of British, American and French trainers have been studied.

Lengthy Manifestoes from Two Major Parties Open Campaign

LONDON (AP) — Britain's two major parties squared off today with lengthy manifestoes outlining their platforms for the May 26 general election.

Both promised to work for peace and more prosperity. Both said they would seek early talks with the Russians. Both said they would keep Britain's defences strong until world disarmament is a reality. Otherwise their programs differed sharply.

Prime Minister Eden pledged that his Conservatives, if back in office, would try to agree with the Soviet leaders on "proposals which will make a fresh advance towards disarmament and security for all peoples."

On the home front, the Conservatives promised to develop Britain into a "property-owning democracy" with more export trade, in line with the party's "trade, not aid" policy, was again a cardinal point.

The Labor party of former prime minister Clement Attlee said that "given the government control they lost in 1951' they would work for nationalization of iron and steam, a fantasie end to H-bomb tests, early peace talks with Russia, cuts in the cost of living and further nationalization of industry to broaden the welfare state.

The Conservatives tabbed their platform a "programme for prosperity." They decried the Labor manifesto as a "blueprint for disaster."

Eden said his party is "not approaching plans for Britain's future with talk about the next two months to realize."

"We need a mandate measured not in months but years," he said in an appeal for a strong working majority in the House of Commons where the Conservatives now have an over-all margin of only 18.

The Conservative manifesto said export trade would be the "first charge upon our resources."

"Without success in this field neither defensive strength nor social welfare can be achieved, and it is our object to achieve them both."

With betting odds indicating a narrow victory for the Conservatives, Labor hit hard at peaceand-bread issues close to the hearts of the big middle class of wage earners.

The first objective of any British government, the Socialist manifesto said, "should be to end the delay in setting up high-level talks with the Russians." A meeting "on any level ... can be arranged shortly."

The Labor statement also listed these other international aims for a Socialist government: removal of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist forces from the Chinese off-shore islands; Red China's admission to the United Nations and the neutralization of Formosa under the UN; immediate "cessation of H-bomb tests" and ultimate world-wide disarmament, even at "sacrifices of national sovereignty."

On home-front issues, Labor pledged to: renationalize Britain's steel and long-distance trucking industries; cut the cost of living by fighting price rising and monopolies; restoring price controls on essential goods "where necessary," and "bring to an end the present antiquated systems of food distribution;" start an educational reform by getting more teachers and raising classroom standards.

Amherst Island Ferry Christened

KINGSTON (CP)—A new 105-foot motor ferry to ply between Millhaven and Amherst island in the St. Lawrence river, was christened here Thursday.

The vessel Amherst Islander, was christened by Mrs. W. M. Nickle, wife of Ontario Provincial Secretary W. M. Nickle.

The new ferry can carry 125 passengers and 19 vehicles. It replaces the ferry condemned last year.

ADENAUER OPENS TALKS WITH PINAY ABOUT SAAR PACT

German Rearmament Depends on Agreement

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay sat down together today to work out details of the Franco-German pact on the industrial Saarland, If they fail to agree, West Germany rearmament could be delayed.

To head off demonstrations supporting Germany's claim to the border territory, Adenauer's government reinforced police in the Saarbruecken area against public processions.

The 120-square-mile valley of the Saar river, a region of vast coal resources and a big coal and steel industry, was German before the war. Politically autonomous since 1953, its economy has been linked closely to France's since the end of the war.

As one of the Paris treaties to return sovereignty to West Germany, the Saar would be within the north Atlantic alliance, West Germany and France agreed that the Saar would be put under the seven-power Western European Union until a final peace treaty is concluded with Germany. The French would retain economic links and their customs union with the territory.

Highly unpopular in West Germany, the Saar agreement was ratified by the Bonn parliament by only a small majority. The French have insisted that details of the pact be worked out before they will deposit their instruments ratifying West German sovereignty. Until all treaty signatories give that formal diplomatic notice that the parts are in effect, the occupation cannot be ended and rearmament cannot begin.

Shell Chinese Mainland Near Matsu Islands

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Chinese Nationalist warships have shelled the Communist mainland near the Matsu islands and destroyed a considerable number of fishing junks, navy headquarters claimed today.

The navy said the warships, number and nature not disclosed, moved more than 100 shells into artillery positions in the vicinity of the Huangchi peninsula, 10 miles from the mainland west into action on Thursday.

The shelling was preceded by attacks on Communist craft near Huangchi on both Wednesday and Thursday, the navy said.

Targets of the shelling included docks at Huangchi where the Reds had been reported unloading supplies presumably for use against Matsu.

The town of Huangchi is five miles from the nearest Matsu island.

Find Body in Lake

TORONTO (CP) —Police today said they are trying to identify the body of a bearded man dragged from Lake Ontario.

The man was described as between 30 and 40 years old, slim, balding and with a white beard. He was wearing a blue shirt and a shape of an "X" on his forehead.

Report U.S. Backs Diem In Refusal To Go To France

French Premier Declares Diem 'Not Equal to Tasks'

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Ngo Dinh Diem claimed victory today in his 18-month-old Indochina civil war with the Binh Xuyen Society and flatly refused to obey the order of South Viet Nam's chief of state, Bao Dai, that he leave for France at once.

Scattered fighting continued during the day along the roads between this capital and its Chinese suburbs of Cho,Lon. One clash was reported only four blocks from the United States embassy.

(Agence France-Presse reported in Paris that the toll of dead and wounded in the fighting Thursday and today was over 1,000 mark. There was no immediate official count.)

A spokesman at the premier's palace said Diem's cabinet supported him unanimously in his refusal to comply with Bao Dai's order, cabled Thursday after Diem had been put under the seven-power Western European Union umbrella at a final peace talks concluded with Germany. The French would retain economic links and their customs union with the territory.

Highly unpopular in West Germany, the Saar agreement was ratified by the Bonn parliament by only a small majority. The French have insisted that details of the pact be worked out before they will deposit their instruments ratifying West German sovereignty. Until all treaty signatories give that formal diplomatic notice that the parts are in effect, the occupation cannot be ended and rearmament cannot begin.

STRONGHOLD FALLS

The premier issued his victory statement as the national army announced that its shock troops had driven Binh Xuyen forces from the last major rebel stronghold guarding the approaches to the society's headquarters outside Cho Lon.

The withdrawing rebel forces blew up a bridge across a canal between Saigon proper and Cho Lon—and then spread out along the banks of the arroyo. The rebel headquarters was reported in flames from artillery fire.

Government officials said the remnants of the Binh Xuyen's 5,000-man private army were running out of ammunition and were ready to quit fighting. But the Binh Xuyen officials were believed planning an appeal to French assistance.

The cabinet at its emergency meeting today also expressed concern at Bao Dai's order transferring France's military power in Indochina from Nguyen Van Vy, the army inspector - general, to a government spokesman said earlier that the army would revolt before it would submit to Vy's command.

Vy arrived in Saigon today and immediately went into conference with Gen. Paul Ely, French commissioner-general for Viet Nam.

LOOKS TO AMERICANS

Apparently looking for American help in the political battle with Diem, Vy called on the U.S. charge d'affaires, Randolph Kidder, for unpublished talks. Although the premier has lost the support of many French leaders, the U.S. has backed Diem throughout his struggle with the Binh Xuyen.

American support for Diem has been based on the belief that he was the best man available to wield a strong South Viet Nam able to withstand the challenge of the Communist-led north.

With the tide of battle running in the army's favor, the political situation appeared to be quickening, however.

A French spokesman reported that Ely has recognized Vy as the Viet Nam army's new chief of staff. Vy is reported taking steps to install himself in the post.

Seven Ballots Required to Elect Giovanni Gronchi Italian President

ROME (Reuters) Giovanni Gronchi, 67-year-old president of the Chamber of Deputies, tonight was elected president of Italy to succeed Luigi Einaudi, whose seven-year term is expiring.

Gronchi was elected on the fourth ballot after Premier Mario Scelba's Christian Democrats had surrendered to a powerful left-wing faction within the party and accepted Gronchi, the faction's candidate.

This decision made the Chamber of Deputies head a certainty for election. He had received strong support from Communists and leftwing Socialists.

His victory represented a smashing defeat for the Christian Democrats' leaders who feared Gronchi's election might upset the centre coalition and Italy's firm ties with the Western camp.

But the party leaders were forced to give in after three fruitless ballots when Gronchi's name was put on Friday, April 29th at 8:00 p.m. Admission 50c. Prizes. Play Bingo.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Collins, special United States ambassador, hurried back today to his post in southern Indochina where a civil war between government and rebel forces is raging.

He wound up a week of urgent review of the Indochina outlook with a farewell conference with State Secretary Dulles late Thursday.

As he left by plane, Collins was understood to be under instructions to continue supporting the government of Premier Ngo Diem, which is locked in a bloody battle with a group of rebels known as the Binh Xuyen.

The state department is reported to have told Bao Dai, the Viet Nam chief of state, that he should not try to bring a new government but should let the Vietnamese decide themselves whether one is necessary. Bao Dai, living on the French Riviera, ordered Diem there for quick conference, a move which would weaken Diem's hand, but Diem refused to go.

There are strong hints that the U.S. may cut off military and economic aid to Indochina if it feels Bao Dai is dictating a settlement.

PARIS (CP) — Premier Edgar Faure declared today it is evident that the United States ambassador, C. Douglas Dillon.

Community Planning Fully Discussed by C of C Directors

Considerable discussion took place at the directors' meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, with reference to the importance of community planning. This subject was primarily brought to the attention of the directors by a letter received from one of the members of the Chamber, pointing out the urgent need for zone planning not only in the city, but in the immediate surrounding area and some of the results now in existence because of the lack of planning. The directors of the Chamber agreed that a committee should be set up and that one of the members be appointed as chairman. Alderman Art Keegan, who was chairman of the City's planning committee last year, was appointed as chairman of this committee, with power to add. The purpose of the committee is to bring in recommendations to the directors on town planning, for their approval, and for their further presentation to City Council.

A letter received from the Trade and Industry Branch of the Department of Planning and Development, pointing out the second meeting of the Lake Ontario Regional Development plan to be held on May 4th, created much interest and four representatives from the Chamber were appointed to attend the meeting. They were P. C. McGuire, president, G. B. Scott, Chairman of the Chamber's Industrial committee, Ken Ross, a director and D. W. Kingdon, secretary-Manager. It was agreed, by the Directors, that a letter be written to the City of Belleville and the Townships of Thurlow and Sidney, pointing out that the Chamber feel that this area development program was an excellent promotion and the Chamber would co-operate with the City and the Townships, participation and solicit their support of the project.

MAY GIVE PRIZES

A "Paint-up Clean-up" week in Belleville was considered as the project to be handled by the Chamber and the suggestion was made that prizes might be given to home owners for the best landscaping and general tidiness of home and property. This project is to be given to the Retail Committee for further action.

The condition of the roads in Belleville came under heavy discussion and particularly the dust arising from the prevailing early spring condition and it was moved that a letter be sent to the City suggesting to them the thought of flushing streets of Belleville in the early morning or late evening. It was pointed out that this dust caused considerable harm to the merchandise of retailers.

Letter was read from the County of Hastings council, polling out a resolution expressing the County's appreciation to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for their efforts and co-operation in the publication of the 1954 and 1955 tourist booklet. The letter said the Tourist and Publicity committee of County Council were well pleased with the 1954 booklet.

Police Blotter

An exceptionally quiet night was experienced by city police Thursday night with nothing but routine matters coming to the attention of the department.

Three Point Anne boys reprimand of the law as they pedalled their unlighted bicycles about the sidewalk on East Dundas street. The boys were on their way home to Point Anne, when they were checked by the patrol officer. They were issued summons for contravention of a city by-law.

Boys tossing firecrackers also came to the attention of officers, while a car was parked on the bush his car on East College street, complained that boys with a BB gun had fired a pellet through one of his back windows.

City police court this morning was a brief sitting with traffic cases settled out of court and four LCA charges being listed. All four drunks, three men and one woman, pleaded guilty and were assessed the usual $10 and costs. The funeral of Matthew J. Auger, who died in Belleville General Hospital, on Tuesday, April 26, following an illness of three months, was held on Friday morning from the Wells Funeral Home, Marmora to the Sacred Heart church. Requiem Mass was celebrated at 9.30 a.m., by the Rev. W. P. Healey.

Deceased was the son of the late James Auger and Hannah O'Connor and was born in this district on April 21, 1906. He was educated in the Separate schools of Delora and Marmora and graduated from Marmora high school. On leaving school he worked in the laboratory of the Delora Smelting and Refining Co. Ald. Bruce Ponton who is a past First Principal of Quinte Friendship Chapter No. 27, has been elected to the Grand executive of the order, while Harper S. McQuaid, K.C., of Belleville has been elected as assistant officer in the Grand Chapter.

John L. Rose was named Grand Z of the order for the coming year.

PRESIDENT HONORED

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Sidney Smith was honored Wednesday night, his 10th anniversary as president of the University of Toronto.

Acreage for Peas and Corn Considerably Greater This Year

The contracted acreage for peas, corn and tomatoes in the Bay of Quinte district will be considerably greater this year than in 1954 according to authorities associated with the canning industry.

Reports indicate that corn acreage will be increased by about 20 per cent over last year with Eastern Ontario expected to plant about 10,000 acres. Prince Edward county will produce the total acreage for Eastern Ontario.

About 14,000 acres of peas, or 19 per cent more than last year, are expected to be planted in Eastern Ontario with the Prince Edward portion again about 15 per cent of the total.

Biggest increase percentage wise is in tomatoes with about 5,500 acres expected to be planted in Eastern Ontario around Victoria Day. This is an over-all increase of over 60 per cent over last year with Prince Edward county expected to plant 40 per cent more than last year.

This year's increase in Prince Edward of 40 per cent for tomatoes must be compared with last year's reduction of 47 per cent from the acreage planted in 1953.

Farmers this year will receive $25 per ton for corn and a minimum price of $26 for peas graded. Farmers will receive $30.50 per ton for unpeeled tomatoes, or if graded at the factory platform, $37 for No. 1 grade and $34 for No. 2 grade.

Stelco Will Have Iron Mine Thanks to Belleville Man

A Belleville mining man's interest in an iron mine in Bristol Township, Pontiac county, for 20 years and four options later, with the announcement this week that the Steel Company of Canada will soon have its first producing iron mine in Canada.

There is a certain degree of irony in the iron announcement for Belleville lawyer, Reginald Robson, who found Stelco interest cool when he first offered the company options on the property nearly four years ago.

E. G. Gray, Stelco president, announced this week that initial production at the old Bristol iron mines 25 miles northwest of Ottawa, is expected before the end of 1956. Capital cost of the mine and concentration plant is understood to be $15,000,000.

Mr. Robson, Stelco says, was cool towards the possibilities of commercial production from the Bristol property.

The mine was discovered about the turn of the century, modest production from 1883 to 1894. It is located about three miles north of Chalk River on the Ottawa River and at one time was connected by a railway spur with the CPR line 1½ miles away.

VACATION PAID OFF

Four years ago Mr. Robson was spending his summer vacation at Norway Bay. He heard of the Bristol mine and its spare time began investigating the abandoned property with a magnetometer.

His investigations revealed substantial quantities of ore not previously discovered. Lawrence and Paterson, Limited, of Ottawa, optioned the property during the summer and early fall of 1951 and after failing to interest Stelco in the property turned over their options to Warren Bruce, Michigan iron mine operator.

Moore, in turn, optioned the property to Pickands Mather and Co., of Cleveland, after spending about $100,000 proving the property with diamond drilling.

Pickands Mather and Co., in partnership with Stelco, will bring the mine into production.

Mr. Robson said today that the ore is of a character similar to the ore at Marmora but that it will be easier to mine because it lies under some 20 feet of sand and gravel contoured with the 120 feet of limestone overburden which covered the Marmora ore body.

Stelco has not yet decided whether the magnetite concentrate will be made into pellets at the mine, as is being done at Marmora, or whether it should be shipped to Stelco at Hamilton and sintered at the plant.

50 Cases Scurvy Treated Last Year Says Report

TORONTO (CP) — Although scurvy is a rarity among Canadian adults, 50 cases of the malady among babies under 18 months were treated at the Hospital for Sick Children here last year, the Ontario interdepartmental nutrition committee said Thursday.

The committee, which has just issued a new pamphlet, "Vitamin C Prevents Scurvy," said the cases occurred despite the fact that scurvy has been known for centuries and its prevention and cure known for more than 150 years.

SEVEN WOMEN GRADUATE

TORONTO (CP) — Seven young women graduated with degrees of scholars of theology from the Anglican Women's Training College this week. Three others were given missionary standing.

They will serve across Canada. Helen Milton of Kingston, a graduate of the faculty of theology at Trinity College, headed her class and received an honor diploma.

Britain Better Prepared for War Than Ever Before

MONTREAL (CP)—Britain now is better prepared to meet an attack from an aggressor than at any other time in her history, Field Marshal Viscount Alexander of Tunis said Thursday night.

In a relaxed, amiable mood the former governor-general of Canada met newspaper men in his hotel suite and chatted informally on subjects ranging from international affairs to skiing conditions here last winter.

He said British defences have improved vastly in recent years and she now possesses potent powers of retaliation as well as a powerful fighter defence and effective radar system.

Lord Alexander, who retired last autumn as British defence minister, arrived in Montreal Wednesday by air to be present for his appointment as a director of Aluminium, Ltd., at the company's annual meeting. He leaves for England late today.

On world affairs, he said he believes recent events point to a general relaxation of international tensions and he looks hopefully to a peaceful settlement of the Formosan situation.

Wants Deduction In Tax of Money Paid Druggist

OTTAWA (CP)—Deduction from taxable income of money paid to druggists for drugs prescribed by a doctor was proposed Thursday in the Commons.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) made the suggestion during the budget debate in moving a recommendation of the Retail Pharmacists Association of Woodstock, Ont.

He read a letter from the association stating that druggists are being "stymied to a great extent" by patients receiving prescriptions free from doctors.

"If these prescriptions are filled by the doctor in his office they are deductible as a medical expense for income tax purposes," the letter said. "If, however, the doctor writes a prescription and it is filled by the pharmacist the patient cannot then claim the cost as a deduction on his income tax."

Mr. Nesbitt said also suggested that premiums paid on life insurance policies should be deductible from taxable income. This would encourage heads of families to purchase life insurance to protect their dependents.

Mother Mink Panic at Noise Of Jet Fighters

MONTREAL (CP) — The RCAF has called off Operation Cobber for the deference to the mink, it was learned today.

A report from 401 City of Westmount fighter squadron, RCAF auxiliary, noted that the mink's breeding season is at hand—no time for jet fighters to be screaming in low-level dry runs over local militia regiments.

The mother mink panic at the noise of low-flying aircraft and the whole family is endangered.

It was decided, therefore, to postpone a joint exercise involving the auxiliary squadron and the 17th Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices continued mixed to slightly lower in early afternoon trading at the Toronto stock market today.

Trading, which dropped to the slowest pace this month in the first hour, picked up a little in later transactions. Volume at 1 p. m. was 4,321,000.

All major sections of the market edged down though golds, base metals and western oils showed small index gains.

Steels, manufacturers and agriculture were the only components of the industrial list to show moderate strength. Utilities were hardest hit while other groups were mixed to lower.

Price changes were small, however, with gains ranging to less than $1.

Western oils showed the greatest strength in major sections. Federated Petroleum climbed 30 to $4.90 and Home Oil, Pacific Petroleums, Canadian Atlantic and Triad had small gains.

Senior base metals were slightly ahead but juniors were mostly lower. Noranda climbed 1¼, Falconbridge ⅝ and International Nickel ⅛. Quemont fell ⅛ and Steep Rock, Golden Manitou and East Sullivan had minor losses.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle prices were steady, calves steady to $1 higher and hogs firm. Sheep and lambs were strong.

The cattle run for the week was some 1,200 head more than last week and the heaviest offering since the week of Oct. 18, 1954. The run was 9,800 head. Included in the fresh run were 657 western cattle, mostly stockers. Shipments to eastern Canadian slaughterers were the heaviest this year at 16 carloads. This compares with 15 carloads last week.

The bulk of the cattle shipped east were cows. There were no exports to the United States.

Despite the fact that the fresh offering was the heaviest in the past six months the action was fast with steers and heifers selling at fully steady rates.

Prices: Choice steers, all weights $30.50-31.50; one load of choice weights steers $21.60; good steers $19.50-20.50; mediums $16.50-19.50; commons $13.50; choice heifers $18-19; a few extreme tops of $19.25; good heifers $17-18; mediums $15-16; commons $12-14; boner steers and heifers $10-12; choice fed yearlings $20-21; some steers to $21.50; good fed yearlings $19-20; mediums $17-19; good butcher cows $14.50-15; good light heifery cows up to $16; canners and cutters down to $6; good heavy bologna bulls $13.50-14.50; good light butchers up to $16; common and medium light bulls down to $10.

Replacement Cattle: Broad country demand this week was responsible for a strong to 50 cent higher trend in feeder calves. Good stockers $19-20.50; good stock calves 20-20.50; one load of good heavy short-keep feeders $19.25; mediums stockers were $17-19; commons $15-17.

Calves totalled 1,375 head, an increase of 175 more than last week. The class sold actively strong with medium calves $1 higher than last week. Good and choice vealers were $21-24; a few extreme tops of $25; mediums $15-21; commons $10-15.

Hogs totalled 3,500 head, about 100 less than last week. Two carloads of hogs were shipped east at $25, dressed. Grade A hogs sold locally at $24.50-25 and closed at $24.75 with some sales at $25; sows $18; stags $14.

Sheep and lambs were 200 head. This is some 300 less than last week because there were no western Canadian lambs offered. Good Ontario feeder lambs closed at $22.50; good spring lambs $28; common $20; good light sheep were $6.50; common and heavy down to $4.

Frost Accused Of Using Parley For Own Purpose

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario was accused Thursday night of using Canada's federal provincial conference in Ottawa for political purposes.

The accusation came from Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, who told a Toronto Beaches CCF nominating convention:

"All doubts regarding an early election in Ontario should now be dispelled. Premier Frost opened the Conservative campaign in Ottawa into a political rostrum. So much so, in fact, that even Premier Duplessis (of Quebec), a national political ally of the Conservatives, twitted Premier Frost for his lone political speeches.

"The tactics of the Ontario delegation were a calculated deception. They were not designed to solve the problems but rather to give the impression of doing something while in reality postponing their solution."

Excerpts from Mr. MacDonald's speech were released to the press in advance of delivery.

Meld Winner Of 1,000 Guineas

NEWMARKET, England (Reuter)—Meld, a three-year-old bay filly who made a great comeback after suffering an injury last summer, today won the One Thousand Guineas, British turf classic.

Meld, owned by Lady Anastasia Michaelowa (Zia) Werner, daughter of a Russian grand duke, romped home two lengths ahead of Aberlady in the mile classic first run in 1814.

In today's race for three-year-old fillies she was 13-to-4 favorite. Lord Rosebery's Aberlady, at 100 to 7, was 1½ lengths ahead of Feria, a 6-to-1 shot, in the field of 12. Reista was fourth.

The winner was ridden by W. H. Carr.

SENTENCED FOR ROBBERY

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Three St. Davids youths Thursday were sentenced for their roles in a 12-month crime spree in this area. All were sentenced for a $40 armed robbery at St. Catharines and received concurrent terms for other offences.

William Hugh McKinney, 20, received two years and six months in penitentiary; Charles Ralph Sander, 21, two years less a day in penitentiary, and Mario Iasenpon, 19; six months definite and nine months indeterminate.

POLICE SERGEANT DIES

TORONTO (CP)—Earl Scott, 73, a former Toronto police sergeant here, once captured a murderer while armed only with a flashlight, died Wednesday.

Mr. Scott, who retired from the force in 1942, won the King's Medal for gallantry—the commonwealth award for gallantry, when he captured Thomas (Shorty) Bryans on Feb. 1, 1933.

Three Aboard 'Copter Missing Near Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP)—A helicopter with three persons aboard is missing in bush country about 100 miles southwest of Edmonton, it was learned early today.

The three-plane Bell machine was last seen late Tuesday when it took off for Edmonton from an oil well drilling site 35 miles south of the oil-rich town of Drayton valley.

An official of Associated Airways Ltd. of Edmonton said heavy snow and rain were reported shortly after its helicopter left for the 1½-hour trip to Edmonton. The snow has not let up since Tuesday, preventing a full-scale search. The helicopter was not equipped with radio.

Those aboard the 'copter were identified as pilot Roland Maier of Casper, Wyo., James H. Goalder of Edmonton and his nine-year-old son, Terry.

Search planes from the RCAF and Associated Airways waited in Edmonton for the weather to improve. An air force para-rescue team also stood by.

THE NEW CHAMPIONS!

You have to hand it to those Yanks.

They do not let these Reds get ahead of them. In any field.

Take the sad fate of Mr. Chou. Last week he came up with a dilly. Saturday at Bandung he said that he was ready to negotiate with the United States to relax tensions in the Far East "and especially in the Taiwan (Formosa) area." Next day Mr. Chou said that Red China needs "a peaceful environment to liberate" Formosa. Which would yield its "sovereign right to liberate" Formosa.

Typewriters in newspaper offices throughout the world ground to a halting stop as editors sadly realized that they had run into a new contender in the double-talk league, and a formidable one at that. The originators of terms like "people's democracies" had reason to be proud of their pupil.

But down in Washington they have been playing in a tough league for many years now and, after battling the boys at the Kremlin to a standstill, the White House team was not going to let an upstart from Peiping walk away with all the marbles.

They put in the first team to carry the ball and on successive days John Foster Dulles and Dwight D. Eisenhower rolled for a couple of touchdowns in a style which never failed to bring cheers. Tuesday Dulles said that the U.S. is willing to negotiate with Communist China regarding a ceasefire in the Formosa strait" but "would not deal alone with Red China on any matters concerning the Chiang Kai-Shek Nationalist regime." Wednesday Eisenhower repeated the phrase, declaring that the U.S. was "ready to confer alone with Red China regarding a Formosa area ceasefire—but not on matters affecting Nationalist China." The quotations are from an Associated Press report from Washington.

Now the ante in the double-talk derby is as much ahead of Chou's effort as the modern sideshow's airplane ride is ahead of the old-fashioned merry-go-round.

It is one thing to refuse to "deal alone" with a man over right the next day with an offer to negotiate and swing right the next day with a refusal to change your stand on the question about which you are ready to negotiate.

It is quite another and much more difficult feat to ride off valiantly in opposite directions in the self-same sentence, without doing more than draw your breath to permit the insertion of a comma.

If we try to make sense out of Mr. Chou we may find ourselves, like Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan of Britain, calling for more information about what he means.

Should it be easy to make sense out of Eisenhower and Dulles we need no additional information, at all. The much only way that you can reconcile talking to Red China about a ceasefire in the Straits of Formosa and not talking to Red China about anything that affects Nationalist China is to maintain that a ceasefire in the Straits of Formosa does not affect Red China.

If Mr. Chou, being unfortunate enough to possess a logical mind, has now reached this conclusion, he must be in a state of bewilderment that might delight all those U.S. experts who have maintained all along that the way to fight the Communists is to keep them guessing as to your intentions. Maintaining that a ceasefire in the Formosa Straits will not affect Red China is vastly superior as a method of confusing Red China to Washington's previous best effort, its declaration that the invasion of Quemoy and Matsu by the Communists would result in—but let's not get into that tangle.

As for Chiang, he may also be slightly puzzled to discover that a ceasefire in the Formosa area would not affect his status there. He is even planning a mild query as to just what Washington does think would affect Nationalist China. Washington, we can be sure, will give him a prompt answer. Three or four of them in fact—all different.

LUNACY LEADERS

Among other things the Russians can now lay claim to the title of "cosmic comics."

Radio Moscow presented the Russian claim to lunacy leadership April 25th, with an announcement that the Soviet Union was considering a plan to explore the moon with a tank remotely controlled by radio. It predicted lunar tanks by human beings a year ago.

The broadcast said the tank, carried to the moon by rocket ship, would be fitted with television equipment to transmit pictures of the moon back to earth. Radio Moscow said a space ship would be towed several hundred miles into the sky by rocket tugboats and then would proceed on its own power under radio control. Rocket refueling stations would be set up along the route to refuel the space ship.

Responsible rocket authorities in the United States say that talk of sending a tank to the moon is "so far out of this world from a practical standpoint as to be nothing but science fiction at this time."

Well, at least the Russians are now champions in the science fiction league.

In Biddeford, Maryland, 96 friends of retiring jeweller Henry Dupre spoke their piece in two minutes with each man saying one word of a laudatory speech. Such a thing among politicians would raise a lot of "I" brows.

GOOD DINNER

For taking a dinner, much pass up he oughtn't
The warfest fish in the stream will be caught.
But the promise of food that is tasty and free
Is a lure that no longer is ... tempting to me.

I smile when "you'll have a good dinner," they say,
As if I don't have one at least once a day.

"We're holding a banquet. If you can come
On a dinner to please, you can safely depend."

I've lived many years that were pleasant but fleet.
I've had all the good dinners I'm able to eat.
I've been stuffed fed up and I don't want to roam.
I'd rather eat something more simple at home.

THE PACKSAK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the cures of the trout fishing season, I went into my favorite sporting goods store to buy a few leaders and flies. And guess what I found? A new section, consisting of the best shockwear, full of geiger counters.

Yes, sir. Geiger counters of all sizes and prices, from modest little numbers that look somewhat the same as a new fly rod, up to highly professional instruments costing as much as a new outboard motor.

The sportsman, it seems, is about to be enrolled in the ranks of the already formidable army of prospectors for fissionable metals. What a stroke of luck! Who is more likely to roam the familiar as well as the unfamiliar areas of the country than the angler and the hunter? Who is more likely to be a purchaser of a geiger counter than that same sportsman who is an insatiable collector of gadgets? My sportsman's wife is likely to protect the spending of a hundred or $400 on a gadget that might mean, as her husband radiantly informs her, millions, when a hundred in h e r heart that if he doesn't spend it on a geiger counter, he will spend it on a new rod at $69, ten dozen new flies at $3 a dozen, a new fly line at $14, a new reel at $45, remarkable new insulated fishing boots at $32, and a combination tackle box, pump stool and ice box costing $18.

Personally, I am delighted with this gadget craze. The more time competitors on lake and stream spend prowling back in the hills, the better my chances of getting some fish. If they strike it rich and do make a million, well. They will then buy airplanes and go fishing in remote places inaccessible to us unambitious types.

The geiger counter in the sporting goods department will more than assist the government to survey the hills, it will weed out the false from the true among us. A man who can be seduced from fishing is not fishing. He's wild. them all mosquitoes, black flies, horse flies, gnats and a million bucks.

Too Much Dog

(Sydney Post-Record)

One of life's ironies: An author of animal stories who became known by her odd pen name, "Dear Dog Lady," says she has become so allergic to dogs that she can't even endure hearing a dog bark now. Consequently she has given away all her Dalmatians, has washed her hands of dogs altogether, and doesn't want to hear any more about them.

Modern Gullivers

(Written by Alain Gille for UNESCO)

The natives of Lilliput in Swift's food. Gulliver's Travels stood knee high to a grasshopper, measuring no more than six inches in height, while the giant philosophicians of Brobdingnag measured over 60 feet tall. Since then modern Gullivers have been exploring and measuring Lilliputian worlds that a million million times smaller and giant worlds many billions of times larger.

These figures stagger the imagination. What, we may ask, is the human equivalent measure that is so incredibly tiny, or so immense? At the smallest end of the scale of measurement, exploring within the atom, man has measured the diameter of microscopic particles such as the proton. In the world of the infinitely great he has measured the distance to the remotest galaxy of stars known today.

It was when our ancestors learned to measure things around them that they were better able to cope with life. And they learned to measure things as we do today by comparing them with other lengths which they took as standards or units. The first units were derived from things with which man was most familiar: the finger (from the thumb tip to the first joint), the cubit (derived from the forearm), the foot. It was the distance from a man's elbow to the tip of his middle finger, and the span. The Egyptians used the outstretched arms as a unit, and the Greeks (as the Romans) the stadium (about 607 feet).

With his senses alone, man could explore only a tiny fraction of the universe. But, using his intelligence, he developed aids and tools and instruments which have taken him far beyond the world detected by his senses and control. With their help he has carried his measurements to the limits both of the infinitely small and of the infinitely large. During his search for the infinite he has discovered unsuspected marvels that have enriched and fired the world. In this process he has developed new means with which to transform his existence.

Until the seventeenth century, when the magnifying glass and microscope were invented, man had practically no instrument for studying the infinitely small. The lower limit of his universe was the power of his eyesight, and it was difficult to distinguish two dots about one-tenth of a millimetre (a millimetre is an inch) apart and placed about ten inches from the eye.

With this human limitation it was as if the entire world had been populated by giants. Seeing a mesh of one-tenth of a millimetre. Then, suddenly, the new instruments enabled man to peer into a mysterious realm. Microscopes revealed a new world and led him to the discovery of cells and microbes, and thus to the birth of the sciences related to the new and tinier scale. With improvements in these instruments scientists using the optical microscope eventually were able to measure objects a thousandth mm apart — the meshes of the sieve had come a thousand times smaller.

About two decades ago came another great advance — the invention of the electronic microscope. With this powerful instrument it has become possible to distinguish two points a millionth of a millimetre apart. Thus the meshes of the sieve have risen in further hundred times, and science made a fine leap forward in the — the simplest form of life we know — and large organic molecules.

Then the discovery that X-rays diffract or break up on crystals brought atoms into the microscope. The instruments of atoms were found to be arranged in regular geometrical patterns inside molecules. Atoms were only billionths of a millimetre apart. On this level of the microscopic world no form of life exists.

The achievement of measuring distances between atoms in molecules and crystals encouraged scientists to accept the next challenge: the measurement of distance between the particles which make up the atoms themselves. Physics and technology, showing themselves equal to this task, created powerful new instruments. One of these was the Wilson Cloud chamber (a device which enables one to see and photograph the path of electrically charged particles). Another was the Geiger - Muller counter which detects and counts elementary particles emitted by radioactive substances.

Now the meshes of the sieve had been reduced ten times more closely-knit than before, catching elementary particles — electrons, protons and neutrons — and giving man powerful aid in his efforts to learn all the basic secrets of matter.

• • •

Primitive man had a limited sense of great distances. His life was taken up with the search for

Planting Time Debate Rages

(Washington Post and Times Herald)

The nonsuburbanite, especially if he is an apartment dweller, is not already in the ground, or any blooming daffodils or magnolias. He is left with the cryptic discourse about mulches; perennials, lawn seeding, plant food and the like. Still, he has to remain completely out of the argument because he has no place to plant early or late.

The fact is that those addicted to early planting feel very proud of themselves as up and doing citizens who keep ahead in every race. They are confident that the first ripe tomatoes, the first edible new potatoes in their neighborhoods.

Those late planters regard themselves as calm, sagacious fellows who will see the race in the long run. They will wait until the ground is well warmed, the danger of killing frost is over, and then their beans, tomatoes, morning glories, having got a good start, will shoot past the frailer ones of the early planters.

All an amateur caught in the middle of this debate can do, unless he wants to run the risk of choosing one side and offending the other, is suggest that everyone plant as did his grandmother by "moon" planting lima."

Pyorrhea Is Like Rheumatiz

I ought to stipulate at the outset that I am no authority on pyorrhea or anything else and whatever I may say about it is merely my belief or opinion.

Pyorrhea is a medical term —it means flow or discharge of pus. The full term is pyorrhea alveolaris, flow or discharge of pus from tooth socket.

Old timers in the dental profession regarded pyorrhea as a specific disease and accordingly named it "Riggs disease" after John M. Riggs, an American dentist of the nineteenth century).

Pyorrhea alveolaris, according to Louis. I. Grossman, D.D.S., D.M.D., "denotes a group of complex pathological manifestations which arise primarily from a functional atrophy of the alveolar process"—the part of the maxilla, the upper jaw bone, supporting the tooth sockets. This is one of many definitions of pyorrhea, though there are many others—each authority seems to have his own concept.

Just what functional atrophy means, I don't know. Webster says Webster, means wasting away for want of nourishment, nutrition, that is.

Atrophy is indeed an effect of malnutrition, undernourishment, starvation, deprivation. And when I went to school (medical school) impairment of circulation was the feature of atrophy with which physicians were concerned.

Some of my medical colleagues, but perhaps I had better say my medical critics can dismiss my teachings with an air that leaves no doubt in the gullible customer's mind as to who knows about these health questions. But at that, the physicians can't hold a candle to the dentists. I can't blame the dentists so much. After all, who caught 'em teaching that a clean tooth never decays? Sometimes, dentists express their symbolic repugnance to my teaching that it is a waste of time and money brushing the teeth — and they imply that my mouth must be—well, you know. Nevertheless I'm always ready to submit to examinations of my mouth and teeth by anybody for comparison with the condition of the mouths and teeth of any group of men of my age. I never brush my teeth but I believe in spending my spare change for treatment by my dentist rather than squandering it on glorified soap that purports to contain some mysterious substance that kills the germs in a few seconds. In pieced about pyorrhea to follow I'll tell what I believe causes pyorrhea and proceed to give the advice I can about prevention and treatment. If your medical or dental practice believes I'm wrong about any point I'll show them the reasons for my beliefs. Certainly I'd expect if I protested against or contradicted anything out of line that I say. If any physician or dentist wishes to express a view contrary to mine I'll be glad to print his or her statement and withhold or reveal his identity as he prefers.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE SANDS OF TIME

I stood today and viewed t h e shore of the Atlantic. The white sea rhythmically pounded, one after another, bathed the billions and billions of particles of sand. I do not wonder the poets have immortalized them as "the sands of Time." In mortar they sleep securely in great walls and foundations, and help to build cities and highways. How appropriate that Longfellow s h o u l d have called the mere tiny particles "the sands of time."

There was a time when these sands were used in glass jars. They were called hour glasses. Sand would fall through a small opening in the upper part of the chamber, and then would be reversed. It took an hour for the sand to run from the upper to the glass to the other. "Our modern Atlantic ocean. There is a peacefulness that comes over one as the wash of the waves gives a subdivided sand, with the salt air entering the lungs, reviving t h e spirit. The very sight of the sandy shore, continually washed by the waves of the sea, is relaxing to it- self. I can understand the popularity of Nature's great health remedies. edy—Sun, Surf and Sand!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DISPLACED PERSON

We read in the Bible that Jesus left heavenly glory to assume human form and live the humble life of man.

When Jesus appeared on the earth, He came as a displaced person. He was God's only begotten Son, the creator and ruler over all other personalities in the universe. His was a royal glory. He was to be the Heavenly King ruling as a crown prince is to an earthly kingdom. The Bible says that Jesus "emptied" Himself of all this voluntarily and entered the stream of human life in what has been called the womb of the virgin Mary.

Then He was born into the home of poor parents, lived as a common workman, went forth to preach and when His message cut athwart the debires of the priesthood and the leaders of certain intrenched powers, He was persecuted, unjustly tried, and at last brought to death.

All this reveals to us not only God's love for fallen man but also in thus offering his Son for man's salvation; it also gives us a more reverent sense of the value of human life. Sometimes we look upon sinning humanity and wonder why God keeps bothering with His human problem children. There must be some unrevealed reason than His infinite patience. These problem children must have a value to his child to grant He was willing to surrender, and sacrifice His only begotten Son, and Himself to suffer, that humanity might be redeemed.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Mental Health Week Will Start Sunday, May 1

Described as "the greatest crusade for mental health in the history of medical science," the Canadian Mental Health Association has announced the dates of Mental Health Week, to be observed in Canada from May 1st to 7th. At a meeting of the National Committee of Public Education, J. S. D. Tory, chairman of the National Board of Directors of CMHA, delivered the keynote address, announcing the slogan for this year's campaign: "Build Mental Illness —Build Mental Health." Mr. Tory is national chairman of the Mental Health Week campaign.

In the 50 years since modern psychiatry undertook the study and treatment of emotional and mental disorders, tremendous strides have been made, Mr. Tory declared. There remains a great task of public education, he added, to check the work of improved treatment, research, and training of personnel is now under way.

"The great problem," said Mr. Tory, "is to convince people that mental illness is just like any other sickness—measles or chicken pox, tuberculosis or cancer. Until that is done we will not be able to reach and help many of the mental cripples who need treatment, because they are hidden away by people who are ashamed of mental illness!"

JOB JUST BEGUN

"That is why we are undertaking the greatest crusade for mental health in the history of medical science. Within the memory of many people in this room, mental hospitals were prisons where patients were virtually condemned to a life of miserable subhuman conditions, where brutality and practices approaching witch-craft were commonplace. Our chief task is to wipe out the attitudes that made these conditions possible. In the short space of 60 years, mental health work in Canada has built a record which has attracted attention around the world. Most of our institutions are models of good hospital treatment and conditions. But overcrowding is still rife. Our job has really just begun."

Mr. Tory paid tribute to the work of Dr. Clarence M. Hincks, one of the earliest pioneers in the mental health movement, and the first Canadian to achieve world stature in the field.

The statement made by Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of National Health and Welfare, to the effect that "mental illness in Canada today accounts for more lost time than cancer, tuberculosis and polio combined," was quoted by Mr. Tory.

"If people recognized the significance of the fact that more than half of our hospital beds are occupied by mental patients, they would not be so slow to face this major national problem," he declared. "The cost to this country in human suffering and in money is staggering, and it will continue to weaken us as a nation until the general public stiffens emerges from the dark ages and faces the facts."

"During Mental Health Week the CMHA will intensify the work it carries out during the year," Mr. Tory concluded. To continue to develop better treatment for mental patients, to broaden the field of research, improve institutions, and train psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers and non-professional assistants, the organization is operating through the national office and eight provincial divisions (Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island are still being organized) to collect funds and distribute information.

Ernie Colbourne Heads Major A Bowling League

The Major "A" Bowling League in a blaze of banquet glory marked the end of a five-year regime under President Jack Beerbett at the Golden Acre Restaurant last night.

Ernie Colebourne was elected to the presidency after prexy Jack Beerett and Les Lennon withdrew their names after nomination. Jim MacKenzie was the unanimous choice for vice-president, while the perennial Cec Hardwick and Tom Caton were re-elected to the posts of secretary and treasurer.

It was one of the best annuals staged by the league in years with President Colebourne throwing the meeting wide-open for discussion and suggestions after the presentation of trophies and prizes.

A number of phases of league activities were discussed featured by the suggestion that a dance or get-together of all bowlers in the city become an annual affair. The league executive will investigate the possibilities.

President Bennett presided at the pre-election business and presentations.

Bert Sloltion, representative of the Labatt Brewery Company, presented the Association championship trophy to Walter Moore, "boss-man" of Keen's Chiselers, who won the bauble for the second time in two years. Colorful plaques commemorating the championship were presented to the members of the champion Chiselers, which included Mr. Moore, Cec Hardwick, Bill Bateman, Al Hitchen, Ray Lundrigan and Frank Mulvihill.

Playoff prizes were presented by league officials to the winners, the CNR team, followed by the other teams in order. These were: G. H. Woods, Schwabs, Chiselers, Upper Canada News, Lawn Bowlers, Canada Cement and Belleville Golf.

Special prizes were presented to the quarterly schedule winners: G. H. Woods, Chiselers, Schwabs and CNR teams.

Individual presentations were made with Ron Saylor and Art Atkin receiving duplicate prizes, with each finishing the season with an average of 235.1. Al Hitchon topped the triple winners with a mark of 889. Cec Hardwick was runner-up with 855. George Madden won the high single prize with a mark of 443 while Fowler Walsh and Doug Ashley tied for second with identical scores of 409.

In his pre-banquet remarks past President Bennett paid tribute to the league for another successful season. He also made special mention of the work of secretary Cec Hardwick and treasurer Caton and the co-operation of radio and press.

President Colebourne hoped that next year would be a "bang-up" one. He asked the co-operation of all team captains. He felt some new ideas should be introduced to the league, reputed to be the best in the city. There should be some incentive to build a bigger and better organization, he said.

EXPECT PRICE CUT

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—A report made public by the Brazilian coffee institute says Brazil will have about 22,000,000 bags of coffee to place on the market during the 1955-56 season, and the large supply should tend to cause a decline in prices.

On His Way to Salk Mines Monkey Rhee Interviewed

The following is an interview with a Rhesus monkey which had been captured for shipment to the United States where its kidneys would be used in the production of Salk polio vaccine.

"Don't kid me about my kidneys," said Rhesus. "And none of your smart remarks about being sent to the Salk mines.

"How would you feel if some one trapped you in a net so he could grow virus on your kidneys? I thought so. Well, so do I. You can talk all you want to about scientific progress but they aren't your kidneys.

"Certainly monkeys have names," said Rhesus. "How else could you tell them apart?"

"You can call me Rhee if you like. Most of the boys in the bazaar are a lot less complimentary.

HAD SOCIAL SECURITY

"Being a monkey has its advantages alright. At home we had all kinds of social security until this Salk stuff started messing around. Nobody bothered us. We just ate all we could eat and the shopkeepers bowed us out without so much as a bat with a broom.

"How could we ever dumb though. They used to work every day and lots of them went hungry right in the market where with all kinds of food lying about. They just wouldn't take it. I tell you there was many a night I was glad I was a monkey.

"It is rather humiliating, however, to discover that a gentleman of leisure like myself is only worth $4 on the open market. That's what that el—m trapper got for me from a wholesaler. Of course, by the time they fixed me up in a cage and paid my plane fare half way round the world I was worth a lot more than that, but even so it hurts a fellow's pride.

"How did they catch me? Well, I was born in North Lucknow, and if I do say myself it is the best jungle north of Ceylon.

"I grew up there with several thousand other monkeys and ate-ed it a lot. One day about a month ago, a bunch of the boys were playing pin-the-tail-on-the-human when we started getting a strong from a shady glade. We ambled over but didn't see anything but a couple of farmers planting next month's dinner.

SNEAKY TRICK

"One of the boys found a huge pile of bananas, so about two dozen of us jumped in to share the fun. First thing any of us knew those two sneaky farmers had caught us in a net.

"Two other men appeared out of nowhere and started poking us in the ribs with bamboo poles. And some people wonder why we throw cocoanuts at them! Oh, well.

"These two farmers, who turned out to be trappers in disguise, sold us to a beady-eyed fellow at $4 each, and he, in turn, passed us along to a wholesaler who gave him about $13 each.

"The wholesaler shipped us on a train to Calcutta where a burly body examined us for scars and TB. I didn't mind the train ride so much but the airplane was the end. We absolute red.

"It's not so bad being stared at in your own country...but it is pretty grim away from home.

Dredging Commences

CORNWALL (CP)—Dredging of the river in the Cornwall area as part of the St. Lawrence seaway program will get under way early next week, N. F. Moore, seaway authority administration officer, said Thursday.

The dredging work, originally scheduled to begin Thursday, was postponed because of a delay in securing the sections to be dredged. Dredging of the river in four sections between Cornwall and Lachine, Que., will continue until late in 1957.

The contractor, Canadian Dredge and Dock Co, Ltd., Montreal, has opened a project office here.

And all the inane conversation you hear.

DARWIN MIXED UP

"In London, for example, all we heard at the airport was a lot of talk about some guy named Darwin and how much monkeys looked like humans. After all, who came first, you or us? It is much smarter to comment on how much humans look like monkeys.

"Anyway that's how I happen to be here talking to you.

"Sure, I'm unhappy. I don't like the thought of what's coming any more than you would, but I guess that's life. From what I've seen so far being a monkey isn't much different.

"By the way, bub, have you ever been to North Lucknow? You haven't? Brother, until you've been to North Lucknow when the crops are ripe, you haven't lived."

BODGERS—SEMARK

White chrysanthemums, interspersed with ferns, formed an attractive setting for the chancel of HMCS "Shearwater", on Saturday, April 23, at 2.30 p.m., when Hilary LaVie united in marriage, Helen Marina Semark, of MacKenzie House, HMCS, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Semark, of Belleville, to Lt. Robert Rodgers, of Dartmouth, N.S., son of Mrs. K. Hollingsworth and Robert Rodgers, in a double-ring ceremony.

The wedding music included the "Wedding March", "O Perfect Love," and "All Joy Be Thine."

Gillis, matron of the house, HMCS, wore a lovely gown of Chantilly lace, satin and net, fashioned fitted satin and lace bodice with matching sequin-trimmed lace bolero and long sheath-like sleeves pointed over the wrists, and fitted collar with sequin trim. The full-length double tier net skirt over satin was accented with lace medallions. Her nylon net fingertip veil was crowned with sequins and pearls, and she carried shower bouquet of Bestbrine roses with orchid centre.

Mr. Steven Bandy, of New Glasgow, Quebec, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the Master-At-Arms, D. H. For the wedding trip to Prince Edward Island, the bride chose a grey gabardine suit, with black and white accessories and corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers will reside at 53 Gordon and front Apartments, Dartmouth, N.S.

STEPHENS—JACKSON

Christ Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, April 23, at 3.00 p.m., for a beautiful allwhite wedding, when Archdeacon J. B. Cresggan, rector of the church, officiated at the ceremony, Shirley Joan Jackson, of Belleville, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Jackson, to John Edward Stephens, also of Belleville, son of Mrs. J. E. Stephens. White and pink snapdragons and white tulips formed a pretty background for the altar, where also sang during the processional, "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven," and while the register was being signed, "Brother Jones of Air." The guest pews were decorated with white satin bows centred with blue clusters of white and fern.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of imported scalloped French lace, accented by inserts of nylon tulle over white slipper satin in hooped crinoline effect, with chapel train. The strapless fitted bodice of satin and lace featured a deep yoke of nylon tulle bordered scalloped at the shoulder line, a Peter Pan collar and fulllength molded sleeves ending in turned back scalloped cuffs of lace. Her fingertip veil of nylon illusion was held by a satin headdress edged with seed pearls. She carried a white prayer book covered with white Stattin roses, stephanotis and radiations from tips. Bracaded satin slippers with St. Regis heels completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Bernice Batchelor, as matron of honour; Mrs. Patricia Raycroft, Miss Dorothy Dickey and Miss Deanna Halsey, as bridesmaids, all of Belleville, were waist-length gowns of white, scalloped limelight taffeta with empire waistlines, revealing hooped crinoline nylon net underskirts in shades of blue, mauve, nile green and shrimp, respectively. The fitted bodices had scalloped yokes and three-quarter length sleeves. They wore headdresses of nylon net petals dotted with rhinestones and matching gloves, and carried hand cascades of frenched white carnations with matching tulle.

Mr. David Stephens of Halifax, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Messrs. Stanley Jackson, of Belleville, brother of the bride, Charles Raycroft, also of Belleville, and Donald Sinclair, of Trenton, acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parish hall, where the bride's mother, wearing a street-length gown of amethyst, limelight taffeta with black accessories and corsage of Schroder orchids, received. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing navy crepe in street-length, with navy accessories, and corsage of Demure Sweetheart roses.

The bride's table was daintily appointed with white and centred by a four-tier wedding cake, decorated in white and silver with tiny, pastel-tinted rosebuds, topped with a vase of white sweetpeas, and adiantum fern and clouded at the base with white tulle. Long white tapers candleaded from the cake to the silver candelabra with tall, white candles, while the lovely bouquets of the bride's attendants, vases of white sweetpeas and sweet peas lent a further lovely accent. The cutting of the cake was accomplished with a silver cake and "Bride Cuts the Cake".

For travelling to Ottawa and points in the United States, the bride chose a fitted suit of charcoal black grosgrain wool, with mauve pan-a-lac straw hat, edged with black corded ribbon and clusters of white flowers; black and white accessories, and corsage of white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Stephens will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Halifax; Rochester, N.Y., Ottawa, Wilkinsburg, Pittsburg, Stirling and Corbyville, Ontario.

The Keeper was recalled and the water was pure again.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Peter, Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Hurst, who gave accounts of a few of the women whose names have appeared frequently in the news.

FLY RARE BLOOD TO SAVE U.S. BABY

A congratulatory kiss is bestowed by Susanna Robertson on her mother, Mrs. Nadeena Robertson of Redwood City, Calif., on hearing the news that a supply of rare blood had been obtained from Cree Indians in Alberta to save the life of her expected baby. Mrs. Robertson is expected by doctors to give birth to a child whose blood factors are almost certain to result in death a few hours after birth. Only 25 persons in the world are known to have the blood-type that can save the child and 21 of them are on an Indian reservation in Alberta. The Indians willingly donated enough blood to save the child.—Central Press Canadian.

W.A. Ont. Diocesan Annual Meeting Held at Christ Church

The annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of England in Canada, Diocese of Ontario, was held at Christ Church, Bellleville, on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, with the president, Miss Winifred Burns, of Kingston, presiding.

On Wednesday morning the registration of members was followed by the observance of Holy Communion in the Thanksgiving Room, the celebrant, the Right Rev. R. C. Owen, Lord Bishop of Ontario, after which a message by the Rev. Stanley Andrews; the presentation of the Dominion Letter, and the reading of the memorial roll in relation to those members who had passed on, took place. Later, an enjoyable luncheon was held at the parish hall, under the church parish house, at which time the Rev. Canon Bedford-Jones, greetings.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon meeting which began with the singing of "Hark, the Herald Angels," was held in the nave of the church owing to lack of space in the parish hall. Prayers were conducted by Archdeacon J. B. Cresggan, wife of the rector of Christ Church, and greetings on behalf of the C.C.W.A. stating that she was glad that Christ Church was facilities for the meeting, and that both St. Thomas' and St. Mary Magdalene's had provided billets for those from out-of-town, and trusted that many received a real blessing. Greeted as to the work of the Women's Auxiliary, by Mrs. Harold R. C. Tillotson, of St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, replied, stating that the Diocesan Board greetings was accepted on behalf of the Diocesan Executive and Board, and that she too, hoped the meetings would be successful, and helpful to all who were present.

Following the roll call, the annual appointments of the chairmen of the nominating committee, Miss Burns, the president, brought a message to the meeting, emphasizing address, bearing on the motto "She hath done what she could."

PRESENT

The president prefaced her remarks by stating how happy she was to be back in Belleville, and being held in Belleville, as this was the first time it had been held in the Kingston Deanery, and that there were many present from Kingston, who had never present had the meeting been held in the Cathedral in Kingston; and also that there are some who were not present for that reason. She reminded us that in 1937 the meeting would be held in one of the parishes in the eastern part of the Diocese, and that the president would derive much benefit from the meetings, and inspired to their meetings those others who had not heard the call to service.

HOME MISSIONS

"We must remember," said Miss Burns, "that the Auxiliary is a missionary service to do right at home. Many of us cannot go into the mission field, but we can always something we can do. Prayer is our greatest power. Let us pray for either alone or united. We can awaken missionary zeal among others by telling of the work which our missionaries are doing. Many of us do not know or learn about our missionary work and we must tell others about it. We must have the study book to help us; each month we receive the Letter which always is full of interesting information; each week we have the prayer calendar and each day we have our prayers. So, day by day, week by week, month by month we should remember and learn about mission fields and workers.

"We must encourage the formation of branches and we can give the assurance that branches will be rich to be generous. If the generous spirit is there what is given will be blessed and will multiply."

CONDENSED REPORTS PRESENTED

Last October, Miss Burns was present at six Deanery meetings and became acquainted with many members and learned a lot about the work that is being done in the branches, and from these meetings she brought a word of cheer to Deanery presidents about annual deanery reports. It is not so much the account of the meeting itself that is required, but a condensed report from the secretaries telling how many branches there are and the total number of members, also some of the highlights of the branch activities, information that will be helpful to other branches.

ambassador to two of the world's most important posts, Washington and Moscow.

DR. GWENOLYN CARTER

Dr. Gwenolyn Carter was also mentioned. She, in spite of being handicapped by polio, studied at Toronto University, Oxford, and has her Ph.D. She has travelled widely in Africa, is an authority on political economy and is now a professor at Smith College. She spoke to the Canadian Club in Toronto, recently.

After the meeting closed light refreshments were served in the parish hall. Mrs. Archibald, Mrs. Buchanan and Mrs. Fewtrell.

The W.A. had been most fortunate in having for the two deanery meetings, Miss Glowett, from India, and of the work of St. Anne's school, Miss Glowett is now home on furlough from School for Girls in Amritsar, India.

Many new life members were added to the fellowship this year.

DOMINION ANNUAL MEETING

The Dominion annual meeting was held at Christ Church Cathedral, Vancouver, at which a full delegation was present. "It was most inspiring to see women from all over the Dominion worshipping at the service of Holy Communion and to hear reports of the work accomplished both at home and abroad; two large meetings were held in August, the Pan Anglican Congress at Minneapolis, and the assembly of the World Council of Churches, at Evanston, Illinois.

"At the Dominion annual meeting the recording secretary was present, and in 1953 there were 141,344 members, and 8,000 branches, but at the 1954 Dominion executive meetings it was stated there was an increase in membership, and that the membership now stands at 144,833. There were 54,700 seniors, 7,000 Triangle, 2,000 Junior, and 70,171 Little Helpers.

"The budget amounted to $194,000. In Montreal the budget would have to be increased for 1956.

DEPARTMENTAL REPORTS

In mentioning the various departments and the officers of the Diocese, Miss Burns pointed out Mrs. Stanley Andrews was appointed by the executive as Social Service secretary, and Mrs. Andrews has had a great deal of experience in Social Service work; also Mrs. Hall, who was appointed by the W.A. Mrs. Platt, of the Girls' Auxiliary, is the literature treasurer, is resigning due to various reasons, illness in the home, and that of Mrs. Platt, who has also advanced tremendously during the past five years that Mrs. Platt has been in office.

Another loss to the executive is that of Mrs. Lennox, who has been in charge of the "Extra-Cent-a-Day" program. Miss McIntosh, corresponding secretary, accepted the office of corresponding secretary instead; and Mrs. Andrews, corresponding secretary, goes to ill health, has to resign. The work during the past year she attended four Deanery meetings, telling of the Youth-Triangle Conference, held in the Dominion. The treasurer, Miss Saunders, has agreed to carry on for another year, if elected. Great appreciation is expressed to Miss Saunders by her fine work.

WORK GROWING

"The work of the Auxiliary is growing greater and greater each year. Miss Glowett, missionary in China. In Japan the Japanese are assuming more responsibilities, but missionaries are needed to be sent, as well as money. The Australian W.A. has sent a missionary to the Kindergarten Training College. In India more grants are required, as the workers are required.

"Africa a larger field is opening rapidly. Miss Frances Howard has asked for a further tour of duty, having been there over five years, which has been granted. A young man of much ability is going to Africa, the account of which will appear in the May issue of the Letter. Miss Burns then telling you very much of our work in the mission fields because we need you to pray for it yourselves, especially about the work in Japan," she said in closing her concluding her address. "I also wish to extend to the officers who have served with me my sincere appreciation, and to extend to the branches my earnest thanks for their loyal support."

The president was thanked by Miss McCormack for her fine address.

Following the president's address, reports were given and heard: Mrs. J. N. McCallum, recording secretary, reported that 1953 was paid up membership was 8,969, the diocese is composed of seniors, branches 97, membership 1638; Junior Auxiliary, branches 28, membership, 572; Auxiliette, branches 2, membership 29, membership 366; Little Helpers, branches 36, membership 1,000.

Mrs. Platt also mentioned that there had been special speakers, Mrs. Andrews, Kingston, and also expressed appreciation to Bishop Owen, Mrs. Bedford-Jones, Canon Davis, the Reverend A. C. McCallum and the Rev. Douglas Hurst, for their splendid cooperation.

Miss Burns then called Miss Glowett to her report with these words: "Let us pray for Miss Glowett as she tells of the love of service to Almighty God who maketh all things possible."

Other reports included that of the corresponding secretary, Miss Isabel I. Anderson; treasurer's report by Miss E. Summers, the report of the educational secretary-treasurer, Florence Exford; the Social Services secretary, Gretta Andrews. Other reports not mentioned here may be found in the handbook, "Annual Reports of the Officers and Officials of the Diocesan Diocesan W.A. for 1954."

ADDRESSES

Two addresses of interest were given by Miss Nora Lee, of Toronto, on "Our Canadian Social Service," and by Mrs. F. Hayashi, W.A. representative, Provincial Board of Missions to Orientals, Japanese east of the Rockies.

"All dark places of the world are not in African jungles; the powers of evil, blindness and spiritual ignorance, man's inhumanity to man is as powerful in Canada as elsewhere," said Miss Lee. Our first responsibility is to help and better the social conditions of the less fortunate, and better the environment. We must have a Christian awareness and be active in the work of the church. The parish can be a power house by reaching out to the community with the gospel acceptance and healing of spirit and body, and showing the warmth of God's love. In the above social work to the rectors' CHANNELS OF SERVICE

Channels of service include the hostels for newcomers; following up in penal reform institutions; by counselling; by child welfare service, and by personal help to those in trouble or in need by welcoming the new Canadians; by helping to build the Kingdom of God in terms of our own community, and the needs of the world. We must use our God-given talents in the work of the church and the Christian life is responsible for this work, they are our neighbors, here in Kamloops and Slocan City, the work is with the Japanese, and in Vancouver and Victoria, B.C., it is with the Chinese. The Japanese committee is responsible for all Japanese east of the Rockies, and in Coaldale, Alberta.

CLERGY IN CHARGE

In Hamilton, Ontario; St. Catherines; Hamilton, Ontario; London, Montreal and Toronto, different clergy are in charge, all with the one objective in mind, to bring the Oriental to Jesus Christ as Saviour.

Some of the work accomplished includes the building of a church at Alberni; the church there has grown nine years ago two or three Anglican Japanese, and there are 30 members; at London part time work is being done, and at Toronto Mrs. Hayashi reported 100 baptized Japanese, the Rev. K. Imi. Other workers include, Miss Grace Tucker and Mrs. Hahn. There is no personal worker in Montreal. There are 20,000 Japanese in Canada to be won for Christ. They are our neighbors, we must help them."

The evening service was conducted by the rector, Archdeacon J. B. Cresggan, at which time Mrs. Hayashi again spoke concerning the work with the Orientals, and an address was given by Canon Henry G. Cook, of Ottawa, superintendent of Indian School administration at Ottawa.

On Thursday morning, Holy Communion was again observed, followed by breakfast in the parish hall. In the afternoon more reports were heard; the Girls' and Candidates' at afternoon session; Resolution and Prayer Partners' secretary; Juniors' secretary-treasurer; Little Helpers' secretary-treasurer; Extra-Cent-A-Day secretary-treasurer; Living Message secretary-treasurer; report by the editor of the Living Message; and the question and suggestion box. Also the deanery reports of Hastings; Lennox-Addington and Prince Edward.

THANKS TENDERED

The resolution of thanks was given by Mrs. Day, who tendered thanks to God; loyalty to the church; gratitude to the Bishop of the church; to the Archdeacon J. B. Cresggan, rector of the church; to the Rev. E. Smith, assistant rector; to the Rev. Stanley Andrews, to the choir and organist of the church; to all the members present for their kind hospitality and for welcome and to the W.A. for hospitality; to St. Thomas' and St. Mary Magdalene's; to the Rev. Canon Bedford-Jones, to Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Hayashi; Canon Cook; Mr. Hooke for the P.A. system and to His Grace, W. L. Wright, of the Metropolitan of the Province of Ontario.

The installation of officers for the ensuing year was conducted by J. B. Cresggan, who gave the prayer of dedication, and the charge to the officers was read impressively, as was the charge to the congregation for their pledge of loyalty, time, ability, and prayers, which closed with the singing of "Lead On, O King Eternal," and the Benediction.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

The officers installed are, president, Miss Winnifred Burns; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Archibald; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Hale, diocesan secretary, Miss Mc-Cormack; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. E. M. Hilborn; recording secretary, Mrs. A. C. McCallum; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Andrews; treasurer, Miss Isabel Saunders; Dorcas secretary-treasurer, Mrs. H. Gratton; literature secretary-treasurer, Mrs. H. Dillnutt; "Living Message" editor Mrs. J. J. Lewer; Girls' and Candidates' secretary-treasurer, Mrs. G. Platt; Juniors' secretary-treasurer, Mrs. K. V. Payne; Little Helpers' secretary-treasurer, Mrs. G. Spencer; Extra-Cent-a-Day secretary-treasurer, Mrs. G. H. Exford; Extra-Cent-A-Day, Mrs. C. McConnell. Treasurer, still vacant.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NEW FRIENDS FOR A LONESOME WIDOWER

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a lonesome widower 38 years old, and would like to know how a man like me gets acquainted with nice women around his own age.

Do you know of any club or other group I might join where I would be likely to meet the right kind of women? — Mr. H.

Dear Mr. H.:

You are going about things the right way when you think of joining a club, for that is one of the best methods I know of finding both new friends and new interests.

Every city these days has many different types of group organizations which are open to both men and women, and I would suggest that you make a survey of your own city and find out what and where they are, then join two or three in order to make an wide a circle of acquaintances as you can.

If you attend a particular church regularly, there must be groups connected with it which have both men and women members. And if you do not already belong to church regularly, remember that it's a very good way to find friends.

How about community organizations in your city? If there is a YMCA within easy reach, go there and talk to one of the men on the staff. Tell him what your problem is, and ask him what clubs there are at the Y that you may join. The Y is very active and has many others around town. Both YW and YMCA groups activities for both men and women and also, as you make more men friends, you will undoubtedly be introduced to or meet some of their women relatives.

Now you have some suggestions with which to begin. If you follow them out, the next time we'll be here before you are no longer lonesome and, in good time, perhaps no longer a widower.

TRY TO WORK OUT A COMPROMISE WITH YOUR PARENTS!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going with a good deal of a fellow, 19, who seems to like me as much as I like him. I'm a year younger.

My parents are objecting to the fact that he and I go out more than at least three or four nights a week and there have been arguments between us, even quarrels, about it. They tell me that if I let this boy see so much of me he will grow tired of me, but I am willing to take that chance. Of course I love my parents and would do what they say but I certainly don't want to lose this boy's friendship by refusing to go out with him when he asks me. — Miss H.

Dear Miss H.:

Have you ever really listened seriously to what your parents say about your going out so much with this boy, or do you get angry and refuse to listen when the subject comes up? Perhaps they feel that you are too young for it yet, at 18, didn't devote yourself quite so exclusively to one young man. Again, they may just think you're going out too much and that you ought to have more rest.

I don't see any reason why you should have to stop dating this young man, but I do suggest that you show yourself willing to talk the whole thing over reasonably with your parents and try to see their point of view. If you did this, it's not all impossible that you could work out some kind of compromise through which each side would yield a little to the other.

Don't you think that might be a good idea?

MANY FRIENDS AND MANY INTERESTS MAKE A GIRL ATTRACTIVE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl friend recently broke off with her steady, and since he does not like my friends any more, I would like to know how I could get him to look at me as a girl friend instead of just a good friend.

I see him nearly every day in school, and I love him very much and am eager to win his love.

Dear J.: I don't suppose you'll pay any attention to this advice, but just the same I'm going to suggest that you drop the word "love" out of your vocabulary for awhile, when thinking and talking about boys.

If there is some particular boy who specially interests you for a time, all well and good. If it happens that he becomes a special friend temporarily, enjoy the friendship while it lasts. But do try, while you're in school, not to build up too much of a romance with any boy. Think about your teen-age friendships as ways of getting to know people, so that when the time comes to be thinking about being really in love, you'll have the good judgment to pick out the right boy.

As for the one who has captured your fancy right now, don't make eyes at him or try any special tricks to get his attention. You'll have much better luck in attracting him if you let him see you as a girl of many friends because you have many interests and are an all-around good sport.

EVEN after Junior discovers he can climb on a chair to unlock the screen door, he'll be baffled by a safety hook. It has a tight little spring-controlled bolt that requires real adult dexterity to operate. Good protection, too, for tots with wandering ambitions.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

TRIMMING DOWN THE WAISTLINE

No matter what the trends of fashion may be, the disappearance of her trim, neat waistline is enough to send any woman into the average woman.

She may have been slender for her younger days, never dreaming that she could ever join the "waistline" ranks. But, gradually, the pounds crept upon her. She loved good food and didn't have enough exercise to burn up the calories that stowed themselves away in the form of fat cells.

The overweight needs sympathy and help when she finally does admit to herself that she has become the going may be rough at first. There is always someone pushing the bon bons or the cream puffs. But she must close her ears. She must be an iron woman. Because excess weight is a health menace as well as beauty hazard.

Rapid reducing is a mistake since it lowers energy and has a depressive effect upon facial tissues which may sag and accumulate premature wrinkles. Fruit diets are the pet peeve of the medical profession.

The first step in the campaign for normal weight and measurements is an appointment with the family physician for a check up. Ordinarily, overweight is caused by over-eating or by eating too many fattening foods, but now and then the cause may lie in some glandular disturbance.

Food elements which must not cut down include fats, sweets and starches; no fried foods; butter limited to one pat a day; no pastries.

Tea and coffee should be taken clear. There are plenty of good things to eat that won't put on an ounce. One can have lean meat, sea food, eggs, vegetables that grow above ground, fruit, fruit juices, cottage cheese, buttermilk.

Exercise that is not strenuous but will aid shat the reducing process, though diet alone will turn the trick.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

EACH ATTENDANT . . . BRIDE'S GROOM'S . . . PAYS FOR OWN ATTIRE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am to be married in June. We are somewhat astray for the costumes of the bridal attendants. And who pays for the attire of the best man and ushers? — Miss Wary.

Although the bride chooses every detail of the costumes to be worn by her bridal attendants, each attendant pays for her own costume. The only exception is the flowers: the attendant's flowers are usually provided by the bride's parents since these flowers are planned as part of the general decorative scheme. In some communities, however, the attendants' flowers are provided by the groom, although usually the bride and or her mother chooses them.

The groom prescribes the attire his attendants are to wear at the wedding. Each attendant provides his own attire: if he doesn't own the prescribed article, today he usually rents it, and he pays the rental charge. The groom provides the wedding ticl, also the gloves. The gloves are to be worn. And also the boutonnieres.

WHO MAY GIVE BRIDAL SHOWER?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Who gives a shower for the bride-to-be? — J.C.

A close friend of the bride, or a group of her close friends may give a bridal shower. Usually a member of the bridal party gives a shower — sometimes the members of the bridal party join together to give a shower. Sometimes a shower is given by an organization or club to which the bride belongs. Sometimes the bride's co-workers give a shower. Important Note: It is not considered correct for a member of the bride's family or a member of the groom's family to give a shower.

GROOM'S MOTHER'S DRESS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I'm the mother of the groom-to-be. Who chooses the color for my dress? Is it the bride or the bride's mother who suggests? — M.

The bride's mother decides on the type of dress she is to wear . . . the general design, the approximate length, the color. Then she and the groom's mother should consult about their decisions, and the groom's mother follows this type of dress, and chooses a color that will harmonize with the dress of the bride's mother.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . I applaud your efforts to promote more nutrition. I have had a delicious chicken casserole with cheese sauce and broccoli. I tried to make it once but it was sort of curdled. . . . can you give me the proper recipe? . . . I canned some prune plums last Fall and they are far too sweet to eat plain. Rather than just add tons of sugar is there some pudding or sauce they could be put in that would mask the acidity? Or I'd like to make them into jam but I guess it would be too tricky. We don't like things very sweet. . . . Also find that half the amount of sugar given in a recipe is enough for us. In what type of recipe is this risky? I suppose cakes and cookies anyhow. What is the action of baking soda as compared to baking powder? . . . What I was read "Let's Cook It Right" by Adele Davis (who says) soda breaks down gluten and destroys B vitamins in baked products. What would be the rule for substituting baking powder? I use much powdered skim milk can be added without altering taste and texture of baked products? What percentage of whole wheat flour can be substituted for white? Have no glad pamphlet information about MPF. I have received a sample and stretched cream cheese with it the other day. A wonderful thing to have on hand. . . . Hope you will have some more about box lunches. . . . Would you please send me whatever you have written about it so far. . . . also release on liver recipes . . . maybe they would tempt the 15-month baby.—E. S. C.

ANSWER:

I have the ideal recipe for your sour canned plums. The original calls for fresh red plums, halved and stoned, but I used it for sour canned plums and it was ever so good.

PLUM PUFF PUDDING

Measure 2 cups stoned plums (fresh add 3-3 cup sugar, if canned but still sour add 1-3 to 1-2 cup sugar, if drained and very sweet add no sugar), also add 1-2 cup water, and bring to boiling in quick-cooking tapioca, 1-8 teaspoon salt and bring to boil stirring. Pour this into well-buttered baking dish and keep hot. Sift 1 cup pastry flour once. Beat 2 large egg yolks until thick and creamy, then beat 6 tablespoons sugar into them gradually. Beat 2 egg whites with 1-8 teaspoon salt until frothy, then sprinkle over them 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar and beat until mixture is stiff enough to hold in peaks. Fold egg-yolk-sugar mixture gently into egg whites, then fold in flour, a small amount at a time. Stir the hot tapioca-fruit mixture, then turn the batter over it evenly. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes or until cake part is baked. Serve warm. The plum filling forms a sauce for the pudding. This is a most unusual pudding and a great favorite. Peaches and blueberries may be used but there are changes that are desirable.

Arbitrary reduction of sugar in cakes and cookies is not successful as you say, nor in candies of course, nor in other recipes where sugar forms a bulky part of the product or where the chemical reaction to beat might be affected. One-half teaspoon soda is used with 1 cup sour milk and one replaces 1 teaspoon baking powder when sour milk is substituted in a sweet milk recipe. The rule you have would be the rule for substituting baking powder in baked products. The rule—it would be safer for you to send me your baking soda recipes to adjust or better still tell me the baking soda recipes that you replace with mixes. I will send you baking powder recipes for the same product. Any amount of powdered skim milk may be used without change in proportions but will alter flavor and texture. Again let me know what products you want and skim milk powder is other than such mixes as meat loaf, meat balls, cocoa, salmon loaf, cheese soufflé or other such products that breadcrumbs and/or milk are used in liberally. Don't try to use whole wheat flour in delicate butter or sponge cakes. In almost everything else, try using it fifty-fifty, but sift the whole wheat and tip the bran in bottom of sifted into salt too. I have mailed you the recipes which appeared here Sept. 7 on school lunches.

I hope you saw the chicken recipes in yesterday's column.

Women's Activities

MADOC W.M.S.

MADOC — The April thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Madoc was held at the home of Mrs. John Bailey. After the opening hymn, a short business session was held.

The Scripture reading was taken from Matthew — Jesus in the judgment hall condemned by Pilate. Mrs. Field Allen offered the Easter story by reading the gospel of the resurrection. Mrs. C. Wood read poems by Edgar Guest of the glory of Easter and the one Christ, the hope, the truth, the way of life.

INDIA SCHOOLS

Miss Van Kleeck gave an address on the schools and education in India, which has some fine universities, some of the students going to Oxford and Cambridge. Many of the small towns and villages are now having schools and learning to read in their dialect and also in English. Millions are still untaught.

Mrs. Kernahan gave a word picture of an Indian village with its small mud huts all grouped together, and the many children. This is where the missionary does a great work, visiting the homes, having meetings, teaching the Indians to read and write; even stepping in where the white doctor has failed, bringing medicine and healing to the sick and afflicted.

POWER OF THE GOSPEL

The missionaries are in India today because they believe in the Gospel of Christ and His power to regenerate men and women. The Gospel has taken root and the spirit is working in many hearts; God has a task for the church of Christ in India today.

After the hymn "Jesus Christ is Risen Today," and a closing prayer, a friendship hour was greatly enjoyed, also refreshments served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. Bailey and Mrs. James Donahue.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. of Ivanhoe, was held at the home of Mrs. Donald Haggerty on Thursday afternoon.

The Scripture Jer. 17:21-27 was read by Mrs. William Donnan. Readings were given by Mrs. John Wright, Mrs. Harold Thompson and Mrs. Donald Haggerty.

A short business session was held following the roll call and offering.

A study of the 4th commandment and following verse was given by Miss Bessie Hemingway. "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it Holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work." The original word 'holy' means "set apart for the Lord". Of Average Canadian Is in Hot Water Every Day and He Loves It!

Along about this time of year we are regaled by the usual pictures of human "polar bears"—people who get up in the morning, cut great holes in the ice and dunk their bodies in the water beneath. Their proud boast is that they "swim every day in the year".

A spot check by the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating indicates that these hardy souls comprise not more than 1-10 of 1 per cent of the male population of Canada. The remaining 99 9-10 per cent greet the morning by splashing water from the hot tap, natch!

Come to think of it, practically the first thing most Canadians do on any morning of the year is to reach for the hot water tap. It's also virtually the last thing they do at night. In between times, they use water from the hot tap for a dozen and one things . . . washing the dishes, taking a bath, cleaning floors and walls, laundering this & household lines, having a shower and heaven knows how many more tasks in the daily routine.

And when the hot tap is turned on, if cold water comes out, what a wail of exasperation goes up. Yes, what was regarded as almost a miracle only a generation or so ago has become so commonplace today that people almost overlook miracles of it.

Take, for instance, the housewife who gets up in the morning, gets the youngsters washed (with hot water) and off to school, kisses hubby (who looks fresh after a hot shower) good-bye, washes the dishes (in hot water), loads the automatic washer (consumption 10 gallons of hot water per load) with clothes, and then decides that, while the laundry is whirling merrily around in the washer, she might as well have a bath herself. Guess what happens? You're right! She gets ankle deep in water and ouch!—no more hot.

Actually, few of us realize how much more of a demand we are making on our hot water supply these days than we did even a few years ago. Since the war, for example, we have been buying such appliances as automatic washers, automatic dish-washers and shower cabinets. We have been installing extra washing facilities, maybe in the form of powder rooms, or bedroom wash-basins.

Quite a lot of us have also added to the household one or more of the greatest little hot water users on earth. We refer, of course, to the kiddies. According to figures made available by the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, while the average adult uses an estimated 10 to 20 gallons of hot water per day, it takes nearer 25 gallons a day to convince Junior that "grime does not pay".

Yet most Canadians live in houses that are equipped with 20 gallon or at the most 30 gallon hot water heaters. Most of these are of pre-war vintage and the demands made on them by to-day's living habits is often more than they can satisfy. Let's take a look at what some of these demands can amount to.

Automatic laundry can use as much as 30 gallons of hot water in an hour's operation. Automatic dish-washers need from 1½ to 2 gallons per minute, or 10 gallons per load. A tub bath requires about 15 gallons; a shower, 3 gallons a minute; sink dish washing 3 gallons.

Summing it all up, one authority estimates that a 30 gallon water heater is the minimum for to-day's requirements, and only for a family of two to three at that. Once the family gets to be four or five, a 40 gallon tank is necessary. If an extra bathroom is added to the house, a water heater of at least ten gallons greater capacity than the existing one is a must.

So the next time your hot water tap supplies you with an unexpected stream of cold water, and you feel as if you have been stabbed in the back by a dear friend, just remember how much more you are asking from your heater than you once did. Maybe a consultation with your plumbing contractor will get you in hot water again—and you'll love it!

New Clothes Tree Boosts Closet Use

The efficiency of a storage closet can be increased from 50 to 100 per cent by lining the walls with peg-board, perforated hardboard. Mounting such panels on furring strips places them out from the wall a fraction of an inch to accommodate various metal hooks and fixtures.

A new fixture is the closet tree. This comprises a vertical metal pole reaching from floor to ceiling with adjustable side arms extending out toward the walls. It makes the hanging of garments easy for children as well as adults.

The height of the arms can be changed at 3-inch intervals with a screwdriver. They swing in arcs to allow access to the walls.

Windowless Bathrooms Are Newest

How Skylight And Fan Can Aid Planning

Interior bathrooms with no windows are scheduled to be one of the main features of homes of tomorrow.

They can be better ventilated than bathrooms with windows. They can be warmer in winter and cooler in summer. They can give you a better planned house with more outside walls for windows and light in the rooms you use the most. They open the way for a wider range of ideas in remodelling a house. And, the FHA has now approved of them.

Don't say you wouldn't like an interior bathroom. A window in a bathroom, when the wind is blowing toward that window, ventilates only through the rest of the house. On the other hand, interior bathrooms are mechanically ventilated, drawing air from the house and exhausting it out of doors.

DAYLIGHT FROM ABOVE

People accept interior bathrooms as a matter of course in the most modern hotels and office buildings. It seems strange that home planners have missed the advantages of the idea for so long.

The development of new building materials and new architectural designs make it possible for an interior bathroom to have daylight even without windows. Plastic sky domes and prismatic glass blocks for skylights are among the materials. Butterfly roofs and low-pitched trussed roofs are among the new designs.

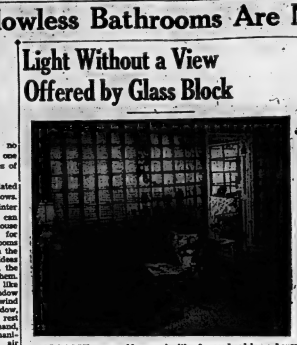
One of the biggest boosts for interior bathrooms in the one-story house has been the development of heat controlling glass blocks for skylights. These contain reflective prisms, which keep out the heat in summer when the sun is high, and admit the heat in winter when the sun is low in the sky. Filtered light is admitted at all times.

VENTILATION AND HEAT

Mechanical ventilation in the form of blower type exhaust fans, now used in many modern exterior bathrooms, insures ventilation especially through the roof where winds can be controlled.

An interior bathroom can be easier to heat, because it draws warmth from the rooms around it. The elimination of a window has various advantages. In the small bathroom, where the tub is inevitably under a window, there is a draft on the bather. Eliminate the window and you have no draft.

The bathroom window always is a decorating problem. You might tile the wall all around the window, but still there is the wooden or metal frame vulnerable to damage by water or steam.



MORE USEFUL SPACE

The elimination of windows in an interior bathroom leaves additional space for shallow built-ins, such as medicine cabinets and attractive glass shelves.

Even without a skylight, an interior bathroom can be bright, cheerful and sanitary. Modern lighting fixtures can provide better illumination than can obtained from a window. They make the lack of daylighting unimportant because artificial lighting is always needed anyway for shaving and making up.

With more than 200 shades of clay tile now available and with bathroom fixtures made in colors

Light Without a View Offered by Glass Block

GLASS BLOCK opens wide opportunities for modernizing a house. Light without view can be obtained with a wall of textured glass blocks. Various patterns are available as well as clear glass where a view is wanted. Where such a wall is not exposed to the weather or to moisture, no mortar is required. The blocks are fitted on wood strips and wedges, creating a firm, lasting panel. Partitions and panels built with this set-in-wood method can be dismantled and relocated, using the same materials. You can take these walls with you.

New Switches Have Lights in Handles

New mercury switches that operate silently without the usual on and off clicks are now being equipped with lighted handles clearly visible in the dark. A tiny neon light in the toggle handle glows when the switch is off.

This is a handy idea for bedrooms, bathrooms and children's rooms. The glowing handle also serves as a reverse pilot light for basement circuits. Indicating when the basement lights are off.

The neon handle is supposed to be good for 10 to 15 years and its current cost is figured at about 2 cents per year at average rates.

to match or harmonize with colored tiles a wide range of interior decoration is possible. Even bathroom ceilings can be tiled successfully, the same as ceilings in shower stalls have been tiled.

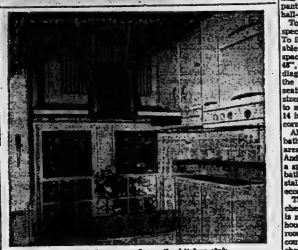
FARM BUILDING TIPS AND NEWS

Making Use of a Window

By ROBERT A. WANDS

Must the kitchen sink be placed at the window, or is that desirable window space being wasted in the modern kitchen?



Does the housewife of today have to stand while working in the kitchen, or can she work while comfortably seated at a counter?

Those questions come up when we decided to modernize our kitchen.

Kitchens seem to be designed by men who must think that today's housewife spends all her time at the kitchen sink. This has resulted in placing the sink beneath the window.

We decided the kitchen sink need not occupy the window space. We placed a counter several inches lower than the standard 36-inch height, with clear space beneath, at the window. This counter, at which the housewife can be seated, is generally used for food preparation. Located between the refrigerator and the stove, it seems to be used more than any other counter space.

The counter is constructed of 3-4 inch plywood, covered with plastic laminate to match the other countertops and edged with stainless steel. This top is fastened to a framework of 1 by 3-inch pipe.

Work Table wins window space from the kitchen sink.

The framework is screwed to the window frame and to the adjoining counter at the left. The opposite corner is supported by one chromium plated leg of 1-inch pipe. The pipe is threaded to fit into a flange on the underside of the counter and into a steel foot fastened to the floor. A rubber crutch tip might have been used in place of the foot.

The length of the leg should be measured carefully, but slight inaccuracy can be compensated by adjusting the leg in the threaded flange.

Without having actually to build an extra room, a quite economical conversation can be made. This space can often be found in a large hall cupboard, or an out-dated pantry, or even at the end of a hall-way.

To make full use of limited space, special fittings have been designed. To illustrate, square hatches, suitable for installation in narrow spaces, measure as little as 42" by 46", with the cath running the diagonal of the square, the rest of the fixtures forming handy bath seats. Wash basins of different sizes also are available, right down to a sparkling gem not more than 14 inches square, that fits into a corner.

All in all, a good three-piece bathroom can be fitted into an area no bigger than 5ft. by 5½ft. And if good fortune provides such a space directly below the existing bathroom in the house, then the installation will be done very economically indeed.

The problem of installing a kitchen in the upper part of the house is not nearly so ticklish, for new houses are without a "spare" bath room that is large enough to be converted into a well-planned kitchen or kitchenette. Here again, location directly above the existing kitchen will save many dollars, since all the water supply, drainage, and other services can be extended upward to take care of the new unit.

Installation of one of the new combination sink and tub units in the upstairs kitchen is a wise move. Remember that, even if a community laundry room is provided in the basement, the housewife in the upper duplex will have plenty of day-to-day laundering to do, and the saving in her kitchen will win plenty of appreciation for the new landlord.

New Hope For Home Seekers Seen in New Loan Policy

A possible solution to Canada's housing problem is seen in the recently announced regulations covering loans for home renovations and alterations. According to Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating estimates, there are enough obsolescent houses in Canada suitable for conversion to duplexes or multiple dwellings to provide homes for every family in Canada at present living in inadequate or overcrowded quarters.

The Institute bases its opinion on a recent survey it made of renovations to houses built prior to 1930. Of the householders quizzed over 25 per cent gave financial reasons for either delaying or abandoning projects for alterations or renovations to their homes.

Under the present regulations, chartered banks can lend home owners up to $2500 for conversion of the house into a duplex, and if a multiple dwelling is planned, a similar amount for the first extra unit, plus $1250 for each additional unit up to four. Loan repayments can be made over periods up to five years, in certain cases, the projects can be made almost self-supporting from the very start.

While the maximum loan figures are adequate for financing house alterations or conversions, the Institute points out that careful planning will be necessary to get full value out of every dollar spent. In this connection, choice of plumbing and heating fixtures, and the method of their installation is of primary importance. An extra kitchen and bathroom, plus adequate arrangements for heating, are the first consideration in changing a home from a one-unit to a two-unit dwelling.

In the case of a two-story house which is to be made into an upper and lower duplex, for instance, it will be necessary to install a bathroom on the lower floor, and a kitchen on the upper. The lower structural alterations that are made, the better, since these can become a major expense.

Thus if space can be found for a bathroom on the ground floor without having actually to build an extra room, a quite economical conversation can be made. This space can often be found in a large hall cupboard, or an out-dated pantry, or even at the end of a hall-way.

FOR A SLOPING SITE

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

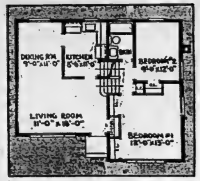
Designed for a sloping site, the Barden is a split-level plan with four floors for living.

Open planning makes the main level especially functional. Living room and dining room are separate, but arranged so they flow into each other and could be treated as one large, L-shaped area.

LIGHT AND SUNSHINE

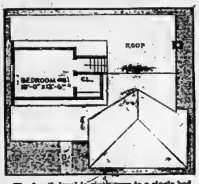
The kitchen occupies one corner of the main level, with doorways making it accessible to both dining and living areas. Over the sink, a window captures an attractive view of the back grounds and floods the work room with light and sunshine.

Just outside the kitchen, a short flight of steps leads to the second level, where you'll find two spacious bedrooms and a bath. The master bedroom looks out on the front grounds, so it has high windows for privacy. Twin closets take care of the Mr. and Mrs. wardrobe problem. The bedroom at back is smaller, with a single closet.



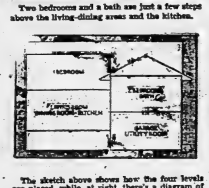
WALK-IN CLOSET

Level No. three provides a third bedroom, this one with a huge walk-in closet.

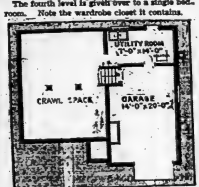


The lowest level is given over to a garage and a utility room. The latter contains the heater, and laundry space.

All told, the Barden comprises 12,200 cubic feet. It is one of a number of homes featured in "New American Home-Plans," a soft-cover publication.



If you are interested in obtaining blueprints of the Barden or a copy of "New American Home-Plans," send your inquiry and a self-addressed stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper. For the name and address of the company from which they may be obtained.



Two bedrooms and a bath are just a few steps above the living-dining areas and the kitchen.

The fourth level is given over to a single bedroom. Note the wardrobe closet it contains.

The sketch above shows how the four levels are placed, while, at right, there's a diagram of the ground level with a garage and utility room.

Urgent Need For Natural Gas In Hamilton

WASHINGTON (CP)—A Canadian gas company official testified Wednesday before the Federal Power Commission that an urgent need for natural gas exists in Hamilton.

F. F. Falls, comptroller of United Gas and Fuel of Hamilton, said the company has received many inquiries for natural gas service. This, plus the fact that coke ovens built nearly 30 years ago were nearing obsolescence, pointed up the need for new supplies.

Falls was testifying in support of an application from Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company for permission to export another 15,500,000,000 cubic feet of U.S. natural gas a year to Union Gas company of Canada.

Falls, also assistant general manager of Union Gas, outlined plans by Union Gas to provide natural gas service to Guelph, Kitchener, Waterloo and Stratford if the commission authorized the increased exports.

The hearing is expected to end today.

Curves in Fir Plywood Panels Give Fixtures Smoother Lines

Large smooth surfaces and simple curves are decorative features of storage walls, counters, partitions, cabinets and built-ins that add architectural distinction to a home. Walls with clean flowing curves and rounded corners give attractive lines to hallways and vestibules.

Fir plywood is ideal material for bending into simple curves and the home handyman, armed with a few basic hints on "bendability," can come up with fixtures that have a modern, professional sweep to them.

The accompanying table will serve as a guide for bending various thicknesses of fir plywood although it should be remembered that bending qualities of individual panels may vary with grain characteristics.

BENDING RADII

Thickness	Min. Radius Parallel to Grain (Approx.)	Min. Radius Across Grain (Approx.)
¼ inch	24 inches	15 inches
⅜ inch	54 inches	35 inches
½ inch	8 feet	6 feet
⅝ inch	10 feet	8 feet
¾ inch	13 feet	10 feet

If the radius required is smaller than that given in the table it is suggested that a series of evenly-spaced saw cuts on the inside face of the plywood will permit bending to a very small radius. Fir plywood, particularly when thicker than ⅜ inch, may be readily bent by this saw-kerfing method without splitting.

Best results are obtained by using continuous rounded backing or framework. If one end only of a panel is to be bent, attach that end first. Plywood should be bent across the grain of the outer veneer.

It is sometimes advisable, when curves in the greater thicknesses of plywood are required, to use two thinner panels instead. For instance, two ¼ inch panels may be quite readily bent and attached together with glue where a ½ inch thickness is required.

Dry fir plywood can be bent approximately to the radii in the table; steamed, soaked in water, or boiled, it will have about 50 per cent greater bendability. For example ¼ inch Douglas fir plywood, after soaking or steaming, can be bent to a radius of approximately 12 inches lengthwise and 4 inches crosswise. Boiling water or steam will not damage the strength or rigidity of the panels because all fir plywood produced in Canada is bonded with 100 per cent waterproof glue. Any checking or grain raise on the face veneer that may occur can be sanded with wood filler and sanding before painting.

Over-Scouring Bath Fixtures Spoils Enamel

Don't scour your plumbing fixtures if you want them to keep their new and lustrous appearance.

This is the advice of experts, who point out that all household cleansers are mildly abrasive. If used in moderation with plenty of water, most cleansers are harmless. But hard scouring, with too much cleanser and not enough water, will scratch the finish of fixtures.

The enamel of a bathtub also can be scratched if you stand in tub with your shoes on. Shoe soles carry gritty particles. Dropping tools, or scraping fixtures with kitchen utensils and scouring pads will also make the finish more susceptible to stains.

Amateur photographers are warned not to use a bathroom for darkroom. Developing fixtures can become stained from even a brief contact of film developer.

Stains also can be caused by raw vegetables or fruits allowed to stand in a sink for long periods. Other acid stains have been caused by storing soiled diapers in a bathtub or lavatory.

Mad Scramble For Goggles At Atom Test Provides Proof Of Danger of Mass Hysteria

By KEN METHERALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (CP)—The much-postponed United States atomic test shot, now tentatively scheduled for Saturday, , always has provided one major lesson in civil defence.

The lesson, say Canadian and American civil defence chiefs, is that even trained personnel must be assigned to specific jobs in an emergency to avoid the danger of mass hysteria.

Two incidents here, both fortunately minor, pointed up the weakness.

"We counted on trained civil defence personnel acting, in an orderly manner," a spokesman for the American civil defence administration told The Canadian Press in discussing a mad scramble by 1,800 official observers for high-density goggles and coffee at the atomic peeping point this week.

ONLY BLACK MARK

The scramble, the only black mark chalked up against smoothfunctioning test organization, occurred when more than the first two abortive visits to the test site 80 miles north of this Nevada desert gambling resort.

With only 1,200 pairs of goggles to distribute to observers, civil defence officials tossed them at random to the waiting crowd from the back of a truck. It set off a bizarre wrestling match in which mature citizens and women, even them state senators, and several veteran newspaper, radio and television representatives fought like children for possession of the goggles.

A few minutes later a second scramble started as volunteer civil defence workers opened a big coffee bar for the observers who had been standing in some 80-degree temperatures for more than an hour.

"We made a mistake and we learned a valuable lesson," the American spokesman said. "There was a marked difference in the actions of personnel assigned to specific jobs and those on hand only to witness the atomic test."

REFUSE COMMENT

Canadian officials here, including Maj.-Gen. Frank Worthington of Ottawa, civil defence co-ordinator for Canada, declined any direct comment on the incident. But it is known that both Canadian and American civil defence leaders are considering the necessity of placing greater emphasis in their training programs on leadership qualities for non-salaried workers.

"Leadership for the civil population in time of emergency will have to be provided by the civil defence workers," the American spokesman said.

"Aside from the Wednesday incidents, the test organization here has functioned with almost incredible smoothness. . . ."

Meanwhile Canada's tri-service radiation detection team, first Canadians to participate in an atomic test, scheduled a special exercise today for officers and NCOs on the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission's big proving grounds. About 25 members of the 61-man team from Kingston, Ont., moved into an area made radioactive from previous atomic explosions to try out different monitoring procedures and techniques.

The remaining members of the team were given the day off for a sightseeing tour.

Welfare Council Opposes Making Lotteries Legal

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Welfare Council opposes legalized lotteries under either government or private auspices.

Its views were expressed yesterday in a brief read to Commons-Senate committee on capital and corporal punishment and lotteries by council secretary W. G. McGrath of Ottawa.

With him were Pacifique (Pax) Plante, assistant director of Montreal police, and a group of council members from Ottawa.

The council said if games of chance are to be permitted for charitable or non-profit purposes they should be placed under national law. Amounts of money involved should be kept small since this lessened the temptation to criminal elements to take over control.

It also wants the Criminal Code amended to permit police to destroy telegraph and telephone equipment they find in gambling establishments during raids.

Bevan Restored As Full Member Of Labor Party

LONDON (AP) — Left-winger Aneurin Bevan, whose feud with Clement Attlee cost him his Labor post in Parliament, is being welcomed back, just a month before the general election.

The party leadership headed by Attlee voted Wednesday night to recommend that Bevan be restored to full membership in the parliamentary Labor party, made up of socialist members of the House of Commons. Such recommendations are accepted automatically.

Bevan was expelled from the Labor ranks in Parliament March 16 after he and three colleagues defied Attlee, leader of the party, had abstained specifically on Attlee's moderate policies. He was not voted out of the party itself, although he never revealed his criticism of it leadership.

Major Obstacle Blocking Pact In Rail Strike

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — One major obstacle is reported blocking agreement as the longest American railroad strike of modern times plays havoc with the economy of many areas in the southern states.

The economic situation grows more serious daily. And violence—shootings, bridge dynamitings, and freight train derailments — also flares more frequently.

Complicating the situation in the area is the continuing strike of the Communications Workers of America (CIO) against the Southern Bell Telephone Co., where violence and cutting of phone cables has been common. Both the phone and rail strikes today are in their 47th day.

Little progress toward a settlement has been reported since the strike against the Louisville and Nashville Railroad and those of its subsidiaries began March 14.

OFFICIALS DISAGREE

Federal mediators and officials of 14 affected states have tried to iron out the differences in meetings with railroad officials and representatives of the 10 striking AFL non-operating unions. Both the company and unions have agreed to arbitration, but they disagree as to what differences are to be arbitrated.

The main sore point behind the disagreement is reported to be the health and welfare program. As one source analyzed it: "If the unions win this demand with the L and N, other railroads and railroads must follow suit. If the unions lose, other American railroads might seek to eliminate the program from their contracts."

With negotiations bogged down, the serious economic effects are mounting. Thousands are out of work in addition to 27,000 striking non-operating unionists. Members of four operating unions — the men who run the trains — have joined the walkout.

Freight has piled up in many cities. The small-town grocer, the coal miners and operators who depend on the railroad to move their product, and business in general have felt the clutch. Approximately 14,000 miners alone are idle because of lack of cars.

He lodged a formal complaint with the commission claiming an Israeli attack.

Ngo Dinh Diem, South Viet Nam Premier, Is Lonely Man

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON, Indochina (AP)—The pink-faced man in the sharkskin suit knelt before a wooden crucifix and prayed for strength, as he has done all his life.

For Ngo Dinh Diem, premier of South Viet Nam, this April has been the worst and the best in a career whose goals have been the independence of his country and devotion to the Christian ideal.

It is the best because Viet Nam is virtually independent. It is the worst because in Viet Nam's dark hour he has stood almost alone assailed by his enemies and abandoned by many of his former associates.

Diem's enemies are leaders of the south's private armies, the Binh Xuyen Society and the Hoa Hao and Cao Dai religious sects. They have massed every weapon they know of in an effort to uproot him. Diem has fought back.

ATTACKED AS INDIVIDUAL

Before the current fighting his enemies did not attack his principles or his program so much as they pounded away fire against him as an individual. A complex, lonely, little-understood man, Ngo Dinh Diem has left few personal criticisms. And much, if they wished, to praise.

Their criticisms were for his stubbornness, his frequent unwillingness to take advice. They said he was arrogant and dictatorial, inefficient and unreliable. They accused him of converting the government into a patriarchy dominated by the Diem family.

They could have added that he has trouble with his temper, that many of his decisions alone and that he sometimes bypasses his own ministers.

Against these adverse qualities there are three in the scale—his honesty, his consistent nationalism and long record of unwavering opposition to communism.

NOBLE FAMILY

Diem was born at Hue, ancient capital of the Annam empire on July 3, 1901. The son of a court official, he is the descendant of a noble family which fought the battle of nationalism for years and contributed hundreds of martyrs.

As a boy Diem was solemn and industrious. He added scholastic brilliance, a love of swimming and horseback riding. At first he was destined for the Roman Catholic priesthood but he became a court administrator.

As a youth he showed to live a life of chastity. He remains a bachelor, uncomfortable in the presence of women. But he wants women to vote in general elections he has said in the next three months from now.

Diem refused to become premier under the Japanese or to serve with Communist leader Ho Chi Minh. He became premier last July. Soon the Geneva conference sliced Viet Nam in two. He was confronted with the problems of resettling some 900,000 refugees and had to cope with a revolt in the army and corruption.

DEPENDS ON BROTHERS

Diem does most of his work in his simply-furnished bedroom on the second floor of the Independence palace. When the going gets tough, he withdraws more and more. He takes his meals alone in his room, offsetting for Sunday dinner with nieces and nephews.

Because he is a lonely man he depends more and more on four brothers. Ngo Dinh Luyen, 46, he has named ambassador. Ngo Dinh Nhu, 48, is a trade union leader. Ngo Dinh Thuc, 57, is bishop of Vinh Long, and Ngo Dinh Can, 43, lives with Diem's 87-year-old mother at Hue. All are able, but the premier's frequent reliance on them rather than on his ministers has made him vulnerable to criticism.

Quick to anger over petty things, Diem is serenely calm in emergency. During the Bin Xuyen bombardment of his palace March 30 he appeared in pyjamas to direct the move of wounded. He is personally courageous.

His program, he says, is to turn over complete power to the people through elections. Before this can be done, he declares, the private armies must be disbanded and government control established.

His opponents say they agree, but he is not the man to carry out such a program.

Three Squadrons Will Have New Modern Aircraft

SYDNEY (CP)—Three squadrons of the Royal Australian Navy fleet air arm will be re-equipped with modern aircraft from the United Kingdom in August.

One squadron will be re-formed with Sea Hawk all-weather jet fighters in place of piston-engine Sea Furies. Two other squadrons get their Fireflies with Gannet turbojet anti-submarine aircraft.

Minister Jeremiah Francis said Australian air crews will undergo training on the new aircraft at three naval air stations in England.

The three squadrons with operational and reserve aircraft will return to Australia in the Australian navy's new aircraft carrier, the Melbourne, in May next year.

B.C. Agreement With Kaiser Corp. Is Under Study

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons committee strove Thursday to find out when a contract is a contract.

The committee on external affairs spent 6½ hours questioning Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia on his government's "interim agreement" of last Sept. 17 with the Kaiser Corp. of the United States for a water power project on B.C.'s Columbia river.

The federal government opposes the agreement, maintaining it provides insufficient return for B.C. and that such a development will jeopardize optimum Canadian power use of the Columbia basin.

Pressed by Liberal committee questioners, Mr. Bonner said the B.C.-Kaiser agreement isn't a firm contract.

"It is a contract to make a contract," he said, "it is a statement of intentions." It was fully binding on Kaiser, under penalty of damages, therefore if it did not fulfil certain preliminary engineering work, but B.C. has reserved "full freedom of action" as to conditions under which it would issue a water license for construction of the dam.

NOT WORTH PAPER

Resources Minister Lesage suggested that, in view of this, it is not worth the paper it is written on."

Mr. Bonner replied: "I wouldn't say that at all."

He maintained under questioning by Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) that B.C. fulfilled in every particular all its obligations to keep the federal government informed of negotiations with Kaiser.

He did not agree that the federal government had prior jurisdiction over international waters. If not, the bill would not be necessary.

BANNED FOR UNDER-18s

BALTIMORE (AP)—The sale of cigarettes to anyone under 18 in Maryland is banned under a bill signed into law Thursday by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin. It prohibits books, pamphlets and magazines or other printed matter which display "violent bloodshed, lust or immorality or which, for a child, may have a tendency to be obscene, lewd, lascivious, filthy, indecent or disgusting. . . ."

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Given Contract Extension

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners has given a six-month extension for Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. to show it is financially able to build its proposed $320,000,000 natural gas pipe from Alberta to eastern Canada.

Trans-Canada now has until Oct. 31 to produce supply and sales contracts to demonstrate to the board's satisfaction that it can raise the money for the 2,300-mile line.

Progress on the company's construction schedule has bogged down because of lack of enough of these contracts. The company has deferred its expected spring start of the main line across the top of the Great Lakes to Toronto and Montreal, but now is planning 1955 construction of an eastern leg.

GET OK GAS

This would stretch between Toronto and Montreal, picking up at Toronto United States gas to be used to build up the Montreal demand in advance of the arrival of Alberta gas there. U.S. gas now is available in Toronto through a pipeline to the border built by a Trans-Canada subsidiary.

Eventually, the Toronto-Montreal part of the system would be linked to the main line when it hit Toronto from the West.

Unofficial estimates of the cost of the Montreal-Toronto connection range between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000.

The separate company to be formed by the principals behind Trans-Canada Pipe Lines will carry the Montreal gas sales and distribution facilities of the Quebec Hydro Commission at around $20,000,000.

Trans-Canada witnesses told the board Thursday a deal with the U.S. purchase is near conclusion, though the total figure hasn't been agreed on. They also said Trans-Canada plans to spend $18,000,000 or more in improving the Montreal system during the next three or four years.

SEE EVACUATION PLAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The District of Columbia commissioners decided Thursday on a policy of trying to evacuate the United States capital in case of atomic or hydrogen bomb attack. They decided the people could move out past a circle seven miles from the centre of the downtown daytime population. The evacuation would be primarily by car into nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Wants Canada To Develop Health Resources

OTTAWA (CP)—A health resort industry in Canada rivalling the spas of Europe was envisaged Wednesday in the Commons.

Harold E. Winch (CCF — Vancouver East) said Canada could have a multi-million-dollar industry if it developed its resources of "natural health" materials — hot and cold mineral springs, hormone peats and saline clays.

Mr. Winch, speaking in the Commons budget debate, said natural health methods have been largely ignored in Canada. They could be valuable if developed in conjunction—not in competition—with medical science.

He credited natural health methods with helping people given up as hopeless under normal treatment methods.

He knew of 30 hot and cold mineral springs in British Columbia alone, together with millions of tons of hormone peats and plentiful supplies of saline clays. West-coast Indians could do almost miraculous things with those materials.

BOOM TOWN

This map shows the general location of the Pembina oil area where Alberta oil exploration now is at its peak. The field is rated as Canada's largest and geologists estimate its reserves at 1,000,000,000 barrels, a hamlet which did not now has made a boom town, is the centre of the area. It is linked with the paved Edmonton-Jasper highway by a lightly surveiled road. Drayton is 80 miles southwest of Edmonton. (CP Photo).

Prosperity with supermarkets, home-appliance stores and new problems, has come to the Alberta hamlet of Drayton Valley since the discovery of oil nearby two years ago. This picture shows a section of Drayton Valley's main street as it has grown up since oil turned the farming community into an industrial centre. (CP Photo).

LARGEST OIL FIELD

Pembina Oil Field in Alberta May Be Largest in N. America

By DAVID GANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DRAYTON VALLEY, Alta. (CP) This booming oil town in the bush and muskeg area of central Alberta in the heart of what may become the largest oil field in North America. The discovery by far the most important since that of the Leduc field eight years ago.

Known as the Pembina field and discovered less than two years ago, it now is rated as Canada's largest. Its present proven and semi-proven limits cover a rectangle of about 30 by 80 miles—about 50,000 acres. Where those limits may stretch in future is anyone's guess.

Some oil men predict the Pembina field one day will have proven reserves greater than the East Texas field, largest on the continent with 5% production of the untapped Athabasca oil sands.

QUALITY PRODUCT

Drilling has met with astonishing success. Stepouts as much as 15 miles from the proven limits of the field have struck oil. By the end of March, 360 wells had been brought into production. Each day they poured forth 32,000 barrels of oil.

Reserves are estimated at 1,000,000,000 barrels. That's as much as the combined reserves of the Leduc, Woodbend and Redwater fields in the settled area around Edmonton.

The output of Pembina's wells is an oilman's dream. It is a light gravity crude with a low gas-oil ratio which makes it desirable refinery stock.

All but two of the 360 wells flow under their own pressure. This is unusual as most fields of the Pembina type are pumping fields.

SANDSTONE RESERVOIR

The Pembina discovery, like one at Smiley, Sask., two years ago, is important because it showed that sandstone formations are prolific sources of oil. Previously, most of the oil on the Canadian Prairies came from devonian and other types of limestones and coral-reef formations.

The Socony discovery well, first in the cardium sandstone, was reached at a depth of about 5,000 feet. That opened up a whole new field for exploration since the cardium zone is widespread under the Prairies.

The wet summer of 1954 kept drilling in the Pembina field to a minimum. Existing trails and roads were sons of mud.

BUILD NEW ROADS

The Alberta government and private companies have begun a program of building all-weather roads into the field from the Edmonton-Jasper highway. Socony Oil Company of Canada Ltd., discoverer of the field, alone built 67 miles of gravelled roads last year at an average cost of $10,000 a mile.

Swampy land and rugged terrain boost costs and make operations difficult.

A 72-inch pipeline links the Drayton valley field with Edmonton refineries and a growing network of pipes is scattered over the area.

The Alberta government has cashed in on the find. At a sale of leases and reservations last October, oil companies paid as much as $385,000 for rights to 160 acres of proven land.

The record total price for such sales was set in January, 1954, with $321,675,000 being paid for exploration rights. Pembina acreage accounted for $58,670,000 of this.

The Texaco Exploration Co. and Imperial Oil Ltd. paid $12,000,000 and $11,500,000, respectively, for sole rights to 82,180 acres.

Homemaking Club Project Completed By 4-H Members

PICTON — Eighty girls ranging in age from 10 to 21 completed the 4-H Homemaking Club project, "The Club Girl Stands on Guard," when their achievement Day was held in the Prince Edward Collegiate Institute on Friday, Saturday, April 23rd.

Mrs. Marion Smith, County Home Economist was assisted by Miss Jean Scott, Home Economist for Perth County and field consultant for home economics in the province, and by Miss Fay Devins, Home Economist for Lennox and Addington, Hastings and Northumberland.

The girls spent the morning judging a class of low cost menus giving oral reasons, identifying hazards about the home and answering a safety pretest.

Each club girl had on display a record book, her personal defence chest for herself and her home and a first aid kit.

Each of the seven clubs set up an exhibit portraying different aspects of the project. Everyone exhibited "Six Books We Have Read"—Nancy Cecilia gave the comment for the Demonstrative club, Margaret Haight for the Bloomfield club, Mary Devenney for Gilbert's Mills and Lois Squire for Hillier. Each girl also covered an excellent choice of books for every taste in reading.

Cherry Valley exhibited "The Way of Good Health," emphasizing good nutrition, posture, exercise and rest with Gloria Papic as commentator.

Wellington — Gilsed and Mountain View chose to exhibit "It's Great to be a Canadian" highlighting Canada's freedom of worship and speech, freedom from want and fear, and our wealth of natural resources.

The demonstrations further reviewed work studied in the project when Allisonville, Cherry Valley, Demorestville and Gilbert's Mills each presented a skit on "Spotless Foods Are Safe Foods". These included hobbies such as music, reading and crafts, etc. Three clubs chose to demonstrate "First Aid in the Home," Bloomfield, Mountain View and Wellington-Gilsed. First Aid for common accidents in the home and the Holger-Nielsen method of artificial respiration were demonstrated by the girls. Mrs. Florence McKibbon, superintendent of the St. John Ambulance Brigade was present to help clear up some questions about first aid.

OFFERS AID

Another phase of the project was review when the M.O.H. Dr. Fridell, reminded the girls that the first aid kit's main object for health and offered the services of his staff of the Prince Edward County Health unit.

Mrs. Howard Sager, public sanitary inspector, answered a few questions about the drinking water facilities and had had a sample of their drinking water tested.

Upon completion of this project, Mrs. Bryan Crook, Wellington-Gilsed; Mrs. Lloyd Barber, Mountain View, received certificates (12 projects) presented by Miss Jean Scott. Miss Jean Barber, Mountain View and Miss Rita Gervais, Demorestville, received county honors (24 projects), presented by Mrs. Bernard Brooks, district Women's Institute president, with some appropriate remarks. 28 girls received a certificate of achievement upon completion of two projects. A record of achievement for every girl in the project completed and a silver teaspoon given to each girl completing. Recognition should be made of Sybil Redner of Redners-

SPRING

When in the west the sunset dyes the sky,
When soft the vagrant winds that wander by,
When in the air is felt a pulsing life
An aftermath of winter's storm and strife;
When evergreens take on a livelier hue,
Then spring has come to bless the earth anew.

When in the early morn a robin sings
And in the air a flash of blue-bird's wings;
When a deep blush adorns the maple tree
When sings the streamlet from its fetters free;
When all the air a subtle fragrance fills—
Then spring is coming o'er the distant hills.

When in the wildwood pushing through the mould,
The adder-tongues show petals of pure gold;
When every step gives out the cheering word
That Nature's heart to life and light is stirred,
When all the 'old-time glamor' spreads anew
I know that Spring has come, my heart, to you.

—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — It matters not how pleasant the winter may have been, nor how delightful has been the cheer of home and hearth, there is a joyousness and enchantment in the coming of spring that is altogether indescribable. Ford Announces A $625,000,000 Plant Expansion

NEW YORK (AP)—Henry Ford II, announcing a $625,000,000 three-year expansion program for the Ford Motor Co., says he favors a new kind of "prosperity insurance" for workers.

Ford told the bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association Thursday night that his company's spending plans for new plants and equipment means "we are building for the future every day."

Apparently with the proposed guaranteed annual wage in mind, he said the word "security" does not score him and added:

"Perhaps what is needed is a new kind of prosperity insurance policy based on a reasonable, businesslike, pay-as-you-go plan, with limited and predictable costs."

Ford's company currently is bargaining with the CIO United Auto Workers on a union demand for a guaranteed annual wage — a guarantee of pay for so many weeks a year even if there are seasonal layoffs.

In commenting on the negotiations, Ford said:

"I'd like to make it perfectly clear that nothing I say in this connection should be interpreted as representing a Ford Motor Co. position either for or against the guaranteed annual wage."

In Detroit, Walter P. Reuther, CIO president and Auto Workers' head, said:

"We are prepared to discuss the soundness, the justice and the merits of our demands across the bargaining table. I hope Mr. Ford will meet his responsibility by participating in these negotiations. . . I hope Mr. Ford will join us at an early date."

Door-to-Door Book Salesmen Have Grievance

OTTAWA (CP) — Seventh-Day Adventists Thursday rapped municipal ordinances barring door-to-door book salesmen and what they termed a trend toward censorship in the fight against lewd and vicious-filled comic books.

J. Milton Tracy of Oshawa, publishing secretary, told the fifth quadrennial session of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church in Canada:

"The present trend toward prohibitory ordinances governing the sale and distribution of books by door-to-door salesmen ... (is) a serious threat to one of the basic freedoms essential to the preservation of our way of life."

HAS A RIGHT

Any community had the right to protect its citizens from "fly-by-night" salesmen, but there is a growing concern that some towns in Canada are coming dangerously near to the police-state attitude in this matter."

When any person is permitted to decide whether a particular book can be sold in a community on what the license for this privilege should be, said Mr. Tracy, the whole structure of liberty is threatened, "despite all the pious protestations to the contrary."

Darren L. Michael of Oshawa, executive secretary of the church's public affairs department, said censorship is not the answer in ridding newsstands of salacious literature.

"The greatest contribution that lovers of liberty can make is not to cry out against the valid evils, but to offer a constructive alternative in wholesome literature that will appeal to readers."

Govt. Support Plan to Increase Exports of Gas

By GEORGE RITCHEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Plan to increase exports of U.S. natural gas into northwestern Canada was disclosed Thursday before the Federal Power Commission.

A letter from Canadian Trade Minister Howe affirming that support was sent into the record as the commission completed its hearing of an application by a U.S. pipeline company, Panhandle Eastern, for permission to boost its gas exports by Union Gas Company of Canada, by 15,500,000,000 cubic feet a year.

Howe's letter, addressed to commission chairman J. K. Kuykendall and entered in the record by commission counsel, stressed the need for more American gas to help sup the market in Ontario until such time as Alberta natural gas can be piped to eastern Canada.

TECHNICAL TESTIMONY

The last Canadian witness in the three-day hearing was F. R. Palin, assistant general manager of Union Gas, who was cross-examined on technical detail by commission counsel and counsel for U.S. coal interests opposing the application.

There was no indication when the commission might rule on the request. The Canadian proposal is only one segment of an over-all application by Panhandle Eastern dealing with gas supplies and a number of witnesses still are to be heard on other phases of the case.

Union Gas now receives 5,580,000,000 cubic feet a year from Panhandle Eastern under an export permit granted in 1946. If the commission authorizes the additional supplies, Union Gas proposes to build a $22,250,000 pipeline through western Ontario and services Hamilton, Kitchener, Waterloo, Guelph and Stratford.

Will Receive Legacy

TORONTO (CP) — Dilly Lee Cheels Wilson will receive a $5,000 trust fund established for a university education even though he never went to college, Mr. Justice H. A. Ayles of the Supreme Court of Ontario ruled Thursday.

Jacob Terryberry Lee of St. Catharines, who died in 1934, left the money in trust for his nephew with the provision "if any surplus remains after his 21st birthday it is to go to the university. If direct my executors to pay same over to him immediately thereafter." The fund has grown to $11,000.

Mrs. Wilson, now 39, has never attended university but has taken short courses at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Mr. Justice Ayles said the legacy constituted a trust "for the general education of the nephew" and Mr. Lee is entitled to "the balance" of the fund.

'Fix Somewhere' In Sweep Tickets Says Pax Plante

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Welfare Council said Thursday illegal, large-scale sales of Irish sweepstake tickets could be stamped out by a federal law preventing them from entering Canada.

Officials of the council also urged before the Commons-Senate committee on capital and corporal punishment and lotteries that imports be "restricted" in publicizing the sweepstakes because they served only to popularize them.

The council delegation included police chief J. A. Robert of Hull, Que., and Pacifique (Pax) Plante, assistant director of Montreal police.

Chief Robert urged the committee to investigate the method by which Irish sweepstake tickets enter Canada. They were imported in large quantities, yet it was illegal to sell them in Canada.

Mr. Plante said "there is a fix somewhere." Customs officers "could not be more efficient or less efficient that these tickets could come into Canada without being detected."

IMPORT NOT BANNED

D. G. Blair of Ottawa, committee counsel, said imports of sweepstake tickets are not banned by federal law. Only their sale was prohibited.

Mr. Plante said if the tickets can be imported legally "there is no pay off." However, "where tickets are sold in Canada I have no reason to believe that there is not a pay off." There had to be a payoff somewhere if sales were being permitted.

Federal Govt. Gives Ruling On Witnesses

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government says provincial legislatures have no constitutional power to prohibit freedom of religious worship.

It also contends that three Quebec provincial police officers who broke up a meeting of Jehovah's witnesses in Chapeau, Que., in September, 1946, can claim no defence under the Magistrate's Privilege Act of Quebec.

This argument will be advanced by the justice department in the Supreme Court appeal of Reynolds Chaput, self-styled Jehovah's witness evangelist, scheduled to be heard next week. Written arguments supporting the government's stand was submitted to the court Thursday.

DISMISSED IN QUEBEC

Chaput is appealing a judgment of the Quebec courts dismissing his claim for $5,000 damages from the provincial policemen for alleged violation of religious freedom, his rights as a citizen and seizure of a Bible and other literature.

The officers broke up a Bible session attended by about 25 persons in Chaput's home. They testified Chaput had pamphlets containing "diabolical libel" and was "arousing animosity and hatred between different classes of society."

The lower courts upheld their stand on the ground they were acting in good faith on orders from superiors and were entitled to protection afforded under the Magistrate's Privilege Act.

The federal argument will be opposed by the Quebec government, which contends the provinces have jurisdiction equal to that of Parliament in maintaining "peace, order and good order within provincial boundaries."

Anti-Government Plot Uncovered In Argentine

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — A number of Argentine Roman Catholics are under arrest after the discovery of an alleged Catholic "terrorist" anti-government plot.

A police communique here said: "A group of people, Catholics and known enemies of the government, held meetings in Canelas town, about 60 miles from Buenos Aires, with a view to preparing a widespread revolt and making an attempt against the lives of public men on May 1."

The plot is claimed to have spread to Buenos Aires, and thousands of leaflets are said to have been found. The communique named a priest, Rev. Jose Boriati-delli, as one of seven people who were preparing a leaflet called "Catholic and nobody else."

Two priests are reported to have been arrested in Santa Fe province for alleged contempt of President Juan Peron while speaking from the pulpit.

Peron warned certain priests last November to stay out of politics. Since then an anti-church press campaign has been conducted and separation of the church and state has been predicted.

"AND THE REST OF LUCK"

Hello begins at thirty for a lot of guys this year, April 30—that is.

By late tonight they will have shaken the city dust and debris from their brogans, and headed northward for the stream-ribboned, lake-dotted woodlands where tomorrow they hope to keep an important date.

And in other parts of the province it is estimated that 100,000 of their counterparts will be doing precisely the same thing.

Awaiting their coming in rivers, lakes and creeks will be thousands of speckled beauties, regarded by the majority as the most beautiful fish in the world—and one of the smartest. The name "The Poor Fish" was never bestowed on the original ancestor of the speckled trout.

"Ole Speck" is a wily cuss. And about as dependable as a mother-in-law for a five-dollar touch. He is as moody as an opera star—and at times can be as co-operative as a loan shark. If you want him to "come and to my house" you have jo find him in the proper frame of mind.

The smartest fisherman in the world with his million-dollar gear and well-thumbed tomes on trout fishing, will have no more luck than the traditional barefoot boy with his bamboo pole and bent pin if "Ole Squaretail" is not in a receptive mood.

He has been known to flash to his pet hide-away at the mere tremor of a floating leaf. At other times, he will let himself at a bait his every sense with all the abandon of a freefall star-smashing at an enemy line.

That is the chance the boys of the rod and reel have to take tomorrow, the opening day of the trout-fishing season.

The odds this year are approximately 3-1 in favor of the angler. Old Mother Nature, herself as fickle as Ole Squaretail, has tossed in her lot with the fans of the rod and reel. She has cleared the lakes of ice, and arranged for a low water level.

The trouble is, she has not a working arrangement with the weather man. They have been "fighting" each other to death since time began.

If the weather boy will "lay off" and let Mother Nature take her course, everything looks hunky-dory for we winter-weary laddybucks, who yearn for the tug on the line, and the sight of a half-dozen drool-producing speckled sizzling golden brown in a skillet.

Bob Sheppard, fish and wildlife inspector of the Tweed district of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, a guy who should, and does know whereof he speaks—told us the other day that the setting for the 1955 trout season upcoming is well-nigh perfect.

"That is," smiled the genial Robert, "up to the minute." That was two days ago.

Bob is the authority for the information that the lakes are clear of ice and the low water level in the trout haunts. However, he added a note of warning: "It is up to the weather man and the trout," he said. "Everything else is perfect."

But while all these things are in favor of the angler, the most experienced of the trout boys will not say "five cents you five" there will be limit hauls. No sir. As was said before, even with the weather and setting in favor, the natural cussedness of the trout-seeking sabots will be up to "Ole Squaretail" himself.

You can have the most brilliant stage production in the world, star-studded with clever actors. But if the show is no good, it flops.

The stars in this piscatorial show represent the most beautiful in fish. Many novices will have no trouble in identifying one if he goes for your bait. If his back is greenish to dark brown and occasionally almost black; if heavy, dark, wavy lines can be seen on the sides; if there are red spots bordered by a bluish halo, and if the leading edge of each lower fin has a milk-white border—brother—you've got yourself a speckle.

But if he is over thirty inches long; has a head like a gargoyle, a mouth like the opening of an outside cellar door, a long slinky body and a cloven tail, you've got a muisky or a pike—or that last swig you took was too big. And if the spring at the table feeds you an unreasonable facsimile of the trout you caught and it greets you in an oily atmosphere, you've been the victim of a can opener. It will be the ole reliable sardine.

And be satisfied with your catch. Don't get any record-breaking ideas. Down in this part of Ontario the average speckle caught usually is under a pound in weight. If you hook a five-pounder or better, pike to the nearest conservation officer and report it. Enter it in fishing contests. If your catch tips the scales at seven pounds or better, buy a new hat. It should win top prize in any competition.

It is extremely doubtful, however, if you will crack the world record. This speckled beauty weighed 14½ pounds, measured 41 inches in length and was taken from the Nipigon River by Dr. W. J. Cook of Port Arthur. The mark has remained unchallenged since 1915.

As we said before "Ole Squaretail" is unpredictable as to his diet. Most fishermen in the opening days use a wet fly, a bunch of feathers and hooks made up to represent a minnow. This is one of Ole Speck's weaknesses. Later, in warmer weather he will go for the dry fly. Here again the trout has his day. According to his mood he might gulp it or slap it with his tail in a familiar gesture. He likes this sport at death. Lake trout fishermen say that a speckle has been taken by the spoons they use. But don't bank too much on that.

That's it. And any of you chaps who come home with a surplus of specksels, remember: the phone number is WO8-8338.

Tag 5 Kansas City Hurlers As 'Mickey' Hits Two Homers; Labine Wins It for 'Oiskin'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Billy Hoeft, a lefty who has lost twice as many as he's won for Detroit in the past, told manager Bucky Harris this spring that this is the season he becomes a winner. "Show me," said Harris.

So far, the kid's been showing Harris. And since he started winning, the Tigers have been unbeatable riding a five-game winning streak to within a half game of the American League lead.

It was Hoeft, a 25-year-old with three major league seasons behind him, who started the streak, shutting out the defending champion Cleveland Indians 3-0 on three hits last Saturday and it was Hoeft again Thursday night as the Tigers won No. 5, beating the Washington Senators 4-1.

Hoeft came up with the Tigers in 1952, bagged a loser. But with an 18-36 record to show for three seasons, Harris had him in mind for the bullpen this spring when Bucky took over after getting the gate at Pittsburgh.

STUCK OUT 6

Thursday night he whittled his earned run average down to 0.83 with Washington's lone tally unearned. Hoeft walked but one and struck out six.

Except for some shabby fielding and wild throws by Kansas City Athletics Thursday night, the Tigers would be in first place today with Detroit and the defending champs sharing second with the Indians. The A's downed the New York Yankees an 11-4 triumph and with it the Bombers jumped back into the lead.

Chicago's White Sox tumbled out of first in a big way, losing to Boston and Ivan Delock, who spun a three-hitter for a 3-1 victory. Cleveland and Baltimore were idle.

In the National Brooklyn opened up a four-game spread over second place Milwaukee, coming from behind to beat the Chicago Cubs 4-2 in day contest.

The Braves were beaten by Willie Jones' homer in the ninth Thursday night at Philadelphia 3-2. Cincinnati broke up a six-game losing streak 3-2 at Pittsburgh under the lights and New York's Giants beat St. Louis 8-4 at the Polo Grounds in an afternoon game.

ALSO A HOMER

Detroit not only got another fine pitching effort from Hoeft—he allowed just six singles—but also had a home run, double, triple and a single and double from able Al Kaline, who boosted his average to .400 while stretching his hitting streak through 13 games. Rookie Harry Malmberg got the other triple and started loser Dean Stone on the shortest route to the plate for first-base hit, a two-run single in the sixth.

The Yanks tagged five Kansas City pitchers for 13 hits—including a two-run homer by Mickey Mantle and ran three runs across in the sixth without a single safety. Two hit batsmen, three walks and an error that prevented the third out accounted for the gifts. Yogi Berra homered for the A's, who now lead the AL with 18, but it wasn't any help as Mantle, a three-game winning streak. Don Larsen, the guy who pitched a no-hitter in his first start and started loser Dean Stone on the shortest route to the plate for first-base hit, a two-run single in the sixth.

Brooklyn was handcuffed by the Cubs' Bob Rush until the seventh. Then the Dodgers scored four—three on Carl Furillo's seventh home run—to overcome a 2-0 Chicago lead provided by Rush's home run in the fifth. Ed Roebuck, who had only one hit until the seventh, now have won 13 of 15. Clem Labine finished the latest stanza, coming on when starter Carl Erskine was hit for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Philadelphia also had a tough time getting like until late in the game. Gran Hamner led off the eighth with a double, only third hit allowed by Lew Burdette, and scored on a fly to the R at 3-2, setting off Braves' rally. Jones led off the ninth. Robin Roberts was the pitcher, driving his third victory against one defeat as the Braves lost their fifth of the season—all by one-run margins.

The Cardinals, idle all week, blew a three-run lead in the fourth when the New Yorkers scored four times and Ray Rodriek consumed three of their four errors. That wiped out the benefit of Stan Musial's two-run homer and sent Harvey Haddix to his first defeat. Jim Hearn won his third, although Marv Grissom made his eighth appearance in 13 games to save it. Ruben Gomez, the ex-Giant hurler whose .417 average dwindled to .385 in a thirsty day, on a yen to end Baltimore and New York Yankees. the seventh with the bases loaded.

Charles Victory Hoists Holman To 5th Place

NEW YORK (AP)—Johnny Holman's astonishing sixth round knockout of Ezzard Charles has vaulted the comparatively unknown Chicago fighter into a fifth ranking in the heavyweight division in the monthly ratings of Ring Magazine.

Editor Nat Fleischer today moved the 27-year-old Chicago Negro behind Cuba's Nino Valdes, England's Don Cockell, Pittsburgh's Bob Baker and New York's Hurricane Tommy Jackson.

Charles, the 33-year-old former champion was dropped from fourth to sixth place.

The members of the heavyweight elite 10 include Rex Walls, Trenton, Texas, Utah, Ezzie Mapstone, Germany, and James J. Parker, Trenton, Paterson, N.J., in that order. Charley Norkus of Fort Washington, N.Y., who was 10th in Canada, was eliminated to make room for Holman.

Norkus and Tony DeMarco, the Bostonian who won the welterweight crown by stopping Johnny Saxton, the 14th ranked man, named the fighters of the month for February.

Saxton was ranked as the No. 3 contender behind Carmen Basilio of Canastota, N.Y. Basilio meets DeMarco for the title in Syracuse, N.Y., June 10.

20 Secondary Schools' Harriers Will Start in Cross-Country Race

Wednesday afternoon, May 11th, will see some 30 conditioned students of B.C.I.V.S. and Quinte Secondary Schools competing for the Ken Codling Memorial trophy and $60 in cash prizes in the 11th annual 5 1/4 mile cross-country race.

The race originated in 1945 but it wasn't until 1948, shortly after the death of Mr. Ken Codling, that Cleo Codling donated the beautiful trophy as a memorial to his brother. Ken was a prominent sportsman in Quinte and one of Belleville's most prominent sportsmen as well as editor of the Ontario Intelligencer for more than ten years. He was succeeded by George H. Carver in this position. Cleo, a well-known druggist in the city is also a graduate of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School.

This will be the first year that the race has been a two-school affair with Quinte Secondary School students joining those from B.C.I.V.S. Homer "Red" Townsend, athletic director for the collegiate, expects about 10 entries from the new school and around 12 from his own school to toe the starting line.

PRIZE DIVISION

Among the starters will be five of last year's money winners including the present holder of the trophy Bill "Sammy" Gault. The $60 prize money is divided among the first five finishers with the finish line with win, place and show drawing $13.50, $9 and $6 respectively. Finishers will receive $5, $3 and $2 in that order.

The winner also receives a miniature of the Codling trophy to keep and has his name inscribed on the large cup presented at the commencement in the fall. Everyone starting the race will be awarded a crest as a reward for training. The school will post available safety measures. Each boy is examined by a doctor before the race begins and first aid cars accompany the runners around the track.

The course, the same one used since the first race in 1945, measures exactly 5 1/4 miles. The race begins from the collegiate campus at 4.40 p.m. and heads east on Queen Street to MacDonald Ave., on to Victoria Ave. to Greenlawn and from there to the corner of Herchimer Ave. and Station street by the shortest possible route. The runners are allowed to take their own route across country to the crossing of the second concession beyond the CNR coal chutes.

On the return trip, they will pass through or around the round house and start the long haul home down the straightaway north of the CNR tracks, across the College Street bridge, down East Moira to North Front, across the upper bridge, along Station Street to Church and up that long Church St. hill to the finish line opposite the collegiate. Ten spotters are placed at different points of the course and all runners must report as they go by, making sure they are on the allotted course.

Bill Gault won last year in 32.03 minutes, the second lowest time in the history of the meet, just eight seconds off the record time set by George Ewald in 1950.

The initial winner was Stewart Woods with a 34.27 time, followed by Morris Bradshaw in '46 and '47 with 37.21 and 35.37 times. George Ewald started a three year string in 1948 with times of 32.37, 32.06 and his record-holding 31.55 in '50. Harvey Stoliker took the honors in 1951 with a 34.08, Sherman Brant in '52 in 33 minutes flat and Hugh Wilson preceded Gault as cup-holder with a mark of 34.32 in 1953.

SHOEMAKERS OK IN SPELL

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — Willie Shoemaker, the leading American jockey since 1953, apparently escaped serious injury Thursday when he somersaulted over the head of his stumbling mount at Golden Gate Fields.

The veteran jockey will be detained overnight in hospital but Dr. Edward O'Regan, track physician, said it seemed almost certain Shoemaker would be able to keep his commitment to ride Swaps in the Kentucky Derby.

Dutchmen Win Allan Cup For Second Time In Three Years

Second-Period 3-Goal Drive Marks 5-3 Win Over Beavers; Rally Strongly For Victory

KITCHENER (CP)—Two players, one who refused to be traded to another team and the other who reached senior ranks because of a cut made by Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen to their second Allan Cup championship in three years.

Charlie Brooker, the letwinger who was supposed to go to Brantford earlier this season, scored two goals and Pete Kowalchuk, a replacement for the injured Buddy Horne, added th cfinal tally Thursday night as Dutchmen swept the Canadian senior hockey title with a 5-3 victory over Port William Beavers. Dutchmen took the series 4-1.

The 15-year-old Brooker was given back his uniform when he refused to report to Stratford. Kowalchuk was called up from the Woodstock senior "Sees when Horne was knocked cut across the nose in an earlier game.

BIG NIGHT

It was a big night for Kitchener coach Buddy Bauer, who took over from defenceman Clare Martin early in the season.

Dutchies won the opener of the best-of-seven series 3-2, lost the second 6-4 and took the next three 5-2, 7-6 and 5-3. In 1953 they beat Penticton Vs 4-1 in the final series.

A fiery-tempered scrap in the second period Thursday night gave Dutchmen a power play. They spotted the western champions a 1-0 first-period lead and saw it increased to 3-0 on Bob Bowcott's goal.

Dutchie s tallied three goals in the middle period to take the lead. They outscored Beavers 3-1 in the windup period.

Brooker, who scored Tuesday's winning goal, was Dutchmen's leading scorer with three goals. Theberge, Jim Logan and Kowalchuk added singles.

John Irving, Tic Kyrykiw and Jerry Ritt scored for Beavers.

Dutchmen, who have asked to represent Canada in the 1956 world hockey tournament, were upset by Penticton, met their toughest obstacle in cup preliminaries when they had to win both ends to prove of a best-of-seven eastern Canada semi-final to sidelining Scott Stu, Marie Graybounds. They beat the Moncton Hawks 4-1 in games in the best-of-seven semi-final.

A crowd of 6,220 saw Beavers paint off Red Ivers 2-1 in 3:10 less than three minutes after the opening face-off for the only first-period scoring.

Kyrykiw made it 2-0 at 3:09 of the second when he intercepted a pass from coach Bob Draisaitle past Keith Woodall from close in.

Brooker scored when he slipped through the defence and beat goalkeeper Paul Meek at 4:57. Theberge tied the count at 3-3, 12 seconds later when he took a goalmouth pass from Jerry Lanman and found an opening. Brooker received credit for the next goal when his goalmouth pass went in off a Port William player after Ryan Hemer and Kowalchuk took swipes at the puck.

Jim Logan and Kowalchuk scored third-period goals at 7:16 and 8:36 to give Dutchmen a solid lead before Ritt counted for Beavers with only 17 seconds left in the game. It was a clean, fast game with only six penalties, three to each team. Also dismissed of the Beavers drew a misconduct in the middle frame when he went to teammate Tom Rousseau's aid in a scuffle with Kitchener's Howie Lee.

PGA FUNDAMENTAL No. 4
Delayed Wrist Action

I think the PGA Teaching Committee's fourth fundamental of a correct swing — delayed wrist action — is just about the most important one.

Too many average golfers seem to have no understanding of this. The result is they throw the clubhead from the top." That is, they uncock their wrists at the start of the downswing and therefore come across the ball from the outside in, creating a slice. This also robs them of considerable power.

Your downswing must not start with arm or wrist action. It must start with a rotation of hips and shoulders. The feeling I get is one of driving the grip end of the club toward the ball.

Your wrists remain fully cocked until your hands are almost into the striking zone — until it almost seems too late. Thus the clubhead is not out in a wide arc from your body during most of the downswing, but hovering over your right shoulder, more or less.

It's actually impossible to delay the uncocking of the wrists too long. If your head remains steady throughout the swing. The accelerating weight of the clubhead will force your wrists to uncock in ample time.

Flyers Whip Cataracts 6-3 To Even Series

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Que. (CP)—Shawinigan Falls Cataracts gratefully take to the road again today after failing to break the home-ice jinx held over them by the Edmonton Flyers.

The Flyers, who seem to play their best on Shawinigan Falls ice, squared the best-of-nine series for the Edinburgh Trophy Thursday night by turning back the Cataracts 6-3. It was the second win of the series for Edmonton — both in games played here. The Cataracts' two victories have come on neutral Montreal ice.

Edmonton goalie Glenn Hall was the main stumbling block in the path of the Cataracts as he turned back 31 shots, 11 of them in the final period when the Shawinigan Falls players kept the puck burning around his net almost continually.

Despite the 6-3 score, the game wasn't decided until the last few minutes of play. Trailing 4-3, playing coach Roger Leger yanked goalie Bob Perreault in an attempt to tie the score and the Flyers Hugh Currie and Bill Hunkiewicz got one each. Gilles Dube, Claude Provost and Jean-Paul Lalonde scored for the Shawinigan Falls.

Maple Leafs Win Five in Row But Can't Gain On Sugar Kings

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Toronto Maple Leafs keep winning, but they can't make headway against Havana's Sugar Kings who are clinging desperately to first place in the International League pennant race.

The Leafs, who now have won five in a row, topped Syracuse 5-1 Thursday night to stay within half a game of the Havana club, which shut out Buffalo in an afternoon contest 6-0.

The most eye-catching performance in a day replete with outstanding hurling was Don Lehman's four-hitter as Montreal beat the Richmond Virginians 10-0. The Royals' southpaw ace faced only 29 batters while his teammates took advantage of five Richmond errors, to pile up a 13-0 triumph to the delight of 11,300 Montrealers who turned out for opening day.

Toronto's Cosmo Johnson pitched a five-hitter against Syracuse to gain his third victory in three outings, and would have had a shutout but for a wild pitch after a triple by Bob Micelotta in the third. The righthander struck out seven while facing the route—the third consecutive complete game by a Leaf pitcher—and personally drove in the winning run in the fourth inning with a base hit following safeties by Ed Stevens and Don Griffin to break a 1-1 tie.

For the Chicks, who played under protest from the third inning when manager Skeeter Newsome was ejected for disputing the game Seth Morehead absorbed the loss, his first against one victory.

The Sugar Kings spoiled Buffalo's home opener before 11,638 fans as Willie Powell scattered eight Bison hits to gain his first win of the season of the year. The Cubans sewed up the contest with a three-run outburst in the third, routing starter Babe Birrer. The big blow of the inning was Pedro Formenthal's two-run homer.

Toronto's win came before a chilly crowd of 4,081 fans.

Leftfielder Archie Wilson, cleanup man for Leafs, led the 13-hit Toronto barrage and gave Syracuse pitchers with a single and a double that scored two runs. Shortstop Hector Rodriguez had three hits in five trips to the plate.

The Leafs, in winning their last five games, have scored 53 runs—an average of about 11 runs a game.

Parks became the second Syracuse casualty in two days when he was struck in the groin by a foul tip in the seventh inning. He was replaced by Ed Krauth. John Blatnik suffered a broken collar bone in Toronto's opening game here Wednesday.

Montreal capitalized on sloppy fielding by the Virginians for their opening day victory. Only four of the Montreal runs were earned as the Virginians committed five errors, three by Ed Stevens, one when the Royals pushed across six runs.

Lehman, the southpaw ace of the Montreal pitching staff, allowed only two runners to get as far as third base as he methodically mowed down the 29 batters he faced. He gave up two walks and struck out four in racking up his fifth victory without a defeat.

Mario Picone, the starter and loser for Richmond, was the victim of his mates' bad fielding. The Royals pushed across a run in the third inning when Lehman singled, went to second when Charlie Neal walked and was safe at third when Russ Kerns dropped Picone's throw. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Bobby Wilson and Neal came across when Rocky Nelson grounded out.

The Virginians fell apart in the sixth after Dick Teed of the Royals singled and Glen Cimoli doubled to put men on second and third. Chico Fernandez walked to fill the bases and a double play grounder by Lehman scored Cimoli, the lead allowing Teed to score. Leftfielder Vic Morasco dropped Neal's easy fly for the scoring, and Jack Mayo followed with a sacrifice fly, bringing Fernandez across. Wilson singled home Lehman and then worked a double steal with Neal for another run. Wilson advanced to third on a throwing error by Eddie Kasko and scored on Nelson's grounder.

Leafs Smith Wins Lady Byng Memorial Trophy

MONTREAL (CP) — Bill Smith, 25-year-old Toronto Maple Leafs' left-winger, is 1954-55 winner of the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy, the National Hockey League announced Thursday.

The trophy is awarded on the basis of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high degree of playing ability. Selectors were hockey writers, broadcasters and telecasters in the six NHL cities.

Smith had 114 of a possible 180 points. Danny Lewicki of New York Rangers was next with 72. Red Kelly of Detroit Red Wings, winner for the last two years, was third in the balloting with 33.

In addition to the trophy, Smith gets $1,000 from the NHL. He is a two-time winner, first getting the award in 1951-52 season. He was the least penalized player in the league in the 1954-55 season with only 14 minutes served in all 70 games. He was also voted the best-looking player in NHL first all-star team, recently announced.

A fellow we once met in the billiards room of an Atlantic liner told us about a Scotsman who was getting twenty cents change every time he spent a nickel in the ship's candy bar. It turned out that the Scotsman had been pinching nickels for so long that he had developed a terrific grip. As a result when he squeezed a nickel he spread it out to the size of a quarter.

Wholesale Schedule Changes Will be Made in Fall Shows

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — If you think of television networks have been battling this season, you haven't seen anything yet. Just wait until next fall.

In their fight for audiences they're planning wholesale schedule changes and new programs that will require the viewer who tunes in by habit to memorize again.

There also will be notable casualties in the race for ratings, among them NBC-TV's "Mr. Peepers" and the Ray Milland show on CBS, due to bow off in a few weeks.

In the upcoming battle CBS will toss some 90-minute spectaculars at its own against NBC, which started them this season, and NBC will step up its own output.

COMO VS. GLEASON

NBC will have at least one added starter a month, a Sunday afternoon dramatic spectacle to be produced by Maurice Evans. CBS is pondering with Noel Coward and Mary Martin to participate in a project.

Saturday nights NBC is expected to pit a new one-hour Perry Como show against CBS' Jackie Gleason.

ABC is taking over the Wednesday night boxing bouts, now telecast on CBS, starting in June. CBS will take over the alternate-week Theatre Guild dramatic show now on ABC. And ABC has just made a deal for next season to carry the telecasts by Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, seen on Du Mont the last three seasons.

ABC also plans a new Disney kiddies show, to be telecast five afternoons a week, and a weekly dramatic show to be filmed by Warner Brothers for Tuesday night showing.

The Thursday night dramatic program "Climax" on CBSITV will be continued through the summer

AT THE McCARTHY

A NEW ROMANTIC TEAM

Tenderly moving in its approach to a modern love affair, "Chances Meeting," which comes to the McCarthy Theatre, Monday for three days, is a story of our time. Its heartwarming theme deals with two young and lonely people, and their fight for the right to love in a complex situation which threatens to keep them apart.

Theirs is the story, the agonizing, heart-breaking story, of the relentless fight they must face if they and their love, are to survive. To bring this story realistically close to the hearts of everyone, it was decided to find as the young lovers, comparatively unknown artists. Delightful French actress Odile Versois, seen only twice before in an English language film, was an obvious choice. Odile, as a not too regularly seen performer, could easily be identified with any lovely, young woman, lonely in her seclusion in a strange country. This same identification could be applied to American actor David Knight, completely unknown on the screen. He could be any typical lonely young man living in London.

Together, this romantic team is the first time in the first time in "Chance Meeting," a film where two young people discover love for the first time.

Together, Odile Versois and David Knight now bring to the screen, a tender moving story of young love—a story as timely as tomorrow's headlines.

More Opposition to Mixed Marriages in Japan Than Here

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Sgt. Hugh O'Reilly, a onetime "Jap-hater" who ended up married to a Japanese girl and adopting an Osaka orphanage, has just been through the experience of watching his own life being filmed.

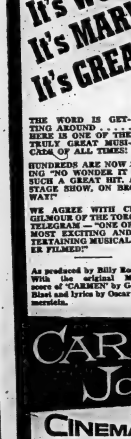
Hod did it feel?

"Kind of strange," said the tall, rugged sergeant from New York City. "I didn't think it would affect me, but I found myself bawling as I watched some of the scenes."

O'Reilly's story was recently filmed by Columbia in Japan under the title of "Gentle Wolfhound." That's the name of the regiment with which he fought in Korea. Now the studio may rename the film "Sergeant O'Reilly." The sarge doesn't cotton to the idea.

"Sure, it's a compliment to me," he said, "and I'd be a liar if I didn't say so. But I think the credit should go to the regiment. The men in it contribute $2.000 a month for the support of the orphanage."

DRAMATIC STORY



O'Reilly's story, which Aldo Ray enacts on the screen, is a dramatic one about the marines after Pearl Harbor. He served four years, then tried civilian life for three. He went back to the army, hoping to get service in Germany. He was sent to Japan.

"I'll admit I was sort over there with a chip on my shoulder," he said. "When you're fed a lot of misconceptions about a foreign people, you find yourself ready to dislike them. It took a while, but I had my ideas changed."

O'Reilly not only changed his ideas; he lost his heart to a pretty Japanese interpreter. She is Mrs. O'Reilly now.

His he encountered at home any opposition to a Japanese bride?

"Quite the contrary. I find that people go out of their way to make us comfortable. When we walk down the street, people smile at us, when my wife is in a store, the manager often sees that she is taken care of. As a matter of fact, I think there is more opposition to mixed marriages in Japan than here."

It's WONDERFUL! It's MARVELOUS! It's GREAT!

THE WORD IS GETTING AROUND . . . . . HERE IS ONE OF THE TRULY GREAT MUSICALS OF ALL TIMES!

HUNDREDS ARE NOW SAYING "NO WONDER IT WAS SUCH A GREAT HIT, AS A STAGE SHOW, ON BROADWAY!"

WE AGREE WITH CLYDE GILMOUR OF THE TORONTO TELEGRAM — "ONE OF THE MOST EXCITING AND ENTERTAINING MUSICALS EVER FILMED!"

Want To Retain Sifton Trophy

WINNIPEG (CP)—The executive council of the Manitoba Curling Association has passed a resolution putting the organization on record as having the Dominion Curling Association continue to retain the Sifton Trophy as the emblem of the championship for Canadian school curlers.

The resolution, released Thursday by H. Axford, MCA president followed the decision of the Dominion Association at Regina last March, to form a committee to investigate an offer of a national soft drink firm to sponsor the Canadian schoolboy curling championship.

The resolution said the executive council of the Manitoba Associa tion felt the Winnipeg Free Press "has carried out this sponsorship in a manner very acceptable to our association."

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — New possibilities today; some pressure lessens after 5 p.m. The unexpected could upset and confuse you—but only if you fail to live up to Aries' fine characteristics.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Be thoughtfully on guard. Don't betray principles. Though the stars indicate some challenge today, with a little extra effort you keenly intelligent folks can build many advantages.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A slow-but-sure pace favored. The aspects offer little help, but Gemini generally makes opportunities, so use this asset wisely. Map plans before pushing on.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Not as restrictive now as you may think. Better chances surprise and benefits may arrive unexpectedly. Live in hope, cheer, and take positive action. Avoid unpleasantness.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Good sense and diplomacy could turn apparent setbacks into advantages. Ambition and the will to achieve can sweep obstacles aside.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Look up and beyond. You can be more convincing by remaining calm, by applying better techniques to your work.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Avoid needless chance-taking, risking money you can't afford. Family affairs, romance favored.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — If you have a tendency toward laziness or procrastination, think twice before indulging. Today's results, good or bad, will be tell-tale for days to come. Never say quit!

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Carpenters, musicians, electric workers, city and state employees may receive new benefits. Acquire the habit of thinking carefully before speaking or acting.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — There is need to be adroit, to get started early on your schedule. Restrictions from new sources may cause confusion now.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Not entirely inviting prospect. Be excited with bolding your own, progressing gradually. Be resolute, but stretch a point to please good contacts.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Simple and unpretentious methods will work best today. Handle all important matters carefully.

YOU BORN TODAY like harmony, favor the arts, music, painting, etc. You should become a witty public speaker or a leader of groups; can calm the angry, soothe the sick. You are likely at times to drift, thus you require self-discipline. Apply yourself continuously and you can advance in any occupation or activity you choose — and at any age. Lay the foundation now for future health. Birthdate of: Sir John Lubbock, banker, statesman, naturalist.

Are Now 17 Children in U.S. Ill With Polio After Shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada's post-inoculation outbreak of polio stood at 12 cases today, raising to 17 the number of treated American children who are known to have contracted the disease.

Bad Surgeon General Leonard Scheele, who heads the United States public health service, reiterated his confidence in the Salk polio vaccine and added:

"There is nothing unusual about the polio picture across the nation. It follows very closely to the five-year months."

Without reference to the vaccine, the health service said it had reports of 106 new polio cases in 47 states last week, compared with 117 for the whole of the comparable week last year. Such reports are made weekly.

SPECIAL TABULATION

In a special tabulation, the service listed 11 cases in which children who had received their first shot of the vaccine had contracted polio, but the California state health department recorded additional cases on which reports had not yet reached Washington. The total thus included 12 in California, two in Idaho—including one fatality—and one each in Illinois, Colorado and Georgia.

All except the Georgia child had received inoculations with vaccine prepared by the Cutter Laboratories of Berkeley, Calif. All unused supplies issued by that company have been withdrawn.

A "very exhaustive investigation" is under way to determine whether the Cutter vaccine was in any way at fault, or whether all of the affected youngsters had contracted the disease before receiving the shots. Most sickened in less than a week after the shots, although polio normally takes 10 to 14 days to develop after exposure.

LOVES DOGS

Mrs. Martha Bowers of Winnipeg, partially blind, fondles her pet dog, Beauty, after offering her body to the University of Manitoba medical school for experimental surgery. She made the offer at a city council meeting in protesting a recommendation that Winnipeg's stray dogs be turned over for medical research. She recently gave away a seeing-eye dog to a blind person and now is having another trained for herself. (CP Photo).

Winnipeg Anti-Vivisectionists Fight to Stop Stray Dogs Being Given to Medical School

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg's anti-vivisectionists, moved by a swelling tide of support from throughout the country, decided Thursday night to press on their fight against a proposal to turn all unclaimed dogs in the city pound over to the University of Manitoba medical school for experimental surgery.

The Winnipeg branch of the Anti-Vivisectionist League of Canada heard an impassioned plea to fight from Mrs. R. L. Bowers, a partially-blind Winnipeg woman who last Monday offered herself to medical science instead of a live dog.

Members were told a stream of letters, phone calls and telegrams arriving at the city hall from all over Canada—as well as a cable from Scotland—protesting the proposal by the city's public health committee. The recommendation will come before city council May 9 for final approval. The public health committee has decided to endorse the proposal.

They were offered the support—and the headquarters—of the Theosophical Society of Winnipeg. And from league headquarters in Ottawa came a $100 donation to assist in their campaign.

The league decided to meet again Sunday to lay plans for a public protest meeting.

Mrs. Bowers warned members that if the meeting were thrown open to the public "we are going to have to withstand scorn, ridicule—perhaps tomatoes and rotten eggs.

"But we are only going to get action if we get started," she said. "I suggest we be prepared for failure . . . let's fight the good fight and not be disheartened if failure comes first."

Mrs. Bowers said that since she offered herself to medical science she has been swamped with calls, some threatening the lives of her two children if she did not present herself at once to the university.

"Others have said I have made myself already ridiculous and have done no more than amuse the city with my antics . . . my love for humanity and for animals is such that I would gladly give my life for such as these. I have two children whom I love tremendously . . . the world is my family and this includes the animal kingdom."

Nehru Says India Plans Active Role In Formosa Crisis

Will Send Menon to Peiping To Seek End to War Threat

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru today said India proposes to take an active role toward solving the Formosa crisis.

As a first step, Nehru told the Indian parliament, his chief foreign-affairs adviser, V. K. Krishna Menon, plans to make a trip to Peiping.

"We propose to avail ourselves of such opportunities as we can toward solving this crisis," Nehru said, adding that his government has explored the Formosa situation through its envoys in London, Washington and Ottawa.

Menon, who heads India's delegation to the United Nations, has often represented Nehru in Eastern negotiations. He served as unofficial mediator during UN efforts to end the Korean war, and represented Nehru last summer at the Geneva conference on Indochina and Korea.

Nehru made the reference to Formosa after reviewing the Asian-African conference which wound up at Bandung, Indonesia, last Sunday.

CITES CHOUS OFFER

He noted Bandung was the scene of the offer by Red China's Premier Chou En-lai of direct talks with the United States on Formosa, and said if the Americans accept it could lead to a peaceful solution of the dispute.

(President Eisenhower said this week the U.S. would be glad to talk with the Chinese Communists about a Formosa cease-fire.)

Nehru said Menon will go to Peiping at Chou's request in order to continue the Bandung talks." He added:

"We increasingly felt the efforts decided on there . . . we have the privilege and advantage of being friendly with both sides."

Discussing Chou's offer to negotiate, Nehru said: "We have known for some time that China was willing to enter direct talks and the other parties concerned have also not been unaware of it.

"The announcement itself does not therefore represent a new attitude on the part of China, but the fact that it has been publicly stated at the gathering of the Asian-African nations represents a further wholesome development."

STEEL WALKOUT ENDS

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—The Republic Steel plant was back in full operation here today following a short walkout by nearly of 1,400 steel workers. A company-union meeting is scheduled to discuss the four-day week established by the company in 110 plants last month but rejected at the gathering of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Adenauer, Pinay Get Down to Job Of Saar Accord

BONN (AP) — West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay buckled down today to the thorny task of settling German-French differences over the coal-rich Saar.

In the second and last day of their conference here, the two statesmen huddled with their chief advisers on such issues as future ownership of the huge Hoechst steel works in the Saar, when 960,000 German-speaking Saarlanders will vote on the proposal to Europeanize their territory, and the identity of the high commissioner who will direct the Saar's defence and foreign relations if the territory accepts European status drafted under the West European Union.

Adenauer and Pinay described most of their five-hour conference Friday to a study of Soviet policy and to a possible big-power conference. Later Pinay said he was "quite satisfied with the progress we have made so far." Adenauer expressed a similar view.

But the success of their conference depends in large measure on agreement clearing up their differences on the strategic industrial Saar. The fate of the project for a separate West German sovereignty and to rearm Germans inside the North Atlantic Treaty Organization could also hinge on this conference.

41 TO DISCUSS A-ENERGY

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations Friday set up 41 of 84 invited governments have sent word they will take part in a world conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy in Geneva Aug. 8-20. Communist Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland and Russia are among the 41 as are Britain, France and the United States. The conference, for exchange of information, is the result of President Eisenhower's "atoms for peace" plan.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synoptic Closed, which formed over Ontario Friday, are gradually dissipating this morning. With a slowly moving high pressure area over the Great Lakes, mainly cloudy weather will prevail over the entire province today and Sunday.

IMMIGRATION DEPT. ACCUSED OF LAWLESSNESS

Diefenbaker Assails Sawdust Caesars' Rule

OTTAWA (CP) — The immigration department has been accused of "arbitrary lawlessness" in its administration.

John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) made the charge in the Commons Friday and said the department is tangled in red tape which is "in some cases administered . . . by sawdust Caesars who believe they are above the law."

He said fundamental rights are denied. Officers of immigration regulations are "interpreted according to the whim and caprice of the individual."

Mr. Diefenbaker's point of attack was the case of American born Mrs. Sherry Kathleen Brent of Toronto, who received a deportation order against the advice of her lawyer.

WILL APPEAL CASE

He spoke during debate on the estimates of the immigration branch of the department, who announced earlier in the day that he plans to have Mrs. Brent's case appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The Supreme Court recently upheld her argument that the department had refused to tell the reasons for the deportation order and that she was not given proper hearing.

Mr. Pickersgill said the Appeal Court decision has caused "very grave concern" . . . The appeal was being taken to get a final ruling on the law.

Replying to Mr. Diefenbaker, he said it is wrong to say regulations are "interpreted at the caprice of an individual. In deportations, an appeal to the minister was always possible and reasons for the order were given as prescribed by law and regulation.

The Brent case was raised by Clarke Fuller (PC—Kamloops) who quoted from court judgments describing the type of hearing given as a "farce" and finding the deportation order invalid.

Mr. Diefenbaker had said regulations on admissibility of immigrants were delegated to department officers across the country, resulting in differing interpretations. He said immigrants were refused information as to the reasons for orders against them.

In the light of that, Mr. Fulton said, the minister was obstinate in refusing to do nothing wrong with his department.

Gordon Knox (SCF—Nanaimo) said a cloud of doubt and confusion has arisen in the department which could not be cleared by appealing cases to the Supreme Court.

Medical Schools in Canada Depend On Lost Pets for Dissection Study

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stray dogs and cats, obtained through a variety of channels, make their contribution to science on the dissection tables of Canadian medical schools.

A Canadian Press survey today showed that, despite recent protest over a pet-napping ring uncovered in the Winnipeg pound by the Winnipeg humane society, most medical schools depend on getting lost pets.

Some universities avoid obtaining dogs and cats within their cities, preferring to purchase animals for vivisection privately. But in several cities strays are referred to medical schools, either as a final move before they have to be destroyed, or in conjunction with adjoiner bidders.

The University at Kingston urges 11 dogs each week for dissection in teaching or research work. Dr. G. H. Ettinger, dean of medicine, said. All are obtained from private dealers outside the city. Dr. Ettinger said the university pays "handsomely" for animals.

All dogs used by the school are given anesthesia before undergoing experimental and instructional surgery, he said.

The University of Toronto's Charles H. Best Institute uses four or five dogs each week for dissection in its pathology department, a spokesman said. At present these do not come from the city pound but Dr. L. A. Pengelly, city medical officer of health, said he might suggest such a move if the need arises.

In Edmonton unclaimed strays are put up for auction and can be obtained by medical schools or dog-lovers. There are few bidders, however, and officials share 100 dogs and 100 cats are destroyed monthly.

Strays rounded-up in Vancouver are kept in the city pound for three days for claiming by owners. On the fourth day they are offered at a nominal price to veterinarians in the city or $2 to those living outside. On the fifth day they are offered for $1 to the University of British Columbia Medical School.

A campaign last year to prevent sale of the dogs to the medical school was unsuccessful and the arrangement was approved by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Two Men, Boy Walk 40 Miles After 'Copter Forced Down

DRAYTON VALLEY, Alta. (CP) — Two men and a boy, who survived three eight-below-zero nights in a Rocky Mountain wilderness after their helicopter was forced down in a storm, walked 40 miles today to the tiny mission of Rocky Rapids where they found them 30 miles away.

They had four squares of chocolate to eat since Tuesday night when their small helicopter was forced down on a frozen lake after having been knocked off course 25 miles by a heavy snowstorm.

Pilot Roland Maier, Jimmy Hall, a Goalder of Edmonton and his stepson Bob Terry were found in the tiny mission by an Indian on horseback who found them 30 miles away.

Soaked to the skin, cold and hungry, the trio had tea and soup before being picked up by three helicopters and flown here. They were given a medical checkup, food and a comfortable bed for their first good sleep in three nights.

The nightmare started shortly after the helicopter left a well-drilling site Tuesday.

The craft was headed for Edmonton on a flight which usually takes 1½ hours. But the pilot got lost in a heavy snowstorm and had only four gallons of gas left when he made an emergency landing.

The three spend the first two nights with the craft, hoping someone would spot them. But searchers from Edmonton were unable to leave until Friday because of weather conditions.

They started walking Thursday, following a line cut through bush by oil exploration crews. That night was spent under a tree.

The helicopter was not damaged and will be flown out today after it dries.

Full Co-operation of Public Needed to Meet Atomic Raid

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (CP)—Successful evacuation of Canadian cities in event of an atomic attack will depend upon a high degree of voluntary compliance by the public, Dr. Fred G. Robertson (L—Northumberland) said today.

Dr. Robertson, parliamentary assistant to Health Minister Paul Martin whose department is responsible for civil defence, said in an interview that plans already are under way to educate the public to the need for full co-operation in the first few minutes after such a raid.

Dr. Robertson, Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, civil defence coordinator for Canada, and a number of other top Canadian civil defence workers are here as official observers at the much-postponed Operation Cue atomic test.

The test shot, originally scheduled for Tuesday, has been tentatively set for Sunday following a series of postponements due to unsuitable weather conditions.

NEED CO-OPERATION

"Public compliance with laid-down civil defence procedures is essential to any rapid evacuation scheme," Dr. Robertson said.

He stressed that it would be up to local defence and civic organizations to draft their own evacuation plans.

"Federal authorities will give general guidance and assistance but the final plan for any one city must always have to be based on conditions and escape routes peculiar to that city."

Evacuation exercises like that planned for St. John's, Nfld., May 21 were designed in part to bring this lesson home to the general public.

He said "excellent progress" was being made in civil defence work in Canada. About 167,000 persons now were working in civil defence organizations across the country, the majority of them trained personnel.

Both Dr. Robertson and Maj.-Gen. Worthington are among the 1,000 observers from 20 countries who have been invited to witness the Operation Cue test.

Duke Installs Phone In Sports Car

LONDON (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh has ordered a long-range telephone for his speedy sports car. When he gets it installed, he will be able to ring up Buckingham Palace from any part of Britain.

It's the duke's latest move in attuning the Royal Family to modern life. At his insistence, Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle have electric dishwashing machines, electric grills and a broadcasting device which lets police-copter takeoffs and landings from the royal lawns have become commonplace.

He has wanted a long-range telephone for his sports car for some time. His car already has a telephone but its range is only 25 miles.

DEFENCE COSTS MAKE 1945 OFFER IMPOSSIBLE NOW

Provinces Rejected Social Services Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says the broad program of social services and public works planned when the provinces in 1945 no longer is being offered by the federal government because times have changed.

Three proposals, he told the Commons Friday, were based on the assumption that $250,000,000 a year would be sufficient for defence. But with much higher defence costs today—estimated at $1,909,000,000 for the 1955-56 fiscal year—he said the government would have found it "pretty embarrassing" to carry out the proposals now if they had been accepted in years past.

"The government does not consider that it is bound in any way by unaccepted proposals that were made in 1945," the prime minister said in reply to a series of opposition questions.

FROM CONFERENCE

The questions, initiated by Opposition Leader Drew, stemmed from the two-day preliminary federal-provincial conference here this week. They had the prime minister on his feet for a total of 15 minutes at the house opening.

The so-called "green book" proposals to the 1945 federal-provincial conference offered a health insurance plan, federal acceptance of responsibility for all able-bodied unemployed and a program of public investment and public works. The proposals were conditional on the provinces reaching tax rental agreements with the federal government. Subsequently, all provinces except Quebec entered them.

Mr. St. Laurent said that studies are being speeded on a federal suggestion that the central government share up to 50 per cent of the cost of relief for needy persons unable to work or not covered by unemployment insurance. This was put to this week's conference. He said a committee now gathering factual information on the subject might make enough progress to permit a meeting of provincial ministers early in June.

In the meantime, it had been suggested that it might be appropriate to have action taken by legislative bodies so that if agreements were worked out there would be nothing to prevent its being implemented from the early fall on."

Ontario Schools 'Stuffy, Formal' Say U.S. Pupils

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Four United States high school students on an exchange visit at nearby Mallorytown said Friday they found Canadian schools "very formal," "stuffy and formal."

They left for home Friday after spending two days at the Mallorytown continuation high school, 14 miles west of Brockville.

Purpose of the visit was to help the U.S. students appreciate and understand teaching procedures and life in a typical rural Ontario high school.

The students are David Ashwin, David Cpucale, Yvonne Hamilton and Sandra Mumford of Chaumont, N.Y.

Gen. M. H. S. Penhale, commandant of Royal Military College at Arnprior, Ont., said they already had obtained "a tremendous fund of knowledge" in meetings with American civil defence workers at both the federal and the state level.

Major changes appeared necessary in Canada's CD plans but a number of new ideas gleaned here would doubtless be incorporated.

Gen. Penhale said the Arnprior college had turned out about 2,000 trained CD instructors in the last year.

American officials have indicated in a series of exchange talks that Canada's civil defence preparedness is "at least abreast" of that in the United States.

Special Assembly Orders Premier Form New Cabinet

Nationalists Claim Victory In Bloody Two-Day War

SAIGON (AP) — A specially summoned provisional assembly fired Bao Dai today as South Viet Nam's chief of state.

The assembly, dashed "the revolutionary democratic forces of the nation," also ordered Premier Ngo Dinh Diem's cabinet dissolved, but called on him to form a new one.

The assembly, which had cabinet backing, met in Saigon's city hall and here down Bao Dai's photograph, from the wall and trampled on it.

This apparently was Diem's answer to the ex-emperor's attempt to overthrow him. Bao Dai, now on the French Riviera, has not been in Indochina for a year.

REFUSES SUMMONS

Thursday he summoned Diem to the Riviera for consultations but Diem refused. He has claimed he felt the trip would mean Diem would be ousted as premier.

Reuters news agency reported from Cannes today that Bao Dai had made "important decisions in the second and last time" for Diem to come to the Riviera.

The new development in the tense South Viet Nam situation came as Diem's nationalist troops claimed a military victory over the rebel Binh Xuyen after two days of bloody civil war in the streets of Saigon and its adjoining suburb, Cho Lon.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, special representative of President Eisenhower, is on his way back to Viet Nam. The United States has said it still supports the Diem government, but France and Britain are reported to have taken the view Diem should be replaced.

It was not immediately clear what legal authority the assembly had to dismiss Bao Dai as chief of state.

Bao Dai's authority as chief of state stems from the agreement signed in Paris in 1948 which gave Viet Nam its independence as a state within the French Union.

FRENCH TO GO

Eighteen small political parties and groups and persons staged the assembly meeting. It might be that Dai deposed as of Friday and the Diem government dissolved as of the same day.

It entrusted Diem with the formation of a new government with a threefold goal:

"1. Repress the rebels and re-establish order and security.

"2. Recover the total independence of the country and ask for the withdrawal of the French expeditionary corps from Viet Nam.

"3. Urgently organize an elected national assembly to turn over power to the people.

WINNING BATTLE

Despite an order from Bao Dai naming French-backed Gen. Nguyen Van Hinh chief of the national army, Gen. Le Van Ty continued at last word to be in command there.

In Friday's fighting the Binh Xuyen force was pushed into the suburb of Cho Lon outskirts after a two-day battle.

Gen. Paul Ely, French commander-in-chief, ordered his troops to throw up barricades around the foreign residential quarter of the city, closing off the area from nationalist forces.

Marquise of All-Negro Musical Performed Privately for Princess

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret saw 14 minutes more of the American all-Negro musical "Jazz Train" than the rest of the audience when the show first theatre here Thursday night.

The princess, sitting with three companions, watched the regular performance enthusiastically. Frequently she clapped and burst into laughter.

But then she noticed that Item No. 18 on her program—excerpts from "Carmen Jones," "Blackbirds" and "Porgy and Bess"—had been dropped because the show was running late. She wrote to the cause she recalled that the critics had "praised it."

"What a pity," she was heard to say.

The show's director, Mervyn Jones, promptly offered to stage it specially for the princess and her friends after the final curtain was rung down.

"We'd like that," said Margaret.

When the regular performance ended, she applauded harder than anyone else—through six curtain calls, in fact.

She and her friends remained in their seats as the audience left. Then the houselights were dimmed and the missing number was presented.

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles today was reported planning to meet in Paris with French leaders next weekend in a personal move to reconcile conflicting French and American policies toward the revolt-torn Indochina state of South Viet Nam.

Dulles is to leave Friday for Paris and attend a Wednesday and Thursday foreign ministers' meeting and Atlantic pact talks. He is reported agreeable to holding separate Indochina discussions while in the French capital.

A French-American split was disclosed publicly Friday when the Washington state department reaffirmed its backing for Viet Nam's Premier Ngo Dinh Diem. This came only a few hours after France had pointedly declared the Indochinese leader no longer equal to the task of governing.

France and possibly the U.S. officials are reported wavering slightly in their support of Diem, but nevertheless unwilling to switch backing to any new candidate on the grounds that none has been suggested yet who would be as acceptable to anti-Communist Indochinese patriots.

50,000 Scots Gather to Hear Billy Graham

GLASGOW (Reuters)—A crowd of more than 50,000 stood in pouring rain Friday night to hear American evangelist Billy Graham at the first open air meeting in the six-week Scotland "crusade."

Graham called the crowd to make his final meeting topic in Glasgow's 150,000-capacity Hampden Park—Britain's largest soccer stadium—"a historic occasion."

"Let's make it the greatest service ever held in Scotland," Graham said. "I believe it can be."

Friday night's service was relayed by radio stations to 500 centres throughout Britain, Northern Ireland, Channel Islands and the Lewes prison, in southern England.

Roscoe Robson, MLA, Named Progressive Conservatives' Candidate for East Hastings

MADOC—Defeating two other candidates on the first ballot, Roscoe Robson of Halloway, was again named progressive conservative candidate to represent the riding of East Hastings at the nomination meeting held Friday evening in the Madoc Armouries.

Mr. Robson's name was represented the riding in the Ontario Legislature since 1945, had a clear majority over his two opponents and promised party supporters that if elected he "would continue with the same progress as in the past 12 years."

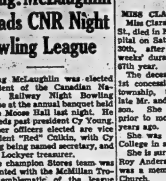
Ten men were nominated to contest the convention but only three allowed their names to stand. These were Mr. Robson, ex-Warden Jack Kincaid of Madoc, and ex-Reeve Ross Neal of Deseronto.

Others nominated were S. A. McCarey, Tweed; T. C. Graham, Tweed; Lloyd Hinchcliffe, Harold Varty, Hungerford; Kenneth Vivian, Shannonville; Fred Mitchell, Thurlow and W. J. Davis of Maple Leaf.

The Madoc armouries was full of party supporters and, with large printed cards designating the various municipal party associations, the big armouries took on the appearance of a big local convention hall as riding president Ken Vivian called the convention to order.

S. McCREA PRESIDENT

The election of new riding officials was the first business on the agenda with Mr. Sim McCrea of Tweed, being named the new president. Retiring president is Mrs. Douglas Atkins of Thurlow township; Mrs. R. M. Broad was re-elected secretary with Russell Sills of Halloway, as associate. Treasurer is Bruce White of Madoc.



Vice president is Guy Bentley of Bancroft, and Fred Mitchell, Thurlow, is 2nd vice president.

There was considerable discussion on a new riding constitution before the nomination of candidates got underway. A draft of the constitution was read and copies will be mailed to the various executives.

Mr. George S. White, M.P. for Hastings-Frontenac, suggested that a meeting of the executive and other riding representatives be called to approve of the constitution. This plan was adopted.

HON. C. MAPLEDORAM SPEAKS

Guest speaker for the nomination meeting was Hon. Clare Mapledoram, provincial minister of Lands and Forests. The speaker

ON MIDDLE EAST TRIP

Mr. W. E. Belch, Gospel minister of Bethel Hall, Belleville, left today for a six-weeks' trip to the Middle East, visiting England, France, Greece, Switzerland and Palestine. Three weeks will be spent in the Holy Land, touching the places of the Lord's journeys. He is accompanied by five friends. Mr. Belch has lived in Belleville six years.

was introduced by Roscoe Robson.

All ten of the nominees spoke briefly to the meetings, expressing appreciation to party functionaries and seconders, and indicated whether or not they would allow their names to stand.

Jack Kincaid referred to the Madoc-Deseronto causeway is to be rebuilt as a development project by the highways department.

"I am glad to see the road is to be built" Mr. Kincaid said, "but I object to the county taxpayers having to purchase the right of way. The department should pay 100 per cent of the cost of such an effort to get it to do so."

The speaker called for a new tax agreement between the province and the municipalities which would make provision for the province to pay full costs for indigent accounts, administration of justice and health programs.

More and better roads were needed to develop county beauty spots. Bancroft and Belleville were entitled to a share of the gasoline tax, he said.

The St. Lawrence seaway and power project would bring industry to Eastern Ontario and action should be taken to make sure that Deseronto, Belleville and other Bay of Quinte centres got their share.

Mr. Mapledoram was opposed to pensions for legislative members who, he said, did not spend enough time at Queen's Park to warrant pensions.

"I am not asking you to vote for me to get me a job," he concluded, "but vote for me and I'll do a job."

WANTS CAUSEWAY

Ross Neal of Deseronto said he was well aware of the decline in farm prices and also the unemployment situation.

He was critical of Mr. Robson for what he termed failure to fulfil election promises. A causeway for Deseronto had been promised but was not built. Other industries promised had not materialized.

He said also that at the last election Mr. Robson had assured he would aid with new telephone facilities.

Mr. Neal warned that Dr. D. C. McVicker, the Liberal candidate, should not be written off, pointing out that he was a capable man who would have much support.

"I have but one promise to," he said, "that is, if elected, I will do to the best of my ability the job which you have elected me to do."

Roscoe Robson said he had no policy. "The progressive conservatives will shortly make known its policy and I will support it," he said.

Replying to Mr. Neal's criticism regarding the Deseronto causeway not yet being built, Mr. Robson said the highways department was still prepared to pay 80 per cent of the cost providing the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward would split the remaining 20 per cent. It was estimated the causeway and bridge would cost $700,000.

ROADS IMPROVED

Mr. Robson maintained that he had kept his promise to seek better roads for Hastings. Paved highways now ran east and west from Madoc and a paved road had extended into the north. The Madoc-Eldorado road was to be rebuilt as a development project.

He gave credit to the efforts of committee which had pressed for the road being taken over as a highway and to the department's policy of taking over no more highways until a huge backlog of construction was caught up.

In reply to Mr. Kincaid the speaker said the county had agreed to pay for the right of way on the Madoc road required for the road development program.

Mr. Robson referred to the educational and other grant's provided by the Frost government and said if these grants had not been provided the cost of education would be unbearable for the municipalities.

"I too have only one promise," he concluded, "that is to continue with the same progress as in the past 12 years."

As the speaker of the evening Hon. C. Mapledoram presented the highlights of the last session of the legislature, dealing especially with the Frost budget.

He referred to the tremendous progress of Ontario during the past 12 years, stating that it was now a province with 5,150,000 persons, 30 per cent more than in 1943. At the present rate this increase there would be six millions by 1960. This record told an eloquent story of the soundness of Ontario's economy and the enterprise of its people.

Since 1943 the capacity of such dominant Ontario industries as iron and steel, pulp manufacturing, pulp and paper, farm implements and nearly all appliances had been doubled. The capacity of Ontario hydro had more than tripled, while nearly 450,000 new job opportunities had been created.

Referring to the province's tax structure Mr. Mapledoram said Ontario had no sales tax, no tax on meals, no tobacco or nuisance taxes and no new forms of taxes have been approved. Ontario's ordinary revenue was made up of $136 million in tax rental payments from the Federal government, $82 1-2 million gasoline tax; $38 million Liquor Control Board profits; $26.7 million motor vehicle licences and $13 million in succession duties.

Tax rentals come from the Federal government as rental for income and corporation tax privileges. The Federal government collects and spends at the rate of between four and five millions a year, nearly half of which comes from Ontario.

The speaker referred to the increase in educational grants since 1943 when such grants totalled only $8 million yearly. They rose to $65 million in 1954 and for the fiscal year beating April 1st, 1955, educational grants will exceed $71 million.

Special grants at the rate of $200 per bed were provided for all general hospitals, such grants costing more than $20 million last year. Also capital grants to aid new construction had been given to the extent of $30 millions, with future commitments totalling another $35 million. A new mental hospital to accommodate 1,200 was being completed.

Half of costs relating to old people's homes were paid by the government, while pensions for needy persons between 65 and 70 were paid on a fifty-fifty basis by the province. Other payments included allowances for totally disabled persons, increased aid for Children's Aid Societies, and stepping up of mothers' allowances with the view of keeping families together.

In reference to his own department, Lands and Forests, Mr. Mapledoram said a survey of all national parks was being made in Southern Ontario. When this was completed his department would have some idea of the forest wealth and intended to provide a program encouraging the use of wood normally going to waste. He noted the government was optimistic regarding what can be done with forest waste and sawdust.

50 Per Cent Tax Returns Refunds, Days of Grace Expire at Midnight

The horn blows at midnight tonight on all taxpayers as the revenue department's days of grace expire on income tax payments. If you are one of the fortunate 50,000 persons filing returns from a seven county area to the Belleville taxation office, there is a 50-50 chance you have a refund coming.

So far, more than 80,000 of an estimated 80,000 returns have been filed in the Belleville office with more than 24,000 refunds already in the mail, according to Harold Parker, director of the local taxation office.

"Belleville's revenue office embraces a seven county area," said Mr. Parker explaining the number of returns.

"Returns are filed to this office from Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland, Durham, Victoria, Peterborough and Haliburton counties. The area extends from Bowmanville to Napanee and includes the city of Peterborough," he said.

This year's 80,000 returns is slightly higher than last year's figure. Records are expected to be in the neighborhood of $18,000,000 to $20,000,000 with refunds running from 1 1-3 to $1,000,000.

Income tax returns filed by mail have been coming into the local office since last February 15th. Those claiming refunds have been prompt to file returns. Heaviest refund payments came in late February and early March.

"It would seem that our 'file early campaign' pays off," said Mr. Parker.

OVER 50 PER CENT

Mail has been especially heavy during the past two weeks with a tidal wave expected this weekend as time expires for payment of 1954 taxes without penalty. Unless 1954 returns are postmarked April 30th or sooner, the income tax department will charge a five percent interest fee against the unpaid balance.

"Don't forget to put stamps on the envelope containing your tax returns," said Mr. Parker. "There is no free postage for filing tax returns."

Way is there such a high percentage of refunds?

Unemployment, a change in one's income status, charitable donations and medical expenses are the chief reasons why there are year-end refunds for pay-as-you-go taxpayers.

Deductions on pay-as-you-go plans are made on the assumption that a healthy man works all year without a change in his family status. Naturally, when tax time rolls around the man who has been unemployed, sick, a new husband or a new father, or who has contributed to charity during the year can claim exemptions. And that is why there are so many refunds.

For the convenience of late taxpayers the local income tax office was open this morning from 8.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.

"We expect almost all returns to be filed on time," said Mr. Parker calmly awaiting a flood of about 18,000 letters.

He feels sure his staff will work their usual miracles. They always have in the past.

WHERE WILL WE GET OUR SCIENTISTS?

Are we wasting our scientific manpower?

Dr. E. W. R. Steacie, president of the National Research Council of Canada, thinks that there has been "an unrealistic use of technically trained people in some countries."

From the point of view of research or development, he says, there are three distinct classes of people.

The first class is the engineer or science graduate at the bachelor level. He does not believe this class presents a serious problem. The very large increase in the nation's birthrate after the depression will result in a great increase in university enrolment, provided the universities can find the men and facilities required to train these students.

The second class of people, Dr. Steacie says, are the Ph. D. or other research-trained men. They present more of a problem. Their training requires more facilities and increased staffs in universities. "The question is whether they (the universities) can afford what is necessary."

The third class of people Dr. Steacie defines as "senior personnel, especially the ablest men from 30 to 35 years of age with experience in directing the work of a group." This group is the real problem. If five per cent of the staff of a research laboratory is really first-rate, says Dr. Steacie, all is well. Without this leadership, little will be accomplished.

"The problem, he says, is not only to develop people of this type but to hold more of these people in the universities, "where they will help not in the training of research students, but themselves develop the experience and ability to direct research."

Endowment, says Dr. Steacie, is no longer possible as a satisfactory answer. He said, in spite of constitutional problems, has been considerable, but the universities need much more. In Canada there has been relatively small support of research in the universities by industry. Dr. Steacie said the lead in this type of support has long been held by Imperial Chemical Industries in Britain. This assistance, he said, is by no means selfish. Industry needs the results of the work that university can supply. In his opinion this is the only possible solution of the present university predicament. "It is not cheap if it is done properly but it is the only way to assure a reasonable flow for Canadian science and an adequate supply of men for the coming demands of industry."

Dr. Steacie's remarks were made at the opening of the central research laboratory of Canadian Industries Ltd. at Beloeil, Que. - Fifteen years ago CIL inaugurated a plan to encourage advanced training in chemistry and this date has made available 134 fellowships. An additional contribution to science, we suggest, is the action of CIL in publishing Dr. Steacie's remarks in booklet form. The address was made last October and it is doubtful whether many Canadians had the opportunity at that time to read the full text of his remarks. The publication of the booklet will give wider circulation to an address which merits careful consideration.

Incidentally, Dr. Steacie's remark that "endowment of universities is no longer possible on a sufficient scale" is provocative. It seems obvious that this is caused, in part, by the sharply increased costs of operating a university. But part of the responsibility for this situation rests on the present high level of income taxes and the necessity for them. Here is a suggestion. Why could not the Federal Government earmark some portion of succession duties as grants to universities, or for use in establishing bursaries and fellowships? The amount would be more than adequate. Dependence on assistance from industries has several drawbacks. The most obvious is that, while many types of industries will benefit, all of these will not share the cost in an equitable fashion. Moreover, there would be less likelihood of unfavorable conditions being attached to governmental grants.

Dr. Steacie says that there are still problems needed which is not earmarked for 'practical' investigations." human nature being what it is, it may prove rather difficult to solicit sufficient support from industry on this basis.

THOSE 56 LUCKY CANADIANS

The Weatherman has not been co-operative. Fifty-six lucky Canadians are still waiting for their "breaks" when one Winston Churchill is in Nevada. So far adverse weather conditions have made it impossible to explode an H-bomb bomb only 3,500 yards away from these happy soldiers, gallery visitors.

Of course, the reader knows, about their great good fortune. K. J. Metheral, a staff writer for The Canadian Press, described it in detail. "Grinned happily at getting a break" he declared. Naturally they would. What great fun. Only 3,500 yards from ground zero! Think of it, of course, they were not quite so lucky as an announcer for a radio station was trying to make out on Wednesday. He said their trenches would be only 35 yards away from the blast but rather than complain, he felt lucky, he be given a grandstand seat almost within spitting distance of ground zero.

As for those poor fellows who have been selected to try with decontamination equipment five whole miles from the bomb, perhaps they can console themselves by remembering the plight of the majority of Canadians. Here are a few hundreds of miles away from all this excitement. But we are bearing up bravely. In public, at least. Of course, in the morning, pillows are wet with tears. But on the whole everybody wears a bright smile. It would never guess we were all eating our hearts out for the fact that we were not among the lucky 56 of our fellow countrymen chosen to approach within 3,500 yards of the blast. How gallantly we all bear our cross. Only, unless we live long enough, unless we manage to avoid automobile accidents and cancer and heart attacks, we will wish to our graves without ever having enjoyed the thrill of feeling the ground tremble under us, without ever once having gazed in delighted wonder at the mushroom cloud floating overhead.

If our government is going to finance pleasure trips to this for a few of our fortunate citizens, it ought to do the selection on a lottery basis. A few contestants would be in order, nothing much by comparison with the good fortune of nestling close to an A-bomb, a little nothing like a Cadillac and a kiss from Rita Hayworth—but private section of the spectators's report on those happy Canadians, or K. J. Metheral, or both.

Find Old Days Were Not Good

(Christian Science Monitor)

Our thanks to Reading University in England for bringing the matter to a head. It has set university debaters who went out and got their statistics and the raw material of looking it up in books.

Reading's debating society had stated the case this way: "Resolved: That man should return to his original state to find happiness and escape from the frustrations of modern life." Two of its members thereupon took up residence in a cave and lived on pigeons and bread for three days. That was long enough, apparently, to show them which way—forward or backward—frustration lies. According to latest reports, they have now "escaped" to modern life.

It is a curious thing that so many people who wouldn't think of driving last year's model imagine that if they could only get back beyond the automobile, beyond the horse and buggy even, to the days of bullock-carts and maybe beyond the wheel itself, they would find Eden—and we don't believe Sir Anthony. Not being able to accomplish this journey into the long ago, they seem able to keep their illusions about it in full luster despite the fact that they are plenty of facts right at hand that should demolish them.

One way to tell whether one would really like to live under the conditions of a hundred or a thousand years ago is to look back to as far as 25 or 30 goes into 1,000. The world is too much with us, Mr. Wordsworth? Well, to be sure. But was there less of it confronting paleolithic man? The primitive man was probably just as rushed and frustrated as the modern aggressive self-styled go-getter who goes more than he gets. It isn't the age; it's the cupidity.

MAN, THE MYSTERY

I know ill-temper spoils the speech of men.
I've heard it many times.
And it has been my lot in life to pen
The record of their crimes,
But I've seen a few full-swollen with pride
Attentiveness demand,
And why many friendship they denied
I couldn't understand.
I've watched my fellows facing every test—
The high, the low,
And why some failed and some achieved their best
I had no way to know.

Bahrain's Burial Mounds

(National Geographic Magazine)

Locked in the sun-baked sands of Bahrain Island lie the unsolved mystery of its myriad burial mounds.

Perhaps 50,000 dome-shaped tombs, ranging up to 100 feet in diameter, cover the northern quarter of the Persian Gulf pearl-shoppe and oil center. Nobody knows exactly how many there are, or how they came to be.

Some archeologists believe the first stormy island once served as a cemetery for nomads of the Arabian mainland. Covering a sea-horse-shaped area 28 by 10 miles, Bahrain is the chief island and namesake of an archipelago 30 miles off the Hsa coast of Saudi Arabia's northwest of the Qatar Peninsula.

The names of three major towns—Manama, capital city, Muharraq, capital of Bahrain, means "Place in the Sea," and Sitra, causeway links Manama with the neighboring town and island of Muharraq, are "Place of Burning." Awan, the air-conditioned settlement built for oil men, means "High Place."

Scientists of many countries have failed to establish the identity of the ancient people who erected Bahrain's burial mounds.

Findings include the bones of men and animals, broken pottery, articles of bronze, iron, and gold, necklaces, alabaster jars, stone bowls, even bone dice. Most of the specimens are poor, however, because of the island's humidity, salty soil and ravages of insects.

Contents of the tombs present curious contrasts. One mound yielded stone bowls of 2,000 B.C. vintage with Arabic inscriptions of 10th century A.D. Islamic glass.

In some tombs, skeletons stretch full length. Others, only a few feet deep, are found in a crouching position, inconsistent with burial rites or collected in neat piles. Apparently, burial customs were not considered.

Architecturally, the tombs rise from unusual bases of a low, flat mound of earth, gravel and stone chips covers an artificial stone dome. Some mounds have as many as stories.

Most tumuli belong to the Bronze Age. They closely resemble early Phoenician tombs, but some archeologists think ancient seafarers lived or traded to the way extent in the Persian Gulf.

If it certain, however, that Bahrain was a trading crossroads in remote times. Babylonian and Assyrian inscriptions cite the "Island of Dilmun (or Tilmun) and of Niduki) ("The Place of Taking Gift")—both believed to be identical with Bahrain. If this could be proved, Bahrain's recorded history would go back about 5,000 years.

The mysterious mounds now lend an archaic mark to Bahrain's skyline. They loom like earthen blisters close to the modern town and the gleaming metal jungle of the Bahrain oil fields.

Whatever their origin, the tombs are not entirely useless today. Bahraini fishermen collect kelt kilns for baking pottery.

Menzies Coins Good Phrase

(Grand Rapids, Mich., Herald)

Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies of Australia, made a good phrase the other day, one that could, if used, be parked in anybody's hat or framed on anybody's wall.

He was talking about the free nations' defense plans for Southeast Asia and the differences of opinion as to strategy and tactics, particularly, deployment of forces, and the like.

These, he said, are "but specks on the surface of the deep stream of unity in our relations."

The phrase can be applied, almost without limit, to all human relations.

Mr. Menzies pointed out that the differences are minor, but that we have a tendency to emphasize small points of difference rather than vast areas of agreement.

Difference—conflict — tends to be exaggerated. This exaggeration is likely to be the unusual. The unusual is news, but it is dramatic. A happy, united family doesn't make much news. Neither does a marriage that endures. Neither do peaceful nations living side by side in tolerant agreement.

Of Mr. Menzies' comment on the national problems in southeast Asia, the New York Times said: "It is a wise one if we should fail to see the stream for the specks."

The newspaper went on:

"The stream is our broad underlying unity. It is our basic judgment of right and wrong. It is our belief in the same philosophic language in the complicated world in which we are mutually understood. Those things are not the 'specks.' They are the stream."

Specks on the surface . . .

How right it is not to see the stream for the specks! And not merely at the remote levels of international affairs, but nationally at the State level, in municipalities, and in the work.

Fundamentally, almost all of us want to go in the same direction —toward a better world, a better life for ourselves, our children, harmonious relationships with those we meet each day.

Yet how often we have our differences of viewpoint, our various ideas as to how to reach the ultimate objective!

But those, in Mr. Menzies' felicitous phrase, are but specks on the surface. The deep stream of unity flows on.

What we emphasize depends on our sense of proportion, our perspective, our judgment, our ability to spot the specks.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

How Much Is a Testimonial Worth?

In the past two or three years more than 200 readers have reported that the use of the eardrops I recommend for chronic running ear has cured or stopped the discharge—in some cases after much treatment by specialists has failed.

I was considering whether I should write a piece about it for this column. After all, the treatment is pretty simple and I know no more about chronic running ear and the proper treatment of the trouble than any doctor knows.

But now comes a letter from a medical reader who is an aurist (ear specialist), who writes:

"Thank you for your advice on treating middle eager infections with the boro-boric acid formula. I have used it successfully in some long-standing cases."

So here again is the info:

In many cases of running ear the trouble has been relieved for long time or perhaps permanently by:

(1) ceasing the practice of keeping ear plugged with cotton and instead leaving it always open to free ventilation; and

(3) dropping in the ear each night and morning two or three drops of a solution of five grains of boric acid in one fluid ounce of pure grain alcohol. Use a blunt medicine dropper and always warm the solution by standing vial in hot water for a while before using.

If your druggist will not provide the solution for you, perhaps your family doctor will authorize it, but in any event do not use anything other than pure grain alcohol. I cannot furnish a prescription by mail.

If one reader wrote to say he tried my methods and he has been almost incapacitated ever since, I'd probably drop the square into the chucker and go on with my scribbling, unless it happened to be Monday, Wednesday or Friday, in which case I'd put my pipe and his to the bowling pin.

But if fifty or a hundred readers made familiar complaints I'd probably quit recommending forward and as a daily routine for sedentary people. Once or twice some one has reported that he nearly busted his head trying to do a forward roll after many years of false dignity, and thereupon I'd see me for damages. Perhaps it was just a joker. At any rate I haven't been sued. I do warn readers, however, that if they decide to roll they do so at their own peril. I recommend and personally practice the simple forward roll as a daily routine for a normal individual, but I understand I cannot prescribe anything by mail.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE SMALL TOWN

I have always been glad that I was born in a small town—not in a big city. Some of the best things in life was spent in such a town, where everyone knew everybody—the town marshal, the druggist, harness maker, school professor, the ministers and the editors of the two or three doctors.

I later learned that employers in the big city preferred young men and women from these communities as clerks. They favored them over the city bred. President Eisenhower came from a small town. So did Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House. As a matter of fact the best names are scattered everywhere in business, among the artists, scientists, writers—well, in every walk of life.

The small town communities are the best in the world. It's in them that much of the Nation's thinking is done! And now with the use of the telephone, radio and television in every home, with the TV fast matching the best of the newspapers and other publications widely sold wherever there is a home, the small town inhabitant has opportunities for rest and recreation, as well as for fresh air and simple pleasures that are unknown to the average big city dweller. The only trouble has also done its big share in uniting the small town with the big city.

People in the small town take time to live—and they do think! They read much, both publications and books, and they keep up to date as to what is going on in the entire world. There are things that the small town that are unforgetable.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is more to spring than the sight of it, the smell of it and the feel of it. Most of us know that. And city dwellers have no idea what they are missing. For the sound of it, for the full, rich, noisy tumult of children and a little more whizz to the sound of passing cars, the occasional robin on the lawn, a top and a rare crow exclaiming overhead, and the starry hen she sees below him, is denied the city and town dweller.

In the country, winter's silence is its chief characteristic. Snow and cold are more and felt. But there is the stillness of winter that impresses most the country people. Then spring comes with a bang. Indeed, no, a thousand sounds, it may be that the sounds of spring are, to countrymen, the most exciting and rejoicing of the season's blessings. The sound of the cattle, pigs and fowl released from cutting and the singing of birds far and near, but especially far, so that the whole air, in depth, is filled with peace. The bull roars and the goose plowing over, and crows conversing about the distant woodlot: but above everything else, the music of the frogs and toads. We live in a large, circular, country roads, hear the sudden din quickly fading as we get out of earshot, of the spring peepers and the swamp tree frogs. The first utters a single sound of the most sacrosanct, and a roadside ditch with hundreds of them all minutely throbbing. His the music and those who live in it, with a faint cloud of sound. The peepers often orchestrate together, and another ditch and pond in field and wood is fairly trembling with their calls. We live only in passing. But to the country dweller, it is part of the miracle of spring, the sound made over which shape the patterns of the birds, the shape and feel of the groundhog, the far barking of dogs, the exclamations of farmer's people, the sound of woodpeckers, the remote beat of the partridge with their drum, the wind with something to play with better than empty branches.

But we in city and town are confined to the vulgar jazz of traffic.

Conservation Briefs

A series of little known facts about conservation, under the heading "Conservation Briefs" will occupy this space weekly. These facts are being written by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests to let you, the people, know what your Conservation Authority stands for.

Did you know that:—Of the commercially accessible forests in Ontario, (and the same applies in greater or lesser degree in other parts of Canada), we lose to fire, insects, disease and harvesting, an amount equal to the total annual growth, plus approximately 7% of the capital stand. One hundred years ago, the richest stand of white pine in the world was in Ontario; today there is only a little of it left in this province; soon we shall have to seek elsewhere for this valuable lumber.

In southern Ontario alone, forests have been removed from some 8,000 square miles of land incapable of producing any crop but trees, and no adequate reforestation steps have been taken.

In the Province of Ontario, from Smiths Falls to north of Peterborough can be seen the out-croppings of bare granite and limestone from which the forests and soil have been removed. West of Rice Lake there are the ridges and dunes of pure sand, devoid of any trees or grass cover. Much of the land that have been built up in the Ganaraska Valley will be noted the similarity to the Sahara Desert. The Bruce Peninsula provides another instance of devastation.

Along Canadian Trails

The Artist In a Canoe

By Leonard L. Knott Illustrated by David Ranson

Canadians today are beginning to think of their country as a great industrial nation. Every day, in their newspapers they read of big new factories, new mines and railroads. Canada no longer thinks of itself as a land of great open spaces, lakes, rivers and forests. It is more interested in machines.

Perhaps in the future, more and more of Canadian story will deal with men of industry and science but most Canadians who are known in their own country and throughout the world have been associated with the great outdoors. Canada is famous for its forests and rivers, for its great prairies and its huge lakes and for its wildlife and generations of outdoor Canadians have helped to make it so.

One of these Canadians who have helped portray Canada as a country of rugged outdoor beauty was a man whose life and death symbolized Canadian nature. His name was Tom Thomson and he was born at Claremont, Ontario in 1877. As a boy, Tom loved the lakes and streams and forests. He was brought up on a farm at Leith, not far from Owen Sound and from his home on a hill overlooking Georgian Bay he could watch the changing and see the panorama of nature's colors.

When he was not at school, Tom spent his time fishing, hunting and exploring. He learned to sail a boat and to paddle a canoe. It was just fun for him then, but his knowledge of Nature and his skill on the water were later to lead him to fame. He wanted to become a sailor on the Great Lakes but his family persuaded him to give up that idea and he became an apprentice with a firm of machinists in Owen Sound. He liked working with his hands but he thought he should try box office work and so went to a business school in Chatham.

Tom, however, was bored by figures and book work so after a few months' work he took his savings and went west. There he found a job in a photo-engraving plant and he discovered an entirely new world. He was clever with his pen and began making little sketches and drawings. Four years later, he returned to Toronto and joined another engraving company there.

At his new job Tom worked alongside a group of clever young Toronto artists. They soon convinced him that he should try his hand at painting and in 1912 he took along his paints and easels and spent a holiday in Algonquin Park. One of his pictures "A Northern Lake", was given an art prize at an exhibition the next year and Tom decided that he would make painting his career.

In the years that followed, Tom Thomson became one of the leaders in a new school of Canadian artist, a school that brought the violent colors of Canadian nature to canvas and no longer copies the artists of other countries. He was one of a group called the Group of Seven and he spent all his time painting. Spring, summer and fall he lived in the north country, paddling its lakes and rivers in search of new scenes to paint. His work became famous.

In the spring of 1917, impatient to get back to his beloved northland, Thomson patched up his canoe and began his summer travels. Early in July, he went on a fishing trip and never returned. A few days later someone found his upturned canoe floating on the water of Canoe Lake. Tom Thomson had died as he had lived, in a birch bark canoe, a sketch book by his side, seeking to portray Canadian nature.

Bell Telephone Employees Join in Anniversary Party

Over 300 Bell Telephone employees here last night linked audibly with fellow-workers from Windsor to Montreal to participate in the nation-wide hailing of the 75th anniversary of Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

Scattered over 30 points in the Bell's Ontario-Quebec territory, some 13,000 telephone workers observed the birth of the great parent of telephone communications on the North American continent. An inter-provincial radio hookup joined the scattered celebrations into a uniform salute, a gesture, which while performing the practical function of communication, also was an up-to-the-minute tribute to the great system and its founder, who first made possible the transmission of the spoken word.

Belleville district celebrations were centred in the Club Commodore, where some $40 employees and guests attended a supper. Present were representatives from nine district exchanges, from Marmora to Picton.

The Bell evening was one with appeal, featuring, besides the novelty of the network hookup, a fine vaudeville floor show and ballroom dancing, which iced off on the heels of the supper.

The supper itself, a lavish turkey-and-trimmings spread, catered for solely by the Club Commodore, began with no ado, save for a concise welcome by chairman Norman Condliff. About 8 p. m. the Ottawa celebrations came in as clear as a bell on the hookup with the chairman there extending greetings to the entire Ontario region. Here followed exchanges of best wishes from Cornwall, Grenville, Kingston, Ottawa and Pembroke until all local groups joined the company - wide network.

Then speeches and salutations from Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton and London, Ont, followed thick and fast. Variety, however, was injected into the hookup when Montreal's "Les Harmonistes" and London's "Don Wright Chorus" came over with choral interludes.

Chairman of the board, Frederick Johnson, addressed the groups from Montreal.

He traced the history of the company over the years and noted that when Bell Telephone came into operation in Canada it had only as many subscribers on the entire system "as we have today in the town of Ste. Agathe, Quebec, or the town of Midland, Ont."

The growth of the company has also been accompanied by increasingly better service, he said. He paid tribute to the work of the individual employees and commented: "For the excellent work they are doing today, as in the past, the board of directors are deeply appreciative."

A toast to the company then was proposed in English and French over the air.

Responding to the toasts, Thomas W. Eadie, president of the company said from Ottawa: "Today is a milestone on the road of service which telephone people over three-quarters of a century have chosen to tread; a journey which demands diligence and effort and sacrifice too, but which offers in return great opportunities for lasting satisfaction. The road still lies ahead and the horizon becomes more inspiring all the time."

PRESENT HERE

Among those present at the Belleville banquet were: Grant Proctor, district manager; H. Code, traffic chief; Miss Irene Harris, chief operator, Belleville; Don Chisholm, district plant supervisor and Miss Stella McEwen, chief operator, Smiths Falls.

Special mention was made of pioneer workers for the company in the district. A representation of them included: Ab Acheson; B. McMurray and Jack Craighead.

Entrance to the club room lined the theme of the evening. Displayed in the foyer were memorabilia of the early days of Bell Telephone operations in Canada.

A top-notch vaudeville show was presented by Toronto artists. Headed by Tom Hamilton, veteran Scots comedian, the artists were Violet Murray, Dorothy Merrall and the Dale sisters.

The princess was escorted to the theatre by Mark Bonham-Carter.

Variety Night Is Staged At Christ Church Hall

Enthusiasm of the audience, reciprocated by the performers, last night spelled enjoyment for an appreciative house at the "Variety Night" concert, staged in Christ Church hall.

Sponsored by the Evening Branch of the church's Women's Auxiliary, the presentation was a mixture of homely fun and wholesome music, with a striking native artistry from younger performers.

Feature of the evening was the opener, being the inimitable choir presentation of the SPERSQSA, directed by Alf Evans. The group sang with gusto and polish and provided a finished curtain-raiser.

Other highlights of the evening were a one-act play by the choir and a comic trio by Mrs. Gerald Cherry, Mrs. Ken Smith and Mrs. Lloyd Hall.

The acts were strung together by an engaging commentary and introductions by the Rev. Everett Smith, acting for Archdeacon J. Rose.

Bruce Sills and Charles Thorn combined in a humorous sketch to present a novel musical duet, while a well-turned diversionment was provided by young Judy Watson with a song and tap dance.

YOUNGER GENERATION PERFORMS

Youthful Gary May, assisted by his sister Kathy, was rewarded for approval for his gallant attempts at the profound banjo notes of "Shortnin' Bread." Another young performer who won approval was Heather Ann Webb, held true to her name by dancing the Highland Fling and the Scottish Sword dance.

Saxophone solos were supplied by Walter Aulstine, assisted by pianist Mrs. John Hibbard, while other musical numbers were presented by Rodney Follwell and Jimmy Fisher.

An amusing monologue was rendered by Mrs. A. Cooper.

Cast of the play was as follows —Mrs. Harry Stevens, Mrs. Gerald Cherry, Mrs. John Hibbard, Mrs. Leonard Mason, Mrs. Clarence Fuzzen, Mrs. Everett Smith, Mrs. James Ling.

New Plane Rides Like a Dream

BY SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Whoever it is has the job of allaying around thinking up commercials for airlines and airline operations of the future had better go back to the drawing board and start over. A new kind of airplane that sounds from the outside like a jet with a loud peanut whistle on it and rides on the inside like a passenger's dream, was introduced on this continent a few weeks ago.

It's our considered judgment that this craft, the British-made Vickers Viscount, is the most significant development in passenger transport aviation since the DC-3 put modern flying dependable two decades ago. And until the jet makes it supremely comfortable a few years hence. As far as we can tell, with more than a quarter of a billion commercial airliner miles under their belts, there's nothing else in use on the world's air systems that stacks up to the Viscount.

The Viscount is what's known as turbo-propeller plane, which means that instead of the standard aircraft reciprocating engine—a version of which you've got in your car and which has been used in airplanes since the Wright Brothers—the Viscount's propellers are driven by Rolls Royce jet turbines.

This principle is not to be confused with the jet thrust engine, which doesn't use propellers. A satisfactory jet airliner has yet to be developed.)

LOVELY QUIET

The chief advantage of this type of engine from the passenger's standpoint is its quiet and its almost total lack of vibration. Gone forever is the heels-jarring, toe-rattling roar of standard aircraft engines and their pounding pistons.

On the Viscount the coffee in your cup doesn't even shimmer, and except for power-heavy landings and takeoffs, you can talk in practically conversational tones with some one at the other end of the cabin.

From the standpoint of airplane operations, t h e differences are even more significant.

For one thing, less vibration means less shaking things loose and less maintenance. For another, the Viscount burns cheap synthetic fuel instead of costly high-octane gasoline. This also reduces the danger of engine fires.

The Viscount can fly as high as 30,000 feet, several hundred feet higher than most commercial jets, including bigger long-distance ones. This top ocean greater economy and greater comfort, since the engines labor less at high altitudes and cabin air pressurizer can be flown over.

The Viscount cruises at 320 miles an hour (that's not just a manufacturer's claim; we've been on several routine schedule flights operating at that speed). This figure is around 70 miles an hour faster than the comparable twin-engine intermediate-haul planes in general use here, and even 30 miles an hour faster than all but the newest of the big piston-engined planes.

Unlike comparable 40-passenger medium-hop planes, the Viscount has a Fowler-action flap, multiplying the safety factor in case of engine failure.

In appearance, the Viscount is not unlike other airliners, except for its slim tail-fin, clean-shaped engine nacelles protruding an alarming distance from the wing (but don't worry: they won't fall off), and the oversized oval-shaped picture windows.

When you're seated at one of the windows they extend from the top of your head to lap-level, sometimes giving the sensation that you're riding along hanging halfway out the window. Little boys of all ages undoubtedly would have the urge to trail a leg outside if they could open it.

These big windows also provide an uncommon degree of light, making for a more cheerful night in daylight.

Another feature is a second lavatory aboard, unlike comparable American craft with only one. .

The Viscs. are delighted by the new plane. They have only a fraction of the instruments to watch as they have on other planes because of the simpler engines, allowing them to give more time to proper attention. Testing time at the end of the survey before take-off is cut to only 20 to 40 seconds, compared with two or three minutes for more competitive planes.

The Viscount has flown for two years on European airlines and has 200,000,000 passenger miles behind it with a mechanically perfect safety record. Trans-Canada Airlines introduced it on that side of the Atlantic April 1 and an American line has 60 of them on order for delivery mid 1957.

Like everything else, the Viscount is not perfect. It could use a baggage carrier (as do almost all other versions will have one). Its "feel" is on the light side and it seems to roll with the air bumps rather than absorbing them as its biggest American competitor does, making for a less comfortable ride on the Viscount in rough weather. And its seats could be braced more firmly on the floor to eliminate an occasional wobbly swaying feeling.

But it seems inescapable that American aircraft designers will have to develop a turbo-propeller engine adaptable to present craft if the United States is to maintain its sizeable lead in the passenger airplane market.

Have a Place For Everything

BY NANCY CLEAVER

"I can't find my rubbers, Mother! I'll be late for school If I look any longer!" Junie's voice was shrill with panic.

"You can't go out in the rain without them! Where did you put them?" mother questioned.

"I must have I've looked in the clothes closet, and under the shelf in the kitchen, and in the corner of the back hall."

"Junior should have one place for his outdoor things," mother thought irritably. She put baby down in the play pen so she could join Junie in the search for the missing rubbers.

A child does need a convenient spot for his rubbers and outdoor clothes, which he alone uses, so that his things do not get hidden under other people's belongings. This should be done right back door if possible. The pegs should be low, and an open box for rubbers and overshoes or a small footed mat which protects the floor from moisture should be provided.

CULTIVATE GOOD HABITS

A mother of a small child soon discovers that it is often encourage her youngster to leave his outdoor clothes in their special place. It is so much easier for him just to drop them on the floor when he gets out of them and run and play! Habits of tidiness take time to cultivate. But "a place for everything" is a big step towards family co-operation in putting "everything in its place."

If a child has a room of his own, then he also have a special place for his other clothes, for books, and toys, and hobby material. But if two children share a room, parents avoid a lot of friction if the space used by each child has not only his own bed, but his own space for his things. "room connection" on Saturday morning before the noon meal, if boys and girls are of school age, is often helpful in promoting a pride in the appearance and cleanliness of their own corner of the house.

Some mothers complain that the hardest room of the house to keep in keep spick and span is the bathroom. One careless person using a bath can certainly wreck it! But each child should have his own place for towels and tooth brush from the time when he is tiny. Each person using the bathroom should try to leave it as he finds it.

TEMPTATION

If a section of the garage can be set aside for a child's outdoor playthings, they can be kept neat and safely locked up at night. It is too bad that in all too many communities, a tricycle left out seems to be a temptation for light-fingered individuals.

If junior has his own place for

Rev. S. E. Larman To Dedicate Church

After the morning service next Sunday, in the Holloway Street Methodist church, the Reverend Sidney E. Larman will leave for Flinton, where he will conduct the dedicatory service in the afternoon. The Flinton United church has been renovated and the whole building transformed.

The service will be amplified to the outside of the church where it is expected the overflow congregation will worship on the lawns. This service will be held at three o'clock (D.S.T.) in the afternoon.

TWO TYPES OF MODELS

"There are the two types of models, the show girls and the photographic girls, and as a rule a girl who shows beautifully is not photogenic and vice versa. But some of the free-lance girls have to do both to make up the money" said June Duncan. She preferred shows herself for they resembled the theatre but she likes the magazine work interesting, whether for the weekly magazines or for the high fashion ones which

Modelling Fascinating Profession

A fashion model's life is, according to popular belief, one long round of wearing beautiful clothes at smart functions. June Duncan, a fashion model, broadcasting in the BBC's Home Service, said that in reality it is a life of hard work. Although the fashion model is photographed in gorgeous clothes she has to provide the accessories herself. When posing for an advertisement of a summer dress, for instance, she must take along to the studio gloves, shoes, hat, bag, and perhaps an umbrella hoping that they will be suitable for the dress she is to wear.

June Duncan was originally trained for the stage which helped her greatly when it came to posing and showing clothes. She found, however, that modelling seriously interfered with her private life and she often had to cancel a date a the last minute when she was given a rush job to do or kept late at the studio. "But if you've got to get on you've got to put the work first, the same as in any other career, and all those wonderful tales of premieres and cocktail parties and handsome young men hanging you up in beautiful cars, well I can't say that has happened to me," she said. "Mostly I stand home, take my shoes off and cook myself supper and then relax for the night. I don't want to go anywhere or do anything." Hairdressing was most important hair of the model. But it had to be well-groomed. "I think it essential to have a hair style that you can alter a little to suit more versatile you are the more work you get. But you have to have it done every week, there's no doubt about that," she said. Make-up styles also change from year to year and what one photographer likes the next might not be rich or poor. But whenever the customers wanted to use her she was only too pleased to be used.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT'S MORE FUN TO BE POPULAR THAN SILLY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Danny and I started going together last year. Then he broke up because he found out I scratched his initials in my arm. I realize what I did was just ignorance.

A few months later he told me he liked me again. He gave me a Christmas gift and many other things I'll forever cherish. I think, and so does everyone I know, that we were made for each other. We are both interested in the same sports and have lots of other interests in common.

Just recently, he met a new girl and took a great liking to her. He told a very good friend of mine, who told me he didn't like me any more. I broke him a letter asking him if this was true. He has not yet answered, and I haven't seen him around.

I still love this boy, and I pray every night that he loves me. Not only do I pray, but I also cry. — Ann

Dear Ann:

Wouldn't you like to be a girl who was always so busy having good times with her friends that she'd have no hours to waste on tears about anything? A girl who would always be watching for a chance to do something nice for her friends, instead of waiting to see what they were going to do for her. A girl who would be a grown-up to do anything so utterly silly as to scratch a boy's initials in her arm, or to become so bitter at any disappointment throw her

Don't you think a girl like that would enjoy life a lot more than you're doing. Think it over, and think over, too, the kind of girl you can be that kind of a girl if you want, and that you'd probably be a whole lot more popular if you were.

No girl is ever too young to start learning that you can't go through life magnifying your disappointments and telling herself you can't be happy unless you have the one thing you happen to want at the moment. Do brave, Ann. Dry your tears and don't shed any more over this boy. If you're not being the kind of girl I have described, you might even get him back. But you certainly won't by behaving the way you are now.

YOU'RE NOT SLOW, TOM; YOU'RE TOO FAST!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man 21 years old and interested in a girl, 20, whom I recently met. I would like to get her to go with me, and later on ask her to marry me, but I am not sure she is the type of girl with whom I would be very happy.

Please give me some advice on how to bring this about, as I am not what you might call "slow" about getting to know people. — Tom F.

Dear Tom:

Don't you think you are looking ahead rather fast to be thinking about marrying a girl whom you apparently have not even begun to really know.

Obviously, you have admired her very much from the very first time of meeting and feel that she is the sort of girl you would like to marry. But don't be in such a hurry. You may call yourself "slow," but it seems to me you're trying to take everything in one big step, instead of building up gradually to something as important as marriage.

My advice to you is to start by inviting this girl out on a few dates. You will find out very quickly whether or not she wants to know you as much as you want to know her. If she does, things from then on should be easy, and you will not be in such doubt as to how to proceed. But be sure to remember that a reasonable period of courtship during which two people become sufficiently well acquainted to be certain how they feel about each other, is a vital preliminary to a proposal. So don't try to rush things.

THOSE dainty baby dresses needn't be given away if they're just too short for your daughter. She can wear them as blouses and still look sweet and feminine even in starch! Overalls. Good with skirts, too.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

COLORS THAT FLATTER

In the pursuit of beauty every woman should be color-wise and more precisely and exactly which hues will help her to appear chic, as well as lovely. If she can go along with the fashionable colors of the season that is fine a n d dandy. If they do nothing for her, however, she should avoid them.

There are certain rules that will be helpful to the woman who always suffered from color-fear. No doubt you have made a woman yourself. She shuns gay tints as if they were evil spirits—spectacles freeing in dull, drab tones that completely negate her personality. This drab look will discover, upon opening the door to a beautiful new color that her spirits are gayer, that she feels younger.

The woman with dark hair and bright eyes—gray, green or blue should choose colors that further deepen the color of her eyes. Rich, soft rich shades are particularly effective. Browns a n d tans should be avoided. While is capitating if the complexion is good.

Brunettes with dark eyes and fair complexions can indulge in a perfect orgy of bright shades clear. translucent reds, rich, vivid blues, yellow, if not too deep a tone. For the brunette with olive skin there are warm, rich shades of brown, dove grey and navy blue.

Blondes realize that they must use a restraining hand when applying makeup which must never be vivid. And the same rule applies to dress.

With golden hair, fair skin and eyes of any color—grey, violet, green or blue—the hair must be played up since it is the blonde's most precious beauty asset. Pinks and reds should be her common al- together: orange, also, because of its vivid reflection. Greens are splendid for this type, just as they are for the redhead whose color problems are the toughest of all. Orchid is lovely for both.

Black is always fashionable. But to wear it there must be style in a woman's carriage and the lines of the frock must be perfect. Some women find it depressing, in which case it would be a mistake for them to wear it. Colors have a psychological effect upon one's spirits, as every woman should realize.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Hoping I will not be putting you to too much trouble to help me with a reception for 300 people in July. Would you please tell me the quantities of material needed for sandwiches, cakes, cream cheese, tea—either one. Coffee or tea or punch. What would make a good punch for hot weather for mostly grown ups? Amount of greens, celery, carrots, etc. Cookies etc., and a rough idea on the cost and what to charge.— Mrs. John V. D.

ANSWER:

The following facts regarding sandwiches are for 80 people, so you would have to multiply them by four. For 80 people allow 120 2-slice sandwiches, which interpreted means each guest is provided with three slices of bread. That may seem like a lot but when the crusts are cut from the bread the actual quantity is reduced. Each 2-slice sandwich is cut into four pieces, which may be squares, triangles or oblongs. Butter thinly. Slice ham very thinly and allow 1 1-3 oz. per sandwich. So if you were going to make one-third of the sandwiches with ham you would need 40 oz. of ham for 40 sandwiches, and that is just under 4 lbs. thinly sliced. Chicken—It will not slice as thinly as ham, so you should figure on more nearly like 6 oz. per sandwich so you will need 5 lbs. sliced chicken. You will need at least 2 lbs. cream cheese with added ingredients such as olives or almonds or green relish for 60 2-slice sandwiches. Make the cheese thin by adding mayonnaise or cream.

COFFEE

(50 1-cup servings)

One lb. finely ground coffee, 1 egg including shell, 2 gallons boiling water. Mix coffee with egg and shell and add a little cold water to moisten. Place the mixture in a cheesecloth bag and tie loosely with a long string (to make removal easy). Coffee grounds swell so room must be left in bag for this. Place bag in the 2 gallons (8 quarts) boiling water and cover kettle, regulating heat so that coffee will be just below boiling point until desired strength is obtained—about 5 minutes. Remove bag and allow coffee to stand about 15 minutes to settle, holding it just below boiling point.

BASIC FRUIT PUNCH

(50 small servings)

Two lbs. (6 cups) oranges, 2 1-2 cups sugar, 1 quart water (or freshly brewed weak tea), 2 48-oz. cans pineapple juice, 1 48-oz. can grapefruit juice, 3 quarts ginger ale (26 oz.), ice cubes, orange and cherry slices for garnish. Slice whole lemons and oranges and heat just to boiling and mash while heating. Add sugar and water or tea. Chill. Strain and add chilled fruit juices and carbonated beverage (gingerale or soda water) and ice just before serving. To this amount you could add about 4 trays of ice cubes.

Celery—8 lbs. —1 stalk each, will serve 50. 2 quarts each of pickles, relishes, serve 50; Onions —3 lbs. small green. To assess what you will charge count up the cost of food, and the wages you will pay your helpers. Double this and divide it by the number of people served, to arrive at cost per person.

QUESTION:

Would you please tell me the proper way to cook corned beef? My husband loves it but I never seem to get it to taste like the corned beef you buy when you eat it at a restaurant.—Mrs. John H.

ANSWER:

CORNED BEEF

Buy corned brisket point preferably although other corned cuts will do. Rinse meat with cold damp cloth, put in kettle, cover with cold water, bring to boil and boil 3 minutes and skim off scum. Reduce heat and simmer until tender allowing about 30 minutes per lb. but a 3 or 6-lb. brisket requires at least 3 hours. If to be served cold let cool in liquor, then put on platter and cover and weight down with something heavy to be "served hot with cabbage add 2 1-2-inch wedges of green cabbage 15 minutes before cooking time is up. To glaze corned beef, finish boiling as above then transfer to baking dish, stick in 12 cloves and cover with 1-2 cup brown sugar. Add a little water to pan and bake at 350 deg. 30 minutes, basting with syrup in pan frequently.

SIGNING APPEAL-NOTES

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

We live in a large apartment house, and I have been asked to be the apartment house representative for a drive. I would like to write little personal notes to the different tenants, most of whom I have not even met, asking for contributions. How should I sign these notes? Mrs. John Alexander or Mary S. Alexander? — Reader

Since your communications are to be in note form . . . and this is an excellent and usually-more-productive idea . . . they should have a salutation ("Dear Mrs. Brown" or "Dear Mr. and Mrs. Brown"), and you should sign them Mary S. Alexander, with your formal name in parentheses underneath your signature. Like this:

Sincerely yours

Mary S. Alexander

EMBARRASSING REMARKS BY GIRL FRIEND

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Will you please settle an argument. I'm having with my girl friend? Recently I introduce one of my boy friends (I mean just to be nice, and a "steady") to her, she says, for example, "How do you do. Betty has told me about you," or worse, "Betty has told me so much about you."

Now I strongly object to this kind of remark as it makes me seem as if I had raved about the fellow. Which I really hadn't, but she maintains this kind of remark is quite all right. Who is right about this? — Betty

I agree with your point of view about this . . . such remarks, when acknowledging a casual introduction, certainly do put the emphasis on your possible super-interest in the young man. Any man of any age would wonder what you had been saying about him and your friendship for him. I hope you can persuade your girl friend to stop making such personal and embarrassing remarks.

Bible Briefs

Who Was This?

By A. A. M.

Who was the fellow-laborer with Paul, who helped him for a time but finally deserted the great Apostle? His name is mentioned in three of Paul's letters, as "epistles," as they are called in the New Testament.

In writing to Philemon, Paul closed his letter by saying that a fellow prisoner, Epaphras, also sent greetings and so did Mark, Luke, Aristarchus and this disciple. He describes all these men as his "fellow workers."

In the last part of Paul's letter to Colossians, Paul very warmly commends a number of his friends. He describes two helpers as "beloved brothers and faithful ministers and fellow servants in the Lord." He speaks of another as "always remembering you earnestly in his prayers, that you may stand mature and fully assured in all the will of God." Luke, Paul terms, "the beloved physician." But the name of the disciple, who later deserted him, is just mentioned as sending greetings. Paul makes no comment at all about him or his work.

The third letter where this fellower's name is found is in the second l e t t e r to Timothy the young man for whom Paul had particular affection.)- Timothy's grandmother, Lois, and his mother, Eunice, were Christians. Paul was sure that the same sincere faith dwelt in Timothy.

In this wonderful letter, Paul looks back on his own life and says, "The time of my departure has come. I have kept the faith." He urges Timothy, "Do your best to come to me soon," and then he adds, "for this disciple, of whom I am writing, in love with this present world, has deserted me and gone to Thessalonica. Luke alone is with me." Paul does not berate the disciple who became t h e deserter.

The great apostle must have felt very bad as he explained how it came about. This man put his delight in the material satisfactions of this life ahead of serving the spiritual interest of the Kingdom of God Worldliness had quenched his flame of faith. His head had this wonderful privilege of being a companion and fellow laborer with Paul, but in the end he farsook him. The name of this deserter is found in Philemon 1:24; Colossians 4:14; Timothy 4:10.

CAMPBELLFORD

S.A. Work Outlined At Rotary Club

CAMPBELLFORD — Captains Stibbard and Pike, of the Salvation Army Corps, were the guests of the Campbellford Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon meeting this week, when the former officer gave an enlightening talk on the great evangelical and social work of the Salvation Army.

Capt. Stibbard said, in producing the subject of the Red Shield campaign, that the founder, General William Booth, was primarily an evangelist. However, in the course of his work the welfare of the people at large became important to him. Services of a social nature became associated with the Army program, though the religious aspect was always paramount.

DRUMKARD'S RESCUE BRIGADE

In 1874 the Drumkard's Rescue Brigade was established in England, marking the first of a long line of temporal assistance efforts on the part of the Salvation Army throughout the world.

The campaign for funds, presently in its first stages, for 1955 has as its slogan, "The Open Door." This is a symbol of many services, including spiritual guidance attempted by the Army in all cases of need.

CHANNELS OF HELP

There are the men's hostels, where the unfortunate and the erring are given food, clothing, shelter and work to provide them with the incentive to carry on, accept the responsibilities of life, and begin anew. The Unmarried Mothers' Homes give pity, protection and courage to those, who through unfortunate weaknesses, have erred. For the aged, the Army maintains homes where help and hope are offered to the destitute. Children's homes throughout the world open their doors to the orphaned or neglected child, bringing them up in faith and hope so that they may become normal happy citizens.

The prison work of the Salvation Army is by no means the least of their labor of love. The offender is helped while he is in prison and assisted in all ways possible in his re-establishment upon release. Many first offenders are entrusted to Army officers by magistrates upon their trials. Within the prison gates, 38 full-time workers are constantly striving to provide the spark of courage and self respect among those who are paying their debt to society.

HOSPITAL WORK

Salvationists work among the hospitals encouraging the ill and performing little deeds of kindness wherever they go. In disaster the Army is ever present and active. Wherever there is a catastrophe, the Salvation Army will be found.

Dollars subscribed to the Red Shield campaign are considered a sacred trust. The money thus raised is, according to Captain Stibbard, spent where it will do the most good at a minimum cost of operation.

Rebecca George Free introduced the speaker and he was thanked by president Bill McComb.

CONSERVATION

Ketch's Korner

by the ROVING SECRETARY of the CARLING CONSERVATION CLUB

Now that trout fishing is busting out all over, we thought we'd might head off a couple of bits of information that, if applied, might help to improve trout fishing in the future. A good many of our trout anglers are taking the most fantastic of this particular column is directed at that group.

Now, live bait fishing is a fine thing—certainly not be despised by any of us. We live bait at one time or another in order to get the desired results, but to import worm, or garden hackle as some people prefer to call it, is carrying the most fantastic of all live baits. And this tried and true bait can most definitely be relied upon. You know, it's a funny thing—certainly these garden worms caused us one of the craziest of trout, but here the less they produce by odds. Nobody seems to know just why. Of course there is a theory that when they are washed into trout streams and lakes, but we don't know why they're just not there when they definitely aren't part of a fish's normal feeding habits.

So much for worms. We now come to the "meat" of this dissertation — the use of minnows as live bait. Many a trout lake has been destroyed just because of the use of minnows as bait. Simply this. Many anglers have the habit of emptying the unused minnows when the day's fishing is over. The little fellows then find a new, hence, breed upsetting the delicate ecological balance within the lake—sometimes to its destruction. Even the odd few—every few—which may escape the hook and curve are frequently sufficient to destroy game fishing in that particular body of water. In attempting to stamp out this danger, the Department of Lands and Forests made it illegal to liberate any live bait into waters other than those from which the minnows were originally taken. Even this restriction, tough though it may sound, has failed to entirely stop this practice—innocent enough, no doubt, but highly dangerous.

Anglers, you know, are great fellows for impatiently dreaming of the season's all winter long. Then, when the big day comes, these chaps often look on their favorite stretch of lake and rivers once full of trout, now depleted. Needless to say, this is often be caused by the careless or ignorant act of some individual who at one time or another released minnows of an unknown variety into a water with first-class fish producer.

Now, there's nothing at all wrong with using live minnows in open waters from which they were originally taken. We all know they're excellent bait, and we also know that anglers would be on high heaven if their use were banned. But stocking a lake with specimen trout is a highly costly business, and it can be ruined in a few days by the introduction of fish that don't belong. This could result eventually in the whole thing becomes altogether.

What with so many spinning outfits extant at the moment, and such a multitude of lures being manufactured (by nothing of fish and streamers) would it be too much to ask anglers to stop using live bait? Surely the confirmed and addicted trout fisherman would not be capable of this move.

We're pretty sure that no trout fisherman is worthy of the name would like to have on his conscience the ruining of a first-class trout lake. Neither would he like to have any part in a situation which could eventually lead to the banning of minnows as bait. But unless we're well be the case if anglers continue to ignore the regulations concerning minnows are plenty of lures to choose from for spinning purposes—and they're all faithful fishermen, now replicas. If you lose one, you only have to put a new one on, slight loss, and no harm done. So, let's forget it. Leave minnows and lakes. It's more fun, and more satisfying with artificial lures anyway!

Garden Notes

Spray Calendar for Pest Control

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The peach, pear and plum trees are coming into bloom and the petal is a joy to the eye. But if those blooms are to develop into sound fruit you must spray. Dusting or spraying for pest control is not carried out as well as it should be because too few gardeners understand the materials to use and the several applications necessary.

There are good all-purpose sprays for home orchards which use effective pesticide materials into one formula. Their use will put an end to worms, fruit coding moth, scale, cedar apple rust, plum curculio, leaf roller, brown rot, and twig borers on peach, plum and apricot trees. Cherry fruit fly and cherry slugs will also be controlled by its use.

SPRAY CALENDAR

Here is a simple spray calendar:

Delayed Dormant: green tip stage when leaf tips are ¼ to ½ inch long.

Pink or pre-bloom: after pink shows, until just before bloom.

Petal fall: When most of the blossoms have fallen.

Shuck fall: when half the shuck or seed capsule has fallen from the tiny young fruit.

Cover sprays: two to eight sprays are usually required depending on local crop conditions. Cherries will require fewer sprays than apples, peaches and plums, since they ripen earlier. The sprays should be applied at 10 to 14 day intervals beginning 10 days after petal fall on apples and after shuck fall on peaches, plums, apricots and cherries.

The spray is mixed according to the directions on the package; usually about five level tablespoons to one gallon of water or one cup to three gallons of water. Keep the mixture stirred up while spraying and cover thoroughly the upper and under side of leaf and branch.

CONTROL OF CUTWORMS

Shortly after setting out cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, tomatoes and many flowers we are apt to find some of the plants cut off at ground level by cut worms. The old cure for this was a collar around each plant, made of tar paper or felt. Now we can control them with end-o-pest effective dust or dust form.

This contains chlordane a n d lethane and is made up in a solution.

Set out the plant and cover the roots. After firming the soil pour the solution over the roots. Let the solution penetrates to t h e length of the roots.

Another method is to sprinkle the dust on the surface of the soil around each newly transplanted plant. Work it lightly into the top half inch of soil.

Later the same dust or solution will discourage cabbage worms, carrot worms, tomato horn worm and slugs.

Famous Canadian Editors, Publishers

Charcoal Sketch by Robert C. Reid

T. H. Preston

Thomas Hiram Preston, one of the outstanding Canadian editors and publishers of his generation, a native of Mount Vernon, Indiana, son of Rev. James Preston, a Methodist clergyman of English birth, and Emmeline Phelps, whose forebears were of Brant County.

He was educated in the public and high schools of Ontario and became a printer's apprentice with The Woodstock Sentinel-Review, a paper founded in 1874 and still in existence. After working on several large newspapers in the United States, Mr. Preston returned to Canada and The Ottawa Free Press in 1874 and became a member of the Press Gallery of the House of Commons.

In 1881, at the age of 28, he became night editor of The Toronto Globe and then went to the West as managing director of The Winnipeg Sun, a position he held from 1882 to 1890. In the latter year he became the proprietor and editor of The Brandon Mail, a position he held to the time of his death on November 13, 1929. He had developed into a leading publication in the Canadian "small daily" field.

Mr. Preston's interest in community, provincial and national affairs was wide and deep. He was elected to the Dominion House of Commons in 1900 and 1904. In 1911 he was a member for South Brant in 1899 and was re-elected in 1902 and 1905. He was a member of the Senate of Canada from 1917 to 1919. He was also a member of the Board of Parole of the Ontario Parole Board from its inception in 1910 up to the time of his death. He was a director of many business enterprises and was closely associated with various local organizations, including the General Hospital Board and Board of Trade.

Always zealous in promoting the welfare of the province, he was president of the Press Association of Manitoba and of the Canadian Press Association, forerunner of the present Canadian Press, 1894-95, and a director of The Canadian Press from 1925 to 1928.

It was while managing director of The Sun in Winnipeg that he achieved one of his greatest newspaper triumphs. The Sun was an evening tri-weekly publication. The Free Press, a morning publication, which boasted rather blatantly that it was the only paper that could tell the day after. The Sun's headline in 1874 and Batoche, Mr. Preston, with characteristic enterprise, quickly made an arrangement with the telegraph operator at that place, under which the operator was to meet with the telegraph operator at that place, under which the operator was to phone wire news of the battle to Mr. Preston immediately the engagement was over. All went according to plan. Mr. Preston got the exclusive story, condensing it into a special morning edition of "extra" of The Sun, thereby scoring a notable "beat".

His son, W. B. Preston, succeeded him as managing director of The Expositor and his grandson, John C. Preston and Peter M. Preston are now actively at the head of the business, John C. Preston being publisher.

Point Anne Rolls Over Electric To Win First Intermediate 'C' Title

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

GOOD MEN AND TRUE

With two of the better hockey heads of Eastern Ontario in the driver's seat, the Ontario Hockey Association is headed for one of its best season, in 1955-56.

Frank Buckland, well known Petrborough sportsman, and executive, was acclaimed the OHA president at the annual confab held in Toronto this morning. And being wise in worldly things, Frank, knowing that no domicile is complete without a good "cook," has "done got himself one," as his "two-i'-one". None other than Leone Cooke of Kingston, a former Belleviliian who was installed as vice-president.

The elevation of these two gentlemen to the OHA seats of the mighty will be acclaimed by all hockey people in Ontario. Both have served the organization faithfully and well over the years, and their honors are well deserved.

We know Frank and Lorne well, and in the course of the sports-writing years have come in contact with them on several occasions. Both are gentlemen inside the council chamber and "off the record". Cooperative to the nth degree in all matters, both are firm in their convictions which are backed by a fund of general knowledge of the great game of hockey.

They reached their high positions the hard way. They served their apprenticeship truly and well. Both have been executive members for a number of unbroken years, and with the passing sessions their knowledge of the game, its requirements and problems has increased. Both are well-fitted to hold down their respective positions.

FRANK BUCKLAND

The success of senior hockey in this district, especially since senior "B" was inaugurated is mainly due to the combined efforts of Messrs. Buckland and Cook. The "Damon and Pythias" of senior hockey—each one ready to assist the other—they dovetailed their efforts into a whole that could not help but meet with success.

The Ontario Hockey Association can rest assured that again it will be led by hard-working, conscientious men who will do everything humanly possible to make the coming year one of the best in history. Its future for the next two years is in capable hands and there need be no qualms regarding careful, efficient administration.

Sports editor Cec Perdue of the Peterborough Examiner, in tribute to Mr. Buckland, wrote: "Former coach of the junior "B", intermediate "A" and senior "B" Petes, Frank was nominated to the OHA nine years ago . . . He has risen steadily since and has held many important posts on the executive. A tall, trim chap, always impeccably dressed, he is a genial type —a good mixer—and quite clever. He will be a credit to his city as head of the world's largest amateur hockey organization. A keen official who knows all aspects of the game, he is not easily bluffed, yet has the saving grace of a keen sense of humor."

In Lorne Cook, Buckland will have an able second-in-command. Like the new "boss," Lorne is a hard, effective worker who has given a lot of his time and effort to hockey, not only in his adopted city, but to the provincial organization as well. He is not a "home-towner." He believes in a fair-to-all policy and carries out Lorne Slaght's close, personal tab on hockey activities, especially in this neck-of-the-woods and he has travelled hundreds of miles merely to "take in" hockey games.

Mr. Cook formerly resided in this city and played junior hockey here. Realizing that Kingston would benefit greatly by his residence, which it did, Lorne moved to the Limestone city and has resided there since. Hockey in Hoddenville has benefitted greatly through Lorne's interest and activities in the sport.

Lorne took it upon himself to administer the senior "B" league for the past two season and he made a huge success of the job. So good that the managers of the seven member teams voted him an honorarium at the season's close.

So a part of "Lower Canada" takes over the operation of the OHA and the rest of the province can rest assured it is in efficient hands.

HAIL THE CHAMPS

For the first time in hockey history the good burghers of Ox Point are holding their heads high in justifiable pride. For their gallant hockey club came through last night with a sparkling 6-1 victory over Electric to win the first OHA intermediate "C" hockey crown in the history of the cementmaking village.

It was the second crown of the year for the Anderson-Bradshaw crew, they having won the Trent Valley Hockey league title for the second year in a row earlier in the year.

And the Ox Pointers compiled an enviable record in their successful march to two ice baubles. They went through the season with 36 victories as against four defeats which "ain't bad" in any man's league.

They defeated Marmora and Campbellford in round-robin play for the TVL crown and repeated the dose for the OHA playdown honors. They walloped Bobcaygeon three straight in the first round and had a two-game lead over the Boston club when that team protested successfully against two Point players.

In the re-played series they took two out of three, to win the semi-finals and went on to waltop Electric two straight for their first provincial championship.

Congratulations to worthy champions!

Goyers, Williams Pace Pack To Brilliant 6-1 Victory For Second Crown of Season

WALLACEBURG (Special) — Rolling up an impressive first-period three-goal lead, the Point Anne hockey team swept through to a convincing 6-1 victory over Electric last night to win the OHA intermediate "C" championship. It is the first time in hockey history that the Ox Pointers won a provincial title.

It was the second championship of the season for the winners, they having defeated Marmora earlier in the season for the Trent Valley hockey title.

Sparked by the line of Gerry Goyer, Leo Goyer and playing coach Timmy Williams, the Point Anne team took over almost complete command of the play leading 6-0 with seven minutes to go in the third period when Electric scored its lone goal.

The game was rugged at times with the referees handing out fifteen penalties, seven going to the Pointers, one of them a misconduct to Pat Gilmour in the second frame.

The Goyers-Williams line accounted for five of the Point Anne goals with Gerry Goyer and Timmy Williams getting two each and Leo Goyer one. Billy Strahan tired the Point marker mid-way through the third period.

SCORE THREE

The Pointers piled up a three-goal margin in the first period, scored the fourth in the second heat and slung home two more in the third chapter before Electric broke the "egg".

Duchene of the Electric team did not help the cause any with penalties. He drew seven of the eight sentences dished out by the officials, all of them minors.

Gerry Goyer established his way through the Electric defence after two minutes of play in the first period, to put the Pointers in the first goal. Seven minutes later Timmy Williams made it three-nuts with Leo Goyer and Semark driving the puck past Hooper for the second goal.

Gerry Goyer got his second goal of the period when he climaxed a three-man rush with his brother Leo and Williams to sling home the rubber and give the Pointers a three-goal lead.

Play tightened considerably in the second period as the big Electric team battled desperately to whittle down the margin. They failed to get by a stubborn Point Anne defence with Gilmour serving a misconduct penalty. Timmy Williams scored his second goal of the night and the only one of the period when he popped headed a three-man drive with Leo Goyer brothers poking the puck in the net after seven minutes of play.

TWO IN THIRD

Five minutes of the third period had slipped by when Leo Goyer took Semark's close-in pass to give the Pointers their fifth goal. With nine minutes to go Billy Strahan teaming with Pat Gilmour and Peter Green drove home the rubber to make the count 6-0 and end the Point scoring for the night.

Electric never gave up trying and with seven minutes to go Lemon got their lone marker when he took McGee's pass to beat Jones in the Point's net. Duchane drew three of his seven penalties in this period.

The homesters battled hard in the dying minutes but the Pointers coasted in with their five-goal lead to bring home the first championship bacon in the hockey history of "Point". They won the best-of-three series in two straight games having defeated Electric 10-5 in the first game played in Marmora earlier in the week.

The teams:

Markell Hurls No-Hitter For Rochester Wings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harry (Duke) Markell, who has pitched for 16 teams, including two major league clubs, seems to have found a place to hang his hat for a while.

Now toiling for Rochester, the 31-year-old veteran righthander pitched a no-hitter Friday night to lead the Rochester Red Wings to a 9-0 victory over the Columbus Jets. It was the Red Wings' second win of the campaign and it was Markell's third no-hitter in his 10-year career.

Markell, traded to Rochester in mid-season last year by the Syracuse Chiefs, appeared briefly with the St. Louis Browns in 1951 and with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1954.

Only seven men reached base against Markell. Hector Lopez walked in the fourth and Lou Limmer was hit by a pitched ball in the fifth. Two doubles and a single by third baseman Jay Van Noy sparked Rochester's 12-hit attack that backed up Markell's twirling.

LEAFS BEAT CHIEFS

The Toronto Maple Leafs, last year's pennant winners, moved into first place with a 16-hit, 12-3 victory over the Syracuse Chiefs.

The Maple Leafs scored five times in the third on five hits and two Syracuse errors to break the game wide open.

Hector Rodriguez collected three singles and scored on five trips to the bat and Sam Jethroe an eighth inning double with one aboard led the Toronto attack against four Syracuse pitchers.

Francisco Herrera's two run homer in the sixth and Hall Buckner's second two run third accounted for the Chiefs' three runs. Don Johnson pitched all the way for his second win of the season.

FOUR HOMERS

The Montreal Royals, behind the effective six-hit pitching of Don Thompson the starter and Zeiser went four innings and three more Royals jumped off to a 5-0 lead in the first inning with two singles a walk and two home runs. Jocko Drydale, pinched four home runs, 4 triple and two doubles to trounce the Richmond Virginians 15-0. The Richmond pitchers had little luck in stemming the Royals onslaught.

The Buffalo Bisons finally broke into the win column as they flattened the Cuban Giants 12-0.

Jim Bunning gave up six hits and fanned seven. His own error while covering first in a double play led to an unearned Havana tally. Veteran shortstop Buddy Hicks sparked the Bison attack with a homer and two singles to make it six safeties in seven trips for two games.

Perfect Weather Greets "Trouters" "Speckles" Said To Be Plentiful

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Anglers by the thousands headed for their favorite Ontario streams today in search of delicious speckled trout.

The weather was perfect. All the anglers needed was co-operation.

Roger Saunders of Guelph, a 14-year-old fisherman, got co-operation. He pulled an eight-inch trout from a stream at Eugenia at one minute after midnight for the first fish of the season. The season closes Sept. 15.

Lands and forests department officials expected more than 100,000 to bait and cast on opening day and said prospects for a limit catch were fair to excellent.

The season also opened today for rainbows, German brown trout and Kamloops. Lake trout fishing already has been open in most of Ontario. The bag limit on speckles is 15 fish: One of any weight plus 14 others not exceeding 10 pounds total. Bag limit on brown, rainbows and Kamloops is five a day, more than seven inches.

GENERALLY PLENTIFUL

A Canadian Press survey showed trout generally were plentiful. Lake and stream levels throughout the province were near normal and lakes in the north were free of ice.

The size usually caught in Ontario is less than a pound. A five-pounder would create considerable interest and a seven- or eight-pounder usually wins fishing contests.

The world's record speckled trout — 14½-pounder 34 inches long — was taken from Nipigon river by Dr. W. J. Cook of Port Arthur in 1915.

Fishing conditions generally were reported good except in the southwestern Ontario area around Sarnia where trout are not easily found. The extreme north is reserved for Indian trappers who need fish and game for food.

James Gage of Hespeler, Huron forestry district biologist, said he expected to see more fishermen than fish in the south end of the district around Hamilton. The district, covering 10 counties, stretches north to the Bruce peninsular.

NORTH BAY EXCELLENT

In the North Bay district conditions were excellent.

Many fishermen were expected to head up the Ontario Northland Railway line which crosses the roadless region of Timagami game preserve north of North Bay and north of Sturgeon Falls where several dozen speckled trout lakes are situated.

More than 50,000 trout were stocked in the majority of trout lakes in the Kerrcopine area last fall.

Sudbury district reported several thousand were expected to flock to trout lakes in a 50-mile radius of the city. Conservation officers said fishermen should do well in the Sault Ste. Marie area.

A good turnout was expected in the Kingston area although few stocked trout were reported. Only lake fishing was expected.

Tigers Win Sixth Straight; Grab Lead As Shantz Shackles Yankees 6-0

Edge Senators For 3-2 Win As Bombers Held to 3 Hits; Orioles Chirp Over Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What looked like the same old three-team race in the American League may now get to be quite a bit different. Bobby Shantz's back on the beam and the Detroit Tigers are on the prowl for the first time since 1950.

Shantz, the little fella who's had his arm in hock for two years, checked in again Friday night with the Kansas City Athletics, knocking the New York Yankees for a loop with a dandy three-hitter 6-0.

And with Shantz back with the Yanks, the Detroiters took control of the AL lead, rolling over Washington for their sixth straight victory, 3-2.

What's more, Cleveland's defending champion Indians discovered it was a brand new season as their pitching again went sour and Baltimore grabbed its first victory at Municipal Stadium 5-4. The Orioles, who padded the Tribe's record 111 victories last season by winning only three from the champs, hadn't won in Cleveland since 1954 back in the league last season.

WHITE SOX WIN

Chicago was the only touted pennant contender to win Friday taking second place as rookie Dick Donovan shut-out Boston 7-0.

In the National, with more and more decisions showing between first-place Brooklyn and the rest of the pack, only two games were played. Philadelphia joined Milwaukee in second place 4½ games behind the Brooks by whipping the Braves 13-4. And Cincinnati clipped Pittsburgh 5-0.

Rain postponed Chicago at Brooklyn and St. Louis at New York.

There were 33,471 fans in the stands—a Kansas City record—as Shantz stood the Yanks on their ears. The 5-8 southpaw granted the Bombers just three singles in pitching his first shutout since Sept. 19, 1953, when he blanked the Yankees 3-0. That was the year Bobby won 24 and was the AL's most valuable player.

It was the first complete game since July 26, 1953 for Shantz, who sat out 1954 when his arm went dead in the season opener. He's 3-3 for the season.

The A's had a 4-0 lead for Shantz after two innings Friday night, swinging for a pair in each of the first two frames off rookie Johnny Kucks. Bill Wilson got two of the A's six hits, driving in two runs with a single and home run.

Only Andy Carey, Elston Howard and Gil McDougald solved Shantz' —singling in the first, seventh and ninth.

Detroit jammed across three runs in the sixth to dump Washington, as rookie Frank Lary spaced eight Senator hits. Ray Boone's leadoff homer, Lary's pop fly double and Harvey Kuenn's single wrapped it up for the Tigers, giving Detroit its longest victory string since '50 when the Bengals wound up second to the Yankees.

Al Kaline extended his personal streak, hitting safely in all 14 games played by Detroit. Mickey Vernon single and homered for both Washington runs.

Donovan, a .34-year-old right-hander who had previous trials with the Braves and Detroit, picked up his first major league victory against the Red Sox. He fanned six and walked but one while Chicago tagged four Boston hurlers for 11 hits. The White Sox slugged Willard Nixon for four runs and eight hits in less than four innings as the righthander suffered his first defeat in four decisions. Sherm Lollar and Nellie Fox homered for Chicago.

Four runs in the ninth won for Baltimore, shelling Mike Garcia out of the game and into his third defeat against one triumph. Garcia, 19-8 last season, had nobit the Orioles until the ninth, when three singles scored a run, Gene Woodling's leadoff homer and four singles broke it up in the ninth. Ray Moore was the winner in relief of Harry Byrd.

The Phils jumped all over Warren Spahn, Dee Fondy and Ernie Johnson for six runs in the fifth. Del Ennis got Herm Wehmeier off to a 2-0 lead in the first with a home run and the veteran righthander took it from there, allowing only four hits. One was a solo homer by Bobby Thomson. Another was a bases-loaded triple by Andy Pafko in the ninth. The game was called on account of rain with the Phils at bat in the 8th.

Tillsonburg Win Int. 'A' Title

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP)—Tillsonburg Pan-Dricks won the Ontario Hockey Association intermediate 'A' championships Friday night by dropping Meaford Knights 8-3. Tillsonburg took the best-of-seven final 4-3.

It was the first time this town has won an OHA intermediate 'A' title. Pan-Dricks were in control all the way leading 3-2 at the end of the first period and 6-3 at the end of the second.

Joe Hodek paced Tillsonburg with four markers. Goose Land netted three, Jack Drew got one, Johnson, Walmsley and Jack Macdonald scored for Meaford.

Queer Game This Golf!

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Young golfer Bud Holscher made his par four the hard and unusual way on the 17th green in the Tournament of Champions Friday.

On in two, Holscher putted 20 inches past the pin. With his club tucked under his arm, he reached into his pocket for a marker. The club fell, hit the ball and it went into the hole.

Tournament director Howard Capps ruled: One penalty shot, and play the ball where it stopped.

"So the penalty shot gave him four strokes, and since the ball was already in the hole that was it. Par four," said Capps. And he added: "I never saw this happen before in all my years in golf."

HAIL HITS TOWN

FORT LAUDERDALE Fla. (AP) A hailstorm with winds of hurricane force struck Fort Lauderdale Friday, causing damage estimated at $500,000. There were no serious injuries.

Ted Williams Costing League Half Million

CHICAGO (AP) — Frank Lane, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, Friday said the absence of Ted Williams from Boston's lineup is costing the American League gate $500,000 this year.

Lane quickly added: "That's a conservative estimate."

"Boston has a great young club," said Lane, "but they don't have any name players, who will draw fans from the outlying districts of Chicago and other cities.

"Remember, Williams was a great magnet. This fellow (Faye) Thornberry is doing a fine job and may be another Williams but not this year," Lane said.

"I never saw this happen before added:

"I certainly hope Williams comes back to baseball," said Lane. "I'd like to see him back as a friend and also for selfish, business reasons."

Landy Hangs Up "Mercury" Spikes

MELBOURNE (AP)—The world has probably seen the last of miracle John Landy as a competitive runner.

After he was invested as a Member of the British Empire at Government House Friday, "in recognition of his outstanding representation in the forward field of athletics," Landy said:

"I doubt if I will ever run competitively again. I simply haven't time or the opportunity to train."

In June 1954, in Finland, Landy established the present mile record of three minutes, 58 seconds. He now is a teacher of agriculture.

Marlies To Get Civic Reception

TORONTO (CP)—No sooner had Toronto Marlboros defeated Regina Pats 8-5 Friday night to win the Memorial Cup championship than the City of Toronto announced plans for their jubilant homecoming.

Marlboros, who took the best-of-seven series 4-1, will be given a civic welcome and parade when they return here Monday morning.

"It'll be a reception worthy of champions," said Mayor Nathan Phillips.

Marlboros Win Memorial Cup With 8-5 Overtime Victory; Billy Harris Scores Winner

By WILF CHISLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP)—The 1955 Memorial Cup hockey final, the bitterest-fought in years, ended in a blazing finish Friday night with Toronto Marlboros 8-5 winners in overtime. Marlboros came from behind to score five straight goals against the western champion Regina Pats.

Nearly 26,000 fans saw the five games of the best-of-seven series, won by Marlboros 4-1.

Outclassed after the first game and underdogs from the start, Pats made it a fighting series. But the silver trophy, donated by the Ontario Hockey Association in memory of players who lost their lives in the First World War, remains in eastern hands for the seventh straight year.

The final game was by far the best of the series. Billy Harris, lithe Marlboro centre in his last year of junior hockey, scored the winning goal at 6:23 of overtime.

Big Billy Hay, like Harris a pro prospect, was brilliant in defeat for Pats, with a three-goal effort. Team captain Bev. Bell and Harold Ottenbreit were the other Pat marksmen.

Garry Collins and Glen Cressman each scored twice for Toronto with singles going to Harris, Gerry James, Bob Pulford and Bill Kennedy.

Regina was ahead 30 at the end of the first period after a goal by Bell and two by Hay. Kennedy and James reduced the lead to 3-3 in the second period before Hay completed his hat-trick with 48 seconds remaining.

Four goals were scored within less than 1½ minutes in the third period, Collins reduced Pats' lead to 4-3 at 10:29, Ottenbreit made it 5-3 at 10:57. Pulford cut the edge to 5-4 at 11:44 and Cressman made it a 5-5 tie at 11:58.

The winning goal by Harris in overtime took the stuffing out of the tired Regina team. Cressman and Collins added goals without too much opposition.

Year-stained cheeks were visible in the Regina dressing room after the game. Coach Murray Armstrong of Pats, a former NHL star, told his boys they had nothing to be ashamed of in losing.

"You gave everything you had and I'm just as proud as I would if you had won," Armstrong said.

Coach Turk Broda of Marlboros, the only — pclfr former Toronto Maple Leaf goaltender, left his rejoicing team for a moment to pay tribute to Pats.

"Don't let anybody tell you they didn't scare us," he said of the Regina team. "We won ourselves a great series and I'm awfully thankful it's over."

Scottish Hockey League Withdrawal Tosses British Game Into Turmoil

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—British hockey, never a wholly Canadian game transplant, was up in the air today following a decision by the Scottish Ice Hockey Association to withdraw its seven teams from the year-old union with four English clubs.

Hockey spokesmen north and south said today they just don't know what will happen now to the sport—or to the 150-odd Canadian players, coaches and officials who make it tick. But few vitualized hockey-less summer.

"Somehow I imagine there will be hockey in the south next year," said an official at London's Harringay Arena, home of the prosperous Racers.

"I can't see my rink without hockey," said Canadian-born coach of the Ayr, Scotland arena, which with Paisley has fared better than the east coast Scottish clubs at Perth, Dundee, Edinburgh, Falkirk and Kirkcaldy. "I was disappointed at the league decision. We might have amateur hockey—no pay, no Canadians—but that is just an idea.

"I imagine we will put our heads together shortly."

Bill Cressey, his counterpart at Paisley, said he anticipated "some sort of hockey, but we aren't interested in amateur. It just wouldn't draw."

Manager John Foster at Perth, who said the withdrawal fulfilled his pessimistic forecast a year ago, said he was disappointed that the SIHA had made no effort to revive the original Scottish League.

"We could get along without Canada, but we don't want to. It would take two or three years to get amateurs together, drawn from football players, going."

The British Ice Hockey League was formed last year with eight teams from Scotland and four from England. Unfavorable gate receipts in mid-season. The purpose was to jack up the sagging English division, which reduced by withdrawals to the vanishing point.

Monday officials were to provide new faces and more competition in a country used to multi-team leagues, but travel costs proved the bugbear for the east coast Scots clubs. They sought a £12,000 guarantee before agreeing to embark on another season, and the English clubs rejected it last week.

Hockey, which started in Britain in the mid-30s in a big way, has found the post-war going rugged for a number of reasons. The high entertainment tax, touching more than 30 per cent at the top, is a big factor. Glossy ice shows have provided competition in London, in some cases shoving hockey teams out of their own homes.

The London Streatham team, long the cream of the league and a charter member, withdrew last year because its limited seating capacity of 3,000 was inadequate to meet rising rent. An arena of official said Friday he doesn't think Streatham will re-join any English league, which in the present situation would include only London's Harringay and Wembley, with Nottingham and Brighton. There have been reports that arenas at Southampton and one or two other points might be interested.

British hockey, ruled good senior "B" by Canadian standards, is regarded as a reasonably expensive sport to promote. Players get an average £20 a week, and they must be transported to and from Canada.

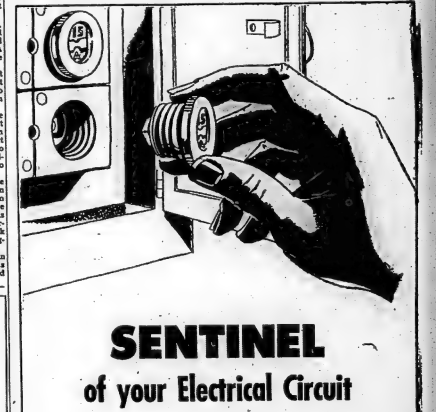
Sam Snead's Golf School
DIRECTION OF FOLLOW THROUGH
PGA FUNDAMENTAL No. 8

In presenting its fifth and last fundamental of the swing, to a great extent, says the PGA Teaching Committee, the shifting of weight in the golf swing is an optical and physical illusion.

While it is obvious, as you watch any expert swing that much of his weight is shifted to the left on the backswing and to his left on the downswing and follow - through, this must never be a deliberate or conscious action.

Whatever weight shift takes place is actually a transitory one which follows the pivot as a result — does not precede it as a cause.



The confusion on this point probably arises from the fact that the turning of the hips in the pivot appears to be a lateral shifting of the hips.

In reality, in a correct swing, you only rotate your body around the vertical axis of your spine, without any shifting of the hips, or any visible sway of the body.

DAVIS CUP OPENERS — RELEASE JOCKEY

LONDON (CP) —In continental matches in the first round of the European zone of the Davis Cup, Germany Friday gained a 2-0 lead over Ireland, Holland and Switzerland divided opening singles, and Argentina won both singles over Monaco. Doubles competitions in the various matches continue today.

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — Jockey Willis Shoemaker, the nation's leading rider, was released Friday from hospital where he spent the night as the result of injuries suffered Thursday at Golden Gate Fields. The veteran rider suffered only bruises and abrasions when thrown from his mount, hospital attendants said.

Gale Storm, Charles Farrell Finish 'My Little Margie'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gale Storm and Charles Farrell approached the end of a long, long trail this week as the last of "My Little Margie" on TV.

The lively pair made No. 126 of the TV series and it will be the final one. Although it has lost its sponsor, "My Little Margie" is still popular and could probably snag another one. Then why is it going off?

The answer concerns the economics of the TV film business. Many producers break even or perhaps take a loss on the first run. The loot is gained in re-runs of the show. And now "My Little Margie" is going after the loot.

That's all right with Gale and Charlie, because they share in the profits. But during the last days of production, both seemed a little sad.

LOST DIGNITY

They started making a wacky chapter in which Charlie was arrested for a minor traffic violation and finished it with a butterfly net. This seemed a bit undignified for the former mayor of Palm Springs and still owner of the fashionable Racquet Club. But he was there, of his dignity about 100 TV films ago.

Watching on the sidelines was Gale, who was still dazed after being the subject of "This Is Your Life" last week. She explained the status of Margie:

"The present producer, Roland Reed, says he won't make any more shows. He wants to cash in on the re-runs. But there is some question as to whether Hal Roach Jr. will continue making them. At any rate, we'll still be doing Margie on radio."

AT THE MCCARTHY

LOVE FINDS A BARRIER!

"The new British film "Chance Meeting" which comes to the McCarthy theatre Monday, vividly illustrates the truth of the saying: "Love Knows No Barrier". The barrier in this case being the invisible one erected by the two halves of a politically divided world. All the tension and drama of international intrigue is to be found in this suspenseful story of two young lovers whose desperate love climbs through the barrier that kept them apart. The enchanting French star Odile Versois gives a moving performance as the daughter of an "iron Curtain" minister. While as a clerk in the American Embassy in London, young American actor David Knight shines in his first starring role.

"Chance Meeting" is a thrilling story, as timely as tomorrow's headlines. This pulsating story of an ecstatic, forbidden love, will stun you with its impact, set your heart throbbing with its excitement, stay with you long after most others are forgotten. For "Chance Meeting" is that kind of a story.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what the outlook is, according to the

For Monday, May 2, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Gainful indications. Use common sense, however. Check carefully in order to offset possible early disturbance. No extravagance!

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — You in the fields of labor, agriculture, economics, building and general merchandising can expect favorable reaction to your best efforts. Aim to achieve, to surpass yesterday's trist.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — In some respects an unpredictable day. Take care in untried propositions. Well-defined and intelligently managed activities can prosper, however.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Draw conclusions carefully. Be as original as possible but also consider past experience — and profit thereby. Those who envision with logic have the best chance for benefits.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — After you have completed a review of tasks to be performed, do not delay in getting started. Best rays early in the day. Don't yield to weakness or doubt. Confidence can help to bring success.

August 23 to September 22 — (Virgo) — Be conservative in dealings that involve money, property. Personal, family, social affairs honored.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Progressiveness with moderation will go over well. Avoid involvement with wrong parties. Handle all dealings thoughtfully. An encouraging day for well analyzed action; give your best.

October 24 to November 23 — (Scorpio) — This day will be responsive to your keen sense of deduction and clever manipulation; steady effort should bring satisfactory returns. Don't invite foolish chances; be on the constantly safe side.

November 24 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Stick to what you know rather than fall for what others may try to sell you. Whatever you attempt, do your best. All things considered, you can advance in most matters.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — No really bad features in this day's outlook. You have the advantage at the outset. Stop, think, study, then give all. Be constructive.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Some unusual circumstances. Perhaps high tension in those things with which you must be concerned. This may be annoying but don't forget the period could be dull otherwise.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Don't allow the fact that you have had a setback to influence the present revitalizing possibilities. New benefits can be gained by striking out confidently.

You born today are dependable, determined, have a strong character, yet are gentle and kindly. You seldom lose your temper unless provoked at length, then you can really be in a fury. You have unusual talent, both artistic and mechanical; are creative, and can improve upon the methods of others. Have faith in your great assets and in God's constant love and help. Don't keep your troubles too much to yourself; confide in family. Enjoy worthy friends. Indulge a hobby, music, company of children in free time. Advantageous months ahead.
